It is such a common thing to think of young lady artists as paint wasters, that people are inclined to overlook the fact that a large number of them are coming to the front in Ontario. They are pushing their way into most of the important exhibits and several of them attract considerable attention. One young lady who will probably be heard from in the future is Miss Marion E. Mattice of Hamilton. She has worked chiefly as a teacher, but is simply biding her time and will surely come into her own. A year ago Miss Mattice attracted attention with her picture "Motherhood," exhibited by the Ontario Society of Artists. She has a gift for coloring, especially such sharp contrast effects as are caused by the reflection of fire lights. Her pictures are chiefly remarkable, however, for the tenderness of their atmosphere, and one was interested in the picture because it expressed so eloquently the love of the mother placing her child in the cradle. There is the same homeliness of atmosphere about "The Evening Prayer," which is the principle work of Miss Mattice during the past year. It shows a little girl at her mother's knee, and the attitude of the child at its simple devotions is perfect. Miss Mattice has made use of the same fire-light effect as was found in her former picture. This young artist intends to go to Europe shortly to study, and after she returns, people may look for original work from her.

She has tried many lines of art, having done one farm-yard scene in which the detail and the freshness of the coloring shows how excellent is her technical equipment. A visitor who was admiring her work paid particular attention to one decorative panel of a young girl in a quaint summer costume. It was extremely effective, but Miss Mattice said laughing, "You see we are all thoroughly commercial. That was painted for a firm which wanted a design for advertising shoes." Then the visitor noticed that the feet were particularly dainty and carefully painted.

A Docter's Discovery.

Dr. A. H. Caulfield, resident pathologist at the Muskoka Consumptive Hospital, Gravenhurst, has aroused a great deal of interest in medical circles by the account of original research work in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. A detailed account of his work has appeared under the title of "Investigations on Pulmonary Tuberculosis." Leading medical men, both in America and Europe, appear to be of the opinion that this specialist may be on the eve of a great discovery.

In the meantime his investigations have thrown the light of advanced thought on this great subject.

Recently Dr. Caulfield was awarded the Ex-House Surgeons' Association prize for the best paper published during the year. Dr. Caulfield is only thirty-one years old. He is an old Jarvis Street Collegiate and Upper Canada boy. He spent two years in the hospitals of London, Berlin, and Vienna; was bacteriologist at the Toronto General Hospital for some time, and is a member of the National Board of Health of the United States. He frequently lectures in Washington and other medical centres.

When a student in Toronto, "Alf" Caulfield spent a couple of summers on the staff of The Toronto Star as Muskoka correspondent, and proved to be one of the best correspondents The Star ever had. If he discovers a cure for tuberculosis, The Star will not begrudge its loss when he forsook journalism for medicine.

An Old-Fashioned Actor.

The recent death of Denman Thompson has caused a number of old citizens to recall the days when he lived in Toronto, half a century ago. The house which he occupied on Wilton avenue, which was then looked upon as being "up town," is still to be seen, and some people can recall the homely character of the actor who was later on to make "The Old Homestead" known throughout the length and breadth of the continent. Thompson possessed a great many of the racy qualities which formed the appeal of Joshua Whitcomb, and he was an honest, simple soul with none of the affectations which are supposed to characterize the modern star. Thompson might not have succeeded if he had lived in this generation, when the public and the profession find that the intellectual drama is growing steadily stronger. He was not a man of deep education or culture, and had a quiet contempt for such things. He felt quite satisfied with his friends and the fame which [illegible]

HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE.

COULD NOT CROSS THE FLOOR PAIN WAS SO GREAT.

Miss Hazel Hess, Winchester Springs, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with my kidneys for five years. They were so bad, at times, I could not cross the floor for the pain. The doctor could not do me any good and a friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought six boxes and now I have been cured for over four years. I will recommend them to every sufferer."

No woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well. When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realising quick, permanent relief, without any after ill effects. A medicine that will absolutely cure backache and all forms of kidney and bladder trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's".

WHAT CAN I DO FOR MY SKIN-TORTURED BABY?

Is the Despairing Cry of Thousands of Mothers. A Scotchwoman Tells How Her Child was Cured.

"What can I do for my skin-tortured baby?" How many worried, worn-out mothers, whose children are suffering with eczema, tetter or other torturing, disfiguring humor, have asked themselves this question! Through neglect or improper treatment, some minor eruption has developed into a distressing and unsightly affliction. Simple treatments fail, and stronger ones are tried, sometimes so harsh that the suffering is increased rather than allayed. Even professional aid has proven useless, and the fear is ever-present that the skin disease will become chronic, turning the child's future into a nightmare of physical and mental misery.

Such mothers, who have witnessed their children's suffering and who have undergone the long, sleepless nights and distracting anxiety which they alone can realize, will understand the gratitude that prompted this letter from Mrs. John Ewan, 5, Victoria St., Inverurie, Scotland, and will read it with keenest interest:

"I use Cuticura Soap steadily for my baby's skin. She had the eczema when she was three months old. She was in an awful mess all over her body. We never thought she would get over it. We sat with her night and day for about a month, expecting every minute to see her die. The doctor gave me an ointment to rub her with but it did her no good. My mother was home from America and she told me to try Cuticura Ointment and to wash her with Cuticura Soap. There was a great difference when I used the first box. It seemed to soothe her and she slept. I used three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and she was quite cured. She has the purest skin and is the fattest baby now! She is a miracle, the doctor declares. I am glad to tell anybody about it."

And that the success of the Cuticura Remedies is not confined to the treatment of eczema, is amply proven by Mrs. M. A. Schwede, 674 Springwells Ave., Detroit, Mich., who writes:

"When my little Vivian was about six months old, her papa had a boil on his forehead. At that time the child was covered with prickly heat and I suppose in scratching it her own head became infected, for it broke out in boils, one after another. She had about sixty in all and I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her of them entirely. We do not think any one can praise Cuticura Remedies too highly."

That mothers may test the efficacy and economy of the Cuticura Remedies for themselves, the Potter Drug and Chem. Corp., 121 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass., will send free on application, a generous trial box of Cuticura Ointment, sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of eczemas, rashes, itchings and scalings of the skin and scalp. Under the influence of Cuticura Ointment, the itching and burning stop, the child falls into a refreshing sleep, the mother rests, and for the first time, perhaps, in many weeks, peace falls on a distracted household. The Cuticura Remedies are sold by druggists everywhere.

Making Trouble.

That many people like to see others get into trouble is the opinion of an employe in the health department of an Ontario city, to which many complaints are made by citizens.

He tells, for instance, of a man who telephoned to the department to tell that a neighbor was doing a little building or other work that the complaining one knew to be an infraction of a city bylaw.

"I don't want to make trouble," said the kicker, in a sincere tone. Then he added with great eagerness, "but if you come up right now you'll catch him at it."

A New Disease

The nurses in connection with the medical inspection work recently started in Toronto's public schools are meeting with some funny incidents.

A little girl was told by one of the nurses that some ailment the child had needed treatment. The young[illegible] made light of the trouble. "That's nothing," she said. "Why, my chum has Paradise in the leg."

A Distinguished Soldier.

Major-Gen. Charles Walker Robinson, C.B., D.C.L., who is now staying at Beverley House, Toronto, where he was born in 1836, is a member of a family that was prominently identified in days gone by with the history of Upper Canada. He is the youngest son of the late Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart., Chief Justice of Upper Canada, and uncle of the present baronet, Sir John Beverley Robinson, who makes his home in New Jersey. Gen. Robinson has had a distinguished career in the British army. He served through the Indian Mutiny, the Ashantee War, and the Zulu campaign. Since then he has been brigade major at Aldershot, lieutenant-governor of Chelsea Hospital, etc. He has written several books, including a life of his father, "Wellington's Campaigns," "Strategy of the Peninsular War," "Canada and Canadian Defence," etc. The general's home, near Ealing, in England, is called after the home of his childhood, Beverley House.

Follows Instructions.

"My wife instructed our little boy when he was invited out to lunch the other day that when he was asked to have a second helping of cake he should refuse. 'You must say, "No, I thank you, I've had enough," said she. 'And don't you forget it.'

"He didn't. When asked if he'd have some more cake he said, 'No, I thank you, I've had enough, and don't you forget it?'"—Toledo Blade.

A TALENTED ARBITRATOR.

Ralph Conner Is a Man With a First-Hand Knowledge of Men.

Rev. Charles W. Gordon (Ralph Connor) of Winnipeg, the famous novelist, who has been appointed chairman of the board of conciliation which will seek to settle the big strike of coal miners in the West, is noted for his tolerance. That quality stands out strongest among his characteristics as a man, a minister, and a writer.

As good an example of this as can be found is an amusing incident in his novel "The Foreigner."

The Anglican bishop in the story was being driven over the Edmonton trail by Sam Macmillan, a very competent but very profane freighter. Every time the horses became wired in a sleugh Sam would let loose a string of original oaths which made the bishop's blood curdle. The latter implored the man to desist.

"Just as you say, your reverence," replied Sam. "I ain't hurried this trip, and will do our best."

At the next sleugh the experiment was tried. Ordinary language was used, but the horses would not budge. Half an hour passed with no results.

"It's getting late, Mr. Macmillan, and it looks like rain. Something must be done," said the bishop.

"It does, your lordship," answered Sam. "But the brutes won't pull half their own weight without I speak to them in the way they are used to."

More time passed. Then the bishop gave in.

"Well, well, Mr. Macmillan," he said, "we must get on. Do as you think best, but I take no responsibility in the matter."

He retired from the scene and—

Macmillan seized the reins from the ground, and, walking up and down the length of the six-horse team, began to address them singly and in the mass in terms so sulphurously descriptive of their ancestry, their habits, and their physical and psychological characteristics that when he gave the word in a mighty culminating roar of blasphemous excitation, each of the bemired beasts seemed to be inspired with a special demon, and so exerted itself that in a single minute the load stood high and dry on solid ground.

A clergyman who will write like this ought to be a man to consider all the circumstances, and provocations on both sides of a labor dispute. —Star Weekly.

Saving the Children.

That it is better to save a child from crime than to send him to a reformatory afterwards is the key to the spirit that animated the people of Regina, Sask., in establishing a shelter—which was opened the other day—so as to deal effectively with the cases of child neglect that come before the courts. The movement for the betterment of the children was started two years ago, and the work began in a small way, a house being rented for it. The movement appealed to the citizens, and a bylaw was passed voting ten thousand dollars, which enabled the directorate to erect the present building and give it up-to-date equipment.

On the ground floor, says The Regina Standard, in describing the building, is the board room, where in future the Juvenile Court will be held. On this floor also are the dining-room and matron's suite, while upstairs are dormitories, bathrooms and other offices, including rooms that can be used as isolation wards. A great feature is the entire absence of anything suggestive of "an institution" about the furnishings of the home. The enamelled bedsteads are such as might be found in any well-to-do home, and the spotless linen and beautiful furniture will always be a pleasant memory in the minds of the children. During the short time the home has been in existence over one hundred children have passed through it, the policy of the directors being to find homes for the children at the earliest opportunity, so that no child is detained any longer than absolutely necessary. Even children committed by the police magistrate are allowed home on parole, the parents, of course, being kept under observation. Three boys are at present on parole, who but for the influence of the home would in all likelihood have been serving terms of imprisonment.

ZAM-BUK SAVED THIS BABY

Mrs. M. Barrett, 600 Marson St., Montreal, says:

"A horrid rash came out all over my baby's face and spread until it had totally covered his scalp. It was irritating and painful, and caused the little one hours of suffering. We tried soaps and powders and salves, but he got no better. He refused his food, got quite thin and worn, and was reduced to a very serious condition. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and did so. It was wonderful how it seemed to cool and ease the child's burning, painful skin. Zam-Buk from the very commencement seemed to go right to the spot, and the pimples and sores and the irritation grew less and less. Within a few weeks my baby's skin was healed completely. He has now not a trace of rash, or eruption, or eczema, or burning sore. Not only so, but cured of the tormenting skin trouble, he has improved in general health."

Zam-Buk is sold at all stores and medicine vendors, 50c., a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c price, 6 boxes for $2.50. A certain cure for all skin diseases, cuts, burns, etc., and for piles.

PRESENCE OF MIND

May Make Heroes of Physical Cowards in Time of Danger.

NOT A MATTER OF COURAGE.

It is the Sudden Impulse That Moves One to Do the Right Thing in an Unexpected Emergency—A Soldier and a Shell and a Man and a Murder.

There is a distinction to be drawn between presence of mind and courage. Persons who naturally are timid and nervous will in circumstances of great danger and excitement perform acts of heroism that would be beyond their powers on ordinary occasions. We speak of these as instances of presence of mind. But if you ask them they would tell you that an involuntary impulse rather than any premeditated course of action guided their will on the occasion. Had they time for reflection when all the threatening danger to themselves had become clear to their minds their natural timidity of character would have asserted itself and deprived them of action.

It is absence of fear that prompts the soldier under a heavy fire from the enemy's guns to go to the assistance of a wounded comrade and bring him to a place of safety, and nothing in human nature can compare with such self sacrifice. But in times of sudden emergency it is not always the bravest who act with promptitude. The following story is an instance of this:

One of our transports was returning from the Philippines with invalided men, and one morning at sea a group of officers on the deck discussed the subject of firing shells. A soldier was told by the colonel to bring an empty shell with a fuse. The colonel took the shell in his hands and, striking a match, lighted the fuse. As this slowly burned and the colonel proceeded with his address to the other officers another soldier passed the group, and the moment he caught sight of the shell he rushed forward, exclaiming, "Look out, sir; the shell is a live one!" Then he did what never seemed to have come into the minds of any in the group of officers. He seized the shell out of the hands of the colonel and threw it into the sea. For this service he was promoted. The soldier who had been told to bring an empty shell had gone to the wrong magazine. Those who talked with the man touching this incident say that he repudiated any idea of having done a brave thing. "I don't know," he said, "what made me seize the shell out of the colonel's hand, but it came suddenly into my mind, and I did it." It is this wave of unconscious thought which constitutes true presence of mind. This will come to people of nervous and even cowardly natures.

There is of authentic record the case of a man known to be utterly deficient of courage who saved himself from a very awkward situation by an exhibition of real presence of mind. He was an Englishman and lived in a town in the midlands, where he was an organist. Late one evening he was returning home through some of the back streets, which at that hour were more or less empty of people. As he went along, however, he noticed some distance ahead of him a man and a woman walking side by side, the man's arm being around the woman's neck. Just under a street lamp the couple stopped for a moment, when the organist heard a piercing scream and saw the woman slowly falling from the man's arms. Almost before she had reached the ground the man darted away down a side street and disappeared.

When the organist came up to the woman he found, to his horror, that she was lying in a pool of blood. His first impulse was to run away and get clear of the terrible scene, but his better feelings prevailed, and he knelt down beside the poor woman to see if he could do anything for her. When he raised her head he found she was quite dead, with her throat cut from ear to ear. Beside her on the pave ment lay a blood stained razor.

The organist was overwhelmed with horror. Before he could collect himself a group of people had gathered, and presently he heard expressions such as "He did it." "I tell you I saw him." "There is the razor." "The fiend! Where are the police?" "Hand him over!" It was certainly a very awkward position, as the rough character of the people might tempt them to take the law into their own hands and use him very badly. The arrival of a policeman seemed to steady his nerves for a moment, and then came a wave of inspiration that might truly be called presence of mind. He seized the dead woman's wrist and, pulling out his watch, went through the form of feeling her pulse. Then he put his hand over her heart and, turning to the policeman, said as calmly as he could: "I am sorry to say that I can be of no further service here. The poor woman is quite dead. There is no action in the heart or the pulse."

In an instant the murmurs of the crowd changed, and he heard "He's the doctor" on all sides. This was his opportunity, and, slowly riding and affecting to be in no hurry, he passed through the crowd, who made way for him. But when he got clear of the street and came to the first turning he took to his heels and ran for all he was worth. The cowardly spirit got the better of him in the end. He heard the next day that the murderer had gone straight to the police station and given himself up.—New York Press.

AT DEATH'S DOOR FROM KIDNEY DISEASE

SAVED ONLY BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

CLANBRASSIE, ONT.

"Two years ago, the doctor made forty-four calls on me, and then said he had done all he could for me. I was suffering with intense Kidney Trouble and Inflammation had set in. Two other doctors were consulted and agreed that nothing could be done to help me.

On the recommendation of a neighbor, I took "Fruit-a-tives" and they cured me. To-day, I take "Fruit-a-tives" as my only medicine. I am in excellent health, and "Fruit-a-tives" is the medicine that cured me after I had been at Death's Door for months.

I am glad to be able to give you this testimonial. It may benefit some other women suffering as I suffered, as I believe that I would not be alive to-day had I not used "Fruit-a-tives".

Wild Boar of India.

Terrible as is the tiger in India, the wild boar is even more savage and dangerous to attack. His tusks frequently grow to nine or ten inches in length and are as sharp as a razor. Tigers have a special dread of him, and in their encounters, which sometimes happen, he nearly always comes out victor.

Canadian Pistol Record.

Corpl. A. Rutherford, a member of the Toronto Revolver Club, which is affiliated with the U. S. Revolver Association, in a medal match of the latter body at the Armories the other day made a score of 98 out of a possible 100. His score was made up of eight tens and two nines. His performance gives him the Canadian record by a big margin. The former record was 95, and was held jointly by Rutherford and H. D. Young of Montreal.

Rutherford's score was made with a Colts service revolver of 45 calibre at twenty yards, with hand-loaded ammunition. Rutherford used the U. S. Revolver Association targets. On several occasions recently Rutherford has threatened the Canadian record, only to fall down on his last shot.

Bright Woman-President.

The Woman's Canadian Club of London, Ont., through its president, Lady Gibbons, stole a march on the Men's Club by getting Mr. Bryce, in the shape of Ambassador Bryce, to come to their city the other day as the club's guest. Mr. Bryce had an engagement in Detroit, and Sir George and Lady Gibbons, who have been in Washington a good deal lately, were able to get him to come to London. However, the Woman's Club was magnanimous, and invited the Men's Club to attend the meeting in a body.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box. 6

THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS

1.—The Tiny Tads are wondering what kind of things those are;
They think they must be Mailboxen, but can't tell from so far.

2.—"Come here, you pretty things!" they cry; the animals obey;
"Just open up our doors and help yourselves," they seem to say.

3.—And so the Tinies open them, and what do you suppose?
They find some Omeletters, as the picture up there shows.

4.—They eat the Omeletters, then they gaily walk along,
Enjoying everything they see, suspecting nothing wrong.

5.—But see what happens to their heads! Down comes a lot of ink!
It is a Hobgoblinkbottle who daubs them thus, I think.

6.—"It will not take us long to clean ourselves," the Tinies shout.
"Next week we'll have some brand new things to tell you all about."

Rev. Father Morriscy

Father Morrisey's "No. 11" Cures Stomach Troubles.

When your stomach is working right you never know it is there. But when it feels as heavy as lead—when you have Heartburn, Belching of Wind, Sourness, a gnawing hunger, with distress after eating—when you feel irritable and depressed — then you may know that the digestive fluids in the stomach are not sufficient to digest what you eat.

Father Morriscy's "No. 11" Tablets supply these fluids in concentrated form. Each tablet, dissolved in the stomach, will digest 1¼ pounds of food, which is more than an average meal.

Read what Father Morriscy's treatment did for Mr. Gosline, of Salmon Lake. He writes Nov. 30, 1908:

"I was troubled with indigestion, so severe that I really thought I had cancer of the stomach. I took much doctors' remedies, till I was forced to seek another resource, and this was the Rev. Father Morriscy. His treatments worked miracles, until I have been entirely cured, so that now I do not look to the quality of the diet but to the quantity."

HIS GUARDIAN ANGEL

Her Interest In Him Was Manifested to the Last Moment

By Allen G. Lamond

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When I left Rose Seaton to go to South Africa to seek my fortune my heart seemed to be settling right down, down like a doomed ship. We had promised to be true to each other and all that, but somehow my common sense told me that fate was against us. We would be separated by an ocean. I had only the prospect of spending a lifetime in the service of a diamond mining company; where an uncle of mine had secured me an inferior position. Neither Rose nor I had any means or we would not have parted, and, having parted, I saw no prospect of ever getting together again.

I was an accountant for three years, during which I hoped that some day fortune would favor my returning to my sweetheart; then suddenly my dreams were realized. Mr. Oldershaw, the head of one of the departments, sent for me one day and said to me:

"How would you like to make a trip to America?"

I brightened up at once as I replied in the affirmative.

"One of your American millionaires has visited our mines and has purchased one of our largest diamonds. He is on a trip around the world and desires the stone delivered to his wife in New York, where it will be paid for, the responsibility for its safety resting on us until it is turned over. There are reasons why it can't very well be sent by the ordinary method, one of which I will tell you. It has got out that a diamond worth a hundred thousand dollars is to go to New York. This fact has led to so high a charge for its transportation that I am determined to send it by a special messenger. A false stone will be sent by express to mislead those who may try to capture the real one on the way. We have spies right here among us who know everything of importance that goes on. It is our purpose to outwit them. Let it be known that you have determined to resign your position and go home, permitting a month to intervene before your departure. Your expenses will be paid, and if you succeed in making a delivery you will receive a thousand dollars and an agency to attend to our business in New York."

The day I sailed a middle aged woman, well dressed and of ladylike appearance, drove up to the steamer. She looked up as she alighted and saw me leaning over the rail on deck. An expression of satisfaction that I could not account for passed over her face. It surprised me, for I did not remember ever to have seen her before. She came aboard, and I did not see her again till the next day, when we were out on the ocean. I was pacing the deck when I passed her sitting in a steamer chair. She called me to her and said to me:

"Bring a chair and be seated. I have something of importance to say to you."

Astonished, I did as I was bidden. The lady cast glances in every direction and, seeing no one within ear shot, said to me in a low tone:

"I am an American and a friend of Mr. Oldershaw. Learning that I was about to sail for home on this ship, he called on me and told me that a young man, whose photograph he showed me, would be aboard, going on an important mission to New York. Mr. Oldershaw asked me to keep a watch over you and if I saw any suspicious person attempting to gain your confidence or in any way conspiring against you to warn you. There; I have told you what I have to say. You don't need to place any faith in it; all you need do is, if I warn you against any one during the voyage, to beware."

"One question I would ask you," I said. "Why did not Mr. Oldershaw advise me of his request to you?"

"Mr. Oldershaw's plan was for me to keep a watch over you without your knowing it. He did not think it would be necessary for me to make myself known to you. But already I have observed two men talking together, both looking directly at you, and I need to warn you at once. Later I will point them out to you."

"Did Mr. Oldershaw inform you as to the nature of my mission?"

"He did not. That was not necessary."

Her story appeared very plausible, and I confess I felt disposed to trust her, but I did not care to show too much alacrity in doing so, and, rising, bade her good morning, thanking her for her interest in me.

"You are under no obligation to me," she said. "What I do is in repayment of a kindness once done me by Mr. Oldershaw. He has perfect confidence in you, but has strengthened you by giving you an assistant."

That afternoon while taking my usual exercise, walking the deck back and forth, I met the lady.

"Come with me," she said, "and I will show you the men who were talking about you. They have a stateroom next mine, and I overheard one of them say, 'As soon as it is dark I'll try and inveigle him on some pretext to the stern.'"

I went with her to the forward deck and she pointed to two men standing just above the outward looking rail of the ocean. One was a burly fellow with a sandy mustache; the other was small, spare and clean shaven.

"That's all," said my companion. "You have seen them and are guarded against them."

The same evening just before dark I went on deck. The man with the sandy mustache was lounging about and, presently coming up to me, asked if I could tell him the day's run for the ship. With this as an opening wedge he entered upon a conversation with me, turning it upon some curious phenomena of the sea. He mentioned the phosphorescent light in the wake of a ship, saying: "It's very pronounced tonight. Just come back with me; I'll show it to you."

I told him that I had often seen what he referred to and, bidding him good evening, went below.

It was very plain to me that the woman's story was true. From this time forward I had perfect confidence in her. She did not ask me the nature of my mission or show any curiosity about it. I argued that if she was desirous of possessing herself of the diamond she would sooner or later lead me to speak of it in the hope that I would tell her where it was. But while she sought my confidence in other ways she never referred to the object of my journey. I told her that I was going home to a sweetheart I had not seen in three years, and the sympathy she gave me was delightful. She seemed to appreciate perfectly the feelings of a young man deeply in love. So interested was she in this that I told her I would bring my fiancee to see her after reaching port, and she was good enough to assure me that she would be delighted to know her.

It was after this refreshing conversation, in order to show some appreciation of her interest in me, that I said to her:

"I feel perfectly safe in saying to you that I am carrying a very valuable stone belonging to the Diamond company to New York and wish to consult you as to a safe place to keep it."

"In that I can't advise you. We women have methods of concealing such things that do not pertain to men. I can't think of any safe place where a man can put such a treasure."

"The only safe place I know is on my person. I have it suspended about my waist day and night."

"My dear boy," she said, "what do you mean by revealing such a secret to me or to any one?"

"I have perfect confidence in you."

"Nevertheless you should not have told me such a secret."

"I shall surely tell no one else. If any one can take it away from me by force in the daytime he's welcome to do so. By night I am locked in my room."

"I beg of you to give your secret to no one else."

The evening before making port my friend while talking to me of some delicacies in the way of eatables she had aboard invited me to come to her stateroom and partake of them. She said there would be no impropriety in my doing so, since she would hook the door wide open. I accepted her invitation. Her stateroom faced on the same aisle as mine, so I had not far to go. She brought out some pate of chickens' livers and other nice things, including some real madeira wine a rarity outside the island of Madeira. I ate of her dainties and drank freely of the wine.

In the morning I awoke in my own berth with a remembrance of my supper, but with no recollection as to how I got into my own stateroom. I put my hand to my waist, and the pouch I kept slung there was gone.

Everything being quiet and no motion to the ship, I arose and looked out through a porthole. We were docked. Dressing myself, I went ashore. A few of the passengers remained, but my lady friend was not among them, nor were the two men against whom she had warned me.

When I met my Rose after the first transports of our meeting I said to her:

"And now you must hear the reason of my coming and the story connected with my journey. Beginning with my meeting with my lady friend, I told her every incident—every word so far as I could remember the conversations that had passed between me and her. When I reached the part of my story where I had told that I kept the stone about my waist Rose could not repress the exclamation, 'Oh, how stupid!'"

And when I gave an account of the supper and my being drugged my sweetheart was so unkind as to say I had been rightly served. I concluded my story with these words:

"And now, my darling, the diamond having been safely delivered and a check in payment mailed to South Africa, we have $1,000 on which to begin housekeeping and an assured salary"—

"'But the diamond is stolen!'"

"I did not say so. In order to please my guardian angel, as I called her, I told her where I kept a lump of glass. The diamond was in my trunk, fitted with a lock that I alone knew how to open."

Rose jumped for me, throwing her arms around my neck.

"And you suspected her from the first?" she asked when the transports had subsided.

"No, I didn't suspect her at all or I wouldn't have been drugged by her."

"Explain."

"Well, you see, when she sympathized so sweetly with me about you she knocked the underpinning out from beneath me. I yearned to make a return and thought that I couldn't make a better one than by a show of confidence. So I told her about where I kept my treasure, only I omitted to say that it was a false one. I thought that would do as well."

It is supposed by some that Panama derived its name from the native word for butterfly. Others maintain that the name is from an Indian word meaning abounding in fish.

Water Pan Is Correctly Placed In The Sunshine

Few people realize the importance of the water-pan. Yet, without the moisture evaporated from the water in the pan, the warm air passing through the registers is harsh and dry. It is hard on your lungs and on your furnishings.

Now, the water-pan must be correctly placed to be of any real use. If it is placed near the bottom of the furnace (see lower illustration) the moisture has a long route (see arrows) to travel before it reaches the pipes leading to the rooms. It must pass alongside the fire-pot and radiator, and the terrific heat from these dries out nearly every particle of moisture ascending from the pan. Very little reaches the pipes or passes through registers.

Now, notice the location of the Sunshine water-pan. It is placed over the fuel door. The moisture takes the short, direct route to the pipes leading to the rooms. You can always have moisture-laden, healthful air passing through your registers, provided you keep the Sunshine water-pan filled with water.

If you value your health you'll have our local dealer install the Sunshine, with a guarantee to heat your house to your entire satisfaction. 46

PRIVATELY LEASED WIRES

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

DO you ever worry?

If you don't, you needn't read any farther. This isn't for you.

But if you are afflicted with that disease, even hardly ever, I have a little medicine chest for you to-day.

In it are thoughts for the worrier, supplied by some big mind doctors.

Your prescription is to take the whole medicine chest now, and, if you are a chronic case, every time you feel the attack coming on.

Here's hoping they will help you:

"Don't worry about the future,
The present is all thou hast;
The future will soon be present,
And the present will soon be past."

"There are just two things in life we shouldn't worry about—those we can help, and those we can't."
—Edward Everett Hale.

Newton Newkirk.

"The worry cow would be here now,
If she's only saved her breath,
But she thought her hay wouldn't last all day,
So she choked herself to death."

"For every evil under the sun
There is a remedy or there is none.
If there is one, then try and find it;
If there is none, then never mind it."

If, in the face of these arguments, you can still worry, it must be because you love it and I give you up. No doctor will treat a patient who doesn't care about getting well.

SECOND HEBERT CASE.

Montreal Man Wants Annullment on Religious Grounds.

Montreal, June 21.—George Howden seeks the annullment of his marriage, solemnized thirty years ago, on the grounds that his marriage is not valid according to the Roman Catholic Church, to which his wife belongs.

While Mrs. Howden (nee Poitras) was born a Catholic, her husband was never baptized, and for that reason the marriage cannot, it is alleged, be recognized by the church. The second reason is that the two contracting parties were married by a Protestant minister, and a third allegation is that the woman, when she married, was under the age of 21, and that she had not the consent of her parents.

Mrs. Howden claims that they have been married 28 years, and that her two sons and daughter will fight for her honor. She claims that her husband has not been near her for sixteen years, and that she had to educate the family, and now has to keep boarders.

Steamer Toronto Damaged.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Possibly the wildest trading of the year turned the grain pits to-day into bedlam. Hot damage to crops put a nerve-wrecking strain on prices. Realizing of profits diminished the excitement in wheat near the close, lowering the market from extreme figures, but other cereals held tight. Wheat finished 1¼c to 1½c higher than last night; corn up 1¼c to ⅝c up, and oats at 1⅜c to ½c to 1⅝c to ⅝c advance. Hog products gained from a shade to 17½c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ⅜d to 1¾d higher than yesterday, corn ¼d to ⅝d higher. Berlin closed ½c lower on wheat, Budapest 1½c higher, Antwerp ⅝c higher.

THE CORONATION OF KING GEORGE V

In view of the Coronation of King George V of Great Britain and the Dominions beyond the Seas to-morrow, it may be of interest to recall some of the ceremonies that attended the crowning of a Monarch in ancient days.

The Coronation in Biblical and Mediaeval times — of the Emperors of Rome—Coronation Superstitions—the Coronation Stone—the Ceremony in Westminster Abbey—the Crown Jewels—the Queen's Robes—the Spendour of the Military Display.

The earliest form of publicity acknowledging a new king was by the very old and solemn rite of anointing with oil. The ceremony in the times of the ancient Hebrews was peculiarly significant of the consecration to the service of God, and the dedication of David to Kingship could not well have been simpler—he was anointed by Samuel the reigning Sovereign without assembly or ritual, simply "in the midst of his brethren," and he probably returned to his sheep-tending after it none the less a king because he was still a shepherd-boy. All the pageantry, symbolism and elaborate ritual came gradually into being. The Mediaeval theory of the relation of the civil power to the priestly was greatly influenced by the ancient Jewish theocracy in which the King appeared divinely chosen and commissioned, and stood in a specially intimate relation to the national religion. The Divine Right of Kings was a matter of faith for centuries. The ceremony for the Coronation of the Roman Emperors consisted of the rites of consecration to a religious office, the Emperor besides the Sword,

KING GEORGE V.

QUEEN MARY.

Historical Incidents at Coron ations of English Sovereigns.

Globe and Sceptre of temporal power, received a ring as the symbol of his faith, was ordained a sub-deacon, assisted the Pope in celebating Mass, partook of Communion and was admitted a Canon of St. Peter and St. John Lateran. He swore to defend the Holy Roman Church, and among his official titles were, Temporal Head of the Faithful, Protector of Palestine and of the Catholic Faith, etc. The office of Emperor was of course elective not hereditary, he was Viceroy of God by the elect ion of the people ,and as such looked upon with extraordinary reverence. The ceremonies that followed the religious rites were probably the most imposing and brilliant Europe has ever known.

Coronation Superstitions.

Mediaeval history is full of the superstitions attaching to the rite of Coronation and to the special places for the utensils and emblematic objects with which it was performed. Rheims with its sacred Ampulla—the repository of the Chrism for the anointing of Kings — brought down from Heaven by a dove, was all important in France. No Hungarian Coronation was valid unless made with the crown of St. Stephen, still valued by the Austrian Court. At the German Coronations, the custom was for the Emperor before he was anointed, to declare his orthodoxy by an oath taken on the famous copy of the Gospel used by Charles the Great, and on a casket containing earth soaked in the blood of the Martyr Stephen. The iron crown of the ancient Lombardic Kings—restored to Italy in 1856—is a gold circle with enamelled flowers and jewels, within which is a thin fillet of iron alleged to have been hammered from a nail of the true cross. The Scottish Kings had to be crowned at Scone and Robert Bruce risked much to receive his crown there. King George V will be crowned on this historic stone.

The Coronation Stone.

When in 1642 Parliament ordered the destruction of the Regalia, the only precious stone—precious in the eyes of the Puritans because of its connection with Jacob — preserved, was the Scottish Coronation Stone, carried off from Scone by Edward 1, in 1296, whereon, in token of the subjugation of the Scotch, every King of England has since taken his seat for inauguration. Oliver Cromwell seated himself upon it for installation as Lord Protector. The stone is supposed to be the one which served Jacob as a pillow, when in his sleep he saw the vision of the angels at Huran. From Huran it was taken to Spain and used as a seat of Justice by Gathelus, son of Neolus, King of Greece, a contemporary of Moses and progenitor of the Gaels. Gathelus married Scota daughter of Pharaoh, King of Egypt, by whom he had a family of Scots. One of his descendants led a colony of Scots to Ireland, and having taken the stone with him, was crowned thereon as King. From Ireland the Scots migtated in the fifth century to colonise Argll, under Fergus, and the Stone of Destiny was taken to Dunstaffage, whence, when the realms of Scotland and Pictland were united in the ninth century, it was taken to the seat of monarchy at Scone, where it remained till Edward I carried it to Westminster. It is a block of reddish sandstone 26 inches long, 16 3-4 inches broad and 10 1-2 inches deep, built into an oaken chair.

Coronation In Early Times.

The Norman Kings were often crowned twice, and used to have their sons crowned when very young; as in the case of Henry II. The first direct account of an English Coronation is that of Richard I, at which the Archbishop of Canterbury, officiated, the Archbishop of Rouen, Dublin and Lewes, and all the bishops in the Kingdom being present. A great procession followed the King to Westminster Abbey, the Earl of Chester bearing the Crown, which on arrival at the Abbey was placed on the Altar. After the King had taken the oath, and been anointed, the Archbishop placed the Crown on his head. At the conclusion of the service the great crown was replaced by a smaller one which the King wore of leaving the Abbey.

The Coronation of Henry II. consisted of two ceremonies, the first when Richard II. in regal attire was brought to the Tower and made to assign his Crown to Henry. Later on a second magnificent ceremony of Coronation took place in Westminster Abbey. The Archbishop of Canterbury demanded of the Assembly whether Henry should be crowned the King. After shouts of assent, Henry approached the Altar, was anointed, and had the Crown of Edward the Confessor placed on his head. Mass was said and the procession departed from the Abbey.

Henry VI. was crowned as a child at Westminster, and later at St. Denis near Paris.

Henry III. was crowned by the Papal Legate at Gloucester, at the age of nine years. His Crown consisted of a plain golden circlet, for the original crown had been lost by King John in the waters of the Wash.

The Coronation of Our Late King.

The date fixed for the Coronation of our late beloved Sovereign was June 26th, and for many months before that date the King, strongly supported by public sentiment, devoted time and close attention to what was intended to be the most splendid sight England had seen for generations. Suddenly on the very day before that fixed for the great ceremony, a disquieting rumour got abroad which thrilled into intense anxiety when the illness and personal danger of His Majesty became known. Disappointment was lost sight of in the general distress nd apprehension. After a delay of seven weeks the "Great Solemnity" took place without a drawback of any kind, it was necessarily shorn of some of its glory. The Heirs Apparent of foreign Sovereigns, and many of the high Colonial Officials had been forced to return home, but even so it was a splendid and most moving sight, and the feeling of individual love and loyalty, always so strong in the breasts of English subjects, seemed intensified by the recent return of the King from the borderland of death.

The Coming Coronation.

The date fixed for the Coronation of our Gracious Sovereign, King George V., and His Consort, Queen Mary, is June 22nd, 1911. The festivities will begin on June 19th and will probably continue until June 30th. There will be a Royal Progress through the Capital, the historic procession to the Guildhall, and a Royal Reception to the Envoys of the different countries. The route taken by the Procession on the occasion of the Coronation, will be from Buckingham Palace by the Mall, Admiralty Archway, Southwest Corner of Trafalgar Square, Whitehall, Parliament Street to Westminster Abbey. The brilliant pageant moves through dense throngs of enthusiastic spectators, and every inavailable point of vantage is occupied, while the air rings with lusty English cheers.

At the West Door of the Abbey the civic and ecclesiastical dignitaries, bearing the Coronation Regalia, will meet Their Majesties; and the procession will advance up the nave of the Abbey, through the choir, preceded by the choristers singing, "I was glad when they said unto me, we will go into the House of the Lord."

The King and Queen advance till they reach their positions side by side in the centre, the royal princesses sit within the presbytery, and the peers and peeresses in their picturesque robes of velvet and ermine, occupy separate galleries in the transept.

Recognition of the Sovereign.

The Archbishop of Canterbury with the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Lord High Constable and the Earl Marshall, and preceded by the Garter King at Arms challenges the assembly in the east, south, west and north of the Abbey separately, thus: "Sirs, I here present unto you King George, the undoubted King of this Realm, wherefore all you who have come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?" The King faces the congregation in the various parts as the Archbishop addresses them. The people — represented by the boys of Westminster School who have been rehearsed for the part—shout "God Save King George," to signify assent, the trumpet sounds, and drums roll). The King resumes his seat while an anthem is sung and then follows the first oblation when he kneels at the altar and offers a pall of cloth of gold, and an ignot of gold of a pound's weight. Here the Archbishop and officiating bishops assume their rich official robes. The Litany, with special prayers, and the first part of the Communion service, and a sermon, follow.

The King's Oath.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, standing before the King, says: "Sir, is your Majesty willing to take the oath?" The King answers, "I am willing," and the Archbishop asks these questions: "Will you solemnly swear and promise to govern the people of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the dominions thereto belonging, according to the Statutes in Parliament agreed on, and the respective laws and customs of the same?" The King shawers: "I solemnly promise so to do."

Various Services at the Coronation Banquet.

"Will you, to your power, cause law and justice, in mercy to be executed in all your judgments?" The King answers: "I will."

"Will you to the utmost of your power maintain the laws of God and the Protestant reformed religion established by the law? And will you maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the United Church of England and Ireland and the territories thereto belonging? And will you preserve to the clergy of England and Ireland, and to the churches there committed to their charge, all such rights and privileges as do, or shall appertain unto them or any of them?" The King answers: "All this I promise to do."

LAURIER AND MILNER.

(Montreal Herald)

Lord Milner is one of those who think the reciprocity agreement tends to be destructive of British influence in Canada, but he is too shrewd not to see that under no principle of action could Canada properly be debarred from making a mutually advantageous arrangement with the United States, or with any other country. All he is disposed to ask is that British trade be given a little better terms than any other. His political associates who are severely critical of reciprocity might take the time to learn all the facts, to read the correspondence, Sir Wilfrid has just suggested, and to learn something about the declarations made by Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding of the intention to maintain the British preference in all circumstances. Then they would see that the actual position is almost exactly what Lord Milner would like it to be, the sole exception being that Canada gives the preferential treatment desired of her own free will, and not because of any "definite and binding pact." Lord Milner's view, as expressed in a speech at London on May 3, is as follows:

"I am not suggesting a single tariff for the whole Empire. That may come in time, though I rather doubt it. At present it is quite impracticable. It is no part of the policy of the Tariff Reformers ot try and interfere with the fiscal freedom of the self-governing countries of the Empire, or to prevent their adapting their tariffs to their respective circumstances and requirements. Let each of them arrange its fiscal system in what it conceives to be its own best interest, always provided that, whatever import duties it imposes, there is substantial differentiation between the rates on foreign goods, and those on goods coming from other British States. Subject to that fundamental principle, which would have no doubt to be embodied in a definite and binding pact, all the States of the Empire would be perfectly free to make what commercial bargains they thought fit with other nations. The Imperial Preference beingsafeguarded for good and all, there would be no objection, quite the contrary ,to any mutually profitable arrangement which any member of the Imperial family might make with other nations."

The only difference between Lord Milner and Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the subject is, therefore, that Lord Milner wants Canada and the other Dominions to be formally bound to give the British Preference by some instrument to which the others are party, whereas Sir Wilfrid Laurier prefers to have the preference to British trade rest altogether upon Canada's desire to give it.

HOW COST OF LIVING MAY BE REDUCED.

(Weekly Sun)

Of eleven staple articles of food which make up the diet of the British workman, all but one (pork), are cheaper in England than they are in the United States. Three-fourths of the wheat consumed in Great Britain is imported, much of it from the United States, and yet the retail price of bread in England is only half the retail price ruling in the Republic. Taking the average of the eleven chief articles of food consumed in England, and much of it is imported, the difference in price in favour of the English consumer, as against the American, is 38 per cent.

Saturday Evening Post, which is authority for the statemtns just given, asks the reason why, and in answer to the question put by itself, suggests that the difference in consumers' cost in the two countries is partly due to the better system of distribution which prevails in the old land. The explanation is doubtless correct. In Great Britain, as stated in a special article recently, reproduced by The Sun from the Post, particulars were given of the work of British co-operative societies in supplying food and other necessaries to their members, chiefly workingmen. In this article, it was stated that 8,000,000 people are so served, and that the aggregate of the business done is $350,000,000 a year. Under this system unnecessary middlemen's profits are eliminated; needless duplication of the machinery of distribution is avoided. The existence of a co-operative system of distribution explains in no small measure the low cost of living in Great Britain; the absence of such a system accounts to a considerable extent for the high cost of living in the United States.

Conditions in regard to these matters are much the same in Canada as across the border. We have introduced co-operation, in a measure, into the production of foodstuffs on the farm. Our dairy industry is largely co-operative. Our fruit and poultry industries are being placed on the same basis. In this way the cost of production is being reduced. But we still maintain, in cities, the old wasteful form of distribution with a dozen butcher carts, a dozen milk waggons, and a dozen grocery delivery services doing the work that could better be done by one of each. It does not seem to fit in with the genius of our people to follow the British plan of co-operative distribution with its great possibilities of saving. Failing this, may we not have monopolies in these lines as we have monopolies in railways, with provision for public regulation of charges imposed in the one case as we have in the other. The bread merger, which is meeting with so much hostile criticism, may be the beginning, if properly directed and controlled, of a really beneficient movement.

MR. BORDEN AT WINNIPEG.

(Toronto Star)

In his Winnipeg speech Mr. Borden definitely took his stand with those who belittle the advatnage of the American market for farm products. He declares that the soil of the United States can produce sufficient food for four hundred million people "at the lowest estimate," and that reputable authorities place the number at "eight hundred to a thousand millions". Such estimates have doubtless been made, just as it has been estimated that Great Britain could feed itself without importing a bushel of wheat or a pound of meat. They are estimates showing what might be done by a country under extraordinary stress by methods of intensive cultivation. They are interesting as scientific theories, and they may have some bearing on practical life a hundred years hence.

At present we have to deal not with a United States cultivated after the manner of France, but with a United States in which, under a somewhat careless mode of cultivation, consumption is rapidly overtaking production. It is situated next to a country having the same area and only one-twelfth the population of the United States; a country in which the production of grain is increasing out of all proportion to the increase in population. The inevitable result freedom of trade will be that the more densely populated country will draw a large portion of its supply of grain from the more sparsely settled country.

It is to be remembered also that Canada and the United States are countries whose products are not identical. There are immense differences of soil and climate. Some products, like corn, grow best south of the boundary; some, like hard wheat, grow best north of the boundary. There will be a certain exchange, and it would be difficult to find two countries which furnish a better example of the benefits of free exchange of food.

On the political side of his theme, Mr. Borden makes the dismal prediction that reciprocity will lead to commercial union, and commercial to political union. Curiously enough he cites in this connection the Hon. Edward Blake and Sir Oliver Mowat, both of whom are on record as flatly opposed to the Borden opinion. Mr. Blake, while he opposed unrestricted reciprocity, said that the best policy for Canada would be a moderate revenue tariff with reciprocity. Sir Oliver Mowat went so far as to advocate unrestricted reciprocity, and said that it was a fallacy to assert that unrestricted reciprocity would hurt British connection. "Our opponents," he said, "are afraid of being Yankeefied by this policy. I am quite sure that the Reformers will not be Yankeefied by unrestricted reciprocity, and I hope Conservatives will not be Yankeefied by any such means.

Mr. Borden will have some difficulty in convincing the West that under reciprocity it will sell little or no wheat in the United States, or that the W t will be injured by the free import of American products. It will be equally difficult to convince the ien wi, be the result of the free exchange of food.

PANIC IN POLITICS.

(Toronto Globe.)

Is it not just possible that much of what is regarded as insincerity and hypocrisy on the part of men in public life is neither more nor less than blind panic? The political situation at times gets out of hand and men who under normal condit ions are reasoning and reasonable become as much the victims of panic as the people who throw themselves from the upper stories of a burning building while the ladders are being raised to carry them to safety.

The discussion of reciprocity on both sides of the border is in many cases based on panic, resulting from the same sort of temporary fiscal insanity, that possessed Sir Charles Tupper and his followers when they protested in 1897 against the British preference as likely to ruin Canadian industry and commerce. In the United States the people of the Philippines were the cause of a similar fiscal panic. The speeches on the Philippine tariff, taken seriously, would have led one to suppose that free admission of the products of these remote islands of Asia into the United States would sap the prosperity of the whole people.

Evidence of panic in the discussion of reciprocity in natural products is to be seen in every issue of every paper reporting the speeches of public men. Here are the speeches of two well-meaning politicians: one speaking in the Commons some time ago, the other in the United States Senate last week. Let the reader compare them and he will come to the conclusion that they are in both cases the result of panic:

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, in Canadian House of Commons, April 12: "If the Canadian farmers are enjoying better markets than are enjoyed by the farmers of the United States, then we are sure to lose and be dragged down to their level."

"I have failed to find one particle of proof that the condition of the Canadian farmer is going to be improved."

"I say without fear of contradiction that the Government went blindfolded into this proposition."

"It is one of the most serious things that could happen to the farmers of have no reason to open up our market invaded by all the cheap-producing countries in the world. Even if the favoured-nation clause did not affect us, I contend that our farmers are in a better position to-day than the farmers of the United States, and we have no reason t oopen up our market and allow them to come in and compete with us."

"I just want to say that if this agreement goes into force the farmers of Canada will get a blow such as they have never received before."

"There is no doubt that in some places it might work to the advantage of the individual farmers, but on the whole it will be a detriment to the farming community of Canada."

"I have no hesitation in saying that if this arrangement goes into effect the whole meat business of Canada inside of two years will be under the great combine, the Meat Trust of Chicago, and the trust will pay the farmers of Canada just what it pleases."

"Where do you find that the Canadian would get a higher price for his wheat under this agreement? President Taft says it will make no difference; or, in other words, that it will not hurt the American farmer."

"I believe that the farmers of this country are entitled to their home market without being intruded on by the Americans."

Senator McCumber, in United States Senate, June 14: "We are to-day and have for several years been receiving better prices in the Northwest for our cereals because of the protection accorded us."

"The only point I am trying to make and to make clear, is the possibility of that country (western Canada) and the assurance that there is a vast Empire of virgin soil, capable of being opened up and made productive just as rapidly as the world's increase of population will demand its production."

"Though the Canadian farmer might not export a bushel of that vast production of grain into the United States, he stands there with a club—and an enormous club is this Canadian surplus—ready to beat down the American price the moment it rises above the world's level of prices."

"For a few years we will be exporting horses into northwestern Canada to fill the needs of that rapidly developing section. Twenty to twenty-five years hence, if not before, Canada will be exporting horses into this country."

"For a while we shall undoubtedly send cattle into northwestern Canada, but their increase, raised and fattened on those vast ranges, will return to compete with our cattle raised on higher-priced land and under less-favourable conditions."

"The Canadian sheep industry is not now very considerable, but with millions of acres of range and freedom of entry, not only for the sheep, but also for the wool on the sheeps' back, this industry will in a few years become a most earnest competition in our markets."

"It is evident that the President fears a stringency of food supplies. If he could fully understand the size, the capacity, of this Canadian reservoir, with which he hopes to prevent a lack of food supply, I am certain that his fears would vanish. I am certain that if he knew that this great Empire in a few years, if necessity required, could raise more wheat than the whole world produces, he would be more fearful of a Johnstown flood than of a drought."

These extracts prove that the men making the speeches have created out of their own imagination the condition of affairs that fills them with alarm. Their foreboding is ridiculous. Each believes that his country is going to be ruined by the imporing surplus of farm products. Trade, however, is something that does good to both parties to it. Farm products will go freely across the border from north to south and from south to north wherever there is a demand for them. And the removal of artificial restrictions upon that trade will be good for the farmers and for the consumers of farm products on both sides of the boundary. A year of reciprocity will make such speeches as those of Messrs. Sexsmith and McCumber supremely ridiculous.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Last Sunday special prayers were made in Boston for King George V. Fewer than one hundred and forty years ago the Bostonians were hurling defiance at King George III., in the form of heaving tea chests into Boston harbour, as a protest against paying taxes without representation in the matter of their expenditure. Verily the world moves, civilization broadens, and humanity conforms to the requirements of common sense.

ALL SAINTS' BELL

The bell which Mrs. Fitzgerald purchased from St. John's church, and generously donated to All Saints' was rung for the first time in All Saints' last Sunday. It was heard clearly and distinctly in all parts of the city, but will be especially appreciated by those living in the vicinity of All Saints. On Sundays the bell will be rung at the same hour as it was rung at St. John's, viz.: 10 a.m., from 10.45 to 11 a.m., 6 p.m. and from 6.45 ot 7 p.m. At other services it wil be rung just before the hour of service.

Mrs. Fitzgerald's gift is very greatly appreciated by the congregation of All Saints. It makes All Saints' seem more truly Church of England than ever. he Rector expressed the thanks the congregation felt toward the generous donor, at both morning and evening services last Sunday. He said as often as the bell called people ot worship, gave utterance to marriage joys, or tolled sympathy for the mourner, the generosity of the gift would be called to mind.

THE BURDENS OF AGE

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys, and bowels.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JOHN COLEMAN

The word that passed around the city last night of the death of Mr. William John Coleman in Nicholl's Hospital at 6 o'clock was received with genuine regret by a very large number of friends and acquaintances who had learned to like and respect this young man since his coming to Peterborough. Quiet, inoffensive and genial, he made friends easily and held them with the same facility and his death removes one who will be sadly missed. The late Mr. Coleman had lived in Peterborough for the past seven years. He was born in Melksham, Wiltshire, Eng. in 1891, his father being Charles Coleman and his mother Anne Robins. The deceased was a member of St. John's Choir and will be missed by that body. He was a cricketer of no mean ability having played with the Peterborough Club last season and was prominent in other ways. He was a strong temperance advocate and a young man of sterling, Christian tendencies.

He is survived by his parents in England and by five brothers and two sisters. They are: Chas. Ernest, in Peterborough, Edmund in England, Miss Janet in England, Miss Annie in Peterborough and Henry, James and Jessie in Peterborough.

The closing exercises of the Conservatory of Music will be held in the music hall on Monday evening next, June 26th, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Knox church.

WEDDING BELLS

A very pretty wedding took place this morning at 10.30, at St. John's church, when Miss M. E. Banks Clementi and Mr. Guy Erroll MacDougall of Port Arthur, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, by Rev. Canon Allen, of Millbrook, assisted by Rev. Canon Davidson, Rector of St. Johns' church. The bridesmaid was Miss Emma McNish of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. The groom was unattended. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in a travelling suit of white serge. Quite a number of the friends of the bride were present at the church, testifying ot her popularity. Mr. Charles Ackerman, a friend of the bride, officiated at the church organ. After the ceremony was performed, the bride and groom, and their guests drove to the home of the bride's parents, 451 Water street, where an informal wedding breakfast was served. Some 50 or 60 friends of the bride were present, and joined in wishing the young couple success. Mr. and Mrs. MacDougall left on the G. T. R. noon train for Port Hope, en route on their wedding tour. They will reside in Port Arthur.

The Sovereign then goes to the Altar, and laying his hand upon the Bible takes the following oath: "The things which I have heretofore promised I will perform and keep, so help me God." He then kisses the book and signs the oath. The amended wording of the Royal Declaration is as follows: "I do solemnly and sincerely, in the presence of God, profess, testify and declare, that I am a faithful Protestant, and I will, according to the true enactments which secure the Protestant Succession to the Throne of my Realm, uphold and maintain the said enactments to the best of my powers according to law."

Then follows the Anointing. The oil is contained in the Golden Eagle said to have been used at the Coronation of Henry IV., and is poured into the Silver Coronation or Apostle Spoon, said to date from the twelfth century.

The King is divested of his crimson parliamentary robes, and ascends the historic Chair of King Edward in the middle of the Sanctuary, while the Archbishop consecrates the oil. A rich canopy is held over his head by four Knights of the Garter, robed in dark blue mantels. He kneels while the Archbishop anoints his head and invokes a blessing upon him. The Oblation of the Regalia; the Spurs and the Sword, now takes place. The Dean of Westminster takes from the Altar the Golden Spurs which symbolize the King's Knighthood, hands them to the Great Lord Chamberlain, who applies them to the heels of the King. They are sent back to the altar. The King rises, goes to the altar and offers the Great Sword of State to the

Archbishop, who places it on the altar. This symbolizes the fact that power belongs to God, and that man undertakes to exercise it for its proper use, as a privilege, not as a right.

The King returns to the Chair of Edward and the bearer of the Sword of State offers the price of it—ten shillings—to the altar, whereupon the Sword is returned to him by the Dean. The bearer unsheaths it and carries it naked before the Sovereign during the remainder of the ceremonies.

The King is then invested with the Royal Robe and the Orb, and once more assumes his seat. The robe of cloth of gold, wonderfully embroidered, completes the ecclesiastical attire of the King, and is a symbol of the priestly nature of his calling. He holds the Orb surmounted by the Cross—the emblem of the domination of the Christian religion over the world—in his right hand. The King is then invested with the Ring and the Sceptre, and then comes the supreme moment of all this gorgeous and significant ceremony.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, before the altar, invokes a blessing on the Crown; the Dean of Westminster carries the Crown from the Altar to the Coronation seat. The King kneels and the Archbishop takes the Crown and places it reverently on the head of the Sovereign. At the moment of the King's Coronation, the Kings at Arms assume their crowns, the peers their coronets and the bishops their caps. The people shout "God Save the King," trumpets are blown, drums beat, the roar of artillery, and the shouts of acclamation from the multitudes without are heard. Long after silence has fallen on the thrilled assembly within the Abbey, the cheers of the people, the clangour of bells, the booming of guns, continue, and the air is charged with profoundest emotion and excitement.

The presentation of the Bible to the Sovereign—a ceremony dating from William of Orange—comes next.

The Enthronization.

The King is now conducted to his throne and seated there in state, while an address is made to him by the Archbishop and Bishops. The King on his throne then receives the homage of the lords temporal, who take off their coronets and kneel before the Sovereign according to precedence. The premier peer of each group recites the oath of allegiance, and on by one the peers pass before the Monarch, each touching the gown as a sign of fealty. During this homage an anthem is sung, and when it is ended drums beat and trumpets sound, and the people shout, "God save King George!" "Long live King George!"

During this time the Queen has been seated in her chair on the south side of the altar, but now she rises and supported by two Bishops, escorted by her Chief Lady in Waiting and six ladies as train-bearers, she goes to the altar.

She is anointed and crowned and invested with a ring in the same manner as the King, by the Archbishop of York, and two sceptres are delivered to her. She makes obeisance to the King and is conducted to her own throne beside his, where she remains until she goes with him to receive the Sacrament of Holy Communion. The crowning of the Queen is the signal for all the peeresses to assume their coronets.

The Communion Service is resumed. The King and Queen both make an oblation of a purse of gold. The Sovereign removes his own gown before kneeling, to communicate. Their Majesties pass in state into King Edward's Chapel for a few moments' rest, after which the procession is again formed, the Queen leading, with her attendants, the King coming last of all.

The route back is by Whitehall, Pall Mall, Piccadilly and Constitution Hill, and brings to a close a ceremony brilliant in the extreme and profoundly impressive, and a pageant of unparalleled beauty and splendour.

King Edward VII. taking the Oath.

The Military Display.

It cannot be said that without the wealth of colour supplied by the army, the glory of the Coronation procession would be removed, and the spectacle would be a tame one. The composition of the military parade will be magnificent, and of course there will be South African, Australian, New Zealand and Canadian contingents to participate in the world-stirring occasion.

"The Empire in Arms" is an extraordinary fine and rousing sight, as it marches with flashing bayonets and splendid in scarlet and gold.

The King's Champion.

At former English Coronations there was always a picturesque figure known as the "King's Champion." This was a man on horseback dressed as a Knight of olden times, who, armed to the teeth, challenged all who should deny the King to be the lawful Sovereign. This practice is supposed to have originated in the time of William the Conqueror, who conferred the honour of such office upon Robert de Marmian, together with a Lincolnshire Manor. In the time of Henry IV. Thomas Dymoke claimed the office by reason of his tenure of the above Manor and Dymoke's descendants held the office till 1875, when it was abolished. The practice was last exercised at the Coronation of George IV.

Our New King and Queen.

King George V. second son of Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, was born at Marlborough House on June 3rd, 1865. He succeeded to the British throne on the death of his father, May 6th, 1910. He began his naval training at the age of twelve, and became devoted to the life of a sailor, and did very well. Canadians feel a special personal interest in the new Sovereign because he has been three times to our country and has always shown the deepest interest in Canadian affairs, and a keen appreciation of Canadian loyalty. He came here first as a young naval officer, then again in 1901, when he was Duke of Cornwall and York, accompanied by the Duchess, and as Prince of Wales he visited Canada a third time in the summer of 1908, coming to shed special lustre upon the celebrations of the Quebec Tercentenary. His simple manners, great tact and kindness have endeared him to all his subjects.

Queen Mary is distinguished for her intense love of her country. She is extremely patriotic and takes the keenest interest in all charities and home industries. She has specially ordered that all her Coronation robes shall be of British manufacture, which, of course, means that she expects the Ladies of the Court to follow her example. Both she and the King are devoted to their children, who have had an exceptionally happy and simple life.

The Prince of Wales.

Edward Prince of Wales, eldest child of the King, was born in 1894 and is every inch an English boy. He is a fine, manly looking boy and the English people are looking forward with great expectation to the revival of the old form of investiture of the Prince of Wales, which is to take place in July, 1911, at Carnarvon Castle. This will mark the beginning of the young Prince's public life.

The Coronation year is to be made memorable by the Great Festival of Empire, originally arranged for last year, but postponed on account of the death of King Edward. The reconstructed programme includes all sorts of new and gorgeous scenes, and incidents of historical interest, and the proceeds of this wonderful Festival will be devoted to King Edward VII's Hospital Fund. Mr. Frank Lascelles, the Master of the Pageant, is well-known in Canada having successfully organized and produced the Tercentenary Pageant in Quebec in 1908. There will also be Military Tattoos, Carnivals, Tournaments, and a very fine Naval Review off Spithead.

The Crown Jewels at the Coronation

At each successive coronation the Crown Jeweller has to take into consideration the addition during the last reign of some wonderful new jewel, or jewels. Such for instance were the Koh-i-nor, or "Mountain of Light"—the most valuable addition to the Crown Jewels during Queen Victoria's reign—and the Cullinan diamond, or "The Star of Africa" as by command of King George it is to be called, which was not discovered till 1905, three years after King Edward's accession. The Cullinan diamond is unique for size and perfect water. Before cutting, its weight in jeweller's language, was 4 1-2 oz. and from base to highest point it measured close on three inches. The stone was cut into two main portions which were worn by Queen Alexandra on some state occasions, while the "shavings" made any number of large and beautiful diamonds, set in various designs. The central place of honour in the front of the Crown is at present occupied by the great egg-shaped ruby worn in his helmet by the Black Prince at many battles, including Crecy and Poitiers. This ruby still shows the three holes clumsily bored by the Crown jewellers of Plantagenet times, to allow the Prince to fix therein his badge, the three feathers. A 19th century jeweller has neatly stopped these holes with three small rubies. Below the ruby comes a huge oblong sapphire, bought by the Prince Regent and presented to the Regalia and worn in front of his crown in 1830. This sapphire in spite of its size is not in consideration of colour worthy of its position, and is to be made the centre-piece at the back, while the smaller portion of the African diamond will take its place below the Black Prince's Ruby. The larger portion of the "Star of Africa" will appear on the sceptre, which decorated also by the "Orloff" diamond, which is lesser than the "Pitt" or the "Koh-i-nor" and many other priceless Crown Jewels gives King George an emblem to carry which will take rank as the most superb in the whole world.

A new crown, wholly composed of diamonds, was designed for Queen Alexandra, and will be adapted for Queen Mary. Her robe will be decorated with many gorgeous diamonds and wonderful ropes of pearls.

Some Heraldic Offices.

At the Coronation of Edward VII the background for the magnificent display of colour was a subdued and beautiful blue, which threw out into splendid relief every detail of the rich and varied costumes, and it is said that the prevailing tone of decoration for the Abbey at the coming Coronation will be blue and white. Ages of history seem to meet and mingle in that gorgeous scene. Here the stalwart Grenadiers stand side by side with the Yeomen of the Guard, who, in their quaint Elizabethan garb, stand resting upon their halberds. The Oriental princes and potentates in flowing robes and wonderful headgear might have stepped out from the pages of the Arabian Nights. The hereditary heraldic officers are of great interest in their symbolical and mediaeval bravery. The Ushers of the Scarlet Rod and of the Green Rod, accompanied by heralds, precede the blue and gold standard of Ireland, the orange and red of Scotland, and the red banner of England. Then advancing alone, comes the flag of the Union. The Keeper of the Crown Jewels, bears on a velvet cushion the two ruby rings and the Sword for the offering. The four Knights of the Garter, appointed to hold the golden canopy over the King at the Anointing, in voluminous cloaks of dark velvet, are followed by four small pages carrying their coronets. The Prime Minister wears his simple Privy Councillor's uniform of blue and white. The Archbishop of York wears a superb cope of gold and white, touched with crimson damask; the vestments of the Archbishop of Canterbury are of cream and blue and gold. The Windsor Herald with Rouge Dragon and Portcullis Pursuivant on either hand, precedes three peers who carry respectively the Ivory Rod with the Dove, the Sceptre with the Cross, and the Queen's Crown. The Richmond Herald, with Rouge Croix and Bluemantle Pursuivant, walks just in advance of the four Kings of Arms in gold and emblazoned tabards, comes the Deputy Garter King of Arms with the familiar Parliamentary figure of Black Rod on the one side, and the no less familiar figure on the right side of the Lord Mayor wielding the City Mace. The High Constables of Ireland and Scotland march together, and everywhere throughout the procession are the delightful and quaintly-dressed little pages, carrying glittering coronets, the ecclesiastical officers are as varied and as brilliant, and surpassingly dignified. The Bishop of London carries the crimson-bound Bible against his breast, the Bishop of Winchester upholds the Chalice, an dthe Bishop of Ely the Patina.

The Queen's Coronation Robes.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, is making drawings for the embroideries of the Coronation dress, and those designs will be carried out by the Royal School of Art Needlework. Queen Mary will probably wear the train worn by Queen Alexandria in 1902, a glorious ruby-red velvet affair covered with a mass of gold embroidery, the effect of which is heightened by the introduction of full gold among the glittering threads. The train is 18 feet in length and about 5 feet in width, lined in miniver. It has a cape from the shoulders of the same fur, and is bordered all round with an edging of ermine. It is powdered with imperial crowns, partly in dull, partly in glittering gold, with bits crosses and fleurs-de-lis of gold with basis of silver thread. There are 30 crowns upon it. The train is surrounded by a rich golden border divided into three parts, the first part is of cloth-of-gold on which are embroidered English roses. The next part is of velvet and on it is wrought a pattern formed of branches of oak-leaves and acorns held together by the crosses and fleur-de-lis of the Imperial crown. The border is so finely worked as to appear like a golden jewel. The third part of the border is of gold, on a ruby ground. At the end of the train is a magnificent piece of embroidery a yard and a half in length, which represents the growth of the British Kingdom by means of a vigorous rose-tree, ascending through the Crown of the Ancient Kings of England, and spreading upward into strong branches bearing double flowers, the outer portion of gold, the inner of silver pearls and leaves armed with thorns. As the tree grows upward, the thistle and the Shamrock are grafted on to it, and at last it envelops the Star of the Indian Empire, and is surrounded by the lowest of the Imperial Crowns which cover the rest of the train. Among the roots of the tree sprout the fleur-de-lis of France.

A TIMELY ADVERTISEMENT

One of the most neatly turned examples of timely advertising which we have seen for many a day is the Gillette Safety Razor Company's advertisement in this issue. In it, full advantage is taken of two happy coincidences—that the letters "G. R." are also the initials of "Gillette Razor," and that the inventor Gillette's first name is "King."

This advertisement brings to mind the hit which the same firm made with their "Gillette Elected" which appeared in papers from one end of Canada to the other, the first issue after the last last "General Elections."

THE WAGNER INQUEST WAS CONCLUDED LAST NIGHT

The Jury's Finding---A Lot of Evidence Was Offered---Who Closed the Switch?---Investigation Into Sunday's Sad Fatality.

After an hour's deliberation the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death, with an order censuring the Otonabee Power Company at the adjourned inquest on the remains of the late George Wagner, who was electrocuted near Nassau on Sunday, continued last night at the Court House. The following are the names of the jury empanelled by the Coroner, Dr. Greer: Foreman W. Garbutt, James Crowley, R. A. Maloney, Stewart Brown, Levi Campbell, Wm. Hunter, L. Kempt, Walter Rosborough, Albert Dike, John Stinson and S. Campbell.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the examination, and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared on behalf of the family of the deceased. Mr. U. Godfrey appeared for the Otonabee Power Co.

Edward Guerin, was the first witness examined. The gist of his statements during the examination was as follows: "I am employed as line foreman for the Otonabee Light and Power Co., and on Sunday at the time of the accident was working on the line leading from No. 5 dam to the sub-station at Simcoe street. Arrangements were made on Saturday with Mr. Kerr, Supt. of the station at Nassau to the effect that the power was to be cut off at seven o'clock on Sunday morning, and to remain so until notified by me. As near as I can remember, the accident happened about ten minutes to one. The men had had their lunch and had been working about ten minutes. Wagner was on one pole and Edward Barrett and Ed. White were working on the next pole. Both had their backs turned to Wagner. I was on the ground and suddenly I was startled by hearing the juice coming along the wire. This statement is explained by the fact that the electricity passing through the body of Wagner caused a hissing sound. When I looked up, I saw the flames emitting from the body. I yelled up to him to throw himself down, but he did not answer. I then went to the telephone and telephoned to the power house to have the power shut off. Wagner had one leg over the lower cross arm, and the other was around the upper cross arm, while his head was resting upon one of the wires."

At this juncture, the Coroner, Dr Greet, questioned the witness as to why the other two men did not receive similar shocks. He stated that they did not come in contact with the wire. He also asked the witness if it were possible to tell whether there was electricity passing through the wire without touching it. The witness replied in the negative. He was then questioned by Mr. J. Godfrey as to whether he took any precautions to ascertain whether there was any current passing through the wire prior to going to work on Sunday morning. He said that he had. He made the test by throwing a wire across the transmission line, and if there had been any power on it it would have caused a short circuit.

Edward Barrett and Ed. White, who were employed in the same capacity as the deceased, were the next two witnesses called. They corroborated the statements of the first witnesses.

Fred Lockington was the next witness. He testified to having seen the flames and heard the buzzing noise as described by one of the former witnesses.

Geo. Lansdale and Wm. Johnston, eye witnesses of the accident, gave evidence as to what they saw in regard to the accident.

F. A. Delisle, who is employed by the C. G. E. at Nassau, was the next called. He said that the first notification that he had of the accident was when the foreman ran into the power plant at Nassau and told him to telephone to No. 5 dam that a man was on the wire burning.

Edward Guerin was again called, and questioned as to who answered the telephone. He said that he thought it was Mr. Kerr. When asked as to what conversation passed between them, he said that he told Mr. Kerr to shut the power off that a man was on the wire burning. Mr. Kerr replied that it was shut off.

Mr. Peter Kerr, an employee of the No. 5 dam power house, in giving evidence corroborated Ed. Guerin's statements as to the agreement that was made Saturday night to the effect that the power was to be shut off, until he notified the Company otherwise. He said that it was a mystery how the power had been turned on. They had been repairing the crown wheel, having put in a new set of teeth. About twelve o'clock they went out for dinner, and upon return decided to start the wheels in motion in order to see whether the cogs were matching properly. One of the gates was opened in order to allow sufficient water to run through to start the water wheel running and generator in motion. Witness thought that this was shortly before one o'clock and did not think that the machine had been running over five minutes before it was turned off, almost after which a message was received from Nassau notifying them of the accident. It was not necessary to have the current running through the wires when the generator was running as the switches on the switch board could be pulled out, and the circuit broken. Witness was then questioned regarding the efficiency of the switches. He said that the only theory he could offer as to the current passing over the wires was that the switches were faulty, although they had been working satisfactorily since. Just prior to the accident witness had been talking over the telephone in the telephone booth. On coming out he noticed Mr. Newberry at the switch board with one hand on the switch. When witness inferred to Mr. Newberry the danger that he might incur by throwing in one of the switches, Newberry said that no voltage was registered. Witness then walked out to the wheel and while there the telephone rang and a message was received informing him of the accident. He thought that the switch was in about two minutes. The switches are of the most up-to-date pattern and are enclosed in tanks fourteen inches square containing about three or four gallon of oil. About 6,600 volts are carried on the wires under normal conditions.

Dr. Eastwood, who with the assistance of Dr. McPherson performed the post mortem on the body was next called. He described the nature of the wounds, which went to show that the unfortunate man was horribly burned. The right leg was almost severed above the knee, together with severe wounds about the head and body.

George Newberry, who is in charge of the power house at Dam No. 5, was then called. His testimony was as follows:

I had come home to my dinner and while there the wheels started to run, as I heard the noise at the house, which is only a few feet away. I immediately returned, thinking that I would be needed. When I arrived at the station Mr. Gladman was standing beside the switch board. While Kerr was in the telephone booth, I just walked over to the switch when Kerr came out of the telephone booth. He said: "George, you should not have put in that switch." I said, "Do you think I would be foolish enough to do that when I know that there are men on the line." I could not say whether I put in the switch or not. No. 2 west line switch was in when Kerr drew my attention to it. But there was no current registered, as the generator was practically stopped. I do not deny having put in the switch. Shortly after this Kerr was called to the 'phone, and while there I heard a message saying that there was a man killed out on the wire. I could not offer any theory as to how the switch was thrown in. Witness thought that the wheels had revolved rapidly enough to generate enough current to kill a man.

Mr. Gladman, next witness called, testified to having done the repair work on the water wheel. He had just about completed the job on Sunday. He admitted having seen the machinery in motion and thought that the generator had been running about five minutes. Witness was unable to say whether the switch was in or not.

Mr. Ritchie, an electrical expert of the C. G. E., gave some information relative to the switches. He said that they were almost universally used in all the up-to-date power plants. He had never known one to work in a faulty condition for a time and then become all right without any attention.

George Newberry was then recalled and questioned as to the statements which he made to Archie Moore, county constable. In one of them he admitted having thrown a switch in. He also denied having told Moore that there was about 3,000 volts of electricity generated during the motion of the generator on Sunday.

This constituted the whole of the evidence.

WANTED BAND NEXT WEEK

Mr. R. Gliddon, leader of the 57th Regimental Band, received a telegram last night from the management of Scarboro Beach, Toronto, offering thirty members of the band a week's engagement at the Beach, starting on Monday next, June 26th. It is impossible on such short notice to arrange to have the band go next week, but it is probable that a little later in the season they may have an engagement at the popular resort.

Is A Direct Descendant Of An Historical Family

Some Interesting Features in Connection With the History of the Tighes of Peterborough—Early Local Residents.

OLD RECORDS

The Examiner yesterday was favoured with a visit from a rather unique character in the person of Mrs. Wilson Tighe. Mrs. Tighe is a direct descendant of Richard Tighe and a portion of the family history which is here appended gives a brief conception of the historical standing of the "Tighe" family. Mrs. Tighe's grandfather died when he was 67 years of age about 70 years ago. He was buried on the site of the old drill shed.

Mrs. Tighe's father was born in 1799, he died in 1872, if he were alive to-day he would be 112 year's old.

Those of the Tighes who are yet living are as near as can be estimated the third or fourth generation. A number of them reside in Detroit. William and George Liley Tighe, brothers of Mrs. William Tighe, reside in New Liskeard and Sutton's Bay respectively. The latter was janitor of the Central school for 21 years; Mrs. William Tighe is the only direct descendant of the Tighes now living in Peterboro, she resides at 539 Gilchrist Street. Mrs. Tighe is a veritable mine of information when it comes to discussing the representative standing of the Tighe family for two or three generations back.

Arms: Party per chevron embattled, arg. and sa.; five crosslets in chief, and four in base interchanged.

Crest: A wolf's head erased ppr., gorged with a collar arg., charged with a cross crosslet sa.

Rank: Burgess.

The Tighes are descended from Richard Tighe, of Market Deeping, Lincolnshire. He went to Ireland in the reign of Charles I., and settled in Dublin, which city he represented in Parliament. He was High Sheriff of the city in 1649; Colonel of the Dublin Militia; Mayor of the City in 1651, 1652, and 1655. His great-great-grandson, father of the Right Hon. William Frederick Fouues Tighe, was Lord Lieutenant of the County Kilkarney and Keeper of the Rolls.

Robert Tighe, of the Hay Market, brother of the ancestor of the Tighes of Woodstock, went to Ireland in the time of Charles I. He married, in 1681, Mabella, daughter of Robert Sterne, of Tullanally, County Westmeath sister of the Right Hon. Major-General Stearne, of Kihuainhaiu. His sons were: (1) Robert and (2) Stearne, of Carrick, County Westmeath, ancestor of the Tighes of Carrick. Robert purchased Mitchelstown. His sons were: (1) Robert Morgan Tighe, (2) William Stearne, and (3) Hugh Usher Tighe, Dean of Derry.

Robert, of Mitchelstown, married Dorothy Blundell, daughter of Ralph Blundell, a descendant of Sir Francis Blundell, Bart. He died Nov. 17th, 1763, leaving a son, Daniel, who succeeded to the estate of Carrick in 1791. His third son, William Tighe, of Gartlandstown, married Barbara Salmon, by whom he had a son, Thomas, a daughter, Mary, and an elder son, Stearne, who married Jane de Vaux, by whom he had a son, William, and five daughters, one of whom, Mary Salmon, married her cousin, Rev. William Tighe, rector of the parish of Holmpatrick, County of Dublin, son of Thomas Tighe and Eliza de Vaux.

It will thus be seen that Stearns Tighe, of Gartlandstown, and Thomas Tighe, brothers, married Jane and Eliza de Vaux, who were sisters. The Rev. Stearne Tighe, of Kingston, Ont., is the only grand-child of Stearne Tighe, and Jane de Vaux by his mother's side, and the only grandson by his father's side, of Thomas and Eliza de Vaux. His grandfathers were brothers and his grandmothers were sisters, and the only living representatives of two or three families that descend in a direct line from Richard Tighe, High Sheriff of Dublin in 1649.

57th REGIMENT WILL HAVE PARADE TO-MORROW

Route of the Procession is Announed for To-morrow--Will Fire a Feu de Joie in Central Park Before Leaving to Take Part in the Ceremony in Connection With Dedication of the Chimes.

At the regular weekly drill, held last night in Central Park, the programme of the 57th Regiment for Coronation day was read. A fairly large number turned out, and the companies received a good hard drilling. Company drill was participated in, and after nine o'clock the regiment was lined up in the armouries for the Feu De Joie and Royal salute. Canon Davidson, chaplain of the Regiment addressed them regarding their duty on Coronation Day, and expressed his wish to see a large turnout. He recalled the death of the late Private Geo. Wagner, and drew the men's attention to the fact that the deceased was doing his duty when he was killed, and that was what every true soldier should do, and was the way he should die. He suggested that those who felt so disposed should write to the father of the deceased and convey their deep sympathy in his bereavement. He stated that the late Mr. Wagner was a fine soldier in every particular, being fine looking, physically as a soldier and also an exemplary soldier as regards attending to duty. It is the desire of the officers and also all those who have an interest in the regiment to see a large number on parade. The following were the orders:

Headquarters,
Peterborough, 20th June.

Orders by the Officer Commanding 5th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers:—

1.—Detail of duty for week ending 27th June. Capt for the week, Capt. McLean; next for duty, Capt. Watt. Subaltern for the week, Lieut. Carruthers; next for duty, Lieut. Gemmell.

2.—The Regiment will parade in review order with ammunition pouches, at the armouries at 10.45 a.m. on Thursday, June 22nd, 1911 to participate in the celebration of His Majesty's Coronation.

3.—At 11.15 a.m. the Regiment will leave the drill hall, march south on George street to Charlotte street, west on Charlotte St. to Aylmer, north on Aylmer to Hunter, east on Hunter to Water, south on Water to Simcoe, west on Simcoe to George, north on George to Central Park, and will there be formed in line and will fire Feude De Joie and give a Royal salute.

4.—For this parade three rounds of blank amunition will be issued to each man.

5.—At 12 noon the Regiment will march to St. John's church to assist in the ceremony of the consecration of the "People's Chimes."

6.—Leave of absence off parade, is hereby granted to Major Bennet and Capt. McPherson.

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHES FOR MEN

The superlative merits of the Twentieth Century Brand Clothing were splendidly demonstrated in the store of Merrill & Meredith last evening, when Mr. J. H. Schuetz, demonstrator for the Lowndes Company, Limited, occupied the centre of the stage—the stage being the large display window of the sole local agents.

That the men of Peterborough are interested in stylish clothing was evident by the crowds in front of the store while the demonstration was in progress. Mr. Shuetz revealed to hosts of passers-by the real thing in tailored garments for up-to-the-minute men; and more than one wayfarer paused to stare at the demonstrator and declare, earnestly: "I never saw anything like it."

The demonstration showed convincingly the many reasons why the Twentieth Century Brand Clothing is so popular with men who like to be well dressed. Two of the most popular models of the Lowndes product were particularly shown—Model 74 with Athletic X shoulders and Model 39 with Athletic shoulders. These are the newest things being offered for fall wear, and embody all the strong points of the Twentieth Century garments. The snug fitting collars, the shapely shoulders and the uncreasable front were among the many popular features attractively demonstrated.

A striking feature of the demonstration was the startling contrast between the Twentieth Century tailored garments and the common run of ready-made products. The demonstrator first tried on the ordinary machine-made coat, and followed with the Twentieth Century. The contrast between the ill-fitting and shapeless "cheap" garment and the beautifully made and stylish Twentieth Century coat was a revelation to the crowds which witnessed the demonstration.

The Twentieth Century garments are all bench made by expert tailors, and every garment that bears the well known Twentieth Century trademark is guaranted. The growing popularity of the Twentieth Century clothing has been marked by steadily but rapidly increasing sales, and the success of the stylish and beautiful models produced by this up-to-date company indicates that Canadians want the best, and won't be satisfied with anything else. Merrill & Meredith are the only agents in Peterborough for these up-to-the-minute garments.

The Lowndes Company, Limited, manufactures everything in men's outer wear, including full dress suits, tuxedos, frock coats,—in fact the entire list. The stylish man can be outfitted with anything he desires. Not merely are beautifully fitting ready-to-wear tailored garments turned out, but the company has a special measuring department, showing 600 different patterns, producing what is by long odds the best fashionably tailored clothing turned out in Canada to-day. The variety in style, and the excellent workmanship, are calculated to please the most fastidious.

WEDDING BELLS

CLANCY—MORONEY.

The old cathedral of St. Michael's was crowded this morning to witness the wedding of Miss Anna Moroney, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Joseph Moroney and Mrs. Moroney, Jarvis street, to Mr. Frank J. Clancy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clancy, Peterborough.

The massive centre altar was arranged with cut flowers, the floral effect being enhanced with illumination from electrical globes. The wedding music was in charge of Mrs. Joseph Bonner and the nuptial mass was chanted by the rector, Rev. Father Whelan. The bride was escorted to the altar by Mr. Frank Britton, an old family friend, in the unavoidable absence of her elder brother. The wedding robe was composed of rich ivory Duchesse satin made semi-empire and elaborately trimmed with pearl embroidery and Duchesse lace. A shower of bridal roses were carried and a coronet of orange blossoms fastened the tulle veil which fell to the hem of the train. The only ornament worn was a diamond pendant, the groom's gift. The bride's only attendant was Miss Marguerite Clancy sister of the groom. She was attired in pink ninon over pink silk with hat of white lace and pink rosebuds. A sheaf of pink roses was carried and the groom's gift, a pearl ring, was worn. Little Eleanor Bryan, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a pretty dress of white mull with pale blue trimmings and carried a basket of marguerites. She also received a pearl ring from the groom. Mr. Frank Moroney, brother of the bride, assisted the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Frank Moran and Mr. Ernest Roy, and their favours were pearl scarf pins.

After the ceremony Mrs. Moroney held a large reception at the family residence, 221 Jarvis street. The newly wedded couple received the congratulations of their friends at the entrance of the drawing rooms, afterwards passing upstairs to view the presents. After cutting her cake, the bride slipped away to don her travelling suit of grey broadcloth with white silk mohair hat with plumes. The honeymoon will be spent in Rochester and other American points. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Clancy will reside on Endean avenue in a pretty home presented by the bride's mother. Mrs. Moroney wore a handsome dress of black moire antique with lace trimming and an all black toque. Mrs. James Merrick, aunt of the bride, was gowned in orchid mauve foulard, with hat to match and Mrs. Jack Bryan, cousin of the bride, wore white lingerie over silk and white lace hat.

BELL—WESTLAKE.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated on June 14th at Pleasant View Cottage, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. P. Westlake, Smith, when their second daughter, Miss Elizabeth Isabella was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. W. Braden Bell, the youngest son of Mr. J. N. Bell, of Smith.

The bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Miss Eva Westlake, sister of the bride. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. S. Crookshanks, of Bridgenorth Methodist church.

The bride wore a pretty gown of cream voile trimmed with all-over lace and pearls. The young couple were unattended.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to the usual wedding supper. The evening was spent in music and other enjoyments, after which the bride and groom left for their future home, Poplar Grove, Smith, amid showers of confetti from their friends.

HALLIHAN—MURRAY.

The wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart this morning at 8 o'clock, of Mr. Michael John Hallihan, to Miss Minnie Murray, daughter of Mr. John Murray, Parnell street. Rev. Father McAuley officiated. The bridesmaid was Miss Lizzie Murray, sister of the bride, and the groomsman Mr. Joe. Delaire. The bride was given away by her father, and was attired in a navy blue tailor-made suit and wore a black hat, trimmed with yellow plumes, while the bridesmaid wore a similar gown. A recherche wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hallihan left on the 8.30 train for Niagara Falls and Buffalo. On their return they will take up residence at 458 Bolivar street. The wedding gifts were numerous and handsome. The groom's gift to the bride was a sunburst of pearls, to the bridesmaid a signet ring and to the best man a pearl tie pin.

A Drama of The Camorra

Actual Occurrence of Today Told in Story Form

By ARTHUR A. TAYLOR

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Occasionally certain events in which there is what we call romance need only to be put in story form to make them twin brothers to fiction. The following is an example:

Two men, apparently of the lower grade of Italians, sat chatting in a wine shop in Naples. The face and hands of one were begrimed with coal dust, for by the carrying of that fuel he earned his living; the other was not at the time following any especial calling.

"Gennaro," said the coal heaver, "tell me how to proceed to become a member of the Camorra."

"What do you mean by the Camorra?"

"Nonsense. I know that it exists and that you are a member of it."

"Well, Luigi, since you and I are close friends I will admit to you that I am a member of the Camorra. As to your getting into the society, you must prove yourself in full sympathy with its objects, which are to enable its members to commit crime and evade the law. Why do you wish to join it?"

"That I may live without work. Look at these hands and my face covered with dust. Do you suppose I like such occupation? But what can I do? If I steal a few lira and am caught I go to jail. But suppose I belong to your society. I steal a thousand lira. I am arrested. The police suspect or know that I am a member of the Camorra. He from whom I stole the money knows me and that I stole it. But he learns that if he testifies against me he will incur the displeasure of the society. When he is called upon to identify me he cannot remember that he ever saw me before. He pockets his loss, and I spend his money.

"Suppose I desire to remove some one who stands in my way. If I attempt it alone I suffer death; if supported by your society I am not convicted—I go free.

"By the bye, Gennaro, they say the police have got on to the truth as to the Cuocolo murder."

Gennaro smiled contemptuously. "The police know nothing about that matter. I know everything."

"Well, what do you know?" asked the other indifferently.

"Do you suppose I, who have taken an oath not to reveal the secrets of the Camorra, would tell you, an outsider, what I know about this affair? When you are a member of the society you will know such things for yourself."

"Oh, I care nothing about that matter. What I wish is to be able to live without work. I have a few soldi left. Let us have another liter of wine."

A month later Gennaro Abbatemaggio was arrested for some small theft, and Luigi Bucini went to see him in jail.

"How is it, Gennaro," said the latter, "that you are in jail? Is your society powerless to protect you?"

Gennaro smiled. "Do you suppose the Camorra risks interfering in petty affairs like this? But wait till I am tried. Then you shall see me walk out of court a greatly wronged man."

"Well, you see that I don't forget you, Gennaro. I have brought you some fruit, some bread and a liter of wine. I managed to get my hands on quite a large sum of money recently, and I promise you that I will keep you supplied with comforts as long as it lasts."

"You are a true friend to do that."

"What else can I do for you?"

"There is something I wish you could do for me, but that is impossible."

"What is it?"

"Luigi, I am in love."

"Now, my dear friend, you are showing that you have some affection for me. Tell me all about it. It may be that I can help you. Does she live here in Naples?"

"No; in Capua."

"What is her name?"

"Bianca."

"And what is that you would have me do for you that I cannot do?"

"Enable me to marry."

Luigi was silent for a time, then said: "I have a surprise for you, Gennaro. I am able to place you in a position to marry your love. You have given me your confidence; I will give you mine. Know, then, my dear Gennaro, that this sum I spoke of getting my hands on is very large, and I covered my figures so well that I am not even suspected. But I am placing myself in your hands by telling you of it. You can denounce me to the police and I shall spend my time in jail instead of my money in ease and comfort."

"Go on," said Gennaro impatiently.

"Very well. As soon as you get out of here I will divide my good luck with you. I will enable you to marry this Capuan girl you love so well."

"Ah, my dear Luigi, what a man you are," said Gennaro, grasping his friend's hand, "and how much I shall owe you! Neither Bianca nor I have a soldi to marry on, but if you can lend me enough to set up a shop I will live a life like other people and not feel in constant dread. This will make the girl I love as well as me happy."

"I will lend you what you need for a shop and enough to start you in housekeeping. Goodby. I hope soon to see you happy and comfortable."

The next time these two men met Gennaro was out of jail and they were sitting in the wine shop where they first conversed. Luigi was speaking.

"I have the money ready for you, my friend, to enable you to marry your Bianca."

"And what am I to do in return for this favor?"

"Nothing of any importance. You know I have long wished to become a member of the Camorra. I cannot do that without a leverage. But fortunately you can supply that."

"How?"

"Tell me what you know about the Cuocolo murder."

Gennaro winced. "That is impossible."

"Then I must remain outside the society, and when I am caught defying the law I must spend the best part of my life, as you have lately been spending a few weeks, in prison, or perhaps if I put an enemy out of the way I shall suffer death."

"But I can't understand why a knowledge of this murder is so necessary to your attaining an entrance to the Camorra."

"I will tell you. There are men in it who would oppose my admission. With a knowledge of the circumstances connected with this murder the society would not dare to reject me."

"I see. But what you ask for the favor you propose doing me is not the unimportant return you consider it. Suppose you should"—

"Betray you? Do you think so little of my friendship as that?"

"No, no, but I have sworn."

"What is an oath to such men as we? It is fear that holds us, and so long as you have nothing to fear from me what matters it?"

"I will think it over."

Luigi paid for the wine they had been drinking and in doing so pulled out a great roll of bills. Gennaro saw them and fell under the temptation.

"Come with me," he said, "down to the sea wall. We will get a boat, go out into the bay, where we shall not be heard, and I will tell you all."

* * * * * * *

In a small street in Capua preparations are being made for a wedding. The groom is our old friend Gennaro; the bride is his Bianca. Both are better dressed than they have ever been before, and a feast more savory than either has ever partaken of is set before them and their guests. Bianca's father, who would not permit her to marry Gennaro so long as he had no visible means of support, is now going about in a new suit of clothes purchased with money borrowed from Luigi Bucini, with a broad grin on his face. The last of the wedding supplies, a barrel of wine, is being removed from a cart to the house.

And now the wedding party have returned from the church and are sitting around the festal board. Every one is happy, except that the groom keeps looking out of the window expectantly. Luigi has promised to attend the wedding, but has not yet put in an appearance. Presently a man in the uniform of the national police turns into the street where he could be seen by Gennaro, approaches the house in which sat the wedding party, opens the door and walks in.

Had he been a specter he could not have created more consternation. The groom looked at him, and every vestige of color left his face.

"Luigi!" he faltered.

"Do not trouble yourself about this change in my costume," said the sergeant of carabineers. "You and I are under the protection of the government. This wedding outfit and the capital with which you are to open your shop are advanced by his majesty the king. But more of this hereafter. For the present let us proceed with these wedding festivities."

Taking up a glass, he filled it with wine, held it aloft and said:

"To the health of our sovereign and the little bride."

The carabineer from that time passed under his real name, Capezzuti. Acting under the special orders of the king of Italy, he had undertaken to secure evidence in the Cuocolo murder case, with which the government proposed to attempt the breaking up of the celebrated Bella Suggieta Reformata (the Beautiful Reformed society), headed by Enrico Alfano. After the wedding festivities he took Gennaro into a private room, where they conversed for a long while. When they came out the groom was enlisted in the service of the government as a spy.

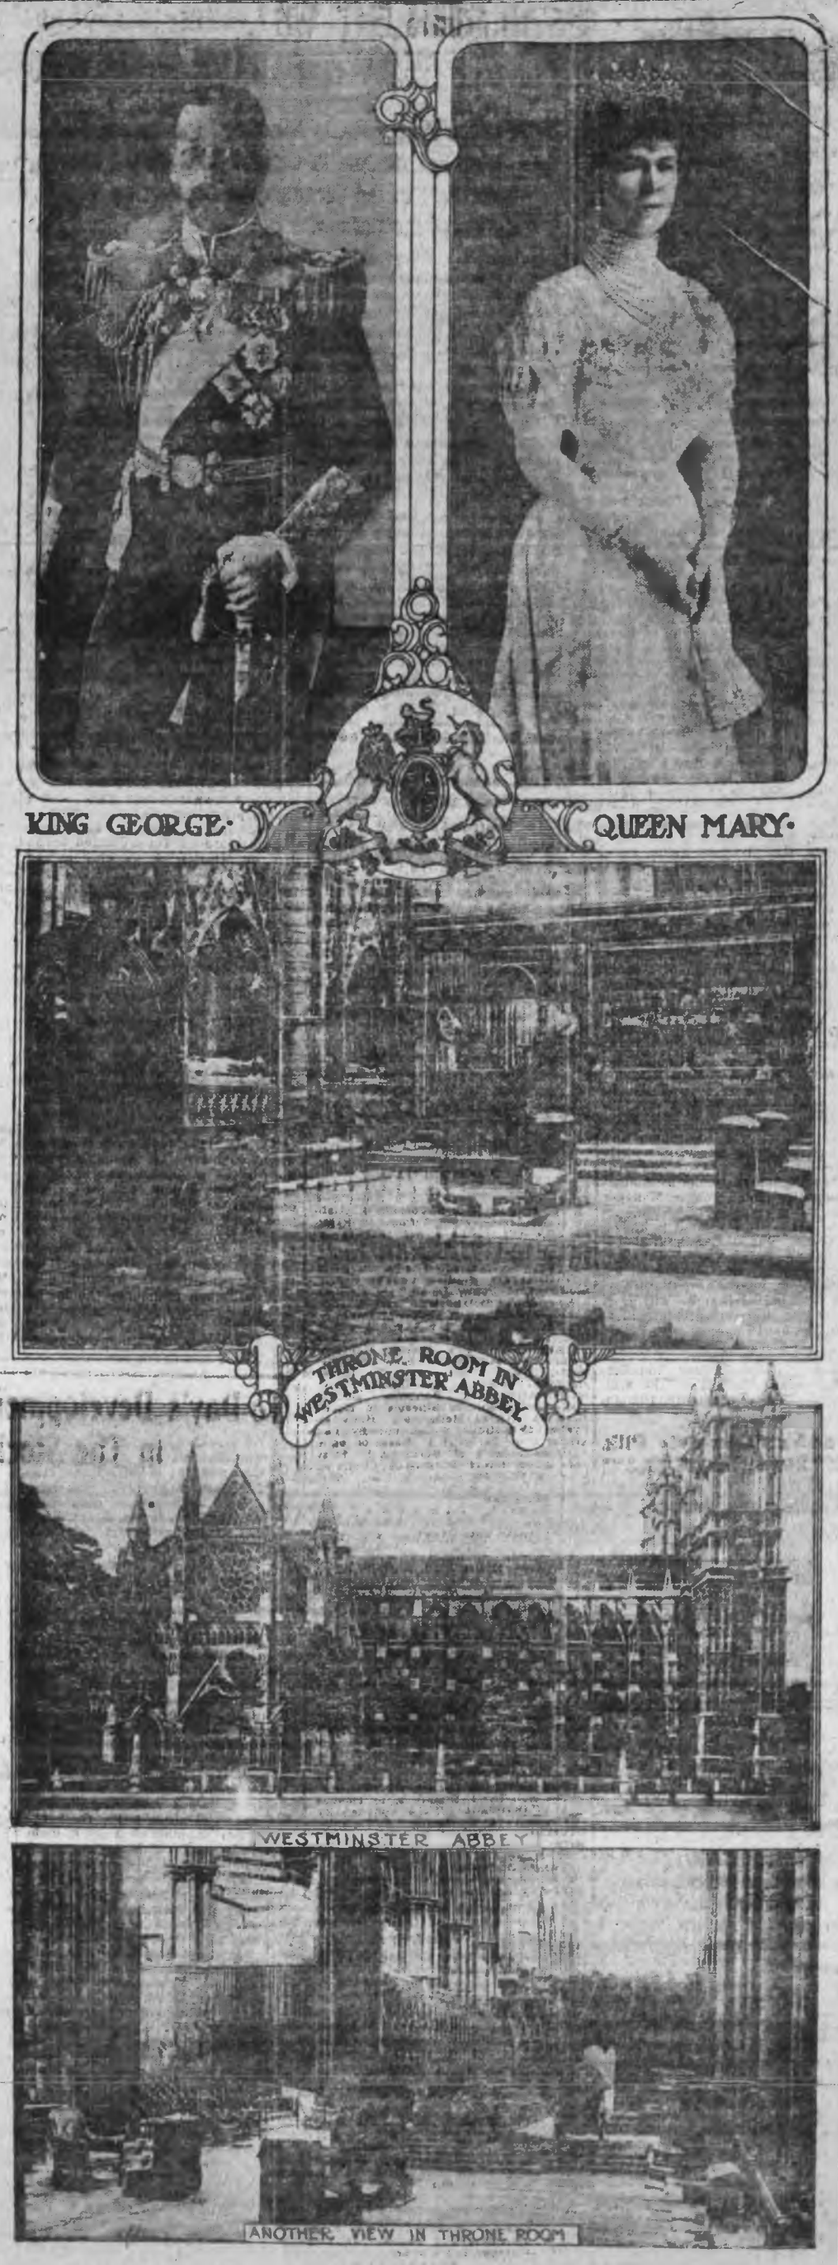
Masterman Is Unseated.

London, June 21.—Charles F. G. Masterman, Under-Secretary of State in the Home Office, yesterday was deprived of his seat in the House of Commons for the north division of West Ham by the law courts, which found that his election was aided by corrupt practices on the part of his agents.

The judges said that no fault rested upon Masterman personally.



Coronation of King George and Queen Mary

The actual coronation and enthronization of King George V. of England and his wife, Queen Mary, June 22 in historic Westminster Abbey is but one incident, though of course the most important, in a series of events extending over twelve days. June 19 the visiting royal persons arrive. The King gives them a state banquet in Buckingham Palace the next night. The Duke of Connaught gives a state concert June 21. The day after the coronation Their Majesties drive through the streets of London. The King and Queen witness the great naval review at Spithead June 24. June 26 Their Majesties attend a gala performance at Covent Garden Opera House. The King holds a great garden party at Buckingham Palace on the afternoon of June 27. Next day the King sees the royal agricultural show at Norwich. The lord mayor and sheriffs entertain the King and Queen June 29 at luncheon at the Guildhall. June 30 Their Majesties go to the Crystal Palace to greet 100,000 children. The Prime Minister and Mrs. Asquith give a dinner in honor of the King and Queen, who depart July 1 for Windsor Castle.

An Intended Celibate

His Course Was Turned Awry by a Cunning Scheme

By F. A. MITCHEL

Mrs. Rutherford was getting ready to go out when a card was handed to her bearing the name of Mr. John Mainwaring. Mr. Mainwaring was a very old friend of Mrs. Rutherford.

"How do you do, John?" said the lady as she entered the drawing room, offering her hand. "Where have you kept yourself so long?"

"I have come, my dear Martha, to make you a very important proposition."

"Dear me!" exclaimed the lady facetiously. "How sudden!"

"A proposition for your daughter."

"What? An old fellow like you!"

"For my son. You know that I have a million to leave Arthur, and I wish to transmit it through him to my descendants. Now, what do you suppose the simpleton intends to do with it? He has just been admitted to orders; he is so high church that I fear he will fall off the apex of the steeple; he intends never to marry and proposes to give my hard earned million to the church."

"What nonsense!"

"Now, I propose that you propose"—

"That's very funny."

"I mean I would like you to find some way by which the boy may be entrapped into matrimony with your daughter."

"My daughter?"

"Yes. I'm very fond of Constance. I have observed that she has a good head on her. She will not turn out one of those women who butt against stone walls; she will make a manager, and that's what my son needs. There is not a practical hair on his head."

"Why, Constance is nothing but a child."

"Youth is the time for love. It comes then much easier and much quicker than in later years."

"Well, John, I feel very much complimented that you should have so high an opinion of my daughter. I'll talk with her and see what I can do. Of course you know she has no fortune to match what will come to Arthur."

"He has the fortune. I wish him to marry one who has the brains to take care of it."

"Well, if I can hit on a plan that will bring the matter about I'll let you know."

A few days later Mrs. Rutherford submitted her plan. It was this:

"Tell your son that you would like him to marry Constance—that is, if she will accept him. If she refuses he shall be free to do with his inheritance, when he gets it, what he likes and to remain a celibate. Throw out a fear that he will attempt to influence Constance to make a sacrifice by declining him that the church may be benefited."

Mr Mainwaring was especially adapted to carry out his part of the plan. He had a talk with his son, in which he made known his wishes and very skillfully threw out the hint that Mrs. Rutherford had suggested. He then left the young man to pursue the matter in accordance with his own methods.

It is remarkable how many young men and women are brought up together who never think of marrying. And is it not that they either grow to be old maids and old bachelors side by side or take partners from other places because of the very fact that marriage does not occur to them? The curate found himself face to face with the converse of this proposition. Marriage had been suggested. He must either get out of marrying a certain girl or give up a pet scheme. He was in love with the scheme, not with the girl.

Constance was very young—too young one would say to play the principal part in this little comedy. Her mother chose her daughter's costume for the occasion, but did not hamper her with instructions. The girl was not displeased at the idea of becoming the curate's wife and was very much pleased at the prospect of having a wife's interest in a million. When she entered the room where young Mainwaring was waiting for her, blushing and avoiding his gaze, she certainly looked very attractive. Though her mother had robed her in the gown having the longest skirt in her wardrobe it reached but little below the tops of her boots. Her figure was of the willowy kind, though she was neither very tall nor very slender. The curves of both her figure and her face were those of youth. She seemed so embarrassed that she scarcely knew what to do. Advancing shyly to the curate, she put out her hand, all the while with averted gaze. The little member nestled soft and warm in the man's larger palm, and a delicious thrill ran up his arm.

When she had withdrawn from him she went to the other part of the room and seated herself as far away from him as she conveniently could.

Mr. Mainwaring felt the difficulty of addressing a young girl barely seventeen on such a subject. It was his purpose to dissuade her from marrying him. What a situation! Had he been on the other side he would have found his task very easy. Had she been older he could have appealed to her higher spiritual sense with more chance of success. As it was he feared to put himself in a very ungallant if not unmanly position. He remained silently turning the matter over in his mind till the silence was becoming painful, then, clearing his throat, he began:

"A certain proposition has been made to me in which you are involved. My father has done you the honor to wish you for his daughter-in-law. I know you to be worthy of the compliment. I am sure there is in you a nobility of soul far beyond the average. If you decline a proposition from me, father will not insist on my marrying any one else. In that case I shall be enabled to confer a great benefit on the church and through the church on millions of beings. No one knows"—warming to his subject, he arose and took a seat beside her—"how many immortal souls by a decision of yours may be saved and translated at last to glory. I think I hear a chorus of voices of those whom you have saved exultingly chanting your praises before the heavenly throne."

He paused for breath. Constance seemed very much affected. She did not look up at him, but rested her bowed head on her hand, the elbow resting on the arm of her seat—a sofa—and Mr. Mainwaring moved nearer to her and bent forward that he might see the effect of his exordium. Her hand nearest to him lay limp. That he might make the rest of his appeal more successful he clasped it softly in his own.

"If you choose selfishly in this matter," he continued, "what do you gain? First, an unworthy servant of the Lord; second, that which is dross. 'Lay not up for yourself treasure on earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt.' Choose rather that spiritual part which will"—

The speaker stopped short. Mrs. Rutherford, who was listening on the landing above, exclaimed:

"Goodness gracious! What is the child howling about?"

Sobs, sobs, more sobs, came up from the drawing room. Mrs. Rutherford waited for words. She waited during what seemed a long while, though it was only a matter of half a minute; then she heard the curate say:

"There, there; don't cry."

This was succeeded by a fresh burst of sobs.

"Come, come; dry your tears, dear little girl."

But the more the curate strove to calm his proposed convert the more she wept.

"That's right," muttered Mrs. Rutherford to herself. "Keep it up and all will be well."

"Constance, dearest," came again the curate's voice, "perhaps it can be all arranged another way. Together we will dispense this blessing which Providence intends for those who need it. You may be my assistant. Dry your tears, sweetheart. There, there; put your head down on my shoulder. We shall be very happy together. Now give me just one teeny, weeny little kiss."

Mrs. Rutherford waited to hear no more. Going to a room where telephone apparatus was kept, she closed the door and called up Mr. Mainwaring, Sr.

"Is that you, John?"

"Yes."

"I'm Martha. The matter between Arthur and Constance is settled."

"Settled! What do you mean?"

"She's got him."

"Good! How did she manage it? What in the world did she say to him?"

"Didn't say a word."

"Well, what did she do?"

"Bawled."

"Bawled? Explain."

"The minx listened to his argument until he had come to the point, then began to cry."

"How do you know it's all settled?"

"I just heard him ask for one teeny, weeny little kiss."

"I told you she would manage him. And she'll keep it up too."

The curate had called to convert a girl to the cause of his being a celibate, and instead she had converted him to matrimony. When he had come to her way of thinking her tongue was somewhat loosened. But she said nothing about how they were to spend her expected fortune upon the church. Later, when they were married and had inherited his million, as his wife she took it under her own wing, and the clergyman's intentions for the church resulted in nothing more than air castles. He is an indifferent preacher, but maintains his position at the head of one of the richest churches in a large city. If any one expresses surprise at a man of such small caliber occupying so important a position the reply is:

"It's Mrs. Mainwaring."

The Spell Was Off.

"So your daughter jilted the schoolmaster?"

"Yes. He corrected her simplified spellings."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Bowmanville Will Have Their Best Line-up In To-morrow's Game

At the request of the Bowmanville team the hour of starting the Midland League game at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon, has been changed from 3 o'clock to 2.30. Word has been received from the invaders that on account of the holiday they will be able to have their strongest team in action and that they expect to stop the winning streak of the Petes to-morrow. Beith, their star twirler, will be on the firing line, and as Bowmanville have the greatest confidence in this twirler, they always play their best ball when he is doing the throwing. Manager Quinlan has decided to pitch for Peterborough himself, to-morrow, and he is in the pink of condition for a hard battle. Stan Cresswell, who pitched such a fine game against Port Hope on Saturday, will be held in reserve. Otherwise the team will be about the same as usual, with Gonter at short stop. Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, the most popular umpire in the district, will handle the indicator, an announcement that will be welcome news to the fans. The game is the big event of the holiday afternoon, and will undoubtedly draw a correspondingly large crowd. The Peterborough team will be as follows:

McFadden—catcher.
Quinlan—pitcher.
Cresswell—pitcher.
M. O'Brien, 1st base.
O'Hearne, 2nd base.
Conter—short-stop.
Murphy—3rd base.
W. O'Brien, centre field.
Rahmel—centre field.
Craig—right field.

Picked Team Challenge Peterboroughs To Game

Saturday is an off day in the Midland League schedule, but the Peterborough team will have a game here nevertheless. Happy Brydie has picked up a team which, he thinks, will make the Petes step to town all the way, and has hurled a challenge at Manager Quinlan for a game on Saturday against the Midland Leaguers, which has been accepted, and the game is on. It should be a hummer. Manager Brydie has stipulated that he must have the services of Cresswell, the young left-hander and this has been agreed upon, while Quinlan will pitch for the Petes, their team being the same as against Bowmanville to-morrow. Manager Brydie has been keeping his line-up more or less a secret, but it is known that he has signed Rahmel for this contest, and he was seen casting a critical eye over the players of the Inter-Catholic League on Saturday, and it is expected that he will draft some of the stars of this organization to do battle against the Petes.

BENEDICTS BEAT THE BACHELORS

The Benedicts lined up against the single chaps last night and won a game, which was the most classical exhibition of football seen in Peterborough for some time. It was a famous victory, and the big crowd enjoyed the sport.

Lazenby, the regular goal keeper for Park street, contributed the first goal for the Benedicts. Then French added another and Williams followed suit. Mr. Tooley then registered one for the single folks and French and Williams becoming alarmed at one goal being scored both did the trick again, making the first half five to one in favour of the men with wives.

In the second half the Bachelors changed their forward line and put Miller on the defence, which resulted in a better stand all round. Only two goals were scored in the second half, and the popular parson of Park street who up to the present had refused, by virtue of his modesty, to come into the limelight, took the ball from a lightning pass and scored, much to the enjoyment of the crowd. Then Mr. Greeson got busy and scored another for the single men. Score 6 to 2.

Mr. Dawson refereed most satisfactorily for all concerned. After the game the teams were entertained by the young ladies of the church.

The teams lined up as follows:

Married Men.—Goal Jones; backs, Hall, Morris; half backs Curtis-Pagett, Young; forwards, Williams, Lasenby, French, Riddiford and Corliss.

ANOTHER DEFEAT

Midgets Drop a City Juvenile Game to the Lights

There was another surprise in the City Juvenile League game at the Oval last night, when the Lights walloped the Midgets by 13 runs to 6, giving the latter team a jolt that pretty well shook them out of the procession. The Midgets have been the chief contenders with the Thistles since the League opened, but ran into defeat at the hands of the Leafs and last night's trimming from the Lights does not help any. The Lights grabbed last night's contest right off the reel by walking into Parker, the Midgets' left-handed twirler, in the first innings and banging out eight runs, which practically settled the game then and there. Barrie who replaced Parker, held the Lights to one hit, but the damage had been done. The batteries were Swanston and Taylor, for the Lights, and Parker, Barrie and Haskill for the Midgets. M. Guerin umpired satisfactorily.

Arrangements for the inauguration of the People's Chimes are now completed. The dedication service will be begun punctually at 12.10 p.m. on the arrival of the 57th Regiment from Central Park. The platform will be placed immediately in front of the church porch and will be occupied by the Bishop of Toronto, the Mayor, Church Wardens, Town Council, members of Ministerial Association and clergy. On the steps will be stationed the surpliced choir of St. John's, and behind them the 57th Regiment, drawn up in a hollow square with two bands in the centre. On the right will be the Boy Scouts and on either side of the platform the delegates of the different fraternal societies will assemble in full regalia. The crowd will be everywhere.

Subscribers to the Chimes fund are especially invited to be present, with the same hearty invitation extended to the general public.

The dedication service will consist of the request for dedication, which will be offered. This will be followed by the singing of the 150th Psalm by the choir. The Mayor will then read the documentary deed under which the Chimes are inaugurated and hand same to the Bishop, who will accept on behalf of the church. The special dedicatory prayers will then be said and reference made to the use of the bells in the worship of God, for the sick and infirm in the home and for those passing from the world. The Bishop will then pronounce the solemn act of dedication by the ringing of the large bell.

The Doxology, national anthem and O, Canada will then be sung, led by the Regimental band.

The Bishop will then hand the deed to the rector and make a brief official address, followed by the benediction. The service is not expected to last more than twenty minutes, after which the battalion, Boy Scouts and fraternal societies will march off the grounds in regular order.

The official luncheon will follow at 1 o'clock, when the congregation of St. John's will entertain the Mayor and the Council and all representatives of official public bodies, in the school-room.

The invitations sent out have necessarily been curtailed owing to the limited room at the disposal of those in charge. But it is expected that 130 will take part.

The bells will chime both afternoon and evening.

A number of visitors from a distance are expected for the occasion, among them being, besides Bishop Sweeney, Mr. H. T. Beck, K.C., of Toronto, Mr. N. F. Davidson, K.C., of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Loosemore, manager of the Standard Bank of Toronto. It is a matter of regret that the Hon. George A. Cox, who desired to be present, is unable to come.

The church authorities have not yet promulgated definite plans for the public use of the chimes, but this will be announced later.

It is not thought possible to have the best results from the bells until the chimers have had the opportunity of becoming more familiar with the use of the bells. Chiming of the bells will be under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey and Mr. John Butcher.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, JUNE 21.— London cables lower as a rule, doubtless reflecting the heavy tone to the local market on Tuesday. No change in the bank of England rate was made and the discount is still 3 per cent. So far as actual news goes, there is nothing in advices over night to cause worriment, even the passing of the wool bill by the house being of less importance than might appear on the face of things. The Democrats are playing the political game by putting through tariff reform measures which the Republican Senate will probably turn down, thus getting the credit for carrying out campaign pledges. The budget of crop damage rumours with which Wall street has been provided of late, apparently is part of a bear campaign and can be discounted since exaggeration is evident. Some injury from lack of rain has taken place, but the most reliable reports do not indicate that this is excessive, or precludes a large harvest of wheat and corn. There is some possibility that the Root amendment to the reciprocity agreement may come to a vote to-day, which will afford a test of strength of the opposition to the measure. It is to be hoped that Congress may be driven to adjourn early by the hot weather and stop the uncertainty. Some improvement in the iron and steel industry is reported, but general business is still slow. We advise the purchase of the standard dividend payers on all reactions for higher prices.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 21.—Conservative purchases of good stocks not directly affected by the reported crop damage should be made to-day in case of any weakness. Activity of the last hour yesterday suggests some further efforts to get prices down, but thus far very little real stock has come upon the market. Low priced rails are in good shape and should be taken.

We think Norfolk, South Pacific and Atcheson should be bought.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 21.—Consols money and account 79 5-8, decline of 1-8. Amount of American Tel. and Tel. stock listed on Paris Bourse is 300,000 shares.

Supreme Court Justice Guy has granted application of Chas. M. Cabot of Boston, who owns 55 shares of U.S.S. stock for writ of mandamus compelling company to permit him to inspect stock books.

Liverpool, 1.30 p.—Wheat 1-8 lower, corn 1-4 higher.

"YOU STRUCK MY WIFE, NOW STRIKE ME"

An Assault Case Was Aired in the Police Court This Morning

STRONG LANGUAGE

Robert Tamblin, of Victoria ave., was fined $2.00 in the Police Court this morning, for assaulting Cornelius Schwartz and his wife on Sunday last. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defence, while F. D. Kerr appeared for hte complainant. It was alleged according to the evidence taken in court this morning, that for some time the Schwartz and Tamblin families have been on very unfriendly terms, the result of a dispute over the boundry fence between the two lots. About a week ago a surveyor loked over the ground and put down some stakes, marking the line. After theis either one of the families put down some more stakes, making the line very uncertain. On Sunday last Mr. Schfartz, who is a German, was looking over his tomato plants, according to his evidence, and noticed a post hole, which he alleged was dug on his land. An iron stake was also put down on his side of the boundry He pulled it up and consulted his wife as to how it came to be placed there. She came out and the two went out around where the post hole had been dug. They were using some strong language, according to the evidence, regarding the offenders, whom they seemed to thing, was Mr. Tamblin's son-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Tamblin came out at this juncture, and a sort of tongue fight began between the conflicting elements, his grew warmer, until the four combatants met at the boundry line. Mrs. Schwarts, it is alleged, went over the line, and was told by Mr. Tamblin htat if she would not get off she would be put off. She refused and was accordingly put off. She stated in Court that she was struck in the face and knocked down but the defendant's evidence was very contradictory to this statement. Mr Schwartz then came up to get his. He said to Mr. Tamblin: "You struck my wife, now strike me." This was accordingly done, and Schwartz walked away quite satisfied. His only excuse for not defending himself, in the Police Court this morning, was that he did not want to strike a man old enough to be his father. During the scuffle, it was stated that warm language was used by the women on both sides: but, of course, it was denied by both parties in Court. After several witnesses were examined the case was finally settled as above stated. Mr. Tamblin was fined $1.00 on the two charges, that of striking Mrs. Schwartz and striking Mr. Schwartz.

Verdict Of The Jury

The complete finding of the coroner's jury in the Wagner inquest, reached at 12.40 this morning, was as follows:

"That George Wagner, while working on the lines of the Otonabee Power Company, was killed by a shock of electricity, being fatally burned. That while we are unable to find out who turned on the switch, we find that there was laxity or carelessness on the part of the management at the power house. We are agreed that it was very unwise to turn on power at all while line men were at work."

INFORMATION WANTED

Enquiries are being made about Thomas Sullivan, a lad aged 15 years who was working on a farm in Douro Township, and left there last April. His mother at St. Catharines would like to hear from him.

BULLET IN HIS HEAD

CHATHAM, ONT., JUNE 21.—Joseph Hadley, a member of the Hadley manufacturing firm, was found in the company's lumber yard early this morning with a bullet hole in the head which had pierced both temples. It is practically certain he will die. There is no reason why he should have suicided or been a victim of a murder, so the shooting is thought to have been an accident of some kind.

WEDDING BELLS

McCOLL—HENRY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at the parsonage of Rev. J. G. Brown. The contracting parties were Mr. John McColl, of Anstruther, and Miss Annie Matilda Henry, of Fraserville. After the ceremony the happy couple left for Toronto for a short trip. It is not known just where they will reside on their return.

Last March he was earning $8 per week, clerking in Eaton's store. Last week we placed him with the H. W. Petrie Machinery Co. at $12 per week. On May 28th his elder brother enrolled for a 30-day course with Moon College. Still some will sneer at 30-Day Shorthand.

BOY SCOUTS ON PARADE

The Boy Scouts were out for drill last night for the Coronation Day exercises. They marched to the Armouries about 7.30, dressed in full uniform, and were lined up inside the Armouries and marched in Central Park, where they were instructed for the exercises to take place to-morrow. There was a large number out, and it is expected that a fine showing will be made to-morrow.

Veterans Will Parade

In addition to the Military Display to-morrow, the Veterans of 1866 will march out and join the 57th Regiment at St. John's church at 11.45. A cordial invitation is extended to all the Veterans to be present, and a full attendance is looked for. They are requested to fall in with the Regiment on the grounds of St. John's.

SPECIAL SALE OF MEN'S SUITS

One of those events that have become of special interest to the good dressers of both young and old men, is announced for Friday and Saturday of this week by Special Tailors, Limited, of which Company the genial Ed. Huff is manager. It consists of a "two-days" special sale, and on the two days mentioned above, and in the large advertisement elsewhere in this issue, any suit length in the shop will be put at one price, and that, as will be seen, is a most unusually attractive one. Mr. Huff, in the large advertisement, announces the new cutter, Mr. Maxwell, and backs up the offer by an absolute guarantee of workmanship and fit.

The pleasing feature of the sale this time is that the choice is not confined to one or two lines of cloth, but covers any suit length included in the extensive stock carried by the Company. The past sales, run by Special Tailors' Limited, have been most unqualified successes, but this one, with its sweeping offer, promises to eclipse all predecessors. No doubt, today's announcement will start a large number of Peterborough's best groomed men looking over their ward robes to see if they can't find an excuse to order a new suit while this opportunity is available.

ANNEXATION AGAIN.

Minnesota Man Raises Bogey In the United States Senate.

Washington, June 21.—Statements in the Senate yesterday by Senator Heyburn of Idaho, that "whatever we have taken from England has been taken at the point of the bayonet," produced the only tense moment of yesterday's short debate on the Canadian reciprocity bill. Senator Heyburn's remark, which he later explained, extended only to governmental acquisitions, was challenged by Senator Bacon of Georgia as a "grave matter," in view of the pending arbitration negotiations with England.

"We have more to envy that we have received from England than from all the rest of the world put together," said Senator Bacon.

Senator Gallinger brought on the controversy by asking if this nation did not owe more to England in the way of reciprocity, than it did to Canada, because of the free trade market that England had always given to this country and the rest of the world.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota declared that his only hope of benefit from the Canadian reciprocity agreement was that it might lead to annexation of Canada. He met Senator Gallinger's argument that reciprocity ought to be given to Mexico and all other nations, if given to Canada, by saying that this country could not hope to annex the rest of the world.

"But if we can accomplish the annexation of Canada we will have done a great deal," said Senator Nelson.

"Canadian annexation at this time is an irridescent dream," said Senator Gallinger, who is a Canadian by birth. "At one time it was seriously considered by the leading men of Canada; but now that country has grown to be a big, strong, self-asserting nation, and by this treaty we will further strengthen it.

"I am convinced," added Senator Gallinger, "that when this bill passes there are many Republicans on this side who will join the Democrats in kicking out the foundation stones of the protective tariff system. We will be fortunate if the whole structure of protection does not fall."

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts renewed his argument yesterday that the reciprocity agreement as it stands is not reciprocal on wood pulp and paper, and that the Root amendment is necessary to correct and make it conform with the original agreement between the two countries.

"This amendment had been offered in no spirit of hostility to the bill," said Senator Lodge, "and I am supporting it in no spirit of hostility

THE CORONATION OF THEIR MAJESTIES YESTERDAY

Westminster Abbey the Scene of a Magnificent Ceremony ---Nothing Occurred to Mar the Success of the Event ---Her Majesty Was Visibly Affected---Crowds Cheer the Visitors.

London, June 22.—King George V., eighth of the House of Hanover, was yesterday consecrated to the service of the British Empire, and in turn received the public homage of his world-wide subjects.

With his consort, Queen Mary, His Majesty was crowned in the Abbey of Westminster, with all the wealth of religious rites and royal ceremonial prescribed by historic custom.

The picture within the grey-walled fabric was one of mediaeval splendor. The coronation services, solemn and imposing, were those handed down from the earlier centuries, and the actors in the principal secondary roles of to-day's great function were garbed in reproductions of the multi-colored, gold-embroidered trappings worn by their ancestors in bygone generations. The latter made up a wonderfully effective setting around the central figures.

Outside, the usually dull streets had been transformed into a mass of color. The King and Queen's progress to the abbey and the returning to Buckingham Palace was one unbroken ovation. The route was hedged with a vast polygot host, with a background of bravely decorated viewing stands and windows and roofs, all of which were crammed to their capacity.

HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE.

Hundreds of thousands of spectators shouted themselves hoarse at central points, like the Mall, and the entrance to the admiralty archway, where the Government stands held a score of thousands. Trafalgar Square was so densely packed with humanity that it would not have been difficult to traverse the square walking on the heads of the people. Parliament Square, Club Land and Constitutional Hill held them countless hordes.

Acclaims Greet King.

The tumult of thunderous welcome was almost deafening as the King and Queen passed on the outward and homeward journeys, proceeded in the first instance and followed on the return by a stately, superb cavalcade of eminent princes, many themselves heirs to thrones; statesmen, diplomats, courtiers, soldiers, sailors and men of all houses, races and countries from the four quarters of the globe.

The great ceremonial passed off unmarred by any untoward accidents. When dawn broke the skies were heavy and showers fell during the progress of the processions of the royal guests, and the junior members of the royal family to the abbey, but as the King and Queen left Buckingham Palace to be crowned, the heavens smiled and a flood of sunshine brightened the splendid pageant.

It was a proud day for the British Empire, but of all its millions, the one who, perhaps, had the most reason to be proud, was denied by court etiquette the joy of witnessing the triumphal event. At Sandringham Palace, Queen Mother Alexandra, who 46 years ago this month, gave Britain a King, awaited the news that her son had taken his place in the long line of British monarchs.

Scene in Abbey.

Perhaps never in history, never in the experience of any person who witnessed it, anyway, has there been an historic scene so magnificent as the ancient Abbey of Westminster presented, when George V. and Queen Mary were seated in state upon their thrones.

All who attended the crowning of Edward VII. agreed that yesterday's ceremony surpassed that spectacle in every circumstance of stately stage setting, of solemn ritual, inspiring music, the host of royal and eminent personages, the wonderful display of rich uniforms, bright gowns, marvelous jewels, which combined to create an impression of awe and admiration. Their Majesties, with gleaming crowns on their heads and gorgeous robes outspread behind them, the great Cullinan diamond flashing from the imperial crown, all the nobles of the throne in quaint costumes of ancient offices, with a few modern uniforms, the four peeresses attending the Queen in shimmering gowns, pages in light blue and white grouped behind them, an array of church dignitaries robed in scarlet and gold formed the centre of the picture.

Grouped Round Their Majesties.

Below the King and Queen were the young Prince of Wales, almost smothered in the dark blue robes of the Order of the Garter, with the peer's crimson mantle around his shoulders, and the Duke of Connaught in the uniform of a field marshal. Just above the altar, loaded with massive gold plate, to the right of the King, was the girlish Princess Mary, wearing the coronet of a peeress, with hair hanging down her shoulders, and the three younger princes in Scottish kilts. Near them were the other members of the royal family. Yeoman of the guard with halberds lined the aisles throughout the space of the abbey, and in the great boxes, rising high against the walls and filling the transepts and galleries, were 7,000 spectators, forming blocks of quivering, variegated color. In one group were the future rulers of most of the kingdoms of Europe with their aides. In another were the diplomatic corps, competing with the royalties in the splendor of their uniforms and decorations. Two blocks facing across the nave were composed of peers and peeresses wearing red robes and ermine capes, holding in their laps their coronets until the King was crowned.

Places of Visitors.

Another large section was occupied by members of the House of Commons, with their ladies. Some of them wore uniforms, but the majority were in black court dress. Indian potentates with gaudy turbans and marvelous jewels formed a striking group in still another section. A scarlet clock represented the army; a blue one the navy; a third, scarlet and white, indicated where the judges in robes and wigs sat, while the boys of Westminster School, who boast themselves of ancient privilege to acclaim the King, were high up in the triforium, and the barons of the Cinque Ports in a box close to the throne, made a little patch of dark blue and gold.

All the ladies, apart from the peeresses, were arrayed in court costumes, with white feathers in their hair. Many wore tiras. There was a treasure of precious stones never before collected in one place, and costly enough to buy the ships of the British navy. The ladies-in-waiting to the Queen in the abbey were four duchesses, each being attired to carry into effect a color scheme of shot gold. One wore gold, shot grey, with pearls; another gold, shot blue and topaz jewels; a third, gold shot cerise, with rubies; a fourth, gold, shot green, and emerald ornaments. Princess Mary wore a short white frock and a long royal violet train suspended from the shoulders with gold cord tassels bordered with ermine and gold braid.

Three-Hour Ceremony.

The ceremony in the abbey consumed more than three hours. The stately ritual of the Established Church, combined with the coronation rites, surcharged with the traditions of faded centuries, and Sir Walter Parratt's impressive music, which continued throughout—now a soft accompaniment, then the choir intoning the service, then the majestic hymn, and, at the culminating points, the roll of drums and the blast of trumpets—to make every moment one of intense interest.

The Archbishop of York's sermon had as its text: "I among you as he that serveth." He said:

"Pray we for our King, that his strong trust in God may keep him faithful to God's trust in him—to be among the people in this homeland, among the multitudes of India, among the strong young nations over the seas, the one man raised above private and local interests to think of all, to care for all, to unite all in one fellowship of common memories, common ideals, common sacrifices. This is indeed a kingly life. Pray we that God may give the King His grace to live it."

Apart from the processions, the solemnity and the paraphernalia of state, there was an undercurrent of human interest most appealing. Queen Mary, although she bore herself with regal stateliness during the crowning, was at first noticeably nervous. While the King was being anointed and crowned she had her handkerchief to her eyes frequently. The King, when he received the homage of the heir, displayed a father's affection.

Crowds Waited Long.

Both routes of the processions were filled up long before the troops had found their places. The cavalcade arrived of cavalry in brilliant uniforms, accompanied by bands, afforded almost as interesting a show as the procession itself, and then came royal carriages and coaches taking robed and uniformed men and daintily dressed women to the abbey for the ceremony. Soon after 7 o'clock carriages and motor cars began to crowd the entrance. Admiral Count Togo and General Count Nogi, the Japanese veterans, came in the first open carriage, a royal one, with scarlet liveried coachman and footman. They were accompanied by British attaches, and being recognized, were given a hearty welcome, to which they gravely bowed. Then came a stream of royal carriages, bringing the King's guests to see him crowned.

The ambassadors and the ministers came in their own carriages, and for two hours there was a continuous flow of vehicles of every color and design. The royal carriages and dress coaches were most gorgeous affairs. They were filled with peers in robes, some wearing their coronets as the easiest way, and others carrying them in their hands, and peeresses with magnificent robes over marvelous dresses.

Although hundreds of carriages dropped their guests at the Abbey entrance, by no means all came by the road. A large contingent of peers and peeresses came down the river by steamer. Even a larger number made their way on foot.

There was a short wait, and then the sound of music announced the approach of the first procession, which consisted of the royal and other representatives. In the last carriage were Crown Prince Frederick William and the Crown Princess of Germany and the Austrian and Turkish delegates.

The second procession, the members of the British royal family, came half an hour later. The Prince of Wales, in his garter robes, accompanied his sister and brothers in the last carriage. He received an enthusiastic greeting, which he seemed to enjoy greatly, smiling and bowing his acknowledgements.

At 11.30 o'clock a royal salute announced the departure of the King and Queen from the palace, and was the most gorgeous of the processions, the one in which naturally the greatest interest lay, made its way through the troop lined streets, which were backed by great crowds in the stands and afoot, a wave of cheering spread from one end of the route to the other.

Immediately behind the royal coach Lord Kitchener, in a field marshal's uniform, rode beside the Standard, and then came the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Duke of Teck, Prince Louis of Battenberg, Prince Alexander of Teck, Prince Christian and Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, all on chargers.

The arrival of Their Majesties at the Abbey was the signal for a shout of greeting, which was continued until they were lost to view, and then repeated as Kitchener or some other hero was recognized.

Coronation Accidents.

London, June 22.—Two fatal coronation accidents has been reported. At Lyme-Regis a cannon with which a salute was being fired burst and a prominent citizen was blown to pieces.

At Barnstable an archway in the street collapsed. A woman was killed and a number of men and women were seriously injured.

During the progress of the royal procession an Indian officer was thrown from his horse in the Mall and trampled on, but not dangerously injured.

A cavalry horse, frightened by the drums, scattered a crowd, but was caught by a policeman before it had done any serious damage.

BORDEN ON IMPERIALISM.

Conservative Chief Addresses Coronation Meetings at Regina.

Regina, June 23.—The Conservative leader began Coronation Day by speaking at two coronation celebrations. The occasions were, of course, non-political and the speeches were devoted to the strengthening of the imperial ties. At both an active part was taken by school children and the boy scouts. The two celebrations were held at Qu'Appelle and Indian Head. The the former F. W. G. Haultain was a speaker with Mr. Borden. He did not, however, accompany the Conservative leader to Indian Head. At both celebrations and at the subsequent political meeting at Indian Head, Mr. Borden spoke very briefly. The strain of the long deliverances at Winnipeg and Brandon, and the nearly a dozen speeches made on West necessary, has made it necessary that he should save his voice if he is to be able to meet the constantly increasing demands upon him. Requests are still coming in for further meetings.

Canada's Greetings.

Ottawa, June 23.—The following telegrams were exchanged between Government House and London yesterday:

To His Majesty King George V.:

"The hearts and prayers of all Canada are with your Majesty to-day and always."

(Signed) "Grey."

To this telegram of the Governor-General the following telegram was received, dated June 22:

"I heartily appreciate the good wishes of my people in Canada on my coronation day.

(Signed) "George R.I."

A Daring Feat.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 23.—At last night's meeting of the International carnival committee, Lincoln Beachy signed a contract to fly over the falls and under the upper steel arch bridge during the carnival next Tuesday and Wednesday. The feat is the most sensational ever attempted in the history of aviation.

The bridge spans the river at an altitude of 168 feet, but it is an arched structure, and there is only a narrow space through which a machine may pass. There is a clear way of less than 100 feet between the span and the water.

The carnival committee has hung a purse of $1,000 on the under-the-bridge flight.

Bothersome air currents were the particular feature of the flight that caused McCurdy to decline to make the attempt. Johnson and Furnlott also refused to attempt the flight. Neyvatte, who operates a Blériot monoplane, hesitated, but now says he is willing to race the daring American, but he is not so keen about the under-the-bridge flight as is Beachy.

Killed by the Toronto Express.

North Bay, June 23.—J. Turcotte, a section foreman at Nipissing Junction on the C.P.R., was struck and killed Wednesday night by the Toronto express while riding a track velocipede one mile east of North Bay. He leaves a wife and family.

The dead body of an unidentified man was picked up on the T. & N.O. Railway track half a mile south of Matheson yesterday morning.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

Three months before, a dozen speakers couldn't have made me see this. I had no American spirit back of me then to make me appreciate it. You might have talked to a sleepy Russian Jew a week off the steamer. He at least would have sensed the sacred power for liberty which the voting privilege bestows.

I began to ask questions of Rafferty about the two men. He didn't know much about the other fellow except that he was "agin honest labour and a tool of the thruste." But on Sweeney he grew eloquent.

"Sure," he said. "There's a mno after ye own heart, ma biy. Faith he's dug in ditches himself an he knows wot a full dinner pail means".

"What's his business?" I asked.

"A contracathor," he said. "He does big jobs for the city."

He let himself loose on what Sweeney proposed to do for the ward if elected. He would have the government undertake the dredging of the harbour, thereby giving hundreds of jobs to the local men. He would do this thing and that—all of which had for their object apparently just that one goal. It was a direct personal appeal to every man toiler. In addition to this, Rafferty let drop a hint or two that Sweeney had jobs in his own business which he filled discreetly from the ranks of the wavering. It wasn't more than a month later, by the way, that Rafferty himself was appointed a foreman in the firm of Sweeney Brothers.

But apart from the merits of the question, the thing that impressed me was Rafferty's earnestness, the delight he took in the contest itself, and his activity. He was very much disappointed when I told him I was not even registered in the ward, but he made me promise to look after that as soon as the lists were again opened and made an appointment for the next evening to take me round to a rally to meet the boys.

I went and was escorted to the home of the Sweeney Club. It was a good sized hall up a long flight of stairs. Through the heavy blue smoke which filled the room I saw the walls decorated with American flags and the framed crayon portraits of Sweeney and other local politicians. Large duck banners proclaimed in black ink the current catch lines of the campaign. At one end there was a raised platform, the rest of the room was filled with wooden settees. My first impression of it all was anything but favourable. It looked rather tawdry and cheap. The men themselves who filled the room were pretty tough looking specimens. I noticed a few Italians of the fat class and one or two sharp-faced Jews, but for the most part these men were the cheaper element of the second and third generation. They were the loafers—the ward heelers. I certainly felt out of place among them and to me even Rafferty looked out of place. There was a freshness, a bulk about him, that his fellows here didn't have.

As he shoved his big body through the crowd, they greeted him by his first name with an oath or a joke, and he beamed back at them all with a broad wave of his hand. It was evident that he was a man of some importance here. He worked a passage for me to the front of the hall, and didn't stop until he reached a group of about a dozen men who were just puffing away at cigars. In the midst of them stood a man of about Rafferty's size in frame, but fully fifty pounds heavier. He had a quiet, good-natured face. On the whole it was a strong face though a bit heavy. His eyes were everywhere He was the first to notice Rafferty. He nodded with a familiar

"Hello, Dan."

Dan seized my arm and dragged me forward:

"I want ye to meet me friend, Mister Carleton," he said.

Sweeney rested his grey eyes on me a second, saw that I was a stranger here, and stepped forward instantly with his big hand outstretched. He spoke without a trace of brogue.

"Im very glad to meet you, Mr. Carleton," he said.

I don't know that I'm easily impressed and I flattered myself that I could recognize a politician when I saw one, but I want to confess there was something in the way he grasped my hand that instantly gave me a distinctly friendly feeling towards Sweeney. I should have said right then and there that the man wasn't as black as he was painted. He was neither oily nor sleek in his manner. We chatted a minute and I think he was a bit surprised in me. He wanted to know where I lived, where I was working, and how much of a family I had. He put these questions in so frank and fatherly a fashion that they didn't seem so impertinent to me at the time as they did later. Some one called him and as he turned away, he said to Rafferty:

"See me before you go, Dan."

Then he said to me,

"I hope I'll see you down here often, Carleton."

With that Dan took me around and introduced me to Tom, Dick and Harry, or rather to Tim, Denny and Larry. This crowd came nearer to the notion I had of ward politicians. They were a noisy, husky-throated lot, but they didn't leave you in doubt for a minute but what every mother's son of them was working for Sweeney as though they were one big family with Daddy Sweeney at the head. You could overhear bits of plots and counter plots on every side. I was offered a dozen cigars in as many minutes and though some of the men rather shied away from me at first a whispered endorsement from Dan was all that was needed to bring them back.

There was something contagious about it and when later the meeting itself opened and Sweeney rose to speak I cheered him as heartily as anyone. By this time a hundred or more other men had come in who looked more outside the inner circle. Sweeney spoke simply and directly. It was a personal appeal he made, based on promises. I listened with interest and though it seemed to me that many of his pledges were extravagant he showed such a good spirit back of them that his speech on a whole produced a favourable effect.

At any rate I came away from the meeting with a stronger personal interest in politics than I had ever felt in my life. Instead of feeling like an abstruse or vague issue it seemed to me pretty concrete and pretty vital. It concerned me and my immediate neighbours. Here was a man who was going to Congress, not as a figurehead of his party but to make laws for Rafferty and for me. He was to be my congressman if I chose to help make him such. He knew my name, knew my occupation, knew that I had a wife and one child, knew my address. And I want to say that he didn't forget them either.

As I walked back through the brightly lighted streets which were still as much alive as at high noon, I felt that after all this was my ward and my city. I wasn't a mere dummy. I was a member of a vast corporation. I had been to a rally and had shaken hands with Sweeney.

Ruth's only comment was a disgusted grunt as she smelled the rank tobacco in my clothes. She kept them out on the roof all the next day.

CHAPTER XII

Our First Winter.

This first winter was filled with just about as much interest as it was possible for three people to crowd into six or seven months. And even then there was so much left over which we wanted to do that we fairly groaned as we saw opportunity after opportunity slip by which we simply didn't have the time to improve.

To begin with the boy, he went at his studies with a zest that placed him among the first ten of his class. Dick wasn't a quick boy at his books and so this stood for sheer hard plugging. To me this made his success all the more noteworthy. Furthermore it wasn't the result of goading either from Ruth or myself. I kept after him about the details of his school life and about the boys he met, but I let him go his own gait in his studies. I wanted to see just how the new point of view would work out in him. The result, as I saw it was that every night, after supper, he went at his problems not as a mere school boy, but man-fashion. He sailed in to learn. He had to. There was no prestige in that school coming from what the fathers did. No one knew what the fathers did. It didn't matter. With half a dozen nationalities in the race the school was too cosmopolitan to admit such local issues. A few boys might chum together feeling they were better than the others, but the school, as a whole, didn't recognize them. Each boy counted for what he did—what he was.

Of the other nine boys in the first ten, four were of Jewish origin, three were Irish, one was Italian, and the other was American born, but of Irish descent. Half of them homed to go through college on scholarships and the others had equally ambitious plans for business. The Jews were easily the most brilliant students but they didn't attempt any thing else. The Italian showed some literary ability and wrote a little for the school paper. The American born Irish boy was made manager of the Freshman football team. The other four were natural athletes—two of them played on the school eleven and the others were just built for track athletics and basket ball. Dick tried for the eleven, but he wasn't heavy enough for one thing and so didn't make anything but a substitute's position with the freshmen. I was just as well satisfied. I didn't mind the preliminary training, but I felt I would as soon he added a couple more years to his age before he really played football, even if it was in him to play. My point had been won when he went out and tried.

At the end of the first four months in the school I thought I saw a general improvement in him. He held himself better for one thing; with his head higher and his shoulders well back. This wasn't due ot his physical training, either. It meant a changed mental attitude. Ruth says she did not notice any difference and she thinks this is nothing but my imagination. But she's wrong. I was looking for something she couldn't see that the boy lacked before. Dick, to her, was always all right. Of course I knew myself that the boy couldn't go far wrong whatever his training, but I knew also that his former indifferent attitude was going to make his path just so much harder for him. Dick, when he read over this manuscript ,said he thought the whole business was foolish and that even if I wanted to tell the story of my own life, the least I could do was to leave him out. But his life was more largely my life than he realizes, even now. And his case was in many ways a better example of the true emigrant spirit than my own.

He joined the indoor track squad this winter, too, but here again he didn't distinguish himself. He fought his way into the finals at the interscholastic meet, but that was all. However, this, too, was good training for him. I saw that race myself and I watched his mouth instead of his legs. I liked the way his jaws came together on the last lap though it hurt to see the look in his eyes when he fell so far behind after trying so hard. But he crossed the finish line.

In the menawhile Ruth was just about the busiest little woman in the city. And yet strangely enough this, instead of dragging her down, built her up. She took on weight, her cheeks grew rosier than I had seen them for five years and she seemed altogether happier. I watched her closely because I made up my mind that ginger jar or no ginger jar the moment I saw a trace of heaviness in her eyes, she would have to quit some of her bargain hunting. I didn't mean to barter her good health for a few hundred dollars even if I had to remain a day labourer the rest of my life.

Baby Eczema For Three Years

Three Doctors and Scores of Treatments Failed

The Dreadful Itching Was Stopped and the Sores Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Here is an illustration of the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Ointment has over torturing, itching eczema. By its soothing influence it stops the itching, and it heals the sores as if by magic.

Mrs. W. m. Miller, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema, and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice, and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her, all to no purpose whatever, and all kinds of balms, soaps and lotions were tried, with no results.

"Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to my surprise she immediately began to improve, and was completely cured of that long-standing disease. That was four years ago, when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent. With a grateful heart I give this testimony to the great value of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home to allay skin irritations and heal and cure sores, wounds and ulcers. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

CONFIDENCE SWINDLERS

How They Get $1,000 from an Unsuspecting London Visitor

Confidence trick swindlers are busy among visitors to Loudon, and one of the victims, an Anglo-Indian tea planter, lost $1,000 in bank-notes. He became acquainted, at the Shepherd's Bush Exhibition, with a well-dressed stranger who posed as an Australian, and on the following day they set out together to do some sight-seeing. In Oxford Street the inevitable confederate turned up. Just in front of the two men he dropped a little green velvet case, which the victim restored to him. The stranger was effusive in his thanks, did not know what he should have done had he lost the case, which was full of valuable gems, and insisted on the finder taking wine with him. In a wine bar near Portland Place the latest arrival told the familiar story of the trouble he had in distributing some $100,000 in charity, in accordance with the will of his late father. Would they help him? The Australian, "as a proof of his confidence" in their newly-made acquaintance, handed over a bundle of alleged bank-notes and suggested that his newly-found Anglo-Indian companion should show similar confidence. The planter went to his agents—a well-known firm of bankers in Pall Mall—drew $1,000 in two Bank of England notes and entrusted them to the care of this wealthy dispenser of charity.

It was not long before the latter, carrying with him the victim's camera, left in company with the "Australian," to bring from his bank some of the funds for distribution. An hour later it dawned on the waiting victim what had really happened.

MATRIMONIAL SWINDLER

His Latest Exploit Was to Steal $4,500 From a Woman

Another dangerous matrimonial swindler, named David Gorenstein, has been arrested at Frankfurt-on-Main. This man, who is 22 years old, and who has lived under several names, has supported himself in luxury for nearly ten years by swindling ladies anxious to enter the state of matrimony. As Dr. Henster, from Boston, he seems to have done great work in Berlin, and as a wealthy South American rancher named Dori Reeting, has been lately distinguishing himself in Russia. His latest exploit was stealing $4,500 from a too confiding Swiss governess, who was returning home from Russia with her savings. Dori Reeting made the lady's acquaintance in a train, and, promising her marriage, induced her to stay at the same hotel with him in Berlin. When the lady was asleep the "rancher" robbed her of every penny she possessed. The police have evidence that in several cases he used ether or chloroform to render ms senseless before robbing m.

LAMP FOR MINERS

A Colliery Proprietor's Donation for an Electric Burner

A sum of $5,000 has been placed by a colliery proprietor at the disposal of the Home Secretary as a prize for the best electric lamp suitable for the use of miners. The conditions, according to an official announcement issued by the Home Secretary, require that the lamp shall be of simple construction and easy to maintain in good order, and sufficiently strong to withstand rough usage. It must be so constructed as to render impossible the ignition of inflammable gas either inside or outside the lamp, and the battery should be so constructed that any liquid it may contain cannot be spilled while the lamp is in use. The lamp must be capable of giving a light of not less than two candle-power continuously for at least ten hours, and should be so locked that it cannot be opened without detection. In making the award regard will be paid to the first cost of the lamp, cost of maintenance, convenience in handling, and weight, when charged and ready for use.

REVIVAL OF MUSIC

Mr. Balfour Says Britain is Becoming a Great Creative Musical Community

Before an audience of eminent musicians, Mr. Balfour spoke with pride of English music of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, but admitted that after Purcell's death musical England came to a period of comparative barrenness hard to explain. Mr. Balfour suggested that this was due in part to Handel's "overbearing personality." In the cathedral, however, a school of composers, not of profound originality but of great merit never ceased to flourish. He was convinced that the barren years have now come to an end. Within his own life men of original creative powers have year by year come to the front. "We can now look our Continental friends in the face and say that Britain at last is in process of taking her place among the great creative musical communities." Of all the arts, he was convinced that music had the greatest future among the masses of all nations.

OTTO OF BAVARIA

The Unhappy and Despondent Ruler Is Kept in His Castle

Though physically as robust as ever, the mental condition of the unhappy King Otto of Bavaria is declared to be growing worse. Excluded from the outside world in his castle, the King's only visitors are the Court doctors, who visit him at stated intervals, in order to report to the Regent and government. No one else enters the Monarch's presence, even his own mother is prevented from seeing him, as any communication from the outside maddens him. He spends hours daily in dreadful melancholy, his eyes fixed on the floor, and very seldom uttering a word. On one recent and rare occasion he displayed intelligence and appeared to be searching for something. When a keeper inquired the cause, the King replied slowly and impressively, "I am looking for the past." Then he relapsed into his customary despondency. Formerly some show of court etiquette was observed, but the King's indifference to all his surroundings rendered this a ghastly farce, and it was abandoned.

REFUSING TO DIE WAS KILLED

Tragic Murder of an Artist Whose Last Picture was "Life is Sweet"

Mademoiselle Amelie Lhermitte, an artist who has exhibited regularly at the Paris Salon for the last ten years, gaining medals and other honors, has been brutally murdered by her brother at Angers, in singularly tragic circumstances. Mlle. Lhermitte, who resided in Paris, went to Angers in response to a letter received from her brother. On the following morning she was seen at her bed-room window shrieking for help, while her brother rained blows on her head with an axe.

When the neighbors broke in the door they found her dead, the murder having been completed with a hammer.

The victim was only 32 years old. One of her latest pictures was entitled "Life is Sweet." The murderer, when arrested, stated that, being destitute, he invited his sister to die with him, and she refused, whereupon he killed her.

Sour Stomach, Bowel Trouble, Dizziness

"Two months ago I started using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and I owe my life to its use. It has built up my weakened system and prevents sour or sick stomach. It gives me the most natural appetite I have had in my life, and since I began using it I have gained 12 pounds, over one pound a week. I shall always praise it and do all I can to advance its use by suffering humanity."—C. B. Rader, Lewisburg, W. Va.

A DAY IN BED

The Best Way to Obtain Rest and Recuperation

To obtain complete rest and recuperation in the minimum time, be a dormouse. In other words, to quote a London doctor whose name is a household word throughout the country sleep the clock round twice. If you feel that you are in need of a week's rest but can only get one day off spend that day in bed, says this doctor. It will be as beneficial as a week's holiday if you do it thoroughly

"To spend twenty-four hours in bed," says he, "instead of rushing away for a few hours' change of scene, when you are run down physically and mentally, is worth a week's holiday. Bed reduces the work of the body to a minimum, and rests the heart, lungs and other organs absolutely. It soothes the nervous system as nothing else can. During the whole of the twenty-four hours the bedroom should be in darkness. The night before, having gone to a theatre to take the mind off worries, and having supped wisely and well, instructions should be given that the morning call shall be omitted. Then sleep.

"On waking, turn over and sleep again.

"On waking again, ring for some hot milk.

"Drink it and sleep again, and keep on sleeping.

"Have nothing in the intervals more substantial than soup.

"Do not read. Keep the eyes shut constantly.

"Have a warm bath in the evening and sleep again.

"When you are tired of sleeping—sleep again for the night.

"Lying in bed in a quiet, darkened room will cause you to have a lot of sleep, and that will reduce your psychological wear and tear to the minimum. It is your day; you can spend it as you like; and do not fear that it will make you slothful, for when you get up you will be in fine appetite for doing good work after your dormouse holiday."

PRINCE HENRY AND AIRSHIPS

Princess Henry of Prussia, who has been taking an active part in the Upper Rhine reliability flying contest, has distinguished himself as a practical aeroplane mechanic. On learning that Herr Wittstaetter's machine had broken down close to Worms, the Prince, accompanied by the Grand Duke of Hesse, went to the scene of the accident, and himself repaired the apparatus. Standing on two high blocks, the Prince is said to have worked with a hammer, a saw and a screw-driver, the Grand Duke acting as his assistant, till the machine was fit for service.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. It is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

GIANTISM A DISEASE

Few Giants Live Longer Than Twenty-Three Years

In a lecture on "Giants and Pygmies," at the Royal Institution, Professor Arthur Keith referred to the disease of giantism, called croamegaly, in which the forehead, nose, and jaws became larger, and the hands and feet became rough and larger. Very few giants lived longer than twenty-three years. There was no such thing as a giant race, and a man of over seven feet was a diseased product, and not a giant. He had heard recently of a Guardsman, only eighteen years of age, who was six feet eight inches, and growing rapidly. In that case, no doubt, they had a real giant. The problem of growth was most marvellous, and he held out hopes that science might not only add to our stature, but the time might come when a doctor would be able to make a nose grow to any desired shape.

MOST CLEVER OF DOGS

Poodles are Affectionate and Have Wonderful Reasoning Power

The Queen of Sweden is very fond of dogs. One of her pets is a small black poodle of the name of Gogo. Gogo is devoted to his mistress, and accompanies her everywhere.

The Queen of Sweden is not the only one who has discovered that poodles make the most attractive pets. They are amongst the most clever of dogs, having wonderful powers of reasoning, and being capable of the deepest affection.

Dogs of this kind can be taught to do all manner of tricks, and their alertness of brain places them apart from other animals. A story is told of a famous poodle, belonging to a shoeblack who plied his trade on the Pont Neuf, Paris.

The clever creature would in some way or other soil the boots of the passers-by, so that his master, half way across the bridge might earn a few honest sous by cleaning them.

Treat a poodle with firmness, kindness and perseverance and you can do almost anything with him; but the great secret if you would train him well is first of all to gain his affection. The rest is then comparatively easy.

Most poodles are kept in the house or in enclosed, carefully protected kennels, so they make splendid pets, and are easily taught cleanly habits. Small-sized poodles are now much sought after.

Some folks award the palm for intelligence to the white poodle, and next to him the black, but, taken all round, poodles of any color are remarkably "cute."

GIFTS FOR A REFORMER

F. D. Morel, Who Worked for the Congo, Received Valuable Recognition

Mr. F. D. Morel, the hon. secretary of the Congo Reform Association, was the recipient at a luncheon at the Hotel Metropole, London, recently of a handsome presentation in recognition of his public work for the Congo, which has continued since 1900. Subscriptions were received from all classes of the community in Great Britain, and from supporters of the cause on the Continent and in the United States. As a result, to Mrs. Morel was handed a jewelled ornament, while her husband was asked to accept an oil painting of himself, a statue of a Congo chieftain and a cheque for $20,000, including $5,000 from Mr. John Holt, of Liverpool, which arrived during the luncheon.

THE GERMAN NAVY

Although the general meeting of the German Navy League nearly three weeks ago, at Neurnberg, passed a unanimous resolution, without debate, that after 1912 the fleet should be increased by one large armored cruiser in addition to the two annual battleships provided in the amended navy act of 1908, their resolution has little or no support in the country. It may safely be taken for granted that Germany will not exceed her programme. No conceivable Reichstag would sanction the additional $12,500,000, which the new cruiser would cost.

The NATIONAL MUSHROOM MOVEMENT

WASTE of the Enormous Natural Crop, Ample to Avert Famine and Hunger, Has Started Wide Activities Looking to Their Conservation

SOME kind of national movement to prevent the enormous annual waste of mushrooms in the United States, estimated to be equal in food value to the entire agricultural product of the country, is not only essential but is actually commencing.

The State of Minnesota has the honor to be the leader of the movement in America. It has just issued free to every citizen in the State, an 8vo booklet of 160 pages and 124 illustrations to teach people the difference between edible and poisonous mushrooms the former of which Americans have too long contemptuously passed over as "toadstools." Professor Frederick E. Clements, State Botanist, in his preface makes the following statement:—

"An important object of the 'Guide to Minnesota Mushrooms' is to make available with safety the enormous crop, which is now almost entirely wasted through fear or neglect. It is perhaps idle to estimate the size or value of this crop, but if that part which is readily accessible is alone considered the number of pounds of Minnesota will reach hundreds of thousands. Figured on the market price of the cultivated mushroom, the total value of the mushroom crop of the State can hardly be less than a million dollars. Just what would be the effect of utilizing this food supply is a matter of conjecture, but there can be little doubt that it would prove fortunate from the standpoint of dietetics as well as of economics. Copies of the booklet are furnished free to the citizens of Minnesota, and ten copies to each of its high schools, academies and colleges. Citizens will feel free at all times to send specimens to the Department of Botany of the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, to be named."

Although the 1910 crop of the American farmer was valued at almost one billion dollars, it has been well demonstrated by scientists who know that more than that value in edible mushrooms, measured as a food supply, goes to waste annually within the United States. Foreign governments for several years have been exerting their every resource to teach their citizens the food values of nature's marvellously generous supply of so-called toadstools. France has a great central free school and exposition at Rouen under direction of Professor Paul Noel, Director of Agricultural Entomology, and other schools elsewhere, teaching citizens how to select and utilize the best edible species.

Every afternoon in season Professor Noel, who is also both an accomplished cryptogamist and an epicure of the first order, lectures to packed audiences of country folk, demonstrating the great food resources to be found in the edible mushrooms growing plentifully in the immense forests of Normandy. Hundreds of specimens are spread on tables in front of him, by means of which he is able to differentiate in simple language between the edible, poisonous and woody fungi. Exhibitions of the desirable types have been organized all over France, and especially in Paris, to enable the poorest citizens to go out daily and collect the richest of foods, both for their own consumption and to sell in the markets, where thirty species have government sanction and inspection.

Saxony gives regular, systematic instruction in all elementary schools to familiarize children thoroughly with mushrooms. A permanent exhibition is maintained at Planen. Government wagons collect specimens for the classes. Germany has similar free schools, in which citizens compose the classes, to learn how to utilize mushrooms. Japan, while not discarding well known types of commercial mushrooms, because of the expense of cultivating them, picked out its most delicious edible species, the "shiitake," and not only taught its general use at home, but introduced its culture into Formosa and other colonies to maintain an ample food supply. The shiitake grows on dead oak limbs and requires little other effort at cultivation than to place its mycelium in conjunction with them, keeping the spawn supplied with rice water. It is now on sale in the Chinese stores of New York. Dr. W. A. Murrill, assistant director of the New York Botanical Garden, to whom I gave the first specimens sent me from Formosa, has identified it as Armillaria edodes, first named by Berkeley.

During our warm weather months nature produces a crop of deliciously edible mushrooms which should have an annual cash value to the nation far larger than that of the wheat crop. Why pay more or less for a pound of cultivated mushrooms when you can find basketful in your yards, pastures, meadows, ploughed fields, woods and groves, many of them far better eating? From time immemorial our greatest and most valuable food crop has gone to waste, much of it right before the eyes of masses of people to whom the food problem is a very serious one, people who have to scrape and suffer to get the commonest, coarsest provisions, not to be compared in any respect to the despised "toadstools" perishing before their eyes.

Starving Amid Plenty.

In a small New Jersey village I saw a tramp fall, faint with hunger, under a tree covered with mushrooms (Pleurotl) from the base far up among the limbs, enough to have fed the sympathizing coterie of villagers that gathered around him. He had only to stretch up his hand for food that in this particular instance would have been good enough raw. I can only poorly compare the extraordinary, the distressing wastefulness of our self-propagating mushroom crop to that of our vast deposits of untouched peat, far easier and more valuable than our coal beds. The comparison is poor because the peat will stay where it is and even grow until wanted, while our mushrooms soon die and rot like a strawberry left on a vine. How quickly we pick the berry when ripe! How scornfully we pass by the despised toadstool, worth many times more food value in cold cash!

It must be admitted, however, that there has been quite a growth of people in this country who recognize the value of mushrooms springing up in their vicinity and gather them. The university and college element—that is, the professors and their families—form a class in many communities of this type, led by the professors in botany. Among the people generally are some observing Americans who have been abroad and know with what care many foreign nations gather and eat mushrooms that are edible and who have learned what types to leave alone, by reason of their poisonous, woody or flavorless condition. It would not be characteristic of crowded Europe and England to neglect such enormous food resources or to fail to search daily every nook and corner. We are called an extravagant people, but for other reasons than those above.

When I consider our waste of peat and mushrooms I feel like adding that we are recklessly and criminally extravagant. Is it not criminal when we have a million people in poverty to let millions of dollars' worth of coal and fuel to cook it with perish before our eyes for the want of the smallest exertion? I say be trees, for instance, the apples of which are worth not one fourth as much a pound.

The moulds, rusts and rots do vast damage, but at the same time they prepare the way for the growth of mushrooms. As a matter of fact, a diseased tree may possibly produce ten dollars of food value in edible mushrooms to every dollar made from fruit on a sound tree.

Detecting Poisonous Species.

Very little instruction is really needed by teachers or public on the differences of poisonous and edible mushrooms. They have only to take a few days' course on, say, fifty species of good and bad mushrooms that grow in the locality where they teach. They will soon easily become able to detect these species growing wild and point them out to scholars, from earliest spring to latest autumn, and in Southern States all the year around. All doubtful forms may be left alone or picked, dried in an oven or in the sun and submitted to the nearest expert for knowledge of them. In North Carolina in midwinter I have seen tons of edible mushrooms go to waste. On a single dead tree I have seen enough specimens to feed several families.

The Southern States ought to feast on mushrooms the year round. There are many ways to cook and use mushrooms and many books describing how.

One can commence at any time of the year, even in winter, to learn the food values of mushrooms. The market mushroom is the proper species to start with. First get familiar with its appearance and methods of cooking it. The best way to begin is to purchase a mushroom book. Most of these teach how and where to find one hundred edible species and how to prepare and cook each one.

The Italians in America, who persistently collect mushrooms during all the warm months of the year, test doubtful species by cooking them with a silver coin or with garlic. If the coin or garlic turns black the dish is thrown away as poisonous. This test will also turn certain edible species black in cooking as well as the poisonous kinds. In consequence, I am often amused on collecting trips to see the Italians rejecting some of the very best edible species. It is really no test at all. The poisonous symptoms of the deadly species of Amanitas do not disclose themselves for several days, until it is too late to help the victim. In case of poisoning the victim should at once take an emetic and then see a physician, who will administer atropine.

The Italians alone, perhaps, make a business of collecting wild mushrooms in this part of the world. Men and women go about with enormous clothes baskets. These mushrooms are placed on sale in New York's big Italian quarter, in both the fresh and dried form.

Tree-Killing Fungus.

The French people have established a great business in wild mushrooms. Many factories exist in France where the mushrooms are canned for the world's markets. Hundreds of people find employment in gathering the crop in wood and field. These canned mushrooms are on sale in New York in every grocery store, and no doubt their many purchasers would have a fit if they knew the contents of the cans were common field varieties. As a matter of experience, however, it would be easy to find a hundred species within a radius of a hundred miles of City Hall, New York, quite as delicious to eat as our own costly cultivated mushroom, the Agaricus campestris. We also import tons of dried mushrooms in barrels from China which are largely collected from the fields in the same way as in France.

No fungus, so far as is known, is poisonous to handle. New York has yielded to me several hundred species of fungi, the woody or bracket types of which in ten years have destroyed about three-quarters of all the trees the city formerly had. I have gathered some of the rarest, most gorgeous and most gaudy species from trees in the business streets. Of this type are certain big hydnums of snowy whiteness or gaudy yellows, and the polypore genera, in which I have captured candelinus weighing more than a pound and frondosus weighing more than thirty pounds, too large to get into any basket I possessed.

It is to be hoped that our governments, State and national, will soon cause the establishment of free schools, not to induce people to become mycophagists, but to eat the mushrooms with which they are surrounded. Different species fruit every day all during warm weather. Let us stop this criminal waste of food. Mushrooms are as life sustaining and as satisfying to the taste as any of the meats, vegetables and fruits, or as much so as all of them combined. They digest as easily if cooked properly. They cost little or nothing. They propagate themselves. They sell in the markets. They can be dried or canned or evaporated for future use. They can be made to pay a big revenue. They thrive because all other forms of life die. Let us as a nation have sense enough to realize our good fortune, give up pursuits that don't pay and poverty which is unnecessary and turn to a new wealth producing industry. One takes no more chances in being poisoned by them than from meats, fish, vegetables, fruits, &c., "overripe" when cooked.

People desirous of making a trial of mushrooms as food should get into communication with their State botanist and let him decide on the matter of edibility when in doubt. If possible, send to him only specimens which are fresh and which have not commenced to decay. Pack in wooden box or basket and consider which will deliver quickest, mail or express. The mails are now so heavy that it is no longer possible to forward anything in pasteboard boxes without certain crushing. It is best to dry mushrooms in the oven before intrusting them to the mail or express, exercising care not to scorch them or injure any of their identifying characteristics. In New York, at Albany, is our great authority on the mushrooms of the State, the State Botanist, Professor Charles H. Peck. At Cornell University, Ithaca, is another, Professor George F. Atkinson. At Cincinnati, Ohio, is C. G. Lloyd, at the Lloyd Library, open to all desirous of information or identifications from anywhere on earth, the only living pure mushroom philanthropist. At Iowa City, at the State University of Iowa, is Professor Thomas H. Macbride. At the Depauw University, Greencastle, Ind., is Professor Howard J. Banker, great specialist on hydnums, those fungi that resemble the backs of hedgehogs. At Middlebury, Vt., is Professor E. A. Burt. In other States it should be sufficient to address simply the State Botanist at the capital or State University or State Agricultural College.

In conclusion, if the reader desires mushrooms to eat only, never pick one with a bulb at the bottom of the stem, set in a cup or in scales in the ground. These are characteristics both of the deadly amanitas and the edible amanitas. Leave the amanitas alone until you know the exact differences, which often puzzle an expert. If you even think you have swallowed a poisonous mushroom, take an emetic at once and consult a physician.

THE CHEERFUL GRIN."

I HAVE just heard, son, that you are about to be married. Let me tell you something; let me give you a thought to turn over in your mind while you are fretting because your bride to be insists upon giving so much of her time—it isn't your time yet—to her trousseau.

Most marriages, son, are a success during the honeymoon. It is easy enough to be happy and to make your wife happy while you are both in the full flush of marital enthusiasm. But there is a day coming when you will both sink to the dead level of prosaic married life. What then? Are you prepared for those humdrum days?

I am not joking, son, even though you may think I am. In the lives of every married couple there will be humdrum days, and plenty of them. There will be days when you will sit across the breakfast table from your wife and wonder why you married her, and there will be just as many days—and you will be lucky indeed if there are not more—when she will almost wish that she had married the other man. These are crucial times, son. These are the times when you and your wife will make or mar your marriage.

For the true test of marriage, son, lies in the ability to keep things going when under just such a strain and stress. It is always easier to run than to walk, because when you are running, son, your nervous system is keyed up to its highest pitch, but when you come to walk, to plod, there is nothing to keep you going but the grinding power of your will.

And no matter what you may think about it now, son, you will walk during the greater part of your married life. You will plod—and plodding is at best a monotonous occupation. It gets on one's nerves. It drives some men to drink and some to other and more harmful forms of dissipation, and it has driven many a matrimonial ship upon the jagged rocks of the divorce court. Men and women are made that way. It is hard for them to endure monotony, but to live down the dull uniformity which makes up so much of every married life is a glorious achievement, and well worth the effort of any man or woman.

I didn't mean to say that it must be lived down, son. That was a mistake. It should be banished. There you have the secret of a happy married life, son. Banish monotony. Make living a joy and face the daily problems of your household with a grin. There is a lot of moral salvation in a good healthy grin, son. There will be a lot of comfort in it for you and for your wife. It will help you over the rough places without seeing or feeling them; it will keep you from worrying over bills, and, best of all, it will keep your wife from ever being sorry that she married you.

No woman ever got applied for a divorce from a man who could meet worry and discouragement with a cheerful grin. Just remember that, son.

A RAPID EDUCATION

Travellers Who Went Through School Very Quickly

When travelling some years ago in the Far West I met with an experience which happily does not fall to the lot of many people, says a correspondent. We were travelling on a special night train from Seattle to Tacoma. The train was going at high speed, when in the small hours of the morning the sleeping travellers were suddenly awakened by a terrific shock. Everyone believed that there had been a collision, and rose up to see what was the matter. A collision there certainly had been, but of a most unusual nature. The train had run through a wooden schoolhouse which some workmen, in moving, had stupidly left on the line. I doubt if many people have passed through school so quickly before or since.

HER LOVE STORY

The Queen of Roumania's Own Description of Meeting the Prince

Here is the Queen of Roumania's charming account of her own love story. The Prince of Roumania (as he then was) came to woo her, and, although "Carmen Sylva" hesitated at first, her mother talked to her of the Prince's good qualities, and, finally, in her own words, "As my mother went on talking, my hesitation seemed to fade away, and it was not long before I said to her, 'Let him come. He is the right one.' In a very short time the Prince had returned. I was summoned to the room, and I remember going towards him with my hand out stretched, which he raised to his lips and I remember, too, the words he spoke, but my words to him I do not recall, though my mother treasured them in her heart, and had them inscribed below my portrait she sent to him."

Now, the Queen's granddaughter Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, is about to become engaged to Prince George of Greece, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Greece, whom she will meet for the first time at the Coronation in London.

Royalty Pays Fares

Although, no doubt, every railway company would gladly convey His Majesty and the Queen free of charge, our rulers pay exactly the same price as anybody else for a special train, in addition to the first-class fare of every passenger by whom they may be accompanied in their respective suites.

The Queen's Jewels

Among the jewels the Queen most values is a chain of pearls presented to her as a wedding present by the women of twenty-three English counties. Thirty thousand dollars was subscribed, but only $25,000 was spent on the necklace, and the other $5,000 was divided amongst various charities chosen by Her Majesty.

RIGHTS OF A DUCHESS

Archduke Francis Ferdinand's Wife Must Remain in Second Place

The question of fixing the social position of the Duchess of Hohenberg, the wife of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austro Hungarian throne, at the Austrian Court is again occupying the attention of the highest authorities in Vienna. The Archduke made a special visit to the Emperor at Budi Pest with a view to having his wife's rank definitely established. This followed on his refusal to attend the Coronation fetes in London when it was intimated that his wife's position would be behind the youngest princess representing small reigning houses. The Emperor, it is understood, declined to make arrangements by which the Duchess of Hohenberk, at Court functions, be placed before royal archduchesses. At present the position of the Duchess is behind the archduchess who is the latest recipient of a royal order. The female members of the royal family receive this order when they have completed their 17th year. The Emperor declines to sanction any changes which would interfere with the rights of royal archduchesses; nor is he inclined to make an exception in the case of unmarried princesses. It is thought that the matter can only be settled when the Archduke Francis Ferdinand becomes Emperor and gives his wife the title of Empress-Consort. With the Coronation of her husband the Duchess of Hohenberg would become Queen of Hungary, as the law of Hungary takes no cognisance of the morganatic marriage of its ruler.

RICH HAUL OF JEWELS

How Thieves Obtained $6,500 Worth From a Merchant

A rich haul of jewels worth $6,500 has been made by a gang of plausible thieves at a London hotel, the theft being planned with great cunning. At a cost of over $500 they engaged rooms at a well-known hotel where a millionaire is staying. Well dressed and well spoken, one of them wrote a firm of jewellers, posed as the millionaire's secretary, and asked for certain articles of jewellery to be sent to the millionaire in order that the latter could choose what he wanted. These were forwarded by a trustworthy member of the firm, who was met apparently by chance by the "secretary," who conducted him to a palatial room and introduced him to a man who looked and talked like the millionaire he was supposed to be. The real millionaire was in another part of the hotel. Then the old trick was resorted to of the millionaire's wife wanting to see the tiara before it was definitely bought, and the customer took upon himself the task of carrying the valuables for his spouse's inspection. The jeweller's envoy was beguiled into the corridor, and then, after a slight push, he found himself a prisoner in a locked room, from which he was not released till the birds had flown.

LEPROSY FROM A WIG

How a North London Girl Caught the Disease

A girl in North London has been infected with leprosy by wearing as a fancy ball a wig of Eastern origin. Some time ago the girl, who was young and extremely pretty, went to a fancy dress ball. The costume—that of a Chinese lady—was pronounced perfect in every detail. Unfortunately the wig she wore was only too real. It came from the East. A strange mark appeared on the girl's forehead. She consulted her doctor, who first treated her for eczema. The mark, however, showed no signs of improvement, and the doctor called in a specialist, who diagnosed the case as being one of leprosy. Arrangements were immediately made for the removal of the girl to a leper colony. Diligent inquiries have been made by the health authorities to discover the antecedents of the wig, as it is believed that it must have been worn at one time by a leper.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered they get out of order.

Weak back is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble.

Mrs. N. Larmour, Smith's Falls, Ont., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back and was so bad I could not even sweep my own floor. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and with the greatest benefit. I only used three boxes and I am as well as ever. I highly recommend these pills to any sufferer from lame back or kidney trouble."

CANUCKS ARE LOYAL

Celebrations Held All Over the Dominion to Celebrate the Coronation—Warships Visit Halifax

TORONTO'S CELEBRATION

Toronto, June 24.—Few of the great cities of the dominions overseas did such honor to Coronation Day as Toronto. Thousands of people charged with loyalty turned out to attend the celebrations with which the occasion of the crowning of King George was marked. Despite the great heat, there was a spirit of cheerful good humor abroad and a disposition to cheer rather than grumble. The whole day was a striking object lesson of the undying loyalty which actuates the citizens of Canada.

The celebration at Riverdale Park was an event possible only amongst enthusiastic loyalists. Close on 150,000 people massed themselves on the hillside and cheered whole-heartedly as the military bands played patriotic airs. Apart from the noise, the fireworks, or the throngs, the day, and especially the evening, was a pledge of renewed fealty to King George V. and his royal consort.

At the Capital.

Ottawa, June 23.—About 60 guests were present at the state dinner at Government House last night, in honor of the coronation. The invitation list included all the lieutenant-governors, supreme court judges, archbishops of Ottawa, the Cabinet Ministers and prominent officials, but many of them were unable to be present. Sir Adolphe Routhier, who has just been knighted, was among the guests. After dinner the toast of His Majesty was drunk, but there was no speech-making. His Excellency confirmed the announcement that each of the overseas dominions is to be presented with life-sized portraits of Their Majesties.

In Hamilton.

Hamilton, June 23.—Hamilton celebrated the crowning of King George V. and his Queen yesterday in a most enthusiastic manner. The civic celebration consisted in a military, school and society parade in which about 5,000 men and boys joined, and an imposing military spectacle with a feu de joi at Victoria Park and a good program of sports.

The day's ceremonies were concluded last night with a grand military tattoo and display of fireworks at the cricket grounds. Nine bands were massed to furnish music for the procession.

An International Celebration.

Halifax, June 23.—The coronation celebration of King George V. was observed in Halifax, became international in character because of the presence in the harbor of the German warship Bremen, the New York training ship Newport, and the British warship Cornwall. The people and the military and naval forces gave themselves up with a complete abandon to a celebration that fully equalled anything of the kind ever attempted in Halifax.

In the afternoon 600 Boy Scouts planted a tree in the public gardens in honor of Inspector Fitzgerald of the Northwest Mounted Police, who perished last winter in the performance of his duty in the Klondike trail. Fitzpatrick was a native of Halifax, where his mother and sisters still reside. Last night the British and German warships and the New York training ship were grandly illuminated, and a ball was given at Government House.

Quiet Day at Montreal.

Montreal, June 23.—King George the Fifth's Coronation Day was one of the quietest imperial holidays that this city has ever experienced.

The absence of the local cavalry and artillery regiments, now in summer camp, and the fact that the infantry have just returned from a strenuous outing caused the abandonment of the military parade, and the Boy Scouts and Highland Cadets attempted to give the city a martial appearance.

The day was officially recognized by the firing of twenty-one gun salutes at Westmount Park

Doctor Told Her She Did Not Have A Pint Of Good Blood In Her Body.

Mrs. Dosithe P. Cormier, Middle Sackville, N.B., says:

"In the spring of 1897 I was all run down, and the doctor told me I had not a pint of good blood in my body. I took different remedies from doctors, but they did not seem to do me any good. After having taken a lot of different other kinds of medicine, and they did not seem to benefit me, I was almost in despair and did not know what to do until my husband met a lady and told her about my sickness and she told him to try Burdock Blood Bitters as she had received the greatest benefit from using it. My husband went and bought me a bottle, and after having taken it I felt better, so I kept on using one bottle after another until I had taken six in all and then I was strong and well. I am positive that my being alive to-day is due to the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. One spring since then I was not feeling very well and had a lot of work to do I thought I would procure a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and after I had taken two I was able to do a lot of hard work all the summer, and I never felt better in my life. In the winter of 1906 I had Pneumonia, and it left me with a severe pain in the left side. Every morning when I would get out of bed I had to sit down for a while it was so painful. After I had used Burdock Blood Bitters the pain disappeared completely. It has also cured me of bleeding piles. I have received so much benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters that you may publish this as it may help others as it has me."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

NOW that the time for outdoor life has come around again I want to pass on a warning which came to me last summer too late to use.

"Please tell your girls," urges my correspondent, "what an awful time one reader had with her eyes because she read a few hours on the water. The eyes were terribly swollen and I lay it wholly to that."

One cannot be too careful of the strain upon the eyes which the strong light from the water produces. I myself know of a girl who, some years ago, when the mania for getting tanned and burned was at its height, lay flat on her back on the deck of a sailboat in the blazing sun for several hours to "get a good burn." She got the burns, but alas, not only on her face but also in her eyes. They were so badly bloodshot that she was a sight for days. Moreover, they were permanently weakened and so predisposed to burn that she cannot go out on the water at all without making them bloodshot.

Remember the next few months what delicate, complicated and altogether wonderful affairs those eyes of yours are. Be careful to shade them well, and be especially careful not to use them in too bright a light. That is quite as much a strain as the insufficient light.

* * * * *

"May I sit here?"

You are in a railway compartment and have half of a double seat.

A woman wants the other half of the seat and instead of simply taking possession unannounced, prefaces her entrance by a "May I sit here?" and a pleasant smile.

Of course it is only a formality. Of course you couldn't answer any other way than in the affirmative. If course it's unnecessary. But don't you think it's pleasant?

I do.

It seems to me just one of those gracious little habits that are the hallmark of the true lady—not necessary, but very nice.

* * * * *

A man whom I know who is very anxious to breed habits of saving in his children, has adopted this method.

Perhaps it will appeal to other fathers.

As each child begins to earn his own bread and butter the father takes out for him a twenty-year endowment policy for $1,000. This, he tells his son or daughter, he will pay for three years. At the end of that time he is going to turn the policy over to its owner, who can either redeem it for three-twentieths of its face value or keep on paying it.

He has six children. Four of them have received their policies and not one has chosen to take the money out. Two have the policies already paid up and ready for a rainy day, and not only that, but have kept on saving on their own accounts.

Doesn't that sound like a pretty good method?

FEW REAL ENEMIES

TAFT'S REMARKS

New York, June 23.—Senator Raoul Dandurand of Montreal, in an address at the banquet of the Canadian Club of New York last night declared that many well-informed people in the Dominion of Canada were of the opinion that the present reciprocity arrangement with the United States would be favored by 90 per cent. of the Canadian electorate if it were not made a party question. Senator Dandurand said, in addressing the club, which was entertaining President Taft as its principal guest:

"To Mr. President Taft I must express my deep appreciation of the high compliment he pays the Dominion of Canada by his visit this evening to the Canadian colony of New York.

"I would falsely represent the Canadian thought, if I conveyed the impression that a sentiment of resentment lingers in our breasts because of the high protectionist policy pursued on this side of the line. We are rather thankful for the experiment we were forced to go through. With this market being gradually closed against us we had to place our surplus product elsewhere and we did. The effort developed our energies and tempered our mettle. We may have had a grim look for a while, but we have successfully sailed the course and we are now smiling all over.

"This is why we gladly seize the hand, which your worthy President extends to us and we welcome the offer of a fair exchange of natural products on even terms.

"Among the very same people who seem convinced that this bargain will rather injure the Canadian producer, are to be found some who express the fear that an increased exchange of products may bring about a political reapproachment.

"The one objection negatives the other.

"Some opponents have shouted so loud their fear of annexation that it has been re-echoed on this side of the line by some public men. We, Canadians are not adverse to Americans expressing such a wish, for it only tends to increase our pride in our own country.

"Prior to the signing of this agreement no one in Canada ever saw any danger of the fact that our purchases from the United States increased yearly and if this free trade understanding were not on the tapis no one would object if our sales increased in the same ratio.

"The Canadian protectionist is supported in his opposition to the treaty by the budding British protectionist. This ally hopes to convert Great Britain to his views in the near future and to be then in a position to organize a Zollverein within the Empire. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has just voiced the true sentiment of Canada on this question. The Dominion stands by its preferential policy to the Mother Country and is ready to go further in that direction, but Canada will always remain free to extend its trade upon what conditions it may choose, in whatever channels it deems best."

It was nearly 11.30 o'clock before President Taft reached the club banquet hall.

"People talk about annexing Canada to the United States, or the United States to Canada. It is entirely unnecessary; all that we ought to do is to cultivate as fully and completely as possible good neighborly relations. The closer we come together, commercially and socially the better it is for both of us.

"I am an hour and a half behind my time," he said, "and I apologize to you for my very desultory remarks, but I hope I have made you feel and understand that I am very fond of Canada, that I am very fond of her people, and I believe in reciprocity."

CORONATION DAY WAS LOYALLY CELEBRATED IN PETERBOROUGH

Dedication Of The People's Chimes Was A Feature Of The Day

PETERBORO' CELEBRATED CROWNING OF THE KING

Special Coronation Service, Dedication of the Chimes, a Big Military Parade and a Patriotic Band Concert Were Some of the Events---Throngs of People Were Everywhere and Day Was a Big Success.

MANY AMUSEMENTS THROUGHOUT THE DAY

The biggest event in the celebration of Coronation Day was the dedication of the People's Chimes, which took place in the presence of an immense crowd at noon in front of St. John's church. The ceremony was carried out according to the scheduled programme, without a hitch, being successful in every particular. The overcast sky and the slight showers that had fallen did not deter the people from attending, and fortunately during the ceremony there was no rain to mar the success of the occasion, although there was another shower at the conclusion of the event.

The beautiful grounds of St. John's church never contained a more imposing picture. The crowd filled up almost every portion of the lawn except the centre, which was reserved for the 57th Regiment, the Boy Scouts and the fraternal societies, the members of the Sons of England, I.O.F. and A.O.F being present in regalia. As the regiment marched onto the grounds, they formed a hollow square with the band in the front. A platform had been erected in front of the church, upon which were His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto, Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. Chas. Carpenter, Rev. F. J. Sawers of St. Luke's, Rev. Canon Allan, the members of the Ministerial Association, His Honour Mayor Morrow and the members of the City Council, His Honour Judge Huycke, Hon. G. R. Stratton M.P., Mr. T. E. Bradburn M.P.P., Messrs. W. F. Johnston and A. H. Stratton, the Wardens of St. John's and others. The choir of St. John's, under the direction of Mr. R. G. Devey, were grouped on the steps and with the band, led the singing.

The dedication service opened with the request for the dedication which was offered. The singing of the 150th Psalm by St. John's choir followed, the choristers showing their excellent training by the manner in which they rendered the offering. His Worship Mayor Morrow then read the deed, under which the People's Chimes are given to St. John's church, to be held in perpetual trust for the people, and then handed the document to His Lordship the Bishop who after accepting it, said the special dedicatory prayers, in which he referred to the use of the chimes to call people together to worship God, for the solace of the sick and infirm who are unable to take part in church services, and for other purposes for which it may be seen fit to use them. The solemn act of dedication then followed, the large bell of the chimes being rung three times.

The gathering then, led by the Band, sang the Doxology, the National Anthem and O' Canada, after which the deed of the chimes, was given by the Bishop to the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson.

Bishop Sweeny in addressing the gathering, remarked that he knew they did not expect him to deliver a lengthy address upon such an occasion. He, however, wished to express his congratulations upon the manifestation of a spirit of unity among the citizens, as was indicated by the securing of such a magnificent set of chimes. It was one of the fruits of the splendid spirit of tolerance that had always characterized the people of Peterborough that they should have been made possible by contributions from between 1500 and 2000 people of all classes and creeds. He was sure that the rector and people of St. John's would see that the trust was truly carried out in letter and in spirit. He trusted that from this day forth they might mingle their sweet messages for the greater glory of Almighty God, carrying messages that belonged to the municipal and civil life of the city and daily expressing in sweet music the individual emotions of the human heart. He hoped that this generation and the generations to come, would enjoy their music.

In conclusion Bishop Sweeney, as fitting message for Coronation Day, read the communication sent by the Synod to His Majesty King George and the gracious reply received from the King last Sunday.

He then dismissed the gathering with the benediction. Three hearty cheers and a Tiger were given for King George, Queen Mary and Rev. Canon Davidson, after which the chimes gave their first programme their operation being in the hands of Messrs. R. J. Devey and John Butcher.

Following was the deed read by his Worship the Mayor:

To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting—

Whereas, some sixteen hundred of the present and past citizens of the City of Peterborough, of all classes, creeds, and callings, have subscribed for and purchased a chime of thirteen bells, known as "The Peoples' Chimes", to be given as a perpetual gift to St. John's Church, Peterborough.

And, whereas the said purpose of the subscribers has this day been completed and carried out and the said chimes duly installed in the tower of said St. John's church.

Now, therefore, the subscribers aforesaid, do hereby absolutely give, set over, and transfer unto the Rector and wardens of said St. John's Church and their successors forever the said chime of thirteen bells now known as and for all time hereafter, to be called "The Peoples' Chimes."

And in the spirit of said gift the Rector and Wardens aforesaid for and on behalf of the church and parish of St. John's, aforesaid, hereby accept the said gift of said chimes, and for themselves and their successors voluntarily agree to use and operate them forever, as a public trust, for the glory of God, for the good of His Church and Holy Religion, and for the benefit of the citizens of Peterborough, and in conformity with the said last mentioned purpose undertake to cause the said chimes to be rung on public holidays and national occasions, free of any charge whatsoever; and, lastly, at the request of any citizen may at their discretion, cause the said bells to be chimed on the occasion of any marriage that may be solemnized within the said City of Peterborough, the applicant in such last mentioned case, paying the Chimes Master, the ordinary fee therefor.

Signed for and in behalf of the subscribers aforesaid by the Secretary Treasurer of the Committee having the matter in charge for them, and for and on behalf of the Church and Parish of St. John's, by the Rector and Wardens thereof this twenty-second day of June, 1911, being the day of the Coronation of his Gracious Majesty King George the Fifth, and in the second year of his reign.

W. F. Johnston,
A. H. Stratton,
Wardens of St. John's Church

The Banquet.

The banquet, held at St. John's Sunday School room yesterday, at one o'clock, in honour of his Lordship, Bishop Sweeney, of Toronto, was a complete success, and was one of the most successful features of the holiday celebration. The Sunday School room was appropriately and most beautifully decorated with floral decorations and flags. A very sumptuous repast was served by the ladies, who were given due credit by the numerous speakers who were present. The speech of the occasion was made by his Lordship, Bishop Sweeney, and was a most eloquent one.

Among the prominent guests from a distance were the following:: Mr. H. N. Cottingham, Vancouver; Mr. N. F. Davidson, Toronto; Mr. N. N. Loosemore, Manager of the Standard Bank, Toronto; Mr. E. F. Loosemore, Manager of the Standard Bank of Lindsay. Many regrets were received from non-attendants, who were unable to be present. The following were some of those who could not attend: Hon. G. A. Cox, Mr. G. R. Wood, of Philadelphia; Mr. J. W. Flavelle, Toronto, all of whom gave large contributions to the chimes.

The caterers for the luncheon were Coleman Bros. The patrons for the luncheon were the following: The ladies of the congregation, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, and Mrs. W. F. Jonnston.

In his remarks before introducing His Lordship Bishop Sweeney, Rev. Canon Davidson stated that the luncheon was an official one, attended by representatives of different municipal bodies and also fraternal and public bodies of the city.

SALT IS DISCOVERED

Boring For Water on the Farm of John Jenkins, in Asphodel, Workmen Locate Salt Water at a Depth of 157 Feet

INDICATION OF OIL

While workmen were boring a well on the farm of John Jenkins, three miles from Norwood yesterday, they struck salt water at a depth of 157 feet, and this is regarded as an almost certain guarantee that there is oil in the vicinity. The discovery has aroused considerable interest and excitement in the vicinity. This morning Mr. David Forsythe brought a sample of the water to the Examiner office and on tasting it, it was found that it was very strongly flavoured with salt.

Indications point to a large crowd being present at the annual picnic at the T.A.S. Park on July 1st. The prize list will be published next week. Any person wishing to contribute to the prize list, kindly communicate with Mr. P. Kane.

ROYAL PROCESSION THROUGH STREETS OF LONDON

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., JUNE 23.—Today the Royal progress by King George and Queen Mary, through London, was on a greater scale than the Coronation procession yesterday. Although the weather was gloomy enormous crowds witnessed the parade of their Majesties, and the humblest buildings were profusely decorated. A contingent of Canadians escorted the first carriage, occupied by Premier Laurier and Premier Fisher, of Australia. The Indian section following in line, could not be equalled for picturesqueness of garbs, in silken uniform and adorned with jewels. The King wore a Fieldmarshal's uniform and the Queen was dressed in white. Both wore the Sash Order of the Order of the Garter. At every point they were wildly welcomed and received addresses at many places.

LONDON, ONT., JUNE 23.—In a brave attempt to stop a runaway team Constable Mills was, perhaps, fatally injured this morning. He became entangled in the harness and went under the hoofs and wheels, having his skull crushed. It was Mills who broke into the room of Self, the man who shot his wife and later suicided a short time ago.

Mexico City, June 23—In the attempt of the Federals to remove a quantity of fire arms from the State Palace to another building, the Federals and revolutionary forces clashed at Jalapa, resulting in the death of nine and injuries to 26. Order is now restored.

COUNTY COUNCIL INSPECTED THREE BRIDGES YESTERDAY

Yesterday the members of the County Council inspected the bridges at Young's Point, Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn. The bridges are all in good shape, with the exception of some slight repairs at Young's Point and Burleigh, requiring re-painting. At Buckhorn the County Council formally delivered over to the Superintendent of the Canal that portion of the bridge belonging to the county, conditional upon the county being relieved from the responsibility of the payment of $3,000 promised by the county to the Government towards its construction, the Government to maintain the bridge for all time as a highway. It will be remembered that there is a conflict of authority in connection with this bridge, the county owning part and the Government a part, and Mr. Stratton, the member for West Peterborough, in corresponding with the Minister of Railways and Canals urged that it would be in the interests of the Dominion that the control of the bridge should be in the hands of the Government, and that the public would be better served by having the bridge under the control of one authority. The Government is having the matter looked into and a report made upon the subject.

The Council returned home in the evening. Superintendent McClellan, with "The Bessie Butler," conveyed the party from Lakefield to Buckhorn and return. Mr. J. A. Sexsmith M.P., East Peterborough, Mr. R. B. Hall, Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., and Mr. E. A. Peck were among the guests of the County Council on the trip.

Come to St. John's Church grounds to 57th Band & A.Y.P.A. Social to-night 7 to 10. Splendid Music, Fairy Lights, Strawberries and Cream, Lovely Flowers. Admission 10c.

IN MEMORY OF JOHN GERALD ELIOTT, WHO DIED JUNE 22, 1909

Do not ask us if we miss him.
Oh! there's such a vacant place.
Oft we think we hear his footsteps,
Oft we see his smiling face.
He has gone to higher regions
Safe from every care and pain;
We shall meet again in Heaven
And never more be parted there.

THE FAMILY

Charlotte St. Sunday School Annual Picnic

The Charlotte street Methodist church choir held its annual picnic yesterday to Idyl Wyld. The day was all that could be desired and the crowd of about sixty was in for a good day.

The orchestra deserves the highest praise for the music so generously dispersed. The patriotic airs played were very suitable for the day.

Dinner had been ordered before hand at Idyl Wyld hotel and here again, as in other years, the best was served.

After a few hours spent on the island, the party set on the homeward trip, stopping at Gore's landing and Jubilee Point, where they had supper.

The remainder of the trip was pleasant. The singing by the members of the choir, the calmness of the water, the beautiful reflections of sky and water with here and there the light from some camper's resort, could not fail to impress the most inartistic.

The city was reached about ten o'clock.

NO MORE PRETENDERS.

(Ottawa Journal.)

One of the most pleasing features of to-day's coronation is that King George represents in his own person every line of British royalty. The houses of Hanover, Stuart, Tudor, Lancaster, York, Norman and earlier English Kings—every root of British sovereignty for the past 1400 years contributes to the sturdy full-grown trunk of the reigning house.

It was as far back as 519 when Cedric became overlord of Wessex that the first beginnings of the illustrious lines of British rulers were made. King George can trace his family tree with well-authenticated proofs back to those early Saxon days.

Fulfilling, then, in himself, every possible claim to the throne, both by the manifold ties of descent and by the free-election of parliament, it follows that no rival to the Crown could conceivably present a claim worth considering in comparison with his own. The days of "pretenders" is gone. With every royal line converging in the present house, no Perkin Warbeck could muster a baker's dozen of followers, let alone raise the head of serious rebellion.

A few extreme Jacobites are said to regard an obscure Bavarian princess as having more right to their devotion than the Hanoverian monarch, but the feeble attachment to this European nonentity is scarcely worth a newspaper paragraph. From a nation and empire never so unitedly as to-day goes up the hearty petition, "God Save the King."

ANOTHER DEMOCRATIC TRIUMPH.

(London Advertiser.)

Taking advantage of the unpopularity of the reciprocity measure with the American farmers, the Democrats in the House of Representatives have been putting through the Underwood bill. This bill proposes to reduce very considerably the duties on raw wool and partly manufactured wood products, but would place on the free list a number of finished food products and other manufactured articles largely used by the American farmer. The intention is to outbid Taft with the cities and to completely upset his agricultural support. Look at this bill and at that, the Democratic campaigner will be saying to the farmers at the next presidential election, comparing the hated reciprocity pact with the benefits which the Democratic measure would confer.

Though passed by a vote of 221 to 100 in the House, 24 Republicans voting for it and only one Democrat against, the bill will certainly be killed by the Senate. Consequently, the onus of responsibility for its defeat will rest with the Republican majority there. The people, which elected a Democratic majority last fall to the Lower House, will be angry at its desire for tariff relief being thus overruled.

It is notable that this measure would give Canada, along with other countries, a number of advantages, without calling for any return. Canada would be indeed the greatest gainer, being in such close proximity to the Republic.

FOSTER ON RECIPROCITY.

(Toronto Star.)

The Nineteenth Century contains an article by the Hon. George E. Foster on Canadian Autonomy and American Reciprocity. It is not so much an attempt to say something new, as a presentation to the people of the United Kingdom of views of the Canadian opponents of reciprocity. Mr. Foster points out first that the policy of Canada is based upon protection, not upon free trade. The inference is that reciprocity is necessarily opposed to protection. Mr. Foster omits to say that the tariff of 1879 which embodied the principle of protection, contained an offer of reciprocity in natural products; and that Sir John Macdonald's resolution, foreshadowing the new tariff, referred to reciprocity with the United States as a desirable aim.

The protectionists of the day were not merely throwing a sop to those who desired reciprocity. It was then an accepted article of the protectionist creed that protectionist tariffs were to be used to afford leverage to obtain reciprocity agreements and treaties with other countries. In other words, they regarded protection, not as an object of worship but as a means to an end. Protection is advocated in Great Britain to-day for a similar reason—that it will enable Great Britain to obtain reciprocity agreements with other countries. British protectionists could not consistently object to the Canadian tariff being used in the same way; that is, in the way it is being used in the Fielding agreement.

In setting forth the objections to the agreement, Mr. Foster goes back to the contention made by the Montreal Star, the Toronto News, and others at the outset, namely, that the people of the United States have come near the end of their own resources and are eager to exploit those of Canada. This is now directly contradicted by Mr. Borden at Winnipeg and the Conservative journals. They say, as to farm products, that the people of the United States are not nearing the end of their natural resources; on the contrary, that they have an enormous surplus of farm products, which they are eager to unload upon Canada.

The truth lies between the two extremes. The two countries are most advantageously situated for free exchange of food. Canada runs up from the temperate zone to the arctic regions; the United States runs down from the temperate zone to near the tropics. The products are similar in some respects, but in others dissimilar. The two countries produce different things, or they produce the same things in different localities or at different seasons of the year. The proposition simply is that we shall take advantage of the infinite variety of soil and climate which is to be found from the Peace River to the Gulf of Mexico.

DEFENDS SIR WILFRID'S POSITION.

(Brantford Expositor.)

The Montreal Gazette, one of the oldest of Canadian newspapers, and staunchly Conservative as well, refuses to follow the lead of the members of its party, both in Great Britain and in Canada, who have been attacking Sir Wilfrid's attitude at the conference. It says:

The Imperial Conference of 1911 stands to be remembered chiefly for the proposals it has declined to sanction. The conservatism of the majority of its members has been a steady check on those who would hurry events or make changes, the meaning of which has not been thoroughly understood. It is not a bad thing that such should be the case. The mechanism of government of the Empire may not be what a philosophic theorist would design. It has worked, and it works, however, with generally satisfactory results, meets the demands made upon it by the communities of varying interests who have devised it or live under it, and leaves themsatisfied. In this it is something like the constitution of England, which is indefinable but workable, and while holding fast to certain great ideas, permits the people living under it to expand their administrative activities in whatever way the majority thinks is wise and well. The Imperial Conference had its origin in the minds of men who were idealist, perhaps, more than practical. It served a good purpose in awakening the people of all parts of the Empire to the knowledge that they had aspirations and interests in common. It gave opportunity for considering how these common interests might be advanced without matters of local concern being jeopardized; and all that has been done in this direction has been well done, and promise to be profitable. It was almost inevitable, however, that the existence of such a body should encourage theorists and create a desire among its more enthusiastic members to suggest big things for it to do. There has been rather more than the unusual number of such things advanced this year.

The Gazette argues that it would be both inexpedient and impracticable to have the consent of the colonies to treaties which the Mother Country may make, and also supports Sir Wilfrid's course in rejecting the proposal to have a standing Imperial Council. It says:

A good thing was done when the sentiment of the conference showed itself to be against a standing council of the colonies in London. Members of such a council could only speak on instruction, and would have but limited authority to diverge from their written orders. They could not be held to voice the ideas of the colonies as a whole. There might be a risk that as a body they would become something of no authority and a weak voice interposed between the government of a colony and the government at London in matters that properly concerned only the particular colony and the government in question. Even Canadian opponents of the presently proposed reciprocity treaty with the United States will understand that a council made up of representatives of other colonies and sitting in London could condemn the arrangement without influencing one vote in this country. The usefulness of the conference of 1911 will not be in what it builds, but in its showing where it is well not to be built till it is found what the foundation is to be.

The Gazette's vindication of Sir Wilfrid may not be very acceptable to its Conservative contemporaries, but it will nevertheless meet with the approbation of sober-minded colonials. The final relationship between the Mother Country and the colonies must largely be a matter of evolution, and those who try to go faster than public opinion either in the Mother country or in the overseas dominions is ready to accept, are not the best friends of the Empire.

PETERBOROUGH CELEBRATED CROWING OF THE KING

The banquet was given by the congregation of St. John's, and was under the management of Messrs. W. E. Johnston and A. H. Stratton, the wardens of St. John's.

The music for the occasion was provided by Halpany's Orchestra. There were about 135 present at the banquet. Rev. Canon Davidson was chairman, and His Lordship, the Bishop, occupied the seat on his right, while the County Judge, his Honour Judge Huycke, Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., Mayor Morrow, Rev. Mr. Pogue, President of the Ministerial Association, Mr. D. W. Dumble, and other leading citizens were on his left.

Mr. N. F. Davidson proposed a toast, "The King," and God Save the King, was sung. Canon Davidson then proposed a toast, "the Bishop of Toronto." In proposing it, the chairman stated that they should feel a debt of gratitude to his Lordship, the Bishop, for leaving an important engagement in Toronto on this important day, to be present with them. He said that the Bishop had brought the happiest inspiration to the gathering. He spoke of the fine equipment of bells and those who had so generously contributed both money and assistance in trying to secure them. After a few other appropriate remarks, he introduced the Bishop.

In his opening remarks, the Bishop stated that the two great aspects of the day were the Coronation and dedication of the chimes, thoughts of which were centralized in the mind, making a lofty unity for the day. He then sketched a realistic picture of what was taking place in England, and spoke of the multitude of echoes of the people throughout the Empire, who were taking their individual share in the rejoicings. He was greatly pleased at the opportunity of having the privilege of coming to Peterborough, and making such pleasant associations with the leading citizens of Peterborough, who were gathered around the table. He warmly complimented the committee and the ladies, for the beautiful appearance of the extemporized dining hall. He also spoke of the high and inspiring mission of the chimes in the city, and expressed hope that they would prove a great religious help to the general public. He warmly congratulated all those by whose liberality this large scheme had been so successfully carried through. In conclusion he proposed a toast to the Rector of the Parish.

At the close of his address, Rev. Canon Davidson introduced his Worship, Mayor Morrow, who made a neat speech, in which he stated that it afforded him great pleasure to be present, and to congratulate Canon Davidson and those concerned in the successful issue of their efforts, and thanked those who so generously contributed to the chimes. In his closing remarks he thanked them for their invitation to be present, and congratulated the ladies upon the splendid spread set before them.

His Honour, Judge Huycke, was the next speaker called upon. He made a very eloquent speech, which included appropriate and very fitting remarks regarding the occasion and congratulated Rev. Canon Davidson upon the success of his indefatigable efforts. He also thought that Peterborough was to be congratulated upon such a fine set of chimes. He stated that when he came to Peterborough first, he found a great absence of church bells, and he thought that this was one feature of a city, to have the church bells call the people to service. Referring to the chimes, he was of the opinion that they would be an inspiration to the people, when they hear them pealing out well-known hymns. Again, he thought that the people of Peterborough should be congratulated upon the very presence of the chimes because of the inspiring effect they would have upon them. He was of the opinion that the day was also especially appropriate on account of the coronation of King George V. He said they should be proud to be citizens of Peterborough, citizens of Canada, and above all, true citizens and subjects of the British Empire.

He said that Great Britain was great hundreds of years ago, and she is still greater to-day. He thought that King George V. must have looked back upon the coronation of King Alfred, the stormy coronation of William, the Conqueror, who maintained the military strength of old England. He told them that, although they were thousands of miles from the coronation, they should still take part in the celebration of it, and he was greatly pleased with the manner in which they were celebrating it.

Hon. Mr. Stratton was the next speaker. He spoke of the gratification Canon Davidson must feel, to see his efforts develop into so successful an issue. He was also glad to see so many present taking part in the coronation celebration, and the inauguration of the chimes. He stated that the people of Peterborough were always glad to see the church progressing, and he was especially glad to see that the chimes were so efficient, after they had been installed. He thanked them for the privilege and opportunity of being present, and did not wish to take up further time, as he was of the opinion they would much more prefer to be in the fresh air, and attending to the several social duties they had planned.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn made a few complimentary remarks, in which he expressed his congratulations, and thanked them for the opportunity of being present. He also did not wish to take up their time.

Rev. R Pogue, President of the Ministerial Association, was the next speaker. In reference to the chimes, he wished that his vocal organs were more musical, in order that he might speak in the right strain of so musical an object as the chimes. He congratulated Canon Davidson upon the success of his efforts, in trying to secure the chimes. He said that the chimes should tend to draw us closer together.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford was glad to know that he had the privilege of representing a people bent on the glory of God and exaltation of Jesus Christ. He was glad to represent a people who were deeply interested in the British Empire. He congratulated Rev. Canon Davidson, congregation and wardens of the church, upon the consecration of the chimes, and he hoped they would prove a benefit to all.

Rev. Canon Davidson regretted the absence of Mr. Alex. Elliott, who was of great assistance to him in the securing of the funds for the chimes. He stated that he had gone out and gathered money to help to pay for the chimes.

Mr. N. F. Davidson, of Toronto, was then introduced, and stated that he had heard of the gradual unfolding of the chimes project, and in a joke he said that he felt that there must be some conspiracy behind it. He felt a great amount of pride in his relationship to Canon Davidson, and that he could testify as a member of the Rector's family, that the chimes would ring out at eventime, even more sweeter than they do now.

Mr. Hartley, a representative of the Labour Union, made a few appropriate remarks, and hoped that the time would come when they would all be one, and the Lord would bless Canada.

Mr. D. W. Dumble made a neat speech, in which he congratulated Canon Davidson upon the unique beauty and charm of the church, and he stated that all should be proud of it. He said that for many years the old bell had called the people together, and it was to be hoped that the chimes would do the work as efficiently for the future.

THE MILITARY PROCEEDINGS

The holiday was featured yesterday by a splendid turnout of the 57th Regiment for parade. Their line of march was as follows: east on Murray street, to George, down George to Charlotte, west on Charlotte to Aylmer, north on Aylmer to Hunter, east on Hunter to Water, south on Water to Simcoe, west on Simcoe to George, and north to Central Park, where the Regiment formed up in double line, and fired a Feu De Joie. This salute was the feature of the military display, and was watched with interest by a very large crowd of both citizens and visitors. The Central Park was literally crowded. The soldiers performed the Feu De Joie and Royal Salute very satisfactorily, making a fine showing. In addition to the military display of the 57th Regiment, the Boy Scouts turned out in almost full strength, and looked fine in their uniforms, led by a colour bearer on horse back.

The regiment turned out at 11.15, and were joined at the corner of George and Charlotte streets by the Boy Scouts, the latter falling in at the rear of the regiment. After the march around the streets and the salute in Central Park, the Regiment was marched over to St. John's church, and were lined up in front of the church while the dedication service was being performed. At the close of the ceremony, the big bell of the chimes rang, and the Regiment then marched off to the armoury, and was dismissed. Both bands of the Regiment turned out in full strength and added much to the success of the occasion. The military display and the sports of the Regiment held in Central Park in the afternoon, added much to the success of the celebration of the day.

CORONATION SERVICE

Inspiring, impressive ceremony with air of solemnity that fully coincided with the general spirit of the day, was the outstanding feature of the Coronation service which was held at St. John's church yesterday prior to the dedication of the bells.

Shortly after 10.30, the people began to wend their way toward the church, and by the time the service commenced the grand old edifice of St. John's was filled to overflowing.

The service was favoured with the presence of His Lordship Bishop Sweeny of Toronto, Rev. H. F. Battersby of Essonville, Rev. F. J. Sawers, of St. Luke's, who acted as Bishop's Chaplain, the Rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, and the Curate, the Rev. Charles Carpenter.

During the course of the service, special prayers were offered up for Their Majesties, the King and Queen, while the choir very beautifully rendered the Coronation anthem, and two verses of the National Anthem and two of that grand old favourite, "Onward Christian Soldiers", were sung by the Congregation.

Bishop Sweeney read the entire Coronation service. This was substituted for the usual sermon and address, and was very much appreciated by those present.

The musical portion of the Coronation service was a revelation to all who attended. No less than seven weeks of hard work had been put in by the choir, and the "Te Deum" and "Zadock the Priest," were splendidly rendered. At the early practices the choir looked with dismay at the seemingly florid passages in Handel's composition, but Mr. Devey instilled much of his usual go-ahead energy into the work, until the whole choir became enthused, and some of the older residents of the city openly said that such music has not before been so beautifully rendered in this city. Mr. Devey was personally congratulated by His Lordship the Bishop, Mayor Morrow, Mr. Dumble, Mr. Rush, and many others, and Canon Davidson and Messrs. Johnston and Stratton, the Wardens, warmly thanked the choir for their splendid unselfish work.

Among the events of the holiday none was more delightful than the patriotic concert of the 57th Regimental Band in Victoria Park last evening, which was featured by the attendance of one of the biggest crowds ever seen in the Park. The evening was perfect, the park with its many coloured lights installed especially for the occasion never looked better, and the band has rarely been heard to better advantage or aroused more enthusiasm. There was a spirit of patriotism in the air that was infectious and this feeling was manifested by the manner in which the crowd applauded the National Anthem, "Rule Britannia," "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf" forehad to stop short and repeat the numbers. So enthusiastic was the crowd that when in playing Kappey's fantasia, "Under the British Flag" the band reached "The Maple Leaf" they ha dto stop short and repeat the number of the selection. A similar incident occurred in the select ion "Reminiscences of England" when the crowd insisted on Rule Britannia being repeated. The programme in its entirety was of a patriotic nature, consisting of British and Canadian selections and was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Gliddon and his men are to be congratulated upon the fine programme provided and the magnificent way in which it was rendered. Incidentally the thanks of the music-lovers is due Chief Thompson for detailing a couple of officers to maintain order. The result was a much more enjoyable concert than under the usual conditions.

Peterborough Just Nosed Out Bowmanville Team

Visitors Gave Manager Quinlan's Team a Battle Royal and the Game Was in Doubt Until the Last Man Was Out --Quinlan's Triple and Gonter's Sacrifice Play in the Eighth Scored Winning Run--Bowmanville Had Good Chance in Ninth---Was a Real Ball Game.

For the first time this season, the Peterborough Midland League team has had to come from behind to win a game, the Bowmanville team driving them to the limit in yesterday's fixture at Riverside Park, before the Petes finally won by 6 to 5. There was a big holiday crowd present and they were delighted with the snappy battle put up by the two teams. The visitors were full of ginger and fight and were working all the time. Had they been able to hit when hits means runs, they would have undoubtedly grabbed off the game as they had fourteen men stranded on the cushions. Quinlan was very generous, handing out six bases on balls and hitting three, and was in tight corners all the way through, twice the visitors filling the bags with none out. The clean-up swat never came, however, and this failure to hit in the pinches, coupled with timid base-running, saved the situation for the locals. The Petes won by bunching their hits on Beith in the third when tardily awaiting sent five runs across the pan. This, coupled with a clashing triple in the eighth by Quinlan, followed by a timely sacrifice fly by Gonter was sufficient to give the Petes the big end of the score, but the visitors were always dangerous. In their half of the ninth Bowmanville got two on with nobody out, and a sacrifice sent the runners to second and third. However, the next two were easy outs and the situation was saved.

Beith, a big twirler with a world of speed and good control, pitched a splendid game for Bowmanville, and outside of the third inning, had the edge on the homesters. He gave only one pass and was steady throughout. Quinlan fanned fourteen and allowed but eight scattered hits, but his control was bad, nine complimentaries giving the visitors chances on the bases which were neutralized, however, by failure to produce a timely hit. Both sides fielded snappily, the hero of the day being Tucker, the little left fielder of the visitors, who distinguished himself by picking off Quinlan's terrific line smash to left while on the dead run, and a little later tore back and picked Murphy's long fly off the fence in spectacular fashion Gonter distinguished himself by a one-handed pick-up of a hot grounder with the bases full that was ticketed for a hit.

First Innings.
Murphy flew out to short, Shaw's wallop was too hot for Doll. Shaw stole second. O'Hearne was retired at first after a strike-out and Shaw was doubled at the plate. No runs.

Second Innings.
Tucker doubled over W. O'Brien's head. Jones flew out to W. O'Brien. Doll lifted one to Murphy and Wilcox fanned. No runs.
W. O'Brien hit over short and stole second and third. Quinlan and Gonter struck out, and O'Brien was an easy out trying to steal home. No runs.

Third Innings.
Kavanagh doubled to right centre, Beith and Sister walked, filling the bags. Quinlan hit Gibson, forcing in Kavanagh. Martin sacrificed, Beith scoring. Sister scored on a passed ball on Tucker's third strike. Jones sent a drive to O'Hearne who doubled Tucker at first. Three runs.
McFadden was safe when his grounder was juggled at second. Craig bunted for a sacrifice, but Doll's throw pulled Kavanagh off the bag and the runner was safe. McFadden and Craig pulled off a double steal, Doll dropping a throw to assist the theft. W. O'Brien struck out. McFadden tallied on Murphy's back of second single. Shaw's single sent Murphy to third and Craig scored. Murphy and Shaw crossed on O'Hearne's two bagger. O'Hearne came home on M. O'Brien's single to left. Quinlan fanned, Gonter walked and McFadden, batting for a second time, was out pitcher to first. Five runs.

Fourth Innings.
After Doll and Wilcox were retired at first, Kavanagh and Beith were passed, Kavanagh stealing second, and both advancing when McFadden let a strike get away. Sister's hit scored Kavanagh. Gibson fanned. One run.
Craig grounded out second to first. W. O'Brien and Murphy sent up flies which were taken care of. No runs.

Fifth Innings.
Gonter fumbled Martin's grounder, Tucker missed three, Jones hit over O'Hearne's head. Doll fanned and Wilcox went out on a weak one, Murphy to first. No runs. x
Shaw's swat bounded over the first baseman and he stole second. O'Hearne baffled in vain. M. O'Brien singled and Quinlan flew out to left, a grand grab by Tucker of a seemingly safe hit. Shaw, who had stolen third, remained on his bag until Tucker caught the ball and then beat it home. O'Brien after making second, dashed for third as soon as the ball was hit and as a result both runners arrived at the plate, O'Brien a close second. He was called out for leaving second before the ball was caught. The catch by Tucker was something in the big league line. Neither run scored. No runs.

Sixth Innings.
Kavanagh fanned. Beith died at first and Sister hit nothing but air. No runs.
Gonter doubled over first, McFadden was safe when Wilcox, now playing second, sent a bad throw to first. Gonter was caught off third on the play. Craig bunted into Doll's mit and W. O'Brien fanned. No runs.

Seventh Innings.
Gibson beat out O'Brien on his grounder and he went to second on a passed ball. Kilman batting for Martin, was passed Tucker's single filled the bags. Jones forced Gibson at the plate. Gonter to McFadden. Doll struck out. Wilcox was hit sending Kilman over. Kavanagh fanned. One run.
Murphy flew out to Tucker. Shaw to Doll and O'Hearne fanned. One run.

Eighth Innings.
Beith gasped and sat down. Sister was hit and made second after being passed by O'Brien and Gonter. Gibson struck out. Kilman singled and Tucker sent a fly to W. O'Brien. No runs.
M. O'Brien out for batting third strike. Quinlan lanced to deep centre for a triple and scored on Gonter's sacrifice fly to left. McFadden grounded out. One run.

Ninth Innings.
Jones singled and Doll walked. Wilcox sacrificed. Kavanagh sent up a fly to McFadden and Beith ended the game by striking out. No runs.

SUMMER SKIN TROUBLES

Sunburn, blistering, and irritation are the commonest form of summer skin troubles, and Zam-Buk ends these very quickly. It works in two ways. As soon as applied, its antiseptic powers get to work and kill all the poison in a wound, a sting or a sore. This generally ends the smarting and the pain. Then Zam-Buk begins the healing process, and fresh healthy tissue is built up. For sore, blistered feet, sore hands, heat rashes baby's heat spots, sore places due to perspiration, etc., you can't equal Zam-Buk. It also cures cuts, ulcers, abscesses, piles, and all inflamed and diseased conditions of skin and subjacent tissue. Druggists and stores everywhere sell Zam-Buk, 50c. box. INQUEST IS OVER

Evidence Heard in the Investigation Into the Cause of Death of Hugh Darke, Victim of Accident a Week Ago

JURY'S VERDICT

After an hour and a half the jury returned a verdict in the Darke inquest censuring Mr. Thompson and the Canadian General. The following was the verdict:

"We find that Hugh Darke met his death on the night of the 15th inst., through carelessness on the part of J. H. Thompson, in starting the machine without first knowing positively that all was clear. Also we believe the Canadian General Electric Co. should establish a proper code of signals throughout the electric plant. The lack of which, we believe, was contributory to this accident."

The following were the jury:—W. A. Howard, R. McQuinnie, Joe Denno, Jim White, Geo. O'Brien, H. Fraser, W. B. Armstrong, James Edgar, R. J. Kidd, Geo. Evans, W. H. White, W. R. G. Higgins.

Mr. R. E. Wood acted for the Crown, and Mr. Hall was present in the intrests of the family of the deceased. There were several witnesses examined.

W. Cartner, a machinist at the C. G. E., was the first witness called. He stated that at the time of the accident there were three men present. The deceased, Mr. Thompson, an electrician from the Test Department and himself. He explained the position they were all in, when the accident happened; also what they were working at previous to it. He stated that at the time of the accident the deceased was kneeling with his head next the generator and east from the pulley. He further stated that the deceased went in to the machine legs first, as far as he could see, and they had to reverse the machine to get him out. He said there was no guard on the pulley.

Dr. Boucher was then called and read his report of the condition he found the deceased in. He stated that shock was the cause of death, the shock coming from the injuries he received.

Dr. Frederick, who assisted in the Postmortem, said that death was due to the same cause as that given by Dr. Boucher.

A. F. Fielder, another employee of the Test Department, stated that the first he saw of the accident was when Mr. Cartner ran out from behind the machine and asked who started the machine. He said, Mr. Thompson started the machine. Thompson shook his hand in a manner indicating the question: "Is everything ready?" The same sign in reply means all clear, explained the witness. Fielder did not see the return signal. He did not hear Darke's shout. He thought that Cartner seemed to have lost his head in the confusion. He said that Darke was lying on the belt on his face, when found. His head was bleeding, and the belt was covered with blood. He said he helped to extricate Darke from the machine. The machine was a generator, being tested. The machinists are not bound to do what Thompson orders. The machinists' foreman would be the one to order them to fix the bolt they were working at, when the accident occurred.

Mr. Cartner was again called. He stated that he saw them use the test department signal sometimes, but he did not see the sign given that night. He had orders to stay and help Darke with the machine. Walter Jeffries is foreman of the fitters in the machine shop, and he instructed Mr. Cartner to assist with the work. Witness stated that he could not see the deceased from the switch.

William Walker, (a G. E. fitter, next gave evidence. He was assisting with the work all day. He did not know anything about the signals.

Mr. J. H. Thompson was then called. He was in charge of the test that night, and suggested that the machine might move, when the test was made. He said that Darke had just tightened the nuts on the back of the machine and asked him to look at it. He did so and said they would try it at that. He then walked around the machine and all was clear; he then went to the switch. He took a glance all over and then Cartner said: "Don't start for a minute. I want to tighten a bolt in front." He thought that Darke had gone out of the shop, as he could not see him. He looked and saw Cartner give what he thought to be a nod of the head, in answer to his signal, asking if all was ready. He then threw the switch and almost immediately heard a yell. He then shut off the power. He did not, at that time see Darke.

Harold W. Jeffries, foreman of the machine fitters, gave evidence. He left the machine at noon, and at that time everything was satisfactory as far as he was concerned. He did not think it was necessary for them to put in a bolt they were owrking at He did not see the accident.

G. B. Wilson, another foreman of the test department, was called. He left orders for Darke to do any work that was necessary, and left Thompson in charge of testing that machine.

A. F. Hanley was next questioned. He stated that he was near the machine at the time of the accident. He saw Darke's body coming over the top of the pulley. He saw his head and shoulders out from under the belt. He did not see any signals.

J. H. Schewier came next. He was standing at a bench, about fifteen feet away from where the accident happened. He heard a wrench striking the floor, and turned and saw Darke's body go under the pulley.

Wm Melbs was then called. He was at the foreman's office and saw nothing of the accident, but 'phoned for a docter.

Mr. Hall asked Mr. Wilson if it was necessary for two men to be at the work of tightening the bolt, also if there was room to do the work, without getting between the two layers of the belt. The answer was that one man could do it and had room outside the belt.

The Jury then went to discuss the evidence and afterwards returned with the verdict given above.

FARMER SAID TO HAVE MADE ASSAULT ON A NEIGHBOUR

A charge of assault is likely to be preferred against Alf. Cooney, a resident of Otonabee by Mark Manley, a neighbour. The proceeding is the result of an incident which occurred yesterday near the home of the two men in the vicinity of Drummond station. It is said that Manley and Cooney have had a dispute as to the right to use a certain field for pasture purposes, and that when Cooney took some cows into the field yesterday, his neighbour drove the animals out and was proceeding to take them to the pound when Cooney arrived on the scene. In the altercation which followed it is stated that Cooney struck Manley over the back of the neck with a halter which he carried. Manley was knocked down and for a while it was thought he was seriously injured. Dr. Harrison, of Keene, and a local physician were called, but it was found that his condition was not serious.

BLESSED THE NEW CHURCH

Unique Ceremony Participated In By His Lordship Bishop O'Connor—Italian Church at Healey's Falls

WAS A SUCCESS

Campbellford was en fete on Sunday on the occasion of the visit of His Lorship Bishop O'Connor to officiate at the blessing of the new church of the Sacred Heart at Healey Falls. His Lordship celebrated the 8.30 mass at St. Mary's church, Campbellford, at which he had the pleasure of distributing Holy Communion to two of the societies of the parish, the Holy Name Society and the Young Ladies' Sodality. Members, to the number of about two hundred, made a very good showing, approaching Holy Communion in order and wearing their distinctive medals. Afterwards His Lordship addressed the Sodalities and spoke very appreciatively of their strong religious spirit, as evidenced by their becoming reception of the sacraments in such goodly numbers and with so much piety and decorum. At the half past ten mass his Lordship again preached an edifying discourse.

In the afternoon the Bishop, accompanied by Rev. Fr. Whibbs, Fr. Seafuro, C.R., St. Jerome's College, Berlin, Rev. Fr. O'Brien North Bay, and Rev. Fr. Bretherton, Hastings, drove to Healey Falls, where a large concourse of people had assembled to be present at the solemn blessing and dedication of the new church of the Sacred Heart, which the zeal of Rev. Fr. Whibbs, has provided for the large number of Italians and Austrians employed at the Trent Canal Works, Healey Falls, always pretty, and sure to become a favourite summer resort, consequent on the completion of the Trent Canal, wore a gala appearance, filled as it was, with an immense crowd who journeyed thither by auto, bicycle, boat and good old buggy.

The solemn blessing of the church was then performed with all the beautiful Catholic ritual, after which the Rev. Fr. Seafuro preached an open air sermon to the Austrians and Italians, and Rev. Fr. O'Brien of the Cathedral, North Bay, in English to the English speaking part of the congregation. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, by Bishop O'Connor completed the functi ion. In the evening Bishop O'Connor presided at Vespers at St. Mary's, Campbellford.

The church at Healey Falls is a very pretty building, 40 by 28, with vestry 8 x 10, complete with belfry, stations of the cross, statues of the Sacred Heart, St. Joseph, the Blessed Virgin, etc.

Rev. Fr. Whibbs is to be complimented on the success that has crowned his undertaking, and the happy smiles on the faces of the Italians last Sunday will go far to repay him for the energy expended for their welfare.

IT GROWS HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, in none of these cases were the hair roots dead, nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed, and will not gum nor permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from faling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Sold only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

REV. F. J. SAWERS INDUCTED AS RECTOR OF ST. LUKE'

LARGE CONGREGATION

Quite a large number of people turned out Wednesday night to the induction service at St. Luke's church, the occasion being the induction of Rev. F. J. Sawers.

During the short time that Rev. Mr. Sawers has been here, he has shown marked ability in the performance of his duties and has succeeded in installing himself into the good graces of his parishioners.

His Lordship Bishop Sweeney, of Toronto, who was present for the event, delivered an inspiring address, in which he urged the people to awaken themselves and meet the responsibility of carrying on the Lord's work in the parish as a body. "We live in a day," said the speaker, "when the foundation of our faith and freedom is being constantly quest tioned. We should be prepared to meet the usurper and quench him with a firm hand." He concluded by briefly reviewing the various responsibilities that falls upon the rector, in the careful guidance of his people.

The new rector was then inducted with the usual impressive ceremony. During the course of the service special prayers were offered up for their Majesties the King and Queen.

Mr. Stratton has had arrangements completed between the Post Office Department and the Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the free conveyance of street letter carriers when on duty, in Peterborough, so as to expediate the delivery of mail. This will save the letter carriers considerable time in getting to the points from which they commence delivery, as well as considerable walking.

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

THE KING'S LETTER

Messrs. Raphael Tuck and Sons Have Published a Fac-simile

His Majesty the King, commanded Messrs. Raphael Tuck & Sons Co., Limited, to publish for sale to the public a fac-simile of the autograph letter which His Majesty addressed to the nation on his accession to the throne.

The symbolic border which surrounds the fac-simile letter has been designed by Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, O.M., R.A., and is a beautiful, characteristic example of this famous artist's work.

His Majesty has been graciously pleased to express satisfaction both with the border design and general manner in which the letter has been reproduced by the publishers.

For the convenience of the public, the fac-simile letter is issued in various methods of reproduction. The entire proceeds of the sale of this fac-simile autograph letter in all its forms will be given to an institution selected by His Majesty.

Description.

His Majesty's letter is rendered in allegorical setting designed by Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, O.M., R.A.

The artist's poetical design surrounding it may be said to tell two stories, the one denoting sorrow and the other rejoicing, thus embodying the King's message to his people.

In the centre is His Majesty's letter shown as a banner in the front of the Temple of the British Empire and crowned with the Royal armorial bearings; while on shields in the frieze of the cornice are the names of the Imperial Dominions beyond the Seas; bounded by justice and commerce.

The corner stones of the Empire, the Navy and Army, are indicated by the names, engraven on the plinths of the walls of the Temple, of those great men, foremost in their profession, who have so valiantly helped to maintain the traditions of their country.

Inside the building, to the left, is seen the lying-in-state of His Majesty King Edward VII., the Peacemaker, with his sorrowing people represented by a procession of faithful subjects who deposited wreaths to his glorious memory; while on the right a joyous note is struck by a rejoicing multitude foregathered on the occasion of the proclamation of the new king, and acclaiming the accession of a Monarch who, as the Sailor Prince, had already won his way to the hearts of his people.

In the centre of the foreground of this chaste design, sits Britannia supported on the left by Religion, represented by Hope praying and Faith as a Martyr tended by Charity. On the right the figure of Eloquence, representative of the governing form of the Country, supported by Music, the Fine Arts, Literature, and Science, complete a design full of thought and feeling, and portrayed in emblematical art at once tender and true.

The inexpensive "Popular" and 'Art Vellum' framing editions, Nos. 1 and 8 are especially appropriate for distribution among schools, hospitals, public institutions, etc., as a memorable souvenir of the new reign.

In addition the firm of Raphael Tuck & Sons Co. Ltd. have issued an extensive range of Coronation post cards and souvenir cards, beautiful specimens of which have reached this office. They are in keeping with all work of a similar nature gotten out by them.

Funeral Was Held Yesterday

The funeral of the late William Coleman took place yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery, and was largely attended, the cortege testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held. The members of St. John's choir, of which he was a member, attended in a body. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. W. Morphet, Hague Sawers, W. S. Common, A. Kingscote, Flowers and Geo. Chandler, all choir members.

In the obituary notice published on Wednesday, the name of one of the brothers, Mr. George Robins Coleman, was omitted.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

Picnic Was A Big Success

The picnic in aid of the fund of the new Roman Catholic Church at Kinmount, was held in Bobcaygeon on Thursday (Coronation Day.) The attendance was large, all parts of the parish being well represented, besides many being from Downeyville, Ennismore and Lindsay. The games and sports were well contested and a most enjoyable day was spent. The receipts of the day amounted to over $700 which will be applied in the reduction of the indebtedness of the new church. Rev. Father Galvin did all in his power to make the day most enjoyable.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 23.—There may be some irregularity in the market to-day, but we believe further selling will overdo the short side. We would make conservative purchases of good stocks on weak spots. Good crop news would probably cause a sharp covering movement. The bear party failed to get much real stock yesterday. We do not believe sales of that kind are contemplated, even in case of lower prices. The bulk of stocks is held by the big people.

Norfolk and Western may do better Atchison should be bought. We are friendly to Erie. The best houses advise purchase of Lehigh when weak. Steel may be erratic, but, like Reading and Union Pacific is over sold, and rallies are certain soon.

New York, N.Y., June 23.—Traders should define their position and they will, in view of improved crop conditions, find the bull side the most profitable. Don't bear steel too actively. Buy Reading and Pacifics for turns.

Boon to Women

Mrs. E. Griffith, of Main St., Hepworth, Ont., says: "A heavy bearing-down pain had settled across my back and sides. I was often unable to stoop or straighten myself up. I was languid and would have to let my housework stand. Nothing I had tried would benefit me. I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and concluded I would try them, which I did and soon found the long sought relief. My back strengthened and I began to feel better and stronger. I now enjoy my sleep without being disturbed and feel grateful to Booth's Kidney Pills for what they did for me."

Booth's Kidney Pills are a boon to women. She would know less of backaches if she took more of these wonderful pills. They are guaranteed. All druggists, 50c. box, or postpaid from the R. T. WILLIAM CROUGH

There passed away on Thursday morning, June 22nd, in the township of Ennismore, one of the oldest, one of the best known and respected residents, in the person of Mr. William Crough. The deceased gentleman, who had reached the age of 74 years, had been in good health until within two or three days of his demise. A severe attack of pneumonia was the immediate cause of death.

Mr. Crough had been a resident of the township for seventy-three years, having come to the township with his parents, from Hamilton, Ont., where he had been born, one year previously. His parents came to Canada from County Cork, Ireland, seventy five years ago. The late Mr. Crough's wife predeceased him about four years ago. He leaves three sons, Michael F., Daniel and William Henry, all residing in Ennismore, and four brothers, Patrick, and Michael, of Ennismore, Philip of Smith township, and John, of Alberta.

Mr. Crough served the township as reeve from time to time during thirty-five years, and was thus a member of the county council for several terms. In this capacity his sound sense and municipal knowledge enabled him to give effective service. His discretion, fairness of mind and good judgment led to his being applied to frequently as friendly arbiter in the little differences that crop up in every community, with generally happy results.

In politics Mr. Crough was a staunch Liberal, taking an active part in the promotion of Liberal interests; and, in his social and neighbourhood relations he showed the liberality and warmth of heart that are the characteristic of the race to which he belonged, and the parent of many acts of kindness and charity.

The funeral will take place to-morrow (Saturday) morning to St. Martin's church, Ennismore.

GEO. SPOTTON - President

KIT'S COLUMN

There was something extremely sad, not to say lonely, about the death of Carrie Nation. She made a rather pathetic picture, this stout little woman, standing with her hatchet, her plain face unsmiling, her whole attitude aggressive and unpromising. Her intention was most worthy. She wished to banish altogether and forever what is called the Demon of Drink — (by the way, the same Demon has more heads than a dozen hydras)—a Herculean work. Perhaps had she been younger, more attractive, or gifted with great personal magnetism — that gift of all the Good Fairies together—she would have achieved a large measure of success; but Carrie was elderly, plain, unmagnetic and tactless. Her hatchet was too small and too blunt, for all the glass and mirrors it sent crashing. She became something of a freak, and everyone knew how a touch of ridicule kills things. She appeared on the stage and the lecture platform, and amassed a little fortune, every penny of which she left to the cause she had championed.

What her early married life was is not chronicled, but we are told her second husband got a divorce from her on the grounds of "gross neglect." No doubt when she started on her campaign the home suffered. But is a man a child that he can not take care of himself, that he should suffer from "gross neglect?" What did he want besides his socks darned and his buttons sewed on? Most men, these days, can do these things and get dinner besides. At least that is their boast. I cannot tell you how often men have written boastingly to the correspondence column telling how splendidly they can manage without the help of women, wishing, in fact, they had been born women with no work to do beyond "paddling about the house." And not a few of us women but would be glad to exchange if for nothing but to see the men botch things, and shirk the dish-washing. However, Mr. Nation thought differently, and got rid of Carrie.

Query: Would Carrie Nation have lived more happily and done just as much good if she had minded her domestic duties and taken more care of her home? Perhaps her home was not one that called for the exercise, to any great extent, of domestic duties. Some unhappiness certainly drove her out to do what she did. And could any deathbed be more lonely? Not a soulwith her at the last moment but a hired attendant! Well, the hatchet is buried, and with it the poor thing herself.

A great deal of sloppy nonsense is being written about the coronation and some Canadian papers are being flooded with snobbish and greasy sycophantic dribble about "who was there," and what she had on, the price of her jewels, gowns and what not. The Mary and George fund affair was a bit of snobbishness unworthy of the empire. I frequently heard women discussing it — what they would give etc., generally concluding with the remark, "Oh, well, you can give as little as you please ;the amount is not put down, but your name is." As though Queen Mary would linger over any one in the long list of, to her, meaningless names! The Ontario Georges certainly gave a poor response, and quite rightly. The king or queen needs no such guaranty of Canada's loyalty. If you or I started a fund for some poor crippled child, or desolate old man, or homeless and forgotten woman, we would wait a long time before we could get together anything like the sum so quickly donated by Canadian Maries to the queen of England. How often we read of some old creature being sent to jail merely because he or she was homeless and neglected and forgotten by the children they had reared! How difficult it would be to get together a few dollars for the same! We heed not the poverty and misery at our doors while we gladly dip into the purse to promote some scheme that will bring our names into prominence in high circles. We are a lot of snobs, on the whole.

How would you like to have a magic cup? Such a one is in existence. By filling it with cold water you can obtain a drink flavoured with lemon, or strawberry, or ginger, or peppermint, or any other drink desired. But you cannot have Scotch or usquebaugh, or eau de vie, or champagne. The magic cup is a strictly temperate vessel and will have none of these. It resembles an old-fashioned pewter mug, and is composed of the essence of many things in a compressed form, with a glazing of sulphur. A number of these magic mugs were bought for use at the coronation fetes. Fill your cup and choose your flavour. After using it about fifty times you can turn it into a vase for holding flowers. The invention has just been shown in London, and I have little doubt that before long we shall see it in the shops of our enterprising Canadian chemists.

Have you heard of the new method of cooking in paper bags? It is creating quite a stir in London, and a friend, over there for the coronation, writes that there is an immense demand for it. It originated with M. Soyer, and he is holding demonstrations everywhere; at the offices of the great dailies, at prominent restaurants and family hotels. Presently he is to cook a dinner for the house of commons or "part" of it.

The food is placed in sealed paper bags of special construction. Fuel is saved, your meat loses no weight, all the juices are preserved, and everything is cooked to the most appetizing turn. You can cook your rashers and eggs in one bag, your potatoes in another, a kidney stew in a third, and chops and green peas in a fourth. A dinner of ten dishes was recently cooked on a gas range in three-quarters of an hour. My correspondent, who has eaten a paper-bag dinner, writes of it glowingly. I don't suppose you can use a bag twice; as to this I know nothing, but I expect shortly to be able to write from experience. There is an extremely brisk demand for these bags all over Britain and no doubt like other good things they will soon find their way to us. Meantime, as a good thing—I pass on the news.

The holidays are about due, and the matter of what to read during the annual outing vacation is, judging from enquiries, exciting some people. One might ask, why read at all during the all too short yearly fortnight? Suppose you lie on your back in the heart of some deep wood and watch the tree-tops waving in the lazy summer wind till you fall asleep? Yet no doubt there will come an off day or a gloomy day when one feels out of sorts for human companionship and tired of idling in the woods when a book—a "rattling good story," as my friend puts it — will be the one thing to lift the soul and carry it to pastures far and fresh. Ask me for no list. Not for me the latest novel, the last play, the current magazine, or the daily paper. The little book-shelf where the old friends—more or less battered and storm beaten like oneself—lie dogs-eared maybe, but never dusty, will supply your wants. The fellows on the shelves be very human in their way. It is not everyone of the circle of our acquaintance whom we would invite to accompany us on a holiday tour, nor is it every book we know that we would take with us on our travels. At home we can shelve any author for whom we are not in the mood, for we know another who will instantly fill his place, but abroad the fellow has us at his mercy if a book we must have being in bookish mood. So you must not take a book that will bore you, and the very latest novel bought at the railway stand is as likely as any to do that as any other. Not unless you *are fond of life in mosaic and inter*ested in life histories should you take one of Arnold Bennett's long delightful tales, or a "red-blood" story by Jack London, which is sure to pall. If you will have adventure with more than a spice of danger, take a tale of Phillips Oppenheim. He plays chess with Europe for his board and kings and states for his pawns. There are hundreds of live authors who, according to your trend of mind, will keep you merry company; but if you are wise, you will sandwich an old friend such as Amiel, or Monte Cristo, or Pickwick, or Becky Sharp between Maurice Hewlett and Wells or even Neil Lyons.

Delightful to think such comrades are being whirled in your suit-case to Muskoka or the Georgian Bay or the Thousand Isles. Delightful, too, to have in the hammock under the solitary tree in your small back garden, if, no other holiday is in sight, you are content to laze an hour away, awhile watching the little clouds steering their way across your patch or sky until they are lost behind yonder smoke stack; awhile listening to the ringing song of the oriole and watching his velvet black head bobbing over the side of his wonderful hammock nest which swings with every little breeze that ruffles the thick leaves overhead.

This is what the schoolboy wrote in his essay on Henry VIII: "His first wife was beheaded ;the second was executed; the third was revoked, but never smiled again, and 'Cænis' was found upon her heart when it was took. They was his hobby, and the main thing he done in his rain. He was succeeded by his great-grandmother, the beautiful and accomplished Virgin Queen, Bloody Mary, Queen of Scots, sometimes known as the Lady of the Lake, or the Lady of the Last Minstrel, and his last words was 'For England, Home and Beauty.'"

The above is respectfully dedicated to the sarcastic lady who recently asked that a true history of Henry VIII, his "virtues" and "noble qualities," be exploited in Kit's Column.

Teach thy necessity to reason thus;
There is no virtue like necessity.

Richard II., Act I., Sc. III.

Richard II. had just condemned Bolingbroke to banishment. The condemned man was overcome by the thought of having to remain for six long years absent from the "sweet soil" of England. His father, John of Gaunt, with the wisdom of years, was endeavoring to comfort him. His philosophy was: "Look on the bright side of things; let not misfortune sap your strength; it is an ill wind that blows no one good; shake off your depression; there is no place or circumstance in life that cannot be turned to good purpose by the man possessed of strength of will and courage:

"All places that the eye of heaven visits
Are to a wise man ports and happy havens.

Teach thy necessity to reason thus;
There is no virtue like necessity."

But Bolingbroke was inconsolable. To him the memory of his England would but make his exile more wretched, more unbearable. However, this was but temporary depression, caused by the unexpected severity of his unjust sentence. In his exile he made a virtue of necessity, and planned and plotted till the time was ripe for his return to England. The injustice done him had roused the sympathy of the powerful nobles of his country, and they rallied to his standard. He had, even before leaving England, by his own confession, set his eyes on the crown, and while abroad he studied with fixed purpose how to win it. Had he remained at home the jealousy of the contending factions would doubtless have prevented the attainment of his desires. Through making a "virtue of necessity," and using his exile and the confiscation of his estates as a means of rousing sympathy, Bolingbroke won the peerless prize, a seat on the throne.

Shakespeare is not afraid to repeat himself. The same idea expressed in very much the same words will be found in a number of his plays. In "Two Gentlemen of Verona," when Valentine was captured by brigands he was found to be scholarly, brave and of such goodly bearing that the Robin Hoods of the Italian forest urged him to become their leader. They offered him the generalship of their band, or, if he refused it, death.

"Are you content," they said, "to be our general.
To make a virtue of necessity,
And live, as we do, in this wilderness?"

Valentine made a virtue of necessity, and so wrought with the rough material over which he had command that when he returned to civilized life he was able to say for his men:

"Let them be recalled from their exile!
They are reformed, civil, full of good,
And fit for great employment."

There are excellent lessons to be learned from both of these situations. When the shadows fall blackest it may be but the lowering clouds that herald the rain that is to bless and fructify the earth. Of the crudest, roughest, most uncivilized material it is possible to mould and fashion things beautiful. Delicate perfume has been extracted from coal tar. By making a virtue of necessity Valentine was able to turn the brutal outlaws into worthy citizens.

Shakespeare was not the only man or the first to use the expression "make a virtue of necessity." It was an ancient proverb. The Latins used it, and probably, if we could call back the civilization of the Aryans, we might find it among them. Chaucer, the father of modern English, used it too, and Shakespeare no doubt found it a common aphorism in his own time. He endorsed it, however, and anything that Shakespeare endorses the bank of humanity has been in the habit of accepting as his.

The same thought appears in its most familiar form in George Farquhar's "The Twin Rivals," as "Necessity, the mother of invention." Primitive man found himself when he awoke to self-consciousness, in an antagonistic world. The progress of the race can be traced in its weapons, from the rude stone axe of the paleolithic age to the machine guns, the Dreadnoughts, and the airships of the twentieth century. England was of necessity, by her island character, shut out from the rest of the world. She made a virtue out of her necessity, and by her industry and mastery of the sea rose to the premier place among the powers. The ocean that isolated her from other European countries she made her chief means of defence.

Necessity has been the "argument of tyrants" and the "creed of slaves," according to Pitt. Church and state have excused their barbarous deeds, claiming necessity as their reason. Slaves and dullards have patiently borne the yoke, feeling themselves fated to their lots. In these instances instead of making a virtue of necessity, it is made a vice.

Pope has said, "Whatever is, is right." At anyrate, whatever is may be right. No matter in what position a man may be placed in life he can, if he has the will, make good out of ill, as did Valentine; turn loss into gain, as did Bolingbrooke.

FINED $195.50 FOR SELLING LIQUOR

(Port Hope Guide June 21st.)

The case of W. J. Coulter, of Ponty pool, charged with selling liquor without a license, which was adjourned for a week, came up this (Wednesday) morning. Mr. Harry Solomon, one of the whiskey detectives, was recalled but before any examination was conducted, Mr. Haverson, K.C., asked for an adjournment of fifteen minutes. This was granted and upon returning to the court room Mr. Haverson stated that Mr. Coulter wished to withdraw his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. No previous offence was admitted and Crown Attorney Kerr asked that the maximum fine be imposed.

Magistrate White ordered that the defendant pay a fine of $175.00 with costs of $20.50, a total of $195.50, or be imprisoned in the Counties' jail for three months at hard labour. The money was paid.

The case against Robert Hutchinson of Cavanville was in progress at the time of going to press.

BABY'S LIFE THREATENED BY SUMMER COMPLAINT

The life of every baby is threatened during the hot summer months by that dreaded trouble — summer complaint. Thousands of children die every summer from this trouble — thousands of happy homes are made dark and sorrowful because a precious little life has been snuffed out. But mothers, though you fear this trouble, you can yet fight it — yes, fight it and defeat it with Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. Steffs, Coutts, Alta., says: "During the hot summer days my little boy took ill with summer complaint. He was seized with vomiting and nothing helped him till I got Baby's Own Tablets. They relieved him and made him a strong healthy child." The Tablets are for sale by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAGE AND SULPHUR CURES DANDRUFF

Restores Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Colour—Itching Scalp Quickly Stopped

This applies to Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, for if it does not do exactly what is claimed for it, the sales would naturally drop off. However, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy does "make good," as evidenced by its daily increasing sales. Druggists say that this preparation gives the best satisfaction of any hair remedy ever sold. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It removes dandruff, strengthens the hair, gives new life to dull or parched hair, and gradually restores gray hair to natural colour.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y.—I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for womb trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did more for me than the doctors did. I have gained five pounds. I hope that everyone who is suffering from female trouble, nervousness and backache will take the Compound. I owe my thanks to Mrs. Pinkham. She is the working girl's friend for health, and all women who suffer should write to her and take her advice.—Miss Tillie Plenig, 3 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

That possibility didn't seem to me now half so terrifying as did the old bogey of not getting a rise. I suppose for one thing this was because we neither of us felt so keenly the responsibility of the boy. In the old days we had both thought that he was doomed if we didn't save enough to send him through college and give him, at the end of his course, capital enough to start in business for himself. In other words, Dick seemed then utterly dependent upon us. It was as terrible a thought to think of leaving him penniless at twenty-one as leaving him an orphan at five months. The burden of his whole career rested on our shoulders.

But now, as I saw him take his place among fellows who were born dependent upon themselves, as I learned about youngsters at the school, who, at ten, earned their own living selling newspapers and even went through college on their earnings, as I watched him grow strong, physically, and tackle his work aggressively, I realized that even if anything should happen to either Ruth or myself the boy would be able to stand on his own feet. He had the whole world before him down here. If worst came to worst he could easily support himself daytimes, and at night learn either a trade or a profession. This was not a dream on my part: I saw men who were actually doing it. I was doing it myself for that matter. Personally I felt as easy about Dick's future by the middle of that first winter as though I had established an annuity for him which would assure him all the advantages I had ever hoped he might receive. So did Ruth.

I remember some horrible hours I passed in that little suburban house towards the end of my life there. Ruth would sit huddled up in a chair and try to turn my thoughts to other things, but I could only pace the floor when I thought what would happen to her and the boy if anything should happen to me; or what would happen to the boy alone if any thing should happen to the both of us. The case of Mrs. Bennington hung over me like a night-mare and the other possibility was even worse. Why, when Cummings came down with pneumonia and it looked for a while as though he might die, I guess I suffered, by applying his case to mine, as much as ever he himself did on his sick bed. I used to inquire for his temperature every night as though it were my own. So did every man in the neighbourhood.

Sickness was a wicked misfortune to that little crowd. When death did pick one of us, the whole structure of that family came tumbling down like a house of cards. If by the grace of God the man escaped, he was left hopelessly in debt by doctor's bills if in the meanwhile he hadn't lost his job. Sickness meant disaster, swift and terrible, whatever its outcome. We ourselves escaped it, to be sure, but I've sweat blood over the mere thought of it.

Now, if our thoughts ever took so grim a turn, we could speak quite calmly about it. It was impossible for me ever to think of Ruth as sick. My mind couldn't grasp that. But occasionally when I have come wet and Ruth has said something about my getting pneumonia if I didn't look out, I've asked myself what this would mean. In the first place I now could secure admission to the best hospitals in the country free of cost. I had only to report my case to the city physician and if I were sick enough to warrant it, he would notify the hospital and they would send down an ambluance for me. I would be carried to a clean bed in a clean room and would receive such medical attention as before I could have had only as a millionaire. Physicians of national reputation would attend me, medicines would be supplied me, and I'd have a night and day nurse for whom outside I would have to pay some forty dollars a week. Not only this ,but if I recovered I would be supplied the most nourishing foods in the market, and after that sent out of town to one of the quiet convalescent hospitals if my condition warranted it. I don't suppose a thousand dollars would cover what here would be given me for nothing. And I wouldn't either be considered or treated like a charity patient. This was all my due as a citizen—as a toiler. Of course this would be done also for Dick as well as for Ruth.

I don't mean to say that such thoughts took up much of my time. I'm not morbid and we never did have any sickness—we lived too sanely for that. But just as our new view-point on Dick relieved us of a tension, which before had sapped our strength, so it was a great relief to have such insurance as this in the background of our minds. It took all the curse off sickness that it's possible to take off. In three or four such ways as these a load of responsibility was removed from us, and we were left free to apply all our energy to the task of upbuilding, which we had in hand.

This may account somewhat for the reserve strength which Ruth as well as myself seemed to tap. Then, of course the situation as a whole was such as to make any woman with imagination buoyant. Ruth had an active part in making a big rosy dream come true. She wasn't economizing merely to make the salary cover the current expenses. Her task was really the vital one of the whole undertaking; she was accumulating capital. When you stop to think of it she was the brains of the business; I was only the machine. I dug the money out of the ground, but that wouldn't have amounted to much if it had all gone for nothing except to keep the machine moving from day to day. The dollar she saved was worth more than a hundred dollars earned and spent again. It was the only dollar which counted. They say a penny saved is a penny earned. To my mind a penny saved was worth to us at this time every cent of a dollar.

So Ruth was not only an active partner but there was another side to the game that appealed to her.

"The thing I like about our life down here," she said to me one night "is the chance it gives me to get something of myself into every single detail of the home."

I didn't know what she meant because it seemed to me that was just what she had always done. But she shook her head when I said so.

"No," she said. "Not the way I can now."

"Well, you didn't have a servant and must have done whatever was done," I said.

"You and the boy weren't all my own then," she said. "I had to waste a great deal of time on things outside the house. Sometimes it used to make me feel as though you were just one of the neighbours, Billy."

I began to see what she meant. But she certainly found now just as much time if not more to spare on the women and babies all around us.

"They aren't neighbours," she said. "They are friends."

I suppose she felt like that because what she did for them wasn't just wasted energy like an evening at cards.

But she went back again and again as though it were a song, to this notion that our new home was all her own.

"You may think me a pig, Billy," she said. "But I like it. I like to pick out all myself, every single potato you and the boy eat; I like to pick out every leaf of lettuce, every apple. It makes me feel as though I was doing something for you."

"Good land—" I said.

But she wouldn't let me finish.

"No, Billy," she said. "You don't understand what all that means to me—how it makes me a part of you and Dick as I never was before. And I like to think that in everything you wear there's a stitch of mine right close to you. And that when you and the boy lie down at night I'm touching you because I made everything clean for you with my own hands".

It makes my throat grow lumpy even now, when I remember the eager, half-ashamed way she looked up into my eyes as she said this. Lord, sometimes she made me feel a little child and other times she made me feel like a big giant. But which ever way she made me feel at the moment, she always left me wishing that I had in me every good thing a man can have, so that I might be half way worthy of her. There are times when a fellow knows that as a man he doesn't count for much as compared with any woman. And with such a woman as Ruth—well, God knows I tried to do my best in those days and have tried to do that ever since, but it makes me ache to think how little I've been able to give her of all she deserves. In her housework Ruth had developed a system that would have made a fortune for any man if applied in the same degree to his business. I learned a lot from her. Instead of going at her tasks in the haphazard fashion of most women, or doing things just because her grandmother and her mother did them a certain way, she used her head. I've already told how she did her washing little by little every day instead of waiting for Monday and then tearing herself all to pieces and that's a fair example of her method. When she was cooking breakfast and had a good fire, she'd have half her dinner on at the same time. Anything that was just as good warmed up, she'd do then. She'd make her stews and soups while waiting for the biscuits to bake and boil her rice or make her cold puddings while we were eating. When that stove was working in the morning you couldn't find a square inch of it that wasn't working. As a result, she planned never to spend over half an hour on her dinner at night, and by the time the breakfast dishes were washed she was through with her cooking until then.

She used her head even in little things; she'd make one dish do the work of three. She never washed this dish until she was through with it for good. And she'd find the time at odd moments during her cooking to wash these dishes as they came along. If she spilled anything on the floor she stopped right then and there and cleaned it up, with the result that when breakfast was served, the kitchen looked as ship-shape as when she began. When she was busy, she was the busiest woman you ever saw. She worked with her head, both hands, and her feet. As a result instead of fiddleing around all day when she was through she was through.

Tired In Body and in Mind

Worn Out by the Monotonous Indoor Life of Winter

Spring Finds the Blood Weak and the System Run Down—Vigor is Restored by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Just at the time when the buds are bursting and the birds are chirping merrily in the treetops, many people feel most keenly the debilitating and enervating effects of indoor winter life.

The blood is so thin and watery that it fails to supply nutrition to the nervous system and to the vital organs. You feel tired, weak and discouraged, appetite fails, digestion is impaired energy and ambition are lacking, and strange depressing feelings come over you.

But nature has provided certain restoratives to be used at this time of year to form new, rich blood and create new nerve force. These elements are found in condensed and easily assimilated form in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Thousands of men and women have learned to escape this spring depression and weakness and discouragement by using this great restorative. Vitality is increased, strength and confidence return, buoyancy is felt in every movement of the body, pallor and weakness and disease give place to the glow of health and vigour of mind and body.

Dr. Chase's Nerve food, the great spring tonic and restorative, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

When she got up in the morning she knew exactly what she had to do for the day, just how she was going to do it and just when she was going to do it. And you could bank that the things at night would be done, and be done just as she had planned. She thought ahead. That's a great thing to master in any business.

In my own work, the plan I had outlined for myself I developed day by day. At the end of three months I found that even what little Italian I had learned was a help to me. The mere fact that I was studying their language placed me on a better footing with my fellows. They seemed to receive it as a compliment and to feel that I was taking a personal interest in them as a race. My desire to practise my few phrases was always a letter of introduction to a newcomer.

I talked with them about everything—where they came from, what made them come, what they did before they came, how long they worked and what pay they got in Italy, how they saved to get over here, how they secured their jobs, what they hoped to do eventually, where they lived, how large their families were, how much it cost them to live, and what they ate. I inquired as to what they liked and what they disliked about their work; what they considered fair and what unfair about the labour and the pay; what they liked and didn't like about the foreman. Often I couldn't get any opinion at all out of them on these subjects; often it was honest and often it wasn't intelligent. But as with my other questioning when I sifted it all down and thought it over, I was surprised at how much information I did get. If I didn't learn facts which could be put into words, I was left with a very definite impression and a very wide general knowledge.

In the meanwhile my note book was always busy. I kept jotting down names and addresses with enough running comment to help me to recall the men individually. I wasn't able to locate one out of ten of those men later but the tenth was worth all the trouble.

sAthe winter advanced and the air grew frosty and the snow and ice came, the work in a good many ways was harder. And yet everything considered I don't know but what I'd rather work outdoors at zero than at eighty-five. Except that my hands got numb and everything was more difficult to handle I didn't mind the cold. There was generally exercise enough to keep the blood moving.

We had a variety of work before spring. After the subway job I shifted to a big house foundation and there met another group of skilled workmen from whom I learned much. The work was easier and the surroundings pleasanter if you can speak of pleasant surroundings about a hole in the ground. The soil was easier to handle and we went to no great depth. Here, too, I met a new gang of labourers. I missed many familiar faces out of the old crowd and found some interesting new men. Rafferty had gone and I was sorry. I saw more or less of him however, during the winter for he dropped around now and then on Sunday evenings. I don't think he ever forgot the incident of the sewer gas.

I enjoyed, too, every hour in my night school. I found here a very large per cent. of foreigners and they were naturally of the more ambitious type. I found I had a great deal to learn even in the matter of spreading mortar and using a trowel. It was really fascinating work and in the instructor I made an invaluable friend. Through him I was able to arrange my scattered fragments of information into larger groups. Little by little I told him something of my plan and he was very much interested in it. He gave me many valuable suggestions and later proved of substantial help in more ways than one.

¶ The "Hecla" burns wood or coal equally well.

All you need to do if you want to burn wood is to slip a wood grate in through the big door of the furnace. Not a bolt or screw is necessary. You can fix it yourself without soiling your hands or clothing.

The wood grate is supplied free with each "Hecla" furnace, and doubles its usefulness to those who sometimes want to burn wood.

Note the Air Jets in the Door.

They are there to heat the air that passes into the fire chamber. Hot air consumes the gas; cold air checks the fire.

BILL'S CLOTHES

A Short Story.

Bill bounced in his chair. "The dressmaker is coming again to-morrow?" he said; "why, she is hardly ever out of the house! Do I have a tailor working here days together for me?"

"It might be a good job if you did," said Mrs. Bradbury, nodding significantly.

"Look at me!" cried Bill, as he stood up, revolving slowly before her for most dissatisfied inspection. "Two pounds-ten inclusive I gave for this suit—while you—"

"But look at the difference between us!" said Mrs. Bradbury cruelly. "Don't you know that good looks are letters of introduction—that 'you are received according to your appearance,, and taken leave of according to your deserts,' 'that manners make the man,' and a man's brains are usually illuminated, or extinguished, to the onlooker by the shine or shade of his tile, that 'to be poor is a misfortune, but to look it is a crime', how many more truisms must I fire off to convince you that your two-pound-ten suit is a ghastly failure, and that the dressmaker who turns me out is a good investment?"

Bill was not a person to be routed easily, but he was to a certain extent crestfallen as he lifted his two-pound-ten coat-tails and reseated himself in his chair.

It flashed disagreeably across him that for all his undoubted position, his friends fought shy of him in the street, and looked another way when he met them at one of his brief visits to the Park, while in the dress-suit he had been wearing for the last fifteen years he had so constantly been handed empty coffee cups, and requested by arrogant persons to fetch their hats, or call a cab, that he had got into one or two first-class rows in consequence.

He remembered that when he had to catch a train, the porters invariably opened a third-class door for him, that beggars never ran after him outdoors (this was a distinct boon), and that the women he condescended to admire when he went abroad did not appear to admire him—quite the contrary indeed.

"And cheap cloth is an abomination," said Mrs. Bradbury, who had unerringly followed the working of her spouse's mind, "and two cheap suits cost more than a single good one. 'Cheap and nasty'—it's a fine proverb. I buy good materials, and they last for ever; it's a sin to put good work into bad stuff, and never pays—it costs just as much to make up rubbish as what will wear well, and I've had the luck to find a Frenchwoman who fits perfectly, and actually goes out to work; yet you grumble at her when I should be a disgrace, not a credit, to you without her."

Bill was silent. He hoped that his wife would not notice that his vaunted suit of clothes was already wearing greasy at the seams ,though he had only had it a week.

"Worse than that," she went on, "your credit, your temper, and your pocket suffer equally. No person can possibly be at his best who is not quite at his ease about his appearance—he should do the best possible for himself in that way—then forget it; but the ill-dressed man or woman will be reminded at every turn of his or her shortcomings. Your very friends—as totally apart from your acquaintances—like you better when you are a credit to them than the reverse, and the poorest one you've got suffers or gains in his surroundings by the figure you cut when you go to see him. In short, you are either an affront to him or a consolation."

"And if people can't take me as I am, they may go to the devil for all I care," said Mr. Bradburn, goaded into bad language at last by what he knew to be the truth

"Where they will, probably find you," said Mrs. Bradbury neatly. "Only a millionaire could afford to dress as you do. 'To him that hath shall be given,' and not one of your rich relations would dream of leaving you a penny. I don't say live beyond your means—but I do say make as good an appearance as you can on it, and try to make an agreeable unit in this ghastly, neutral-tinted crowd that paces unendingly through our streets."

"I hate loud colors," said Bill.

"So do I—yet I never see the crowd edging the towing path, boat race day, or spreading itself in those meetings in the Park, without thinking—

Where every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile!

Think of what a crowd in the East meant—of the beauty, the gorgeousness of it!"

"And think of the Dyer's bills," said Mr. Bradbury drily, "and how nice our purple and scarlet vestments would look in a London fog. We should look fine in Mincing Lane tripping over our cloaks from Tyre and Sidon."

"Yes, Bill, you would. Any scrap of colour or brightness that you can contribute to any place you are in is a step towards brightening up our corner of this dull earth. God is Love, God is Light, God is Colour, and everything alive should try and be as bright and beautiful as it knows how."

"Very good, my dear. When I meet you out in a ruby gown, a blue cloak, and a magenta feather, I shall know how you are sacrificing yourself to your scheme of beautifying the world."

"You will never see that. You might even find me in a black dress—but I should have some one pure bit of colour somewhere—a flower, if possible, that should cheer every eye that saw it—just as only knowing it was there would make me happy."

"Well, thank God," said Mr. Bradbury, "I never felt like that. To be clean and tidy—that's all I want."

"Now you're got really good blue eyes," said his wife meditatively, "and they cry out for a bit of colour somewhere—a little dark blue in your stock, for instance, or a buttonhole with some blue in it—yet you put on a hard black tie, and if you ever are beguiled with a flower you invariably choose a red one or a white one!"

Bill smoked and looked pleased.

He had forgotten that his eyes were blue, and he liked Rose to notice it, and began to remember that when he was making love to her he had been most particular about his clothes and ties, and so on, and he distinctly recalled that at that period he once had a pair of trousers of a very neat, invisible sort of blue that he had fancied mightily.

"Yes," said his wife, "a cornflower buttonhole—or a narrow bird's-eye tie in a neat bow—and a white waistcoat cut the right way—and a properly made alpaca suit chosen by me, and you would be a downright good-looking man!"

"Perhaps," said Bill, taking her pretty chin in his forefinger and thumb, "you would like to change the man, too, while you are about it?"

"No, sir, I shouldn't. You were good enough to fall in love with, and you're good enough to stick to—but to be proud of you when we walk out together would be enchanting."

"So you're ashamed of me," said Mr. Bradbury, thinking of the many proud half hours he had had walking with his wife, how people always saw her and smiled at her approach, yet she never brought him in a bill of any kind, and bore the accusation of extravagance, hurled against her by her enemies, with a smile.

"I'm never ashamed of you," she said softly, "I look beneath your atrocious coat, and I find you. But the others, who don't know, judge you by your appearance—and the man they see is morally mentally, and socially inferior to the man I know. How can they look inside your brains or heart? And I say that the good, well-fitting coat that a man wears who can pay for and has the right to wear it, is a truer expression of him than the coarse, ill-made one that in price and quality was clearly intended for an inferior and much poorer man."

"My dear," said Mr. Bradbury, "for which tailor do you hold a brief?"

His wife shook her head so tragically that Bill got up and went over to the glass. He twisted himself this way and that, but £2 10s. stared him in the face all over. His figure was tall and really good, but so effectually disguised by its covering, that, as his wife often remarked, he might have looked better if he were short—he would have shown less of that shoddy covering.

"A big man wants such careful dressing," she used to say. "It's just like a tall woman—but oh! when she is a success, she beats the little one into fits!"

Mr. Bradbury squared his broad shoulders before the long glass; he had not studied his appearance like this for years—not since he used anxiously to look to see if he had on what Rose would like.

"And you used to be so neat, Bill," she said mournfully. "I always had an eye for a smart man, and vowed I would never marry a man who wasn't!"

"I'm neat now," he said, still intent on the glass. "Hang it all, Rose, do you want me to use scent?"

"No. I'd murder you if you did. But it's nice," she added slowly, unwillingly even. "to own a thoroughly well-turned out man; he is such a credit to one, just as you may love a man with all your heart, and yet he can make you look, and feel, small. A woman is proud, you know, and likes to make the world admit that she has good taste—even in selecting a husband."

Bill was still looking in the glass, but he was taking stock now of his wife, who somehow seemed of another world than his; yet if anything the advantage lay with him in point of birth and position. In a sudden flash he realised how she must have winced for him, how she might have drifted—how in the mere impulse of like towards like, she might have slipped little by little, into the company of one of the many presentable men who admired her—he had wounded her pride, and a woman's pride in the man she loves is so much keener, so much more easily hurt, than her own.

"Rose," he said, in a voice that had suddenly become twenty years younger, "how was it that you didn't take up with one of those other men?" She looked at him rather sadly.

"Oh!" she said, "a little walk—a little talk—and into her face came a sudden illumination that revealed much). "I never was a reasonable person in anything, and I never would begin it, because if I had, I should never have stopped."

"Rose," cried out her husband as if she had hurt him.

"But I never did begin, Bill—I wouldn't. I always try and not squirm all over when you come to fetch me from a party or somewhere, where the men are all so fresh and well groomed—and yet there is seldom one there you couldn't beat easily if you tried."

"So all the men pity you when they see me," said Bill, sitting down suddenly, as under a shock, "and they envy me. So I get the best of it all round," he added slowly.

"Yes, they think I must have loved you so very much to have married such clothes and that you love me so very, very little to wear them. You see, Bill, people can't look inside your mind; but they do see your hat and guess what sort of a man you are by its style and shape. And a man who is really good inside likes to have his outside to match—purely as a matter of taste—to please himself, even more than others. The laborer should be made to stick to frieze, the man of brains and birth should wear the dress of his class. I'd give worlds to have the old distinctions between the classes back, and the old Sumptuary laws put into force. It would be a real treat to wear satin again without emulating one's cook!"

"You attach far too much value to externals," said Bill, trying to harden himself into a middle-aged man again, and failing signally.

"No, I do not—because, as I said before, it is by externals we make ourselves known and influence others. It can't hurt to convey a pleasant instead of a disagreeable impression—you can do much more with a person who likes you than one whom you repel—and you take much more sunshine about with you when you know you're exactly right, than when you feel you are all wrong! People often say to me, 'How nice and well you look!' It's only that I'm—fresh. You're very fond of me, Bill, aren't you?"

"What do you think?"

"Well, I think you're much fonder of me than I am of you. And once it was the other way round. Oh! you need not fly into a rage—but shall I tell you what has enabled me to keep your love all those years? Mainly, by being clever about clothes. If I had let myself slide as you have done, you would not be a bit fond of me now. I should be laid on the shelf with the broken china, and statues without noses—passed into the limbo of what was, not what is. You would never have bought all the lovely things in this room—it is a lovely room—if you had a frump to set down in the middle as chief ornament. You've gradually had your eye educated up to real taste, and I think it's chiefly a hard, brutal sort of Philistinism that makes you delight in spreading out your two-pound-ten coat-tails, and thank God you are economical—otherwise mean."

"So it is a sin to be economical," said Bill; "and pray, where would you and the rest of women be if all men were spendthrifts?"

"No man has a right to dress above or below his station," said Rose decidedly. "By spending what you can afford to spend on your appearance, you encourage trade, you contribute your mite to lifting the pall of depression that is weighing down every industry, from the highest to the lowest. People blame spendthrifts—but if they ruin themselves, they do help others, their money percolates through every class, and it lives, it fulfils its uses; it is the misers, and the people who don't know how to spend their riches who ought to be suppressed, and if they won't spend it properly, deserve to have it taken from them."

Bill gasped.

"A few women like you would land everyone belonging to you in the workhouse," he said.

"Oh!" cried Rose, "I can pity the unselfishness of misers who hoard their money for wastrels to spend—but I admire the generous-handed man more—for his money extravagances are good for trade. Oh!" she added softly, "if you only knew how delicious it is to a woman to be proud of the man she loves!"

"The man she loves." Bill drew a deep breath and thanked God that at least there was no past participle there. And yet all her love had not saved him from outraging his wife's and friends' feelings by suits at two-pound-ten.

He seemed to see the horrid figures whichever way he looked—and yet he had been so proud of them, so unostentatiously fond of comparing his economy with Rose's silken frivolities and frequent changes of raiment. Now her words, "Yes; but look at the difference between us!" smote him with the accent of truth—and then she came over and kissed him, with a half-earnest, half-laughing look, and went away to bed.

He sat for a while in deep thought—(that look in his wife's face of memory of another man hit him hard)—then slapped his leg with a decision that meant business. "To-day's Monday; it can be done by Sunday, and it shall!" he said.

* * * * * * *

It was Sunday morning, and Rose came into the room slowly, buttoning her gloves for church parade, and started at seeing a man with his back turned to her, standing at the window, who belonged most unmistakably to the smart brigade from the little crinkled point at the nape of his neck (the ill-dressed man invariably lets his hair grow long) to the hang of his supremely well-cut coat and boots, while reflected in the mirror she saw just a gleam of cornflower blue. She stod gazing at the familiar, yet unfamiliar, figure, glanced at the hat and gloves—also perfect of their kind on the table near him—then with a beating heart stepped quickly forward, and with almost tears in her voice ejaculated, "Bill!"

Bill turned, revealing himself as what he really was, a remarkably good-looking, well set-up fellow, and the pride in himself that should be encouraged in every man stirred in him as Rose stood on top-toe, pulled his face down, and kissed him tenderly.

"Oh, Bill, Bill!" she cried, standing off to look at him, "come along, or we shall be late, and I want all my enemies to see you; they will hate me worse than ever! They never forgave me for being clever about my clothes and your being so fond of me, but a real, lawful, smart man of my own—they'll be fit to murder me!"

And they were.

The good heart, with a smart coat outside it, is what every woman loves and Rose had got it!

"But I never did begin, Bill—I wouldn't. I always tit and not squirm all over when you came to fetch me from a party or somewhere, where the men are all so fresh and well groomed—and yet there is seldom one there you couldn't beat easily if you tried."

"So all the men pity you when they see me," said Bill, sitting down suddenly, as under a shock, "and they envy me. So I get the best of it all round," he added slowly.

"Yes, they think I must have loved you so very much to have married such clothes and that you love me so very, very little to wear them. You see, Bill, people can't look inside your mind; but they do see your hat and guess what sort of a man you are by its style and shape. And a man who is really good inside likes to have his outside to match—purely as a matter of taste—to please himself, even more than others. The laborer should be made to stick to frieze, the man of brains and birth should wear the dress of his class. I'd give workin to have the old distinctions between the classes back, and the old Sumptuary laws put into force. It would be a real treat to wear satin again without emulating one's cook!"

"You attach far too much value to externals," said Bill, trying to harden himself into a middle-aged man again, and failing signally.

"No, I do not—because, as I said before, it is by externals we make ourselves known and influence others. It can't hurt to convey a pleasant instead of a disagreeable impression—you can do much more with a person who likes you than one whom you repel—and you take much more sunshine about with you when you know you're exactly right, than when you feel you are all wrong! People often say to me, 'How nice and well you look!' It's only that I'm—fresh. You're very fond of me, Bill, aren't you?"

"What do you think?"

"Well, I think you're much fonder of me than I am of you. And once it was the other way round. Oh! you need not fly into a rage—but shall I tell you what has enabled me to keep your love all these years? Mainly, by being clever about clothes. If I had let myself slide as you have done, you would not be a bit fond of me now. I should be laid on the shelf with the broken china, and statues without noses—passed into the limbo of what was, not what is. You would never have bought all the lovely things in this room—it is a lovely room—if you had a frump to set down in the middle as chief ornament. You've gradually had your eye educated up to real taste, and I think it's chiefly a hard, brutal sort of Philistinism that makes you delight in spreading out your two-pound-ten coat-tails, and thank God you are economical—otherwise mean."

"So it is a sin to be economical," said Bill; "and pray, where would you and the rest of women be if all men were spendthrifts?"

"No man has a right to dress above or below his station," said Rose decidedly. "By spending what you can afford to spend on your appearance, you encourage trade, you contribute your mite to lifting the pall of depression that is weighing down every industry, from the highest to the lowest. People blame spendthrifts—but if they ruin themselves, they do help others, their money percolates through every class, and it lives, it fulfils its uses; it is the misers, and the people who don't know how to spend their riches who ought to be suppressed, and if they won't spend it properly, deserve to have it taken from them."

Bill gasped.

"A few women like you would land everyone belonging to you in the workhouse," he said.

"Oh!" cried Rose, "I can pity the unselfishness of misers who hoard their money for wastrels to spend—but I admire the generous-handed man more—for his money extravagances are good for trade. Oh!" she added softly, "if you only knew how delicious it is to a woman to be proud of the man she loves!"

"The man she loves." Bill drew a deep breath and thanked God that at least there was no past participle there. And yet all her love had not saved him from outraging his wife's and friends' feelings by suits at two-pound-ten.

He seemed to see the horrid figures whichever way he looked—and yet he had been so proud of them, so unostentatiously fond of comparing his economy with Rose's silken frivolities and frequent changes of raiment. Now her words, "Yes, but look at the difference between us!" smote him with the accent of truth, and then she came over and kissed him, with a half-earnest, half-laughing look, and went away to bed.

He sat for a while in deep thought—(that look in his wife's face of memory of another man hit him hard)—then slapped his leg with a decision that meant business. "To-day's Monday, it can be done by Sunday, and it shall!" he said.

* * * * * * *

It was Sunday morning, and Rose came into the room slowly, buttoning her gloves for church parade, and started at seeing a man with his back turned to her, standing at the window, who belonged most unmistakeably to the smart brigade from the little crinkled point at the nape of his neck (the ill-dressed man invariably lets his hair grow long) to the hang of his supremely well-cut coat and boots, while reflected in the mirror she saw just a gleam of cornflower blue. She stod gazing at the familiar, yet unfamiliar, figure, glanced at the hat and gloves—also perfect of their kind on the table near him—then with a beating heart stepped quickly forward, and with almost tears in her voice ejaculated, "Bill!"

Bill turned, revealing himself as what he really was, a remarkably good-looking, well set-up fellow, and the pride in himself that should be encouraged in every man stirred in him as Rose stood on top-toe, pulled his face down, and kissed him tenderly.

"Oh, Bill, Bill!" she cried, standing off to look at him, "come along, or we shall be late, and I want all my enemies to see you; they will hate me worse than ever! They never forgave me for being clever about my clothes and your being so fond of me, but a real, lawful, smart man of my own—they'll be fit to murder me!"

And they were.

The loyal heart, with a smart coat outside it, is what every woman loves, and Rose had got it!

VISIT TO THE ZOO ENJOYED BY KING

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

KING GEORGE, with the Queen and royal children, recently paid a surprise visit to the Zoo to inspect the mammals, birds and reptiles in the King's new South African collection, which reached London a few weeks ago.

While the King and Queen were thoroughly interested in everything they saw, the royal children, from the Prince of Wales down to little Prince Henry, had a royal good time. Roosevelt, the Teddy bear, attracted attention to himself at once by performing acrobatic feats, but the royal children were more interested in the pranks of four lion cubs and shivered delightedly as they peered into the cages where cobras were basking in the sun and hundreds of South African snakes were hissing as they twisted and squirmed.

Little Prince Henry was interested in a blue-black babboon called "the Captain," and all the children laughed as they saw the rhinoceros Jimmy affectionately rubbing his nose against that of the zebra in the next cage. Jimmy drank a gallon of milk while the children were watching him, and, like Oliver Twist, apparently wanted "more."

The King fed the giant seal and took especial notice of the king penguin. "Hobble Skirt," as it is named, waddled down the path to meet the King. Standing on one foot, it held the other in the air for the King to shake. King George readily acceded to the mute request, and the Queen, coming up at the moment, stooped and patted its soft, gray back. When the royal children arrived "Hobble Skirt" came in for more rapturous attention.

Meanwhile the keepers had begun feeding the sea lions and penguins. As they did so the King pointed out that the king penguin was not getting its share of fish. Several herrings were promptly thrown in its direction, but "Hobble Skirt," evidently feeling too hot to be hungry, declined, and waddled back to its enclosure. In reply to the King's inquiry it was stated that the penguin's daily ration was eighteen fresh herrings. His Majesty seemed very loath to part from the bird and remarked as he left that he would like to have taken it home with him to Buckingham Palace.

The King and Queen said they enjoyed their visit immensely. The royal children didn't need to say so. Little Prince Henry had to be coaxed to leave.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid a Busy Hostess; Dorchester House Is Kept Lively

Well Known Americans Are Among the Recent Guests of Ambassador's Wife.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

MR. AND MRS. WHITELAW REID have been very busy receiving American visitors at Dorchester House, entertaining them as well as many of their English friends. One of the largest parties they have given up to the present was in the stately banqueting hall, when the long table, heaped with pink and white flowers, was a beautiful sight.

The guests included the Russian Ambassador and Countess Benckendorff, who wore her high diamond tiara and diamond necklace and pearls with a rich brocade dress; the German Ambassador and the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire.

Among the American guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft and their daughter. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and Mrs. Taft were also guests at the recent royal dinner at Devonshire House, when Queen Mary singled them out for a chat. The Queen asked Mrs. Taft her plans for the summer and showed great interest in her proposed tour through England and possibly Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurens Van Alen stayed in Europe for the coronation festivities. They may join Mr. Van Alen, Sr., in America, not returning to Europe till the autumn.

Mrs. Mackay has returned to No. 6 Carlton House Terrace, after a long absence from London, and her daughter, Princess Colonna di Stigliano, is stopping with her this month, as well as her granddaughter and her husband, Count and Countess Jules Bonvouloir. Mrs. Mackay had a large party of friends on Coronation Day to view the passing of the royal procession from the terrace, which commanded a finer view of the procession than any place along the route.

Among others who came here for the coronation is Mrs. Edmund Bayles, who is a regular visitor to England every summer, and, having procured quarters in London, will stay on for some weeks before going north for her annual visit to Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin at Balmacaan.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Depew made a short stay in Paris before coming to London for the coronation, and purpose staying on till September before returning to America for the Newport season. Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould are expected to proceed to Scotland after the coronation festivities. Among other visitors are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carter, of Philadelphia.

Lady Cheylesmore, who is now at her house in Prince's Gate, is spending her time between town and her beautiful place at Cooper Hill, which, though making good progress, will not be quite ready for some time yet. Her sister, Mrs. French Vanderbilt joined her for the coronation.

LONDON THEATRES ARE DOING LITTLE

Many Years Since Business Was so Dull, and Now the Weather Is Blamed.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

IT has been many years, so they tell me, since London theatres have been so scantily patronized as in the last week. Managers are aghast at their half filled houses and are wondering if a coronation is a good thing or not. There is not a theatre in London that has been "sold out" in the last week, and most of them have been only half filled. Englishmen are thoroughly loyal, even theatrical managers, and so they blame the bad business to the hot weather. Weather is such a good and convenient thing to have on tap!

Miss Fanny Ward has arrived from America with her fascinating smile and rosebud lips. She has also taken an apartment in Hanover square for the summer.

Mr. Walter Kelly, large, humorous and Irish, got off the ship from Capetown last Wednesday, and is now amusing the London public at the Palace Theatre. Somehow he doesn't seem to find it a difficult task.

Before Mr. Fred Whitney went to Berlin he told me he would produce "Der Rosencavalier" in German to start with, and the following year give it in English. His next production at the Whitney Theatre will be "The Spring Maid."

After Mr. Arnold Daly walked the length of the Strand the other day he said:—"What a cinch Dickens had!"

When Mr. Joseph Brooks and his family arrive here they will have the apartments formerly occupied by the Swedish Ambassador at Bushy Hall.

"Believe me," says Miss Marie Tempest to a reporter for the Express, "I think the music hall sketch is on its last legs. I don't think they are popular. What can you do in twenty minutes? Before you really interest your audience the whole thing is over. No, I see no future for the sketch."

It is to be presumed that Miss Tempest means that short plays and not anatomy are unpopular. Otherwise why all these classical dancers?

To the joy of London, Miss Tempest has got back to really acting again, and is appearing in "The Marriage of Kitty" at the Duke of York's Theatre. It's hard to tell which is the more enjoyable, the clever comedy or the cute comedienne.

Mr. Joseph Coyne is endeavoring to learn the French language. He has an instructor for an hour every day to convince him that they don't speak the same kind of French in South Bend that they do in Paris. Mr. Coyne is going to all this trouble because he is soon to appear in Paris in "The Quaker Girl," and he is afraid Parisians might mistake him for a Quaker. Personally I think that should be the least of his troubles.

Mr. George Tyler is back from his automobile tour of Scotland. Mr. Tyler plumes himself on having beaten the record in that he is the first tourist to spend ten days in Scotland without being rained on. He seemed to feel a little offended about it, too. If Mr. Tyler tries it again he will probably be caught very much bending.

Shifting from climate to compliments, everybody likes to be flattered. Imitation is the sincerest form, they say. Mr. "Harry" Pelissier, who has made his famous "Follies" a trade mark for fun, should feel very much complimented. A new company, headed by a university man, will soon appear in London, and they are styled "The Cosies." I wonder if they will be!

Search is being made among the papers left by the late Sir William Gilbert for the manuscript of an opera he was at work upon and had nearly finished at the time of his death. He was writing it under a contract with Mr. Fred Whitney.

WORKS OF DICKENS TAKE THE STAGE

Family of the Novelist Delighted with the Vogue That Has Come to London.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

WITH Mr. Martin Harvey playing "The Only Way" at the Lyceum, Mr. Bransby Williams impersonating Mr Pickwick in the vaudeville houses, and a stock company giving a series of Dickens dramas and comedies at the Savoy Theatre, there is a distinct revival of interest in the novelist of the "plain people" of England. The Dickens dramatic festival at the Savoy, in which the actors are all devoted admirers of the novelist, has enlisted the friendly interest of the Dickens family.

Mr. H. F. Dickens, K. C., welcomed the idea of performing fresh plays from his father's works. He thought that in the past the dramatic versions of Dickens had not been satisfactory because they were padded with an excess of detail that interfered unduly with their action.

Mrs. Perugini (Miss Kate Dickens), the author's eldest daughter, and Mr. Alfred Tennyson Dickens are deeply interested in the project, too. "Dombey and Son," the first of the plays at the Savoy, was warmly received by a houseful of Dickens admirers.

Early Victorian dresses helped to make a charming picture of the great reception scene, and the ohintzes were of the same design as those that were supplied for the furnishing of Gadshill when the novelist moved out there.

"David Copperfield," "Bleak House," "Pickwick," "Great Expectations" and "The Old Curiosity Shop" will follow "Dombey and Son."

HIP POCKETS ARE EASILY PICKED

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

VISITORS to London at this season are warned against carrying their medley in their hip pockets. The danger of the practice was commented upon by Alderman Sir Thomas Crossley at the Guildhall when trying a case of pocket picking.

"It is the easiest thing in the world," he said, "for the light fingered gentry to steal your purse and money from a hip pocket without you feeling it. I wish people would learn the lesson and go back to the old fashioned breeches pocket."

A West End tailor backed up Sir Thomas' opinion when asked what he thought.

"I never recommend my customers to have hip pockets," he said. "Any one can get at them as easily as he likes—except the wearer of the suit. The place to keep your money is the side pocket of the trousers or a front fob pocket. You see, the hip pocket has the mouth cut right athwart the pocket, and the thief can dip his long fingers right down. The side pockets have the mouths put on sideways, as it were, and the pickpocket has a more complicated job.

"Then here's another thing that helps the pickpocket. When a man is standing up straight his hip pocket hangs loose and clear of the body, and he cannot feel the deft fingers that slip round his money. No; take it from me, the hip pocket is a bad place to carry money. I really don't know why men have hip pockets at all."

Purists in the London Newspapers Dish Up What They Possibly Believe Are Samples of Yankee Conversations —Their Absurdities Are Easily Discovered.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

AMERICANS are here by the thousands following the coronation of King George V. Wherever you go you see and hear Americans. The Strand, Piccadilly, Oxford street, Regent street and other centres of London life and business are full of faces that are familiar in the United States, and wherever one turns one can hear the "I guess," "You bet," and other familiar catchwords that remind one of the land where they have real oysters, green corn that is fit to eat and the addictive wafer bottle.

In the "near-American" bars of the leading hotels "whiskey and soda" has given way to the palatable Martini, Manhattan and Bronx cocktails the refreshing gin fizz and gin rickey and other alluring beverages that bespeak the advance of civilization.

The presence of so many Americans in the city is a godsend to the so-called funny writers of the English press, who have worked Joe Mitler and Josh Billings to death. One of these gentlemen, in telling of a conversation between two pilgrims from the Great Divide, gives this as a specimen of their language:

"What d'ye think of it, Joe?" said the first gentleman, waving his hand to take in all the scene at the bank.

"SUCH A LANGUAGE."

"Weal, I'll tell you what's got me beat mor'n anything else. It's all these dudes bugged up so kill," the second gentleman replied, pointing out a number of smart city men in very glossy hats, orthodox morning attire and immaculate spats. "Why, some of them got waists like caterpillars," he added, and presently he contributed the reflection that the majority of Londoners were not "well enough ribbed up" to do a good day's work. "Reminds me of beetles in those cutaway jackets," his friend contributed.

St. Paul's, they agreed, "looked like it would do with a sponge down," and the first gentleman likened the hurrying crowds in Fleet street to a collection of cats in a battle. The statue of Mr. Gladstone on the summit of the Nelson column commanded their sincere admiration, but it was their comments on the timbered incongruities at Westminster that displeased most.

"Spoiled this show, anyway, haven't they?" remarked the first. "Weal, I reckon," was the reply. "If it wasn't for the bits of old stones peeping out it looks more like an Oklahoma rush town in the boom time than any other." "Mass misa squeezed up racecourse, with all these stands about, I call it," his friend amended.

"Weal, I don't call much on culture; I ain't got the cards," began the first Westerner, as we sped off down Victoria street. "But," he added, "I don't think they have much taste to make a song about those responsible for that job. In fact, culture in England isn't what it's cracked up to be—not by a long way. The King's Palace is as short of paint as a Mississippi steamboat; I never met an Englishman who has been in the British Museum, and every decent building in the town is squeezed in behind a row of stones or warehouses. But this Abbey job is about the limit.

"They boxed up all their statues long ago," he continued, "and folks were able to see the coronation procession while sitting on Oliver Cromwell's head. I can understand that, but I should have thought the cathedral where the King is crowned would have been left in its bare glory, not caged up like a Carson City dime museum, in a cage of dingy, unplaned lumber. The whole shoot looks cheap and undignified—that's what I think."

PUNCH AT HIS BEST.

Dear old Punch, repository of jokes that were old when Noah was afloat in his houseboat, also takes a fling at "English as she is spoken at the coronation" by printing an imaginary conversation at the Guards' Club, in which the effect of contact with Americans is reflected in the language of the club's habitués. For instance, Lord Algernon Henney-Alerlot describes a "poker séance in these words:—"Yes, sirer, Queste has the whole push buffaloed once in a while. About the third rattle out of the box Gus corralled four bellhops and hung on. I read him wrong and started readying for the pot with an ace stiff, and, by Jings! the third time I came back he calls me and lays down his little mess. I nearly threw a fit when I saw them."

Commenting on this intelligent outburst, Captain Reggie Brassil is quoted as replying:—

"Mangy little piker! I bet he had cold feet the first time you turned loose on him. It all up to you to kiss, though."

Then Lord Algie sayings of nothing remarks, "Didn't see you at Lady Betty's Thursday," and Reggie proves that he had the entree to the Hooper Club and other select social organizations when in New York by declaring—

"You're dead rigor, you didn't. The fair Betty's snaken wife Willie for keep over since that baccarat squabble. Serves me right for butting in. I started to dog her in the park Sunday and she gave me a look that would have frozen the ears off a brass monkey. Then, above the plenty ayes!"

500 POUND CAKE FOR KING GEORGE

Ten Feet High, the Toothsome Confection Is Described as a Work of Art.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

The most gorgeous and delicious monument of confectionery ever built was accepted by the King from the royal confectioners, Messrs. Gunter & Co., as a coronation gift. This beautiful and toothsome work of art stands ten feet high. The actual cake, which weighs five hundred pounds, forms the base, and on it rest two temples of sugar, various statuettes and figures, and a full rigged ship—all in white sugar—the whole being surmounted by a crown on a cushion.

Octagonal, the cake has four large and four smaller panels enclosed by sixteen Corinthian columns.

Of the four large panels, the principal one, which is the front of the structure, has beautiful hand painted miniatures of the King and Queen, surrounded by the rose, shamrock and thistle, and surmounted by the royal coat of arms. The other three panels have medallions of the arms of various colonies.

At the top of the cake is a bordering of a maritime character, fish, seaweed and shells, representing the sea girt British Isles.

Over the cake is an open temple of Gothic style supported by eight pillars, and at the four corners are seated beautiful statuettes representing Peace, Prosperity, Commerce and Agriculture.

Inside the temple stands a figure of Britannia, while the arms of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales are displayed upon four shields resting against the steps of the temple.

TURKEY MAY BUY AMERICAN SHIPS

[Special Despatch.]

PARIS, Saturday.

Despatches from Vienna state that America has offered to sell four decommissioned cruisers to Turkey. The price is said to be $500,000 each and that the Turkish Military Attaché has reported favorably, but as the Ministry of Marine does not possess the necessary funds it will open a national subscription to find the money.

THEIR HAIR KILLS PEERESSES' SLEEP

Amazing Inconveniences Suffered for the Coronation Coiffures.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

YOU probably will be astonished to learn that many peeresses were up and dressed on Coronation Day at the time when they usually are returning home from a dance. Some were called by their maids at three o'clock and by six o'clock in the morning there was scarcely a peeress left in bed.

This early rising was due to the fact that there were not enough artist hair dressers on whom rested the responsibility of building up a becoming coronation coiffure). In consequence there was an unexampled demand among titled ladies for their service.

Some peeresses, despairing of getting their hair dressed by the artists on the morning of the great day, had their coiffures created the night before. This necessitated their sitting up all night, for the touch of a pillow would have worked havoc to the delicate creations of the hair experts.

Incidentally it may be mentioned that a fee of from one to five guineas was charged by these artists.

PURSER PUZZLED, WIRELESS MIXED

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

MR. ROBERT EDWARDS is a purser on board the White Star steamship Baltic and his wife, who went over on board the Minnewaska, of the Atlantic Transport Company, to join him in New York, was very near to him at sea.

The purser sent to Mrs. Edwards this wireless message:—"Third epistle of John, verses 13 and 14." These verses read, "I have many things to write, but I will not with pen and ink write unto thee, but I trust I shall shortly see thee and we shall speak together face to face. Peace be to thee."

In transmission the numbers in the message got twisted. Mrs. Edwards on board the Minnewaska found a Bible and read "There is a serpent in my house." Of course, she was indignant, but she thought it over and decided that the purser might have been drinking—something he had never done before—and she relieved this "First Timothy, fifth chapter, twenty-third verse":

"Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities."

There was a puzzled purser named Edwards until the Minnewaska got into port, when the muddle was straightened.

SORRY IT STARTED HIGH PRICE SCARE

Half Penny Press of London, Now the Harm Is Done, Is Seeking to Undo It.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

"THERE is room enough for all." You heard this from the hotel manager, you read it in the newspapers and it was told to you by the man in the street. The London halfpenny press, which was responsible for creating the high price scare that kept many thousands away from here, took every opportunity, after the harm was done, to point out again and again that there was plenty of room here at moderate prices for all who wished to come.

With characteristic disregard for the facts one of the worst offenders declared that "statements have appeared in American and Continental newspapers that fabulous prices were being charged for rooms in London hotels, and alleging that there was great difficulty in obtaining accommodations at anything like reasonable rates."

Declaring that these statements were untrue and that there was not the slightest need for any anxiety for prospective visitors, this halfpenny howler proceeded to prove that there were accommodations to suit all pockets by quoting reports from the outlying sections which showed that for about double the usual rates one could be taken care of in small hotels and private boarding houses.

In another column this same newspaper published a story that grandstand seats along the route of the coronation parade could not be obtained for less than five guineas each, whereas the truth was that there were thousands of seats available at chances were that if the demand did not increase there would be many seats on these stands on coronation day that would be let at from five to ten shillings apiece. Of course, these low priced stands were not in choice locations, but from them one was able to obtain a view of the pageant.

The proprietors of many leading London hotels decided early last winter to make sacrifices past records for the privilege of coming to London during the coronation season, and when these prospective visitors, taking fright, decided to remain at home, prices came down with a rush, so that it was possible for any one to obtain decent accommodation at fairly reasonable rates. Of course there were some hotels which did not enter into the grab-all scramble, and these were the establishments that proved the rule.

Sultan's Tour Hailed by Press as Great Triumph

CAST RIDICULE ON "FOREIGN IMAGININGS"

[Special Despatch.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Saturday.—Both the people and the press of this city are exultant at the success of the Sultan's journey, which, they assert, has demonstrated that the nationalization of Macedonia is an accomplished fact.

The Jeune Turquie, under the heading "Albanian Loyalty and Foreign Bluffs," says:—

"While the foreign press is busy presenting the situation under false colors, nearly a quarter of a million Albanians, without distinction of class or cult, have been grouped around the Sultan."

The Sinin says "the Sultan has shown himself a hero and a victor by winning the hearts of the people," and wonders how the foreign press has been misled into "imaginings regarding the Sultan's clemency and amnesty proclamation, which was planned long ago and was not due to any recent foreign advice, imaginings which are merely founded on political and international jealousies."

HOPE REBELS WILL ACCEPT THE OFFER

[Special Despatch.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Saturday. — Both the Austrian and Italian Ambassadors have given the most friendly assurance that their government will do their utmost and endeavor by their influence to bring about the acceptance of the amnesty offered to the Albanian insurgents. The thing to do with the offer of amnesty and accepts it was initiated weeks ago as the crowning act of the Sultan's pacific journey through Macedonia.

If the Malissores had feared any imaginary danger they will now accept the patent of money and profit by the amnesty. If they do not accept it will be clearly established that the revolt is being maintained through outside influences and there will be nothing left for the government but to continue the campaign against the rebels.

LOUIS XVI. SUITE GOES FOR $36,000

[Special Despatch.]

PARIS, Saturday

The sale of the three pieces of Louis XVI. furniture in carved wood, painted and gilded, consisting of a couch, a bergere and a screen, said to have belonged to Marie Antoinette, drew a large crowd to the Hotel Drout, in the hope of seeing sensational bidding.

Mose, Lion led off with a bid of 10,000 (£2,000). Mops Heift offered 15,000f. (£3,000). Then there were three bids to 100,000f. (£20,000). The rise continued until the set was knocked down for 180,000f. (£36,000).

As the vendor at a previous sale had made an upset price of £20,000 the sale evidently was a disappointment to him.

CORONATION ODE

Owed to Mr. Crane, by St. Paul's Choir, Peterboro.

To-day, in Britain's Capital, our our Geordie do be crowned,
With his loving little Mary by his side;
In their brightest star of Empire (a la Laurier) to honour them we're bound
On a bloomin' "Water Lily" for a ride.
They wish they might be with us—and we're sorry for their sakes—
But the sight of so much jewellery might pall.
We are satisfied, each one, to have a crown his very own
That will not come off his head, e'en though it fall.
And George has learned ere this, of course, that duty must be done;
He has to be the King; we only have to have the fun.

—x—

It takes a few Imperial moons to make the clothes for Coronation,
And do some other little things becoming our great nation;
We have to grow some ermine, with such well-constructed tails,
They'll be quite all right to slaughter for the King;
Some diamonds then must be dug up and polished on a wheel.
The Hindoos must be flattered until they almost feel
They want to ante up their biggest rubies for the crown;
Although it makes their girdles ache when in them they reach down
And bring up fistfuls of the rarest thing in emeralds green
To offer gladly with their love to their own British Queen.

—x—

We must teach the Frenchie not to tread upon the German's toes;
The Bear must learn to clasp the Lion's paw;
The house-dogs must be muzzled so their growling won't be heard,
If instead of second place they get third.
For some one must be first, and each loyal house-dog feels
His place is next his royal master's heels.
We must train our fiercest soldiers to look awful, so the crowd
That comes from Earth's remotest bounds will fear.
Our biggest guns must mount guard with such terrifying roar.
The world will stop to listen and look queer.
We sent our little manikins to make the people shout
When they show Sir Baden-Powell just the proper way to scout;
And our black men and our yellow men, and all the shades between,
Will go and salaam very low to our good King and Queen.

—x—

But that's nothing to the time that our Canada has spent
In making preparation for this picnic on the Trent;
We've been busy getting ready since the dawn of the creation,
Mighty forces worked together to assign our destination.
It began somewhat in this way, quite remote from George the Fifth, his day—June the twenty-tooth.
Long, long ago, in ages past, when Adam was a babe
The waters said: "Let's take a trip to show we're not afraid
This Georgian Bay is very well, but just a trifle slow—
We want to look a little swell and show them down below
There are other roads than Niagara to blue Ontario."
Like many another project just started in a joke,
They took the thing up seriously, and then away they broke;
They climbed up hill—of course they did—you know in Noah's time
They did the very self-same thing; earth's features most sublime
They blotted out, without a doubt, and made the mountains hide
Their faces, while they gave the Ark a free excursion ride.
So up the hill they climbed and tumbled down the other side,
And felt so "tres complaisant," they spread themselves out wide;
They ran around some highlands and left some little islands—
Their own dear way of saying "Forget-me-not."

—x—

In sunny sheets they mirrored sweet their dimples and their laughter,
With plunges free again to hide 'mongst rocks and cliffs, and after
To wander on with sleepy song, till lulled by old St. Lawrence,
They knew no more of sun and shore until they reached the ocean—
But didn't like the taste of salt, and made such a commotion
Old Sol sent down an airship—they're not so new a notion—
And took them by the anubeam route back home again in glee,
To tell the other fellows all about their little spree.
Of course the "other fellows" thought they'd like to take the trip,
But hadn't funds of courage then to face the ocean dip.
So they hung around and planned some things—where they could put a town,
Where grow some rice, where take a jolly header and go down
To make a waterfall. They said: "An easy way to ride
Would be to have these coming men build us toboggan slides.
They'll sure do that; we'll grow besides enough of good, big trees
That they can cut up into boards and make themselves with ease
A wooden boat for Peterboro choirs—the noisy hordes—
To celebrate the crowning of their sailor king—King George."
I think they knew we'd boil their rice and shoot it from a gun,
And grind up oats for porridge by the carload and the ton;
I think they knew we'd gobble up their stock of little fishes,
So put a very many in to make us toothsome dishes;
Because they smiled quite knowingly, in a watery sort of way,
When some one said: "Let's call our dear old home the Georgian Bay!"
So if the river even knew about our good King's name,
Of course it must have known as well about our choir's fame.

—x—

Now all this took a goodly while, they didn't hurry so
When Nature was a-fixin' up her Coronation show.
She didn't snare her jewellery, nor yet curtail her firs.
Bal Sam spruced up in evergreens, and yet whene'er he stirs
We fear his hemlocks will be trimmed, and then he'll pine away,
Unless men cedar finish in time their saws to stay.

—x—

In green and jewels well bedecked, Dame Nature left our land,
And paused to contemplate, with joy, the labors of her hand
With time enough to rest and spread her jewels in the sun,
And smile to see the river keep the course it had begun.
She dreamed of days when red men would have come and gone, and they
Given place to busy white ones who think they've come to stay.
She saw these busy white ones turning night into the day;
The C.G. think to go the sun one better—so they say—
And for little manufactured solar systems they hold sway;
But they rather overdo it when they try to rival Luna:
For water trips by night we'll take the original old moon, eh?

—x—

But this has brought us to the day, some decades more or less
(We do not care a fig for dates, no matter how they press;
To us to-day they centre round the only one event—
The day the water of the G.B. formed a merger in the Trent).
Well, good Sir John A. took it up—"See here, my loyal boys.
There's going to be a picnic when they crown our royal George;
Go up along the River Trent, and see what can be done
To organise those waters so Crane's bunch can have some fun.
What though it mean a dam or two—they're everyday affairs.
It's National Policy to do things that make even statesmen stare."
So he sought out first-class engineers, intent on exploration,
And packed them all into one great, big, solid delegation—
To show folks what he meant to do for George's coronation.

—x—

We've chained the waters locked them up, to higher waters risen.
We see the reason little streams broke one day from their prison.
They like to run down hill; we like to climb a mountain top.
They don't rush all the time, we only go until we stop.
So let them run, so let us climb: preserve us from stagnation—
To this end Peter, Paul and John make a dandy combination.
When the Empire sets to work to give their King a coronation
Long live the King! Long live the Queen! to bless a happy nation.
And in their blessing not forget our three-ply combination!

—x—

Gas Ring

For heating the house during chilly spring and autumn days

You can have the GAS RING Attachment with the Sunshine furnace. This is a recent McClary invention—and a very desirable convenience.

After you let out the furnace in the spring, and in the early autumn before the winter's coal supply is ordered, there are often chilly days when some warmth from the furnace is desirable. Then the GAS RING is appreciated. Just light it for an hour or two and the house will be comfortable.

Unlike a gas log, the GAS RING does not require removing or the gas pipe disconnected. Instead, it's a permanent feature. It simply takes the place of the lower section of the fire-pot.

The GAS RING is always ready for use. It cannot be clogged up with dust or ashes. It's very economical. If your coal fire should go out you can easily start it going again by lighting the GAS RING.

If our agent cannot give you complete information about the GAS RING write direct to us. 49

LAND OF BABES IN THE WOODS

Tradition Has Always Given Wayland Wood as the Place Where the Babes Died

There is no nook or corner in England, however small or however far removed from the main currents of life, but contains relics of the past—some story or bit of folk lore which is full of interest. These memories of the past are buried away in old oaken chests in the vestries of the parish churches, or lie under the moss-grown stones of some ruined building. Sometimes they remain unheeded and unnoticed, and the story they have to tell is not brought to light.

But fortunately there are men in our country villages who have the leisure and the enthusiasm to grub about among these hidden stores and find for us the treasures they contain. One of these is the Rev. Charles Kent, the rector of Merton, in Norfolk, who lives in a quiet little corner of England which contains survivals reaching back to the time when palaeolithic man rambled over the heaths of South-West Norfolk in search of flints. Right across the district runs the Peddler's Way, which was an avenue of commerce before Cadmus was teaching Attica her letters, and before a little handful of peasants were struggling for existence on the Tiber. For in the Stone Age the Norfolk flints were as valuable as Bessemer steel is nowadays.

The story of all this, and much more, reaching to our own times, is told by Mr. Kent in his book, "The Land of the Babes in the Wood." The rector of Merton has soaked himself in the past. He has the art of making the old days and the old ways live again. He has caught the very spirit of the place, as well he may from the associations which surround him.

As for the old story of the Babes, be Wicked Uncle, and the Wood which was the scene of their death tradition says that the whole took place in and around Merton. Mr. Kent has sifted over all that can be found about the story, which has been the delight of the children of three centuries, and which has formed the groundwork of many a pantomime. He is able to reconstruct the story for us, and to show that it has a basis of fact, which illustrates the condition of rural life at the time when great changes were passing over Norfolk and over England as well.

The first trace of the story is to be found in an old chap-book in the Roxburghe Collection, which bears the date of 1595:—"The Norfolk Gent, His Will and Testament and howe he commytted the keepinge of his children to his owne brother, whoe delte most wickedlie with them, and howe God plagued him for it." The ballad is to be sung to the tune of "Rogero," and it begins by telling us:

A gentleman of good account
In Norfolk lived of late,
Whose wealth and riches did surmount
Most men of his estate.

Who was the "gentleman of good account," who were the Babes, and who was the Wicked Uncle? Mr. Kent supplies an answer to these questions which fits in with all the local circumstances of the case, and is supported by many documents. In 1562, there died at Merton a Norfolk squire named Thomas De Grey. His son and heir was seven years old at that time, and consequently was a ward of the Crown. Always anxious to turn an honest penny, Queen Bess married him at the age of eight to Elizabeth Drury, another ward. These two, the boy and girl bridegroom and bride were the "Babes." At Griston Hall very close to Merton, there lived Robert De Grey, brother to Thomas, who died, and uncle to the boy-bridegroom Here is the "Wicked Uncle." As for the Wood, tradition has always given it as Wayland Wood, and the oak was long shown under which the hapless Babes lay down for their last sleep. Mr. Kent shows that it was the Hundred Oak, under which the sheriff held his court.

Between Thomas De Grey and his brother Robert there were no very friendly feelings. Mr. Kent quotes a copy of the will of the former to show that there had been disagreements and family jars:—"I will to my brother Robert, so that he confesseth that he hath offended me, &c., &c." This may be the foundation of the story in the ballad of the death-bed scene, where the dying father is evidently anxious about the coming relations between his son and the uncle. Soon after this, the boy went on a visit to his stepmother, who had married a second time. At her house at Baconsthorpe the young squire died suddenly or before he could reach home. It may be that he died when passing through Wayland Wood.

Robert De Grey succeeded to the estates. He was a Popish Recusant and for that reason was very unpopular in a part where the Protestant cause was very strong. Robert tried to rob the girl-widow of her dower which had been settled on her by the boy-husband. This and other acts of the new squire led to a great trial at the assizes at Norwich, which developed into a battle royal between the Protestants and the Papists of the county. Robert was worsted, and afterwards was constantly imprisoned and fined for his recusancy. At his death $24,900 was due from him to the Crown for fines. This seems to be the basis of the story; a wicked uncle has his boy nephew put out of the way, seizes his possessions, as well as the dower of the poor girl widow. Fly and by it crystallized into the ballad as we now have it. Mr. Kent suggests that robins who want to cover up everything stand for the uncle, who desires to hide the evidence in the great trial.

Griston Old Hall, the residence of the "Wicked Uncle," is close to the beautiful old church of Tompson, which is one of the three collegiate churches of East Anglia. It formerly had a rector and six chaplains, and the old college in which they lived is now part of a farmhouse.

First Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds—Authorized $2,000,000.00 To be Issued	1,500,000.00
	$5,000,000.00

We have examined the books and accounts of The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, for a period of four years ending December 31st, 1910, and certify that the Current Assets and Liabilities included in the above statement are correct.

During the period covered by our examination, the profits of the Company, including interest on investments (which has aggregated about $27,500.00 per annum), after providing for depreciation, have in no year amounted to less than $300,000.00, excepting in the year 1910, when the profits amounted to only $167,032.03. The profits for the three years, 1907, 1908 and 1909, on the basis mentioned, have averaged $333,282.08 per annum, and the falling off in the business of the year 1910 is explained by the management as being largely due to the curtailment of operations resulting from the delivery of defective steel castings purchased by the Company under contract.

Yours very truly,
PRICE, WATERHOUSE & CO.,
Chartered Accountants.

FIELD OF OPERATION.

Canada to-day has over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and over 6,000 under construction or being surveyed. According to statistics furnished by the Department of Railways, one locomotive is required for every six miles of track. Last year there were 4,079 locomotives in use in Canada. The completion of the present 6,000 miles under construction will call for 1,000 new locomotives. In addition, 400 locomotives will be required each year to replace existing equipment. The railroad development which is taking place in Canada is really only at its beginning, and it is expected that within the next ten years the present railway mileage in Canada will be more than doubled. The field of operation is therefore almost unlimited.

PLANT AND EQUIPMENT.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, have been building locomotives since 1855 and have therefore a thorough knowledge of the business. At the present time they are turning out 75 locomotives per year, but have had to refuse many satisfactory orders owing to their limited capacity. The Company have the most up-to-date and modern plant in Canada, covering 333,000 sq. ft.

In addition the Company have 180,000 sq. ft. of reclaimable land on which they can erect additional buildings and, as required, still further enlarge their plant at the minimum of cost. The Company are fortunate in having cheap power, unexcelled shipping facilities, and in being exempt from taxation, except School taxes, up to the year 1916. They have probably the best trained and most loyal staff of skilled workmen on the continent.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

It is estimated that as a result of the contemplated increase to the plant, the earnings within the next few years should be at least $600,000 per annum; or in the neighborhood of 18% on the Common Stock after providing for Bond Interest, Sinking Fund, and Preferred Stock Dividend.

In making provision for an increase in the capacity of their plant, the Company are not entering into a new and untried field. They have a thorough knowledge of the business, and the increased output can be managed with the same office and selling staffs. Other economies will be effected through manufacturing in larger numbers than has been the case in the past. The reputation of the Company is so good that the demand for their locomotives far exceeds the supply.

Applications will be made in due course to list the Preference and Common Shares on the Toronto and Montreal and London Stock Exchanges.

A HUGE HALIBUT

One Brought to a London Market Weighed 700 Pounds

The largest halibut on record was landed at Billingsgate Market, London, recently. It weighed 700 pounds, or nearly a third of a ton, and was part of a catch of 100 tons of fish from the White Sea, North Russia, landed by the trawler Macfarlane, of Hull. The mammoth fish was brought from the trawler into the market on planks borne on the shoulders of six porters. It was offered for sale by auction by Messrs. Peter Forge, but such is the glut of fish just now that it only realised $10.

Snails Flourishing

American agriculturists are buying great quantities of lapwings' eggs from Britain in view of the value of the birds in destroying snails, beetles and larvae which ruin crops. The result is that the number of lapwings in Britain is said to be decreasing and that snails and slugs are flourishing.

CORONATION TATOO WORK

Several People are Adorned With Patriotic Designs

Several people in London have been tattooed with Coronation designs, the favorite decoration being a likeness of the King and Queen, adorned on each side with flags. Among other patriotic and appropriate designs are the crown and cushion and the royal likeness, accompanied by the words, "God Save the King." Some of them pay as much as a hundred dollars for elaborate body decorations. "Many people bring in their own decorative schemes," the professor said, "and insist upon their being carried out to the letter. This, however, is sometimes exceedingly difficult when the design has been sketched by an unskilled hand. There is not the slightest danger of blood poisoning if the machine is treated with antiseptic fluid, and the operation is rarely painful unless carried out on a delicate part of the anatomy, like the base of the throat."

LS FOR THE BRAVE

King Honored Eighty Men and Two Women

Eighty men and two women were presented with medals by the King at Buckingham Palace for gallantry in saving, or attempting to save, life. The presentation took place in the Throne Room, where Mr. Winston Churchill, the Home Secretary, read to the King a record of the act of bravery for which each medal was awarded. With each recipient his Majesty cordially shook hands, after pinning the medal on his or her breast. Prominent among those whom the King honored was Miss Amy Madeline Jacques, who was presented with an Albert medal, second class, for rescuing her brother Francis form a savage bull last March. His Majesty asked Miss Jacques numerous questions about her family and herself.

"The King struck me as being a very pleasant gentleman," said Miss Jacques subsequently. "He was so appreciative, too. 'Well done, very well done,' he exclaimed, after hearing from Mr. Churchill the particulars of my act, and shook hands with me in a hearty fashion. His Majesty also inquired kindly after my father and brother, both of whom were injured by the bull. I did not feel in the least nervous."

Mr. J. C. J. Drucker, of London, has just given proof of his love for his old country by a princely gift which he has made to the State Museum in Amsterdam. This gift consists of nineteen pictures by the painter Josef Israels. For this collection representing a value of over $600,000 a special gallery has been built.

Fifty-one Years Clerk

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Felsted, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,500 times, and climbed 100 miles of stairs.

Traffic Observers

For the traffic census of the City of London nearly 300 observers were required to watch 53 roads, 14 other walking ways, 10 railways, 6 tube stations, and 2 stairways.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

The wives and mothers of a century ago were proud to exhibit the result of their industry in the manufacture of cloth and the making of garments for their families. There is no call for such work in our day, yet there are enough calls to duty in every home to employ the housekeeper. Home to many women means nothing more than a laundry where they take their clothes to be washed and ironed; to the man a place to eat and sleep, their evenings being largely spent at clubs or billiard halls. The old-fashioned home keepers have become almost a lost quantity. Societies of various kinds occupy much of their time. The children are sent to school at the age of six and the mothers are at liberty to flit about until they return at noon when the lunch of food, prepared outside the home, is placed before the family, and the duties until nigh twelve are discharged.

Get the whine out of your voice or it will stop the development and growth of your body. It will narrow and shrink your mind. It will drive away your friends; it will make you unpopular. Quit your whining; brace up; go to work; be something; stand for something; fill your place in the world. Instead of whining around exciting only pity and contempt, face about and make something of yourself. Reach up to the stature of a strong, ennobling manhood, to the beauty and strength of a superb womanhood. There is nothing the matter with you. Just quit your whining and go to work.

A hungry heart, which is destined never to be fed, is one of the saddest spectacles ever witnessed in this world of ours. If you have a word of praise to bestow on your wife—if it is due, bestow it. Do not wait until she is dead, and be forced through blinding tears to tell your heart in its wild throbbing that you have lived a dual life by stifling thoughts and keeping back words that would have brought a flush of pleasure to her cheeks, old as she is, and set her heart to dancing with a pleasure only known to those who have had their hungry hearts fed by words of praise and recommendation.

The trick of always seeing the bright side, or if the matter has no bright side of shining up the dark one, is a very important faculty; one of the things no woman should be without. We are not all born with the sunshine in our hearts, as the Irish prettily phrase it, but we can cultivate a cheerful sense of humour if we only try.

Is there any satisfaction in a room the furnishings of which cost hundreds of dollars, when it is only open at rare intervals, while the owner, perhaps, sits by the kitchen fire or in some dingy sitting-room, where he can put his feet on the fender if he wants to, can smoke, and as a great indulgence, tilt back in his chair?

Take the sermons you hear home to yourself. If you divide them and parcel them out to your friends and neighbors, and the people in the pews around you, there won't be much of the "good seed of the gospel" left to bear fruit for yourself.

Man may go through all the world, he may run through every stage of belief and disbelief, but there will be one picture that he cannot efface. Living or dying, there will rise up before him like amorning star the beauty of that remembered goodness which he called "mother."

Those who habitually correct their children in their faults by whipping and boxing them, must not be surprised when they find them slapping them in return, and rough and abusive towards one another. They are simply trying to enforce their own little ideas of right as they have seen their elders do.

The poet and the artist, the writer and the musician look to the world to acknowledge their genius and give them praise. It is encouragement which calls forth their noblest words to climb the mount of fame until they surmount all difficulties and write their names in flaming letters upon its summit. Then let us give encouragement to each other in every effort of good, in every noble action, in the little duties of life, and we will be happier for it, the world will be better, and a smiling providence will look down and bless our labor of love.

Take people by the hand whom you really wish to help. Don't stand on a high pedestal and tell them to do themselves the honour of jumping to your level. Either go to them kindly and extend to them the friendly hand of Christian fellowship, or let them alone.

Honesty is never gained or lost suddenly, or by accident, but idleness feeds upon it and will, in time, use up the last vestige. The happy home be it a cottage or a mansion, furnishes no recruits for an army of unemployed.

INSANITY

Dr. H. Arnott, of Hamilton, is doing good work in a series of letters to the Hamilton press, dealing with various phases of the temperance question. Last week he sent to the Herald a letter upon the increase of insanity and suicide resulting from insanity, and goes on to say:

It is now well known that drink is one of the principal causes. In some asylums the number attributed to drink is only from 8 to 10 per cent., while in others it runs as high as 42 per cent. directly due to drink. The head of the lunacy commissions in New York state places it at 36.9 for that state.

But Dr. Burgess of the Verdum asylum, Montreal, recently said that insanity occurs less frequently in the drunkard than in his offspring. That is a dreadful statement, but it is backed up by alienists all over the world and explains why this dread malady is on the increase.

One constant tippler who himself was probably never drunk or insane, may start a long stream of mental defectives. That is in accord with the investigations of others, and demands the attention of all in authority and cries aloud to the license commissioners, who alone can act promptly.

Shall we go on using swollen words about the development of our young nation, and stand idly by while this cancer eats its heart out?

A SAD DOWNFALL

A King's Counsel, well known among the younger barristers of Toronto, was sent to the penitentiary yesterday for three years on several charges of forgery. At one time he was most attentive to his practice, most methodical in his ways, most exemplary in his habits. Whiskey caused his downfall. As he increased his consumption of strong drink his attention to business ceased, and before long he was engaged in the gravest of crimes that a man of his profession can be guilty of: the forging of the names of public officials to bogus property titles.

A witness called in the unfortunate lawyer's defense assured the court that he would drink at any time and had hallucinations. The trouble was that he did not drink enough and did not get drunk quick enough. What a horrible reflection upon the drinking customs of the people. If the poor fellow who has wrecked his life had just had will enough to make himself a sodden, inert mass of drink-saturated humanity he would have been safe. The forger's pen would have slipped from his fingers, the forger's plans from his diseased brain. He was not quite drunk enough to be insane, and yet too drunk to be sane.—The Globe.

THE DANGER OF EXAMPLE

A tragic story was told by the late Dean Farrar of the appalling consequence of a minister's "moderation." One of the speakers at a meeting arranged under temperance auspices, a clergyman, nonabstaining, ventured apologetically an endeavor to prove that strong drink, used in moderate degree, was healthful, Scriptural and gentlemanly. When he had finished, a venerable, grey-haired man arose, and desired to be allowed to make a few remarks. It was a tragic incident he narrated in broken accents. A young friend had fallen into the clutches of strong drink's power. At length, after much kind persuasion, he was induced to pledge himself to complete abstinence from intoxicants. Manfully for many months, at the cost of a terrible struggle, he stuck to his promise. At last, one evening he was present at a social gathering when wine was passed around. A clergyman who was there partook of the wine, and as he did so, vindicated the practice in a sentence or two. "Well," thought the young man, "If a minister can take wine, and justify it, why not I?" With tremendous force the temptation came. He accepted a glass. Like a spark it kindled the dormant alcoholic craving into a flame of insatiable desire. He drank, and drank, and drank, and carously exposed, until a few months later he died—a raving madman! For a moment the old man paused to overcome the choking in his throat. Then, in a voice vibrant with intense emotion, he added, "The young man was my only son, and the clergyman was the reverend gentleman who has just addressed the meeting."—American Issue.

The prohibition movement in this nation is the revolt of human nature against the deadliest foe of humanity. Those who are predicting a reaction in this movement have another surprise coming to them, we trust. The more prohibition is studied and tested, the more it will prevail. These reactionary prophets are destined to become more and more lonesome. Bishop Fitzgerald.

Is it worth while to listen
To aught the world might say?
Is it worth while to heed the praise,
Or blame, of life's short day?
Let men slander as they will
And whisper falsest words of ill—
Don't mind—but keep thy spirit still
Noble, pure and true.
For in this mortal life of ours,
We form the life that is to be—
Our habits form our characters—
And characters our destiny.
It matters not what men may say,
Of no avail is slandering spite.
For naught can harm the steadfast soul
That trusts in God and does the right.

Cured Eczema and Dandruff

"I am pleased to inform you that I have been cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Since I was a boy I have suffered with dandruff, not only from the itching but from its disagreeable appearance in a scaly form all over my head. I had to brush it off my clothes all day long. I used every kind of preparation supposed to cure dandruff, also soaps and shampoos, but it seemed to me that, instead of improving with these remedies, the dandruff increased, even my hair began to fall out and the result was that two months ago eczema developed on my scalp.

"I suffered so from this that as a last resource I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. They had the most gratifying results for I had used only one box of Cuticura Ointment and a single cake of Cuticura Soap when I was cured, the eczema and dandruff were gone and my head perfectly clear.

"I can assure you that so long as I live no other soap than Cuticura will be used by me and all those near to me. I will also add that I will always use Cuticura Ointment as a dressing for the hair. I feel that you should know of my cure and if you desire you may use this as a true testimonial which comes from a sufferer of thirty years' standing. I will be happy to tell any one of my experience in order to assist those who may be suffering from the same disease." (Signed) J. ACEVEDO, General Commission Merchant, 59 Pearl St., New York.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment afford the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly humors of infants, children and adults. As in this case, a single set is often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, U. S. A., for 32-page Cuticura Book on treatment of skin and scalp affections.

NEW HEALTH AND NEW STRENGTH FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

Aching Backs, Tired Limbs and Splitting Headaches Need Not be Endured

In silent patience nearly every woman endures suffering that casts a shadow over half her existence. An aching back, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, and headaches and backaches, need not be part of a woman's life. Such trials indicate plainly that the system requires the new blood that is supplied through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are valued by suffering women who have used them above all other medicines, because they give the rich, red blood that makes women well, bright and at their best. Mrs. Fred Collard, Poplar Point, Man., says: "I can give you but a very small estimate of the suffering I endured before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After the birth of my first child I suffered intensely from ailments that too often afflict my sex. This was complicated by an attack of bleeding piles, and the agony of the days and nights I endured is almost past comprehension. I tried many remedies, but they did not help me in my trouble, and from a healthy young woman weighing 140 pounds I fell away in weight to 95 pounds. I grew so weak I could hardly walk across the floor, and there were times I hardly knew what I was doing so great was my agony. I went to Brandon and consulted a doctor who said that nothing would help me but an operation for both my troubles, and that I would have to remain in the hospital for at least eight weeks. Being a farmer's wife I felt that this was impossible, and while in Brandon I met a friend who strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that they had cured her trouble similar to mine, after an operation had proved of no benefit. She had such strong faith in them that she gave me the first box, and I began using them. I was not long before I found much relief. I continued to use the Pills all the rest of that summer, and the result was they restored me to perfect health. I told the doctor what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for me and his reply was that he considered what they had done for me little less than a miracle. I have since recommended the Pills to many others who have suffered from woman's troubles, and they always produced beneficial results. I hope that this statement will be of benefit to some other suffering person."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BATTERY IN CAMP

Major Young Makes Promotions Among the Members of the 24th Who Have Had a Very Enjoyable Drilling at Petewawa

MINOR ACCIDENT

Special to The Examiner:

CAMP PETAWAWA, JUNE 22.—The 24th Battery C. F. A. are now getting in their fine work. They were at the ranges on Saturday for firing practise, and did remarkably well, considering the short time of instructional work and the new guns. Sunday all the troops in camp attended Divine service and it was a nice sight to see the different corps in their uniforms of several kinds of colour. After service was over the corps were marched to their respective quarters and dismissed for the day, which was spent roaming around the camp grounds. This morning the boys were up bright and early for a hard day's work; shooting was the order of the day, and just at the time of writing, 3.30 p.m., it has commenced to rain again, so men and horses are in for another ducking. An accident occurred to one of the troopers of the 3rd P. W. D. His horse was on the gallop and suddenly stopped and rolled on top of his mount, but by good fortune he was not seriously hurt. One of our men who got his ankle wrenched last week, is out of the hospital to-day, so we are all intact again.

The following promotions have been made:

Battery Sergt.-Major—T. Guerin.
Battery Q. M. Sergt.—T. Collins.
Orderly Room Sergt.—R. A. W. Hay
Tarrier Sergt.—W. Batten.
Signal Sergeant—L. Downey.
Sergeant—J. Hennessy.
Sergeant—M. O'Toole.
Sergeant—Samuel O'Brien.
Sergeant—J. E. Coulter.
Corporal—V. Wilson.
Corporal—C. Kunsp.
Corporal—J. Miller.
Corporal—W. Lillie.
Bombr.—H. Galvin.
Bombr.—R. Heffernan.
Bombr.—John Sullivan.
Bombr.—J. C. Drummond.
Bobmr.—J. Huard.
Bombr.—W. J. O'Toole.
Bombr.—J. E. Wise.
Bombr.—V. Fife.
Saddler—J. Calnan.
Shoeing smith—N. Young.

Commencing Monday night, a series of sports were held in the recreation grounds for special prizes, which were contested for by the different corps.

We have a very good instructor, Corporal W. Jones of the R.C.H.A. and he takes well with the boys. He has seen quite a lot of service abroad and his tales of his experiences are very interesting. Our Sergeants' mess has been formed. Our Sergt.-Major, T. Guerin, was elected President, and Orderly Room Sergeant Hay was re-elected Secretary.

All are well and seem to be settled down, and through the medium of your interesting paper a lot of them refrain from writing home, as they have heard that you get news from here. It is not because they don't want to write, but after their drill is over and horses fed and harness cleaned they are pretty well tired out.

In addition to Rev. Dr. Clifford, the following visitors are expected from Toronto: S. J. Moore, T. S. Shenstone, treasurer of the Massey Harris Company, John Firstbrook, H. Kyrie, Jas. Kyrie, Dr. Frank Sanderson, H. L. Starke, Edmund Burke, Dr. W. J. MacKay, Dr Thomas Trotter, Dr. Thomas and Chancellor Boyd. The impressive ceremony will take place at 2.30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon next and will undoubtedly be witnessed by a very large attendance of citizens of Peterborough.

3rd PRINCE OF WALES DRAGOON'S CAMP OVER

Local Members of Cavalry Corps Arrived Home From Annual Instruction Yesterday Morning---Camp Was Pronounced as the Most Successful in History of Regiment ---Some Incidents of Camp Life.

The 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons arrived home yesterday morning from Camp Petawawa, the members looking bronzed and in good health, after their annual instruction.

The last few days were rather strenuous work, consisting of regimental and brigade drill. Wednesday the cavalry brigade took part in the general field day, which is always one of the best features of the annual camp. The weather has continued superb and the opinion is generally expressed that the camp was in every respect the best in the history of Petawawa.

The annual meeting of the regiment was held last night, when initial steps were taken towards organizing a permanent regimental mess. The regiment will acquire a complete new equipment and run their own mess, instead of "farming" it out this year, as has formerly been the case. It was decided to hold the semi-annual meeting in Peterborough on the second Friday in February.

Captain Smith, quartermaster, was obliged to leave camp for four days to attend court at Cobourg, and in his absence Lieut. Paul Trebilcock of A. Squadron, was made Acting Quartermaster. The duties of Quartermaster are rather onerous, especially so in a cavalry regiment, where the daily supply of oats and hay, in addition to the meat and other provisions, have to be weighed upon delivery and then dealt out to the various squadrons. However, Lieut. Trebilcock's business training stood by him and he was able to perform the duties in a highly satisfactory manner.

Hospital Sergeant Norman Geale had a grand experience, considering the fact that it was his first camp Sergeant Geale is placed under the handicap of not having the surgeon of the 3rd Dragoons in camp with him. Capt. Douglas finding it impossible to come east this year. Sergt. Geale was accordingly working under orde srfrom Capt. Bell, Medical Officer of the 5th Princess Louise Dragoon Guards. He, nevertheless, handled his work in good style.

One of the interesting characters in camp was Frank Johnston, orderly for Lieutenant Charlton Edmison. Francis Johnston, which is his baptismal name, is 78 years of age, and has been a resident of Harwood for 62 years. He tells some interesting tales about the early days of navigation on Rice Lake, and is strong on explaining all the details of the late King's trip across Rice Lake from Harwood to Hiawatha en route from Cobourg to Peterborough. He is justly proud of his Scotch birth. He seems to have a slight gift of the poetical art of Bobbie Burns, his fellow countryman, and amongst the many little selections of his own compositions, which he recites, is one that he claims must be engraved on his headstone after he passes to the great camp ground beyond. It reads like this:::

"Francis Johnston is my name,
Scotland is my nation,
Rice Lake plains my dwelling place,
And present habitation;
When I'm dead and in my grave,
And all my bones are rotten.
This little verse will tell my tale,
When I am quite forgotten.

Major W. T. Hall of the Corp Reserve, and Capt. Edwin Campbell, of Cobourg, who holds a commission in A Squadron, arrived in Camp to-night and received a real hearty reception fromtheir fellow officers. They immediately got down to business and were out on parade this morning.

Major Medd of B Squadron, Millbrook, had a splendid Squadron to camp this year. He had two new lieutenants with him this year, Mr. J. H. McGill of Cavan, and Mr. Allan Mann of Bridge north. Both of these lieutenants give promise of developing into first-class officers.

Major Young and Lieut. Fee of the 24th Field Battery, Peterborough, were frequent visitors of the 3rd Dragoons lines. The 24th Field Battery lines being quite near at hand to the cavalry lines.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT SALVATION ARMY BARRACKS

Special meetings will be held in the S. A. Temple, Simcoe street, Saturday evening and all day on Sunday, conducted by Staff Capt. Sims, of Toronto. The Staff Captain is an old Canadian Officer of many years' standing, a very forcible speaker, and with a clear conception of the Gospel. The people of Peterborough will do well to hear the Staff Captain. The meetings commence to-night, at the corner of George and Simcoe streets, at 7.15, with an open air concert by the Band, and on Sunday at 11 a.m., afternoon, at 3 p.m., and at night at 7 p.m., until a few minutes after 8 p.m., when, weather permitting, an extra open air service will be held at 8.15, on George street. The Band and songsters will assist the Staff Captain in all these services.

SAILOR DAY CORONATION PROGRAMME

Special to The Examiner

LONDON, ENG., JUNE 23.—To-day might be called "Sailor" day on the Coronation programme. Their Majesties attended the naval review at Spithead. It was one of the best displays of the week, under superb weather conditions. The sailor King wore the Admiral's uniform, while the Queen and the ladies wore navy blue. Seventeen different nations were represented in the congress of vessels. Never before did a monarch review such an Armada, assembled on the historical roadbed as to-day. Ships formed parallelogram six miles long and two were on the historical roadbed.

MR. WEBSTER'S DEATH

(Lindsay Warder.)

The citizens of the town and surrounding community heard with regret that Mr. James Webster, of Mariposa, had passed away on Thursday the 22nd. It will be remembered that Mr. Webster was seriously injured in the regrettable accident on Sunday which resulted in the death of Mrs. Wm. Coad.

No hope was held out for Mr. Webster's recovery, he being seriously injured internally, but he was resting easy on Wednesday so that his death came unexpectedly sudden. Deceased was born and raised in Mariposa and was one of the best known men in the community.

Mr. Webster leaves to mourn him a loving wife and three children, Charles in Saskatchewan, Arthur at Mariposa and one daughter, Mylor, at home. Also five brothers, Robert G., Thomas J., Wm. John, Samuel D. and Abraham. Four sisters also survive to mourn his loss. The sisters being Mrs. Wm. Sexton, Millbrook; Mrs. Samuel Grandy, Omemee; Mrs. Wm. CANADIAN LOCOMOTIVE COMPANY TO ENLARGE PLANT

Company Will Issue Million and a Half Bonds and Three Million and a Half Stock

One of the most recent evidences of the growth of our Canadian industries is shown by the decision of the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston, Ontario, to double the capacity of their plant. This action on the part of the Company is the result of a steadily increasing demand for their output. At the present time they are turning out seventy-five locomotives per year, but have had to refuse large numbers of orders owing to their limited capacity. They are planning to, at least, double the capacity of their plant, having sufficient ground to enable them to do this at a minimum cost. To enable them to make this expansion the company are issuing one million and a half of first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, one million and a half 7 per cent cumulative preferred and two million common stock. There will remain in the treasury half a million of bonds to be used for future extensions.

It would look as if the present were the physicological moment for the company to double the capacity of their plant. At the present time there are in Canada over 25,00 miles of railroad in operation and according to statistics furnished by the Department of Railways and Canals, there were last year 4,090 locomotives in use in Canada, or about one locomotive for every six miles of road. As there are over 6,000 miles of road surveyed and under construction this will mean an additional 1,000 locomotives within the next year or two. The replacement of existing equipment calls for 400 more per year. A portion of this increased demand for locomotives is expected to be supplied by the Canadian Locomotive Company who have built up an enviable reputation as makers of high grade locomotives. The Company have been manufacturing this product since 1855 and are, therefore, the oldest and best known firm in Canada manufacturing locomotives.

FELL FROM SCOW AND WAS DROWNED IN RIVER

Albert John Costello, Scow-man in Connection With the Dredging Plant of the Department of Railways and Canals, Lost His Life This Morning---Sad Fatality.

A sad drowning accident occurred this morning in the Otonabee River, when Albert John Costello of Peterborough, and son of Mr. Paul Costello, of Ennismore, lost his life by falling off a scow into the river. The unfortunate young man was employed as scow-man, in connection with the dredging plant of the Department of Railways and Canals, operating at "Yankee Bonnett." This morning the tug in connection with the plant, left the dredge "Little Lake" with a scow-load of dredgings to be dumped at Robinson's Island. Everything went well until the return trip. Costello was in his usual position at the stern of the scow. The Captain of the tug, Harry Douglas, as was his custom, kept looking back to see that the scow was towing all right, and in one of these backward glances was shocked to find that Costello was not on the scow. Almost at the same instant he saw his head appear above the water in the wake of the scow, and that was the last seen of the unfortunate man. The tug was stopped, but Costello had disappeared before there was any possible chance of rendering him any assistance.

How the accident happened no one knows. Whether he was seized with a sudden attack of dizziness or heart failure, or whether he stumbled over something, will never be known.

Mr. J. H. McClellan, the Superintendent of the Canal, was notified at once and the dredging operations were immediately suspended, while the entire staff of the dredging plant proceeded to grapple for the body, which at the time of going to press, had not been recovered.

Interesting Report From School Inspectors To The County Council

Following is the report of the County School Inspectors, presented to the County Council this week:

Peterborough, June 20, 1911.

To the Warden and Council of the County of Peterborough:—

Gentlemen.—Your Public School Inspectors beg respectfully to submit for your consideration the following:

Since reporting in January, nothing of note has occurred in connection with the educational affairs of the county. A number of schools were closed during the winter months. All, however, have been open since Easter, though many of the smaller schools are without qualified teachers. The difficulty of getting teachers is still on the increase. To meet this condition, the Government is re-establishing a number of Model schools, which, it is hoped, will prepare about 350 teachers annually. These will be available at the beginning of the year, and will help to relieve the situation at that time.

For this scarcity, there are various causes, but perhaps the most important is the demand for teachers in the west and the higher salaries paid there. Salaries have increased here but when we consider that students graduating from the Normal School at present, even those without experience, are readily getting positions at from $500 to $600. It will be apparent then that our scale of salaries must be raised considerably higher yet, if our schools are not to fall into the hands of untrained and inexperienced teachers, and we are to meet with any degree of success, the competition of the west. An especially regrettable feature of the situation is the fact that almost no men are entering the ranks of the teachers, the opportunities for success being so much greater in other callings.

The Murray Street Baptist Sunday School held their annual excursion on Thursday, going to Juniper Island and Burleigh Falls via G. T. Railway and steamer Stoney Lake. The excursion proved to be one of the best the School has ever had. The boat was filled to its limit, and although the weather in the forenoon was showery, the afternoon was ideal A stop was made at Juniper Island for dinner, the splendid pavilion being placed at the disposal of the Sunday School on account of the rainy weather.

After dinner the boat proceeded to Burleigh Falls, where the races and games were run off. A trip around the Lake to Crow's Landing, back to Juniper Island for tea, then back to Lakefield in time to catch the 7.30 train, concluded a very enjoyable day's outing.

THE BEST YET

The best hike of the season will take place Friday next when some twenty-five or thirty boys will beat it for the palace steamer Water Lily at the early hour of 7.40 a.m. en route to their camp at Sandy Point. These are the best two weeks in the year for the boys who are lucky enough to be going, and some of them look forward to this trip for twelve long months. The camp was visited by the officials some few days ago and found to be in the best of shape. An advance guard will be sent up Wednesday so that everything will be O. K. when the party arrives. Start now, get your outfit ready, and do not sleep in Friday morning. Any boy who has not sent in his application yet, but intends going to camp either for one or two weeks, must do so before 10 p.m. June 27. The steamer, Water Lily; the place, Sandy Point; our motto, "Something doing all the time."

A GRAND SHOWING

Harold S. Matthews, of Peterborough, Headed the List of 93 Candidates in Examination of Royal Military College

V. FESSENDEN THIRD

The Examiner has great pleasure in recording the signal success of two Peterborough boys, Mr. Harold Stratton Matthews, son of Mr. T. F. Matthews, and Mr. Charles Vivian Fessenden, son of Mr. Cortez Fessenden, formerly principal of the Collegiate Institute, in the entrance examinations to the Royal Military College.

Harold Matthews has the distinction of almost "smashing the papers." Out of a possible 8300 marks he scored 7044. This is the highest percentage that has been gained in years. In the 1910 examinations, the possible was 8100 and the highest marks obtained were 6088.

Vivian Fessenden, was also highly successful; he stood third in a class of 93 candidates, but the record of the marks he obtained has not yet been received.

Both boys are a credit to the Collegiate Institute, and are worthy of the heartiest congratulations. If they "get on" the target as successfully in their future studies and military careers, "bullseyes" will be plentifully signalled.

A CORRECTION

Through inadvertence, a mistake was made in the report of the sale of cheese in the Peterborough Cheese Board on Wednesday last. The report read that the highest price paid was 11 15-16c. This was erroneous. Mr. Squires of Norwood, paid 11 1-2c. and purchased 550 boxes at this figure.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Examiner wishes to join the citizens generally in congratulating Messrs. Matthews and Fessenden upon their splendid success at the examinations for entrance to the Royal Military College. This success, to use a commercial phrase, opens up a large line of credit. It is a credit to themselves, to their families, to their teachers, to their alma mater, the Collegiate Institute, to the city and to the country—to the country, because boys like them will make their lives tell in the service of their native Dominion and the Empire. Their success has a double value, its positive value in the position gained, the first outworks captured; it has a reflective value; their example will be an inspiration to thousands of other students. They possess the qualities of true leadership, self-discipline, sacrifice of momentary pleasures for serious work, and devotion to duty. The successful, the typical man shows the way, exercises an influence, and evokes an élan far in excess of the import of his individual action. Showing the way captured a redout in the Crimean war. Col. Lowrie of the 17th Lancashire Regiment, led the charge on the Russian earth works in one of the great battles. He was a slight man in body, but with a big spirit. The leading files of his regiment, under a withering fire, "boosted" the gallant colonel, up on the wet and slippery earthworks. He then turned and drew up two or three soldiers by means of their rifles and they, in turn, drew up others. The enthusiasm engendered by the pluck of their leader, fired their hearts and nerved their arms and the assaulted position was carried triumphantly. The two Peterborough lads have showed the way, in their way; and showing the same spirit, henceforward, their success in life is assured. They will be men. Good luck go with them.

TWO LESSONS.

The oneness of the great Empire has been strikingly demonstrated during the past few days. The crowning of King George V., while it was performed in old London, seething with humanity from every country in the world, was, by no means, confined to the heart of the empire. The imperial thrill of the occasion followed the red path of the meteor flag around the world, waking into loyal and affectionate response the separate units of the empire on five continents and in the isles of the sea. The one dominant note was the unity and indivisibility of imperial interest and sentiment. As the coronation signalized the unity of the empire in the broad imperial sense, it had a reflected effect in Peterborough, which had its own sympathetic coronation ceremony, the crowning of a work that has more than any other influence cemented the bonds of civic and social unity, and religious harmony. Church union is a splendid theoretical idea, but on Thursday we had evidence of its almost solitary practical feature—the unity of spirit that draws the separated, but divinely united church together in the true relation—cooperating each in its own appointed way, and co-working in building up the great religious edifice, intangible, but divinely real, upon the "church's one foundation, Jesus Christ our Lord." The pentecostal gathering at St. John's school house, where denominationally speaking, all peoples, kindreds and tongues, were represented, important evidence as it was of the spirit of unity, that prevails, will receive further emphasis on June 29th, on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the new Baptist church. Then, as the material corner stone sinks to its bed, the people of the whole city will, if unconsciously still in heart, voice the spirit of communal unity as the "Peoples Chimes," provided by the people and representing the spirit of the people, boom forth, the grand notes of the grand hymn "The Church's One Foundation." The two lessons of Coronation Day, Imperial unity and neighbourly and brotherly community of spirit will be laid to heart by the world, and tend to the fulfilment of the prayer of the one High Priest of the Christian faith. "I would that ye were one."

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR THOSE GOING WEST.

On Tuesday, June 27th a through tourist Pullman sleeping car will leave Toronto 11.00 p.m. for Winnipeg and points on Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Winnipeg and Edmonton. Car will run via Grand Trunk Railway System to Chicago, thence connecting lines in connection with "Homeseekers'" excursions. The rates to Western Canada are very low: Winnipeg and return $33.00, Edmonton and return, $41.00. Tickets good for 60 days. Proportionate rates to other points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Tourist car will be fully equipped with bedding.

BAILEY IS HOSTILE

His Wants to Add Several Things to the Free List — Bailey Announces His Intention of Going on With the Struggle Which He Prophesies Will Be a Long One—To Vote on Root Amendment.

Washington, June 24.—A declaration for straight reciprocity at an informal conference of a dozen Democratic Senators willing to vote down all amendments to the bill, an amendment by Senator Bailey adding to the reciprocity measure all the public free list provisions except meats and grain products, a unanimous decision of the Senate to vote Monday on the Root amendment to the wood pulp and paper schedule—these were features in the reciprocity fight yesterday. But there were no speeches on the subject in the Senate, and the activity was confined to the office rooms and cloak rooms, where reciprocity was the uppermost topic.

Senator Bailey announced his intention to press his amendment vigorously. While looking forward to the addition of some of the tariff provisions to the Canadian bill he admitted that such action probably would come on only as the result of a prolonged struggle.

Another tariff amendment—this one to the free list bill—was presented by Senator Clapp to add to the free list alum chloride of lime, aniline products, ultra marine, vermillion reds, soda ash, sulphur, china clay or kaolin, woollen felts or jackets, and brass or copper wire cloth.

The informal conference was held in the office of Senator Smith of South Carolina. Mr. Smith was outspoken in opposition to amendments, and he and John Sharp Williams united with Senator Stone in declaring that it was unwise to risk reciprocity for something more which would render all uncertain.

MINISTRY DEFEATED.

Paris, June 24.—The Government was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday on a question relative to the supreme command of the army in case of war. The Ministry of Premier Monis handed in their resignations last night.

These cannot become officially effective until the return of President Falliores from Rouen, where he now is. He will return Sunday unless the events of yesterday cause him to change his plans.

The vote of lack of confidence in the Cabinet was 243 to 224, and caused amasement in the chamber. Gen Goiran, the Minister of War, M. Delcasse, the Minister of Marine, and M. Cruppi, Minister of Foreign Affairs, accepted the vote with folded arms and then hastened to the bedside of Premier Monis, who was injured recently in an aeroplane accident, and related to him what had happened.

The Monis Cabinet was formed on March 2 last, following the resignation of the Briand Ministry on February 27. Gen. Goiran, who became Minister of War following the accidental death of Minister Berteaux, was recently quoted as saying that in the event of war, the chief of state, the President, would have the supreme command. The statement has been both criticized and ridiculed by the Opposition, causing some embarrassment to Premier Monis and his other associates.

Butcher Beaten to Death?

Biddeford, Maine, June 24. On the strength of information given to the York county authorities in support of an allegation that Charles Weymouth a Saco butcher, who disappeared in September, 1908, was murdered, the sheriff arrested Joseph Buzzell, of Dayton, Olney Merrill, of Gardiner and Mrs. Maude Snow, of Dayton, yesterday. All three were taken to Alfred, the two men to answer to charges of murder and the woman to a charge of having been an accessory to the alleged crime.

The authorities announced this information had been obtained from two persons, whose names they withheld, and who claimed to have seen Weymouth beaten to death at Mrs. Snow's home. According to their story as given out by the sheriff, Weymouth's body was then placed in a box and buried. Officers yesterday went to the alleged place of burial, near the Snow home in Dayton, to endeavor to locate the body.

Seamen's Strike Over.

Southampton, Eng., June 24.—The strike of seamen which has seriously inconvenienced many of the shipping lines, particularly at the English ports for several days, was finally ended yesterday when the employes of the White Star Line accepted the terms of the company and returned to work. The other lines had already compromised with the strikers.

Death of Veteran Schoolmaster.

Cornwall, June 24.—William Styles of Morrisburg, who passed away the other day was a charter member of the Dundas Teachers' Association, and taught for many years in Stormont and Dundas. He was over 80 years of age and was born at Lincoln Bridge, Ireland. He was a first cousin of the late Prof. Tyndall, the eminent scientist.

Will Sue Convent.

Montreal, June 24.—At a meeting of the Provincial Board of Health yesterday it was decided to take action against the Convent of St. Jerome for allowing such a wholesale breaking of quarantine as occurred there last Monday night and Tuesday morning after the officers had discovered smallpox cases there. The law provides that a fine of $15 may be exacted for each transgression of the quarantine regulations. As 43 escaped on Monday night and 30 in the morning, if action were taken against all it would involve a sum of $1,095.

The little seven-year-old girl found at St. Andre street, while suffering from the disease, slept one night with another family, was also in the street and about the street with companions.

Circus Broke Up Church Conference.

Lacrosse, Wis., June 24.—A circus parade, passing a church where sessions were being held yesterday, proved too strong a counter attraction, and 400 delegates to the Northwestern Synod of the German Lutheran Church, listening to a paper on "The duties of the present day church," temporarily left the speaker without an audience and rushed outdoors and to the windows.

Wild and Wooly.

Montreal, June 24.—Realistic to an unexpected extent, the Wild West Show at King Edward Park has provided a hospital case, the injured being Mr. Hill, one of the proprietors.

Springing from his horse on to the back of a steer, Mr. Hill lost his grip and was severely trampled on, and prodded by the animal before other "cowboys" effected a rescue.

Cyclone In Chile.

Iquique, Chile, June 24. A cyclone, accompanied by rain and high temperature, struck this place yesterday. A hundred loaded lighters were sunk in the harbor and ships were stripped of their masts.

In the city, roofs were blown from some buildings. A panic was caused and many persons were injured. Rain almost never falls here.

NOT AS LARGE

From Farm and Dairy.

The make of cheese to date in Ontario due to the late season is not as large as up to the same time last year. Cows were turned on pasture later than usual, and the make in the early part of the season was small. The make at the present, according to reports received from Farm and Dairy correspondents, is larger than at the same time last year, and is rapidly making up for the smaller make earlier in the season.

At the date of writing correspondents were apprehensive of a falling off in June unless rain was received to help pastures. With copious rains the prospects for the rest of the season are bright, and from present indications the make of cheese in Ontario for 1911 will not fall away from the make of 1910, and may show an increase.

A feature of the dairy situation mentioned by some of our correspondents is that more milk is required to make a pound of cheese than formerly. This may be due to the cows milking better on good pastures, but a more important factor in lowering the test at cheese factories is that patrons where milk is paid for by the pooling system have no inducement to breed otherwise than for larger milk production irrespective of quality.

"On Monday, June 5, I received 6,336 lbs. of milk more than on the same date last year. I have six patrons more that deliver 2,626 lbs of milk. My old patrons, therefore, are delivering 3,910 lbs. of milk more than last year. It is taking more milk to make a pound of cheese this year than last. Cows are milking better. Prospects for the remainder of the season are good."—S. N. Morrison, Prescott Co., Ont.

"Make to date compares favorably with last year. Prospects for the remainder of the season are good."—Freeman Brown, Grenville Co., Ont.

"A heavy yield of milk is reported. Farmers who have made butter for many years are now sending their milk to the cheese factory."—W. H. Montgomery, Leeds Co., Ont.

"We are receiving 800 lbs more milk a day than at this time last year. Patrons are milking about the same number of cows."—B. Howe, Frontenac Co., Ont.

"The flow of milk is about the same as last year. Pastures are dry, and the June make will be short unless we get rain."—R. W. Thompson, Hastings Co., Ont.

"We have received more milk to date than we did last year, and have made 90 boxes more cheese. Prospects look very good for the June make if we get rain."—Adam H. Lloyd, Hastings Co., Ont.

"The quantity of milk as compared with last year is the same. Prospects are good for the remainder of the season. If grass is good the output will be larger than last year."—A. G. McDonald, Northumberland Co., Ont.

"I am getting more milk than I did last year, and the make of cheese is larger."—Geo. H. Ivey, Northumberland Co., Ont.

"We are receiving the same amount of milk as last year, and the make of cheese is the same. Fewer cows are being milked."—John Howe, Prince Edward Co., Ont.

"We are receiving less milk this season than last and making less cheese."—A. Vandusen, Prince Edward Co., Ont.

"I am not getting as much milk as last year, as cows are later. Prospects are very fair for the balance of the season."—G. Ginther, Welland Co., Ont.

"We are receiving 1,000 lbs. more milk a day than last year. We have made less cheese to date. We have fewer patrons, but our old patrons are keeping more cows, and they are milking better. Present conditions indicate a large make for the remainder of the season."—Chas. Jenkins, Oxford Co., Ont.

"We are receiving more milk than at this time last year. We have made about the same amount of cheese to date. Prospects for the remainder of the season are favorable."—W. C. Loughin, Middlesex Co., Ont.

St. Paul's Choir Delightfully Entertained At Stoney Lake

Perhaps few Peterboro people enjoyed Coronation Day more thoroughly than the members of St. Paul's choir, who were royally entertained at "Glad-hal-ken," the summer home of their organist and choirmaster, Mr. John Crane. The island was bright with bunting and cordiality when the party, numbering about thirty-five, were met by their host and his sergeant-at-arms, Mr. E. Moore, on the arrival of the Water Lily. No time was lost in partaking of the bountiful and delicious repast provided by the Commissary General and his Aides, after which song and story were in order.

As loyal citizens of the brightest gem in the Imperial crown, in order to impress more fully the significance of the ceremony for which the day was set apart, a mock coronation was performed, with Mr. Brown and Miss Davies as their Majesties' understudies. This began with the raising of the flag, participated in by the male members of the choir. The Throne Room did not lack a facsimile of the Stone of Scone, sufficiently enlarged to accommodate the entire Royal party, and when the crucial moment arrived and all the gorgeous panoply of state stood revealed, the bodded held his breath for a second whilst the official photographers, Mrs. Gillespie and Mr. E. Moore, made state records that may be consulted by any who are inclined to doubt correctness of costuming and procedure.

Miss Crabe, as Mistress of the Robes, had upperdecked Miss Davies with a crown which most fittingly represented her as Queen of the home, and was a marvel of the stone-cutter's art; while her sceptre symbolized woman's efficiency in pouring cold water. Her robes, like those of the King, looked "such as never were on land or sea." The Royal trains were duly carried by pages—Willard and Meredith Moore.

Dignity and efficiency characterized the members of the Royal suite, with D. H. Moore as Lord High Chancellor, Mr H. Gillespie as Keeper of the Privy Purse, Mr. Gray as Keeper of the Royal Canteen, while the ladies of the Household and Maids-in-Waiting formed a Guard of Honour round the Queen. Mr. Logan, as Archbishop of Canterbury, looked as solemn as occasion demanded in well-turned glittering mitre that showed no more than one or two spots of rust on the outside, and his robe of rich velvet was given a poke or two of effectiveness by the usual rod which symbolizes the iron of our Constitution.

At his command the Royal smoke-stack was presented to His Majesty by Sir Hal Crane, attendant Knight, at which intense moment (for it was the last of the box) the Lord High Executioner struck an attitude with his axe as he splittingly asserted, So perish all enemies of the Crown!"

For distinguished service, Knighthood was then conferred upon Host John Crane and was dubbed K.K.P., P.M.P.A., G.C.T.M., Q.M.I.C.C., which, being unfamiliar orders to rising generations, may be interpreted: Knight of the Key and Pipe, Past Master Pedalling Artists, Grand Commissioner Thursday Nights, Quire Manager Ice Cream Contests. After the reading of the following ode by the Archbishop, the exercises of the day closed with the lowering of the flag and voices joining in "God Save the King" as it slowly descended from the masthead.

With much regret we left "Glad-hal-ken" and "our bonnie King Charlie"—long may he float in his little boat, and never lack for good, queenly support when he needs it. A short stop was made at Young's Point to replenish the gum supply, which tended to a more rhythmic and general movement of the mouth organs.

Peterboro was reached at 7.30, and we found that the Street Railway Company had their finest machines at our service a swift finish to a most delightful day.

HICKS' FORECAST

A reactionary storm period is central on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th, with the Moon on the celestial equator and at first quarter. By the 2nd expect very marked rise in temperature, falling barometer and vicious electrical storms in western states. During the 3rd and 4th these storms will pass eastwardly over the country, preceded by excessive warmth. In eastern parts of the country, a "hot wave" and Fourth of July thunder storms should not surprise the people. In most sections west of the Mississippi river, storms will have passed eastward, leaving fair and more pleasant weather for the "Glorious Fourth."

A regular storm period covers the 6th to the 10th, with probability of being prolonged over the full Moon on the 11th. The Venus influence is still dominant at this period, which fact may reasonably excite hopes of rain over many sections of the grain-growing regions. We believe that a very lack of general rains will be upon very wide sections of the great agricultural regions to the northwest, west and south, from the middle of July until late in September. Those who figure and plan to mature crops at the earliest possible part of the summer will, we predict and advise, come out winners. A possible reaction to fair and cooler may come on and touching the 10th and 11th.

A reactionary storm period centres on the 12th, 13th and 14th with possibility of threatening conditions holding over from the preceding storm period. Falling barometer, increase of temperature, with cloudiness and moderate rains, will be due Wednesday the 12th to Friday the 14th, followed by change to fair and cooler weather, up to the 16th. Do not forget that all storms and weather changes progress from west to east; they do not strike the whole country at the same time or day. A sesame period is central on the 17th, affecting the 4th to the 14th.

A regular storm period begins on the 16th, and extends to the 23rd. We prolong this period to the new Moon on the 25th for the reason that storm periods are often drawn forward in their culmination by pendinal new Moon dates. A probably storm crisis will fall on the 19th, 20th and 21st, causing rain, wind and thunder, leaving high temperature and threatening conditions to continue over the 23rd.

A reactionary storm period falls on the 24th, 25th and 26th. This period [illegible] and at new Moon, in perigee and at extreme north declination. Expect excessive warmth at this time, with low barometer and fierce thunder gusts. Squalls and local downpours will visit localities, but far-reaching general rains are not indicated. Mercury cloudiness and moderate drizzle may touch most parts for several days, including much of the Mercury period. A seismic period of very positive character extends from the 22nd to 28th, central on the 25th.

A regular storm period is in progress as July goes out. It is central on the 30th, at the crisis of the Mercury period, with the Moon on the celestial equator. A low barometer, with fitful south winds and high humidity, from the 29th to August the 2nd, should be admonitions of violent storms. Centring on and next to the 30th, great, black, blustering storm clouds, with dangerous gusts of wind and thunder, will be natural. Heavy local downpours of rain will strike many limited localities. Your barometer will tell you if danger is at hand.

45TH BACK FROM CAMP

(Lindsay Post.)

LINDSAY, JUNE 23.—The 45th regiment arrived home this morning by special C.P.R. The soldier boys left Kingston last night about 10.30, arriving in town about 8.45 this morning. As they marched up kent street they made a fine showing.

The sports were held yesterday, the 45th carrying off a lot of the prizes.

The military tattoo was a grand affair, the fireworks being the best ever had at Barriefield.

A number of Peterborough men, who were out with the Regiment, returned on the 11.40 G.T.R. from Lindsay yesterday, and seemed to have thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

No Worm Medicine acts as nicely as Milburn's Worm Powders; no physic required.—Wm. Madill, druggist.

WEDDING BELLS

HORNER—COURTNEY.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Courtney on Tuesday afternoon, when their eldest daughter, Hattie, was united in marriage to Mr. Harold Horner of Bindsay. The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. R. Burns, Ph.B., took place in the presence of a number of guests. One corner of the drawing-room was banked with yelloy daisies and palms. The bride was given away by her father and wore a handsome gown of white embroidered net over white satin, and also wore a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. She carried a lovely bouquet of white roses. A satin wishbone, entwined with lilies of the valley rested coronet fashion on her hair. Her two little flower girls, Miss Freda Horner and Miss Rhea Courtney were dressed alike in dainty white silk frocks with trimmings of pink and blue, and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations. Each little tot wore a pretty, gold, monogramed locket, the gift of the groom. The wedding march was played by Mrs. D. Magee, sister of the bride. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, at which the health of the bride and groom was toasted. After cutting the cake the bride slipped away to don her travelling gown, which was of champagne Irish silk poplin, with black trimmings. She wore a large tuscan hat, faced with black, and trimmed simply, with a spray of Persian roses. Mr. and Mrs. Horner left on the six train amid a shower of good wishes for Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Rochester. On their return they will reside in Lindsay. Their many friends wish them all possible happiness.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

The lawn social and strawberry festival at Fraserville which was to be held last night was postponed until next Tuesday night, on account of the rain. The Salvation Army Band went out to Fraserville, but although their services were not required, they were very generous with their music, as they usually are, and rendered many enjoyable selections. The band will be in attendance next Tuesday night again, and it is to be hoped that the weather will be more favourable. Fresh arrangements are being made, and weather permitting, a most pleasant time is promised, and a large crowd will be provided for.

FLEET AT SPITHEAD

One Hundred and Fifty Celebrities, Including Their Majesties, the British Royal Families, Visiting Princes and Delegates and Their Attaches Are Guests of Sir Edward Grey—Rain at Night.

Portsmouth, Eng., June 24.—Notwithstanding a dismal drizzling rain both the City of Portsmouth and the fleet in Spithead were brilliantly illuminated last night. Vessels representing seventeen nations which had come to greet the newly-crowned King vied with the gigantic gathering of British warships in making a beautiful spectacle. The long lines of vessels moored in Spithead blazed with light, hulls and masts outlined with electric lamps glowing brilliantly against the dull skies and reflecting their images in the water upon which they rode at anchor.

Despite the rain every kind of craft, crowded with sightseers, made trips among the warships. The display continued until midnight, when upon signals flashed from the flagships the lights were suddenly extinguished.

Meanwhile the town was full of animation. Bluejackets of all nations fraternized in the heartiest manner and visited together the various places of entertainment.

Banquet to Royalty.

London, June 24.—The state banquet at the Foreign Office last night was one of the most important social events of coronation week. Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister and host of the occasion, received King George and Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, Princess Patricia, Prince and Princess Christian, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, the Duke and Duchess of Argyle and all the foreign royal personages and the special representatives to the coronation.

Altogether sixty royal personages attended the function. The entire company numbered 150, among those present being various members of the royal household, attaches of the Foreign Office, the papal delegate, Mgr. Di Belmonte, Premier and Mrs. Asquith, the Duchess of Devonshire and the Countess Minto.

The dinner was served in the banqueting hall at two oblong tables and six large tables. All were splendidly decorated with flowers and silver candelabra, and pictures loaned by the Indian Office and from other sources hung on the walls, enhancing the effect of the handsome mural decorations. The general effect of the decorations was extremely rich.

The Queen and Sir Edward Grey and a score of guests sat at the principal table, while King George and the Crown Princess of Germany with an equal number of persons were opposite them at the head of the other oblong table. The Duke of Connaught and Premier Asquith also presided at tables. The Grenadier Guards' band furnished the music for the occasion. All the men were in black court dress of knickerbockers and wore swords. The toilettes of the ladies were magnificent, and the display of jewels a gorgeous one.

The jury at an inquest last evening to inquire into the death of Chas. Fisher, killed by a G.T.R. engine in Merriton on Monday, brought in a verdict of accidental death.

The Canadian Bisley team sailed from Quebec yesterday by the Allan steamer Victorian. The team was joined there by Corpl. George Mortimore, who will represent the ancient capital at the meeting.

Doubling The Capacity Of Big Kingston Plant

The remarkable railway development of Canadian railways has enormously increased the demand for locomotives of ever-increasing size, power and cost. The demand is one of the most certain in any line of manufacture.

There is a big field for a larger and up-to-date locomotive building plant in Canada—the present plant of the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston is entirely inadequate to handle its orders and just now there are contracts in sight which would keep an augmented plant busy until the end of 1913. The owners of the plant—a powerful syndicate of English and Canadian capitalists—intend to enlarge the works so as to cope with the increasing demands for locomotives in Canada. The present output is not much over 75 engines a year—depending on the type required—and many valuable contracts have to be declined owing to the Company's inability to deliver. It is now intended to double the capacity of the plant, and perhaps treble it.

To enable them to make this expansion the company are issuing one million and a half of first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, one million and a half 7 per cent. cumulative preferred and two million common stock. There will remain in the treasury half a million of bonds to be used for future extensions.

Being exempt from taxation, and with little danger from labour troubles, as explained in Pres. Harty's letter, it is in an exceptionally favourable position to manufacture most profitably.

The Company's premises occupy three blocks in the City of Kingston, having a street frontage of 966 feet, by a depth of about 250 feet—to a frontage on Lake Ontario of about 1175 feet—the area enclosed being 333,000 square feet. There are about a dozen buildings, including one of the finest power plants in the country, a magnificent erecting shop with huge travelling cranes, boiler shops, riveting shops, machine shops, tank shops, tender shops, blacksmith shops, four and pattern rooms, paint shops and carpenter shops. In all, the works occupy seven acres. The Company has its own branch railway line in Kingston and its own wharves and docking facilities on Lake Ontario.

The engines it turns out are the most up-to-date possible and that they are satisfactory in service is proved by repeated orders from all previous buyers. The C.P.R., the G.T.R., the I.C.R., the National Transcontinental, the Canadian Northern and the Government owned Temiscaming and Northern Ontario Railroad—all are patrons o fthe Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston. Six engines recently turned out for the T.N.O. are said to be the largest ever built in Canada. Chairman Englehart of the T. & N. O., speaking of these engines, declared them to be the finest he had ever seen and were giving the greatest satisfaction. At present the company has contracts for some 50 engines with the C.P.R. and the C.N.R., the I.C.R. and the Algoma Central and it is becoming increasingly difficult to keep up with the orders.

The working staff is about 800 strong and a big proportion of the employees have grown up with the works and own their own homes in the neighbourhood. This fact is a pretty safeguard against labour troubles common in other centres.

The men who are to control the new company are recognized powers in the financial world. The banking firm in charge of the business is Aemilius Jarvis & Company of Toronto, and associated with them are the well known firm of Brown, Shipley & Company, bankers of London, England. Mr. Pryor, President of the Sun Life Assurance Co., of London, Lord Glenconnor, better known as Sir Edward Tennant, a brother-in-law of Premier Asquith and Mr. E. Balfour, first cousin of Ex-Premier A. J. Balfour.

Of the large amount for which firm subscriptions have been received, and which will be allotted in full, it is worthy of note that Paris, France and London, England have taken a substantial sum.

ladies are to be congratulated on the bountiful spread prepared.

During the afternoon a splendid programme of athletic events was pulled off, the different items being keenly contested.

Rev. Father Galvin was most assiduous in his efforts to see that everyone enjoyed the day and received splendid assistance from splendid committees from each parish. Everything passed off without a hitch and there was nothing occurred to mar the loyal observance of the day.

Among the clergy present were: Venerable Archdeacon Casey and Rev. Father Guiry, Peterborough, Rev. Father McGuire, Downeyville, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Ennismore and Rev. Father Galvin, of Kinmount.

ANNUAL PICNIC OF COMBINED PARISHES

(Lindsay Post.)

On Coronation Day, Bobcaygeon, was en fete, the occasion being the annual picnic of the combined parishes of Galway, Kinmount and Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon, of which Rev. Father Galvin is the popular pastor.

It was the most successful picnic ever held in the village, or in the district for that matter and was attended by hundreds from all points of the compass. Lindsay's quota was nearly five hundred, over three hundred going to the village per C.P.R. while others drove or went by boat.

Ideal King's weather prevailed during the day, and the picnickers spent a most enjoyable day. The affair was held in the Agricultural grounds and from early morning until late at night there was one round of enjoyment. Splendid committees had the different details in hand, and everything was carried out with commendable precision. The Bobcaygeon brass band, a splendid musical organization, was present during the day and was most liberal in providing music. Refreshment booths also dotted the grounds where temperance beverages were dispensed. The dancing platform was the centre of attraction for the young people, and many older heads, too, who renewed their youth by tripping the light fantastic to excellent music.

The feature of the picnic, however, was the excellent meals provided by the ladies. They were fit for royalty the tables fairly groaning under the weight of good things provided. The

YIELD OF TEN COWS

From Farm and Dairy.

C. F. Whitely in Charge of Records

In April the yield of 10 cows near Birnam, Ont., was 383 pounds of butter fat; but from records to hand from the cow testing association near Bobcaygeon, Ont., it is seen that it took 21 cows, more than twice as many, to produce just as much butter fat. In a year or two the man with these poor cows will probably have got his herd up to nearly double their present capacity because he will know for certain which cows are not worth keeping. Dairy farmers in all provinces have done this, some are now getting nearly three times as much milk and fat as they used to obtain before they determined to gather information as to which poor cows were sheltering themselves, coward fashion, behind either a fair herd average or a heavy yield from one or two extra good cows in the herd; such, for instance as a seven-year-old grade cow near Woodstock, Ont., that gave last month 2161 pounds of milk, testing 3.3 per cent. of fat, thus giving over 73 pounds of butter fat in one month, almost double the good average yield above noted at Birnam.

Are your cows good profitable, dairy cows, or are they cowards? It will pay you to keep records of each one and so find out.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, JUNE 24.—There is no feature to the early cables, the prices for Americans being slightly better presumably on short covering. Sentiment here is generally cheerful owing to the resilence displayed of late on bear attacks, which indicates that the larger interests are not arrayed on the side of lower prices. So far as the news goes, some factors are unsettling, but Wall street is disposed to look ahead when more conservative counsels will prevail in congress. The weekly resumes by trade authorities are of much the same tenor as of late, business showing no material improvement, though there is more confidence expressed regarding the future, once the crops are assured. Reports from the West are of a more favourable character, the recent rains making the prospects for spring wheat better.

The trading element will doubtless even up commitments over the week end, and some further covering is consequently in order. We would buy good stocks on all reactions but fair profits should not be neglected.

New York, N.Y., June 24.—More short covering and further recovery operations, with specialization are indicated for to-day, along conservative lines. The Hills and Canadian specialties may advance further on better prospects for reciprocity. Un. Pac., Atch., R. I. and Sou. Pac. should be favourably affected by better crop reports. Erie, S. R., M K T are being bought for foreign account.

New York, N.Y., June 24.—Reciprocity will be the attractive magnet. President Taft says there is nothing in the treaty that any protected American industry need fear.

New York, N.Y., June 24.—Wage committee of Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, and the independent manufacturers, have reached an agreement on wage scale for another year.

According to Duns, the trend of business is unquestionably for the better, and the movement promises to quicken as the crops approach nearer to harvest.

Rochester Man Arrested Here On Charge Of Holding Up Local Man

There was a full docket at the police court this morning.

Theodore Jardine was charged with trying to obtain money from a man by threats of arrest. Alex. Sutherland was the victim. Sutherland was put in the box and gave evidence as follows: I was at the Grand Hotel yesterday and got intoxicated and went to sleep in the back yard. This man Jardine woke me up. He got hold of my shoulder and pulled me up to my feet. He then told me he was a police officer and would arrest me. He asked me if I had any money. I said yes, and he felt my pockets and asked me if I had a revolver. I said I had no revolver and that I had $7.00 with me. He said if I would give him $5.00 he would let me go. I refused and he was just taking me away when Detective Newhall came along.

An eye witness of the affair told the following story, to the effect that he only knew the prisoner since yesterday. He met him at the Grand Hotel, where he bought him a drink, and then they went out to what is known as "the park." The witness explained that this is a vacant lot at the back of the Grand Hotel where a few of the boys hang out. The witness said: "A few of the boys get out there and 'rush the can.' They buy bottles of beer and pails of beer and go out there and drink it." The witness further stated that he was so drunk he did not know where he went, after he went out there with the prisoner.

Detective Newhall then gave evidence. He stated that he was down at the back of the hotel outside the fence looking for a horse that he had received information about, and he saw the witness and Sutherland. They were just going through the fence into the beer garden. He said that he kept behind the fence and heard Jardine style himself as an officer. He said that there were some other words and then Sutherland said "arrest him." He further stated that he saw Sutherland pull the money out, and thought the other fellow had gotten it, and he went up to them and asked Jardine what they were doing. The prisoner said then that Sutherland had a revolver on him. He then searched Sutherland, but found no revolver. Detective Newhall stated that he heard the prisoner admit all that had been given in the evidence, to the Chief when arrested. He said that he searched Sutherland and found $8 on him.

The prisoner asked to be allowed to give evidence, and stated as follows: "I live at 114 Exchange street, Rochester. I am a paper hanger by trade. I came here about three days ago and met this man yesterday. I said "let us go out and sit down." Sutherland was lying out there in an open shed, and as I was passing I gave his feet a kick. At the time of going to press this was as far as the prisoner had gotten with his story.

The Magistrate announced that he would reserve judgment for a week.

Thos. Gilboy was charged with being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2.00.

Wm. Watt was charged with being a vagrant. He was found lying in an outbuilding. Detective Newhall stated that he knew the prisoner for some time, and that he was drunk nearly all the time, and would not work. "One month in gaol at hard labour," said the Magistrate.

James Bogue, foreman on the sewer construction, had a dispute over wages with an employee named Defilorey. He was represented by his timekeeper. The difference in the wages was $1.80. The Magistrate allowed the employee the $1.80. Mr. Bogue's representative said he would appeal the case.

Several blacklisters were up and were fined $10 each.

MUST ANSWER MURDER CHARGE

DENVER, JUNE 22.—Frank Harold Henwood, the young New York promoter, must answer in the West Side Criminal Court next Monday for the murder of Geo. E. Copeland, who died as a result of wounds accidentally inflicted by Henwood on the night of May 24, in the Brown Palace Hotel.

If Henwood is acquitted or convicted of less than first degree murder he will be tried for the murder of S. Louis Von Phul, the amateur balconist, of St. Louis, on whom Henwood turned his revolver after he had quarrelled with and been knocked down by Von Phul in a dispute over a woman. Von Phul died the following day. It was believed that Copeland was not dangerously wounded, but complications developed, which caused his death. J. W. Atkinson, who was also accidentally wounded by Henwood, is convalescent.

In trying Henwood first on the charge of Copeland's murder the District Attorney believes the chances for a conviction are greater than if he were prosecuted for killing Von Phul first. He believes that an acquittal in the Von Phul case would mean the case against Henwood for Copeland's death would fall to the ground. Many of those familiar with the law do not agree with the District Attorney's views.

Von Phul's family are not satisfied with the decision at all. They will demand an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, they say.

To this end the remnant of the old St. Louis Von Paul's family fortune will be spent, if necessary. Luxury long ago forsook them, but the family is in comfortable circumstances. Now, however, comfort can go and poverty take its place, if the change will bring about retribution.

This is what Mrs. Marie Kimbrough, sister of Von Phul, dramatically exclaimed. She spoke apparently without venom.

The defence will hold that Henwood killed Copeland while defending his own life against Von Phul. Lawyers say that unless the prosecution can prove that Henwood's life was not in danger at the hands of Von Phul, the Copeland case will be weak.

Meanwhile Mrs. Springer, wife of John W. Springer, president of the Continental Trust Company, over whom the men fought, is seeking in vain a reconciliation with her husband.

After the tragedy she fled to Chicago. But on the advice of her attorneys she returned. So far Springer has avoided a personal conference with her. The District Attorney does not intend to call Mrs. Springer as a witness in Henwood's trial, although it is possible the defence may do so. A number of letters written by Mrs. Springer to Von Phul are in the District Attorney's possession, and these may be introduced at the trial.

QUALITY IN THE CORN CROP

From Farm and Dairy.

Quality in the corn crop and quantity also at harvest time next fall will depend among other factors upon how thick it is allowed to grow. Corn for silage purposes, or for fodder, should not be in rows less than 42 inches apart. With the large-growing varieties, as are used for ensilage and fodder purposes, it is better to have the rows spaced 46 inches or 48 inches. Speaking about how thick corn should be planted Mr A. W. VanSickle, of Onondago township, Brant Co., Ont., last week while conversing with an editor of Farm and Dairy, laid particular emphasis upon the necessity of having corn thin enough in the row, and to have it well spaced between the rows. Mr. VanSickle uses one of the Western corn planters and grows in the neighborhood of 20 acres of silo corn each year. Last year he had the planter drop a kernel every seven inches. This, he said, was much too thick and if there is one stalk every 12 inches in the row it is plenty.

"If you have the corn thicker than this in the row," said Mr. VanSickle, "the ears will be short. We must allow plenty of space for the corn to grow and develope good ears and lots of them. It is well to thin the corn if it is planted too thickly and thus ensure a proper development of the stalk and ear, since it is only from such corn that we can get the first quality of ensilage."

HARDISTY

The Town of Hardisty is expending $15,000 in Cement walks alone this year. The Residential Streets are all being boulevarded, making it the most enchanting City in the West.

A large Public Park has already been reserved, beautifully located, running to the shore of a beautiful lake, which abounds with different kinds of fish. Several small lakes are in close proximity to Hardisty, which is bound to make it one of the finest summer and health resorts in the West. Within six miles from Hardisty is the famous Buffalo Park, which is a source of wonder and delight, containing the largest herd of Buffalo now in captivity. Hardisty has a typical sunny Alberta climate, conductive to the production of every kind of wild fruit and berries which grow in abundance all along the shores of Battle river and lakes.

A few of the C. P. R. Sidings at Hardisty.

C. P. R. Round House and Stalls at Hardisty.

HARDISTY already has 25 miles of side tracks, having a capacity of 1,000 cars, with an auxiliary yard having a capacity for 500 more, which will be doubled this year to cope with the immense traffic.

The C. P. R. has already expended at Hardisty over $300,000 in Round Houses and Machine Shops. 8 more Stalls are being added this year to accommodate the increasing business of the company.

HARDISTY ASSURES ONE OF THE BEST PROFIT MAKING INVESTMENTS IN THE WEST.

As can readily be seen on the map, Hardisty is the centre of the great Transcontinental traffic, the shortest route by 300 miles from Winnipeg to the great west. Hardisty is a splendid freight distributing point with direct connection with Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, and Winnipeg. Hardisty is the key to the last Great West, and the open door through which passes Alberta's great products of grain, timber, live stock and minerals.

The C. P. R. employs seventeen train crews, running to and from Hardisty daily, besides those employed in connection with the Round Houses, Machine Shops, Stores, Coal Sheds, etc.

Hardisty has the beautiful Battle River running past its door, affording no end of sport for the huntsman and fisherman, also assuring excellent sites for manufacturing concerns, and at the same time supplying the town with water if needed.

Hardisty has large General Stores, Hotels, Churches, Banks, Hardware Stores, Wholesale and Retail Butcher Shops, Lumber Yards, Implement Shops, Livery Barns, Large Schools, Hospital and Printing Offices.

Hardisty's surroundings are the best for mixed farming in the west, being three weeks earlier than the general run of places.

Spread out before you is the picturesque town of Hardisty, the Wonder Town of the West. It is cleft by the beautiful Battle river flowing pure and sparkling, affording water privileges that few towns can boast of.

Kirkbride, residents of London, England, who are wanted to testify in the divorce proceedings.

Boy Attempted Suicide.

Montreal, June 24.—A boy named Seravini, eight years old, presented a pitiful sight in the dock before Judge Leeton on a charge of attempted suicide yesterday. He has only been here a few weeks and tells a story of a search for work, which proved unavailing. He jumped off the Allan Line dock to end it all, but the captain of a barge pulled him out. He has been remanded until the 30th, and an attempt to secure his a position will be made.

Use the GILLETTE
With the Angle Stroke

Jack-knife—draw-knife—plane—scythe—lawn-mower—all edge tools cut cleanest and easiest with the angle stroke.

The angle stroke was the only thing that made the old open-blade razor possible—except as an instrument of torture.

Yet many men use the GILLETTE like a hoe and expect it to cut clean and easy. The superb quality of its cutting edge is proved by the fact that even when used in this way the GILLETTE gives a good shave.

But to get the real satisfaction which the GILLETTE is capable of giving you, you naturally must use the angle stroke. Then you will know and appreciate the genuine luxury of the clean, cool, comfortable, easy three-minute GILLETTE shave.

Buy a GILLETTE and enjoy it—if you haven't one already. If you have one now, use it right and enjoy it to the full.

PROGRESS IS SLOW.

Mr. Borden is Finding Alberta a Hard Nut to Crack.

Medicine Hat, Alta., June 24.—R. L. Borden and his party held a meeting in Maple Creek yesterday afternoon. The chairman of the meeting was W. J. Wylie, who represents Maple Creek riding in the Saskatchewan Legislature. Mr. Wylie left the chamber before the vote on the reciprocity pact, but as he made no protest against it he took responsibility for it here to-day. Explaining his occupancy of the chair at an anti-reciprocity meeting:

"I was very strongly in favor of that vote," he said, "it was sprung on us hurriedly; we had a busy season on and had no time to consider the subject. We gave a verdict of insufficient evidence. At first sight it looked as if it would be good for this province, but when you hear this gentleman you may think otherwise. It should not be in the power of two men to put such an agreement into effect. The people should have a chance of expressing their opinion."

This retort brought a cheer from a small section of the audience. He carried more of the audience with him, however, when he challenged the right of Messrs. Fielding and Paterson to bind the honor of Canada to the Washington Government. He was given a rousing cheer on the conclusion of his speech.

The town declared a public holiday in honor of the Conservative leader's visit.

On his arrival here Mr. Borden was greeted by a large number of citizens, who gave him a hearty welcome after a motor drive about the city a public meeting was held in the City Hall.

An unusual feature of the welcome was the shooting of a gas well.

As has been the custom throughout the tour, Borden was given an enthusiastic personal welcome. The audience cheered the man of the British preference. They cheered Mr. Borden's policy of the Hudson Bay Railway, the terminal elevators and similar local issues. On the subject of the tariff and reciprocity they listened carefully to the argument presented and took away the anti-reciprocity literature to read later. But it was only a small section who cheered an economic argument on the subject and the cheers came only personally. Mr. Borden cited the argument that conditions had changed since reciprocity was desired by both parties. This was the twentieth, not the nineteenth century. "Are we to be governed by the former or the latter?" he asked. "By the farmers," came an interruption.

"Yes, I agree with that," replied Mr. Borden. "This problem is of interest to the farmer, and I believe that the feeling of the farmer is that this pact should not be put into effect."

Effort to Save Murderess.

Montreal, June 24.—Chevalier L. Scelesi, Italian consul, has received a letter from the lawyer who defended Antelina Napolitana, the Sault Ste. Marie murderess, asking him to use his influence in the prisoner's favor.

The chevalier would make no statement, except that, "If the newspaper reports are correct, the case is certainly a most deserving one."

W. J. Lindsay Remanded.

Toronto, June 24.—W. J. Lindsay, charged with conspiracy in connection with the Farmers' Bank, was remanded a week in the Police Court yesterday morning. A three weeks' boost asked by the defence was refused, and Mr Lindsay must appear from week to week.

VALUABLE INFORMATION

From Farm and Dairy.

A mare should be given at least a week's rest after foaling in order to permit the generative tract to regain its original form and the system in general to become adjusted to the new conditions. During this time she should be kept in a comfortable box stall with occasional access to a protected lot for sunshine and exercise. After her first thirst is quenched with small allowances of water at intervals she should have access to fresh water, which may be given by placing a large pailful in some protected plate in her stall. Her grain diet should be rather scanty for a few days. It should consist principally of clean oats and bran. To give her a full allowance at this time is positively dangerous to both mare and foal, says the Stallion and Jack News. Digestive disorder in either may be easily induced by making a mistake at this time.

The greater number of cases of diarrhoea in foals are induced by too liberal a supply of grain to the mother at an early age. If a colt shows a tendency to such disorder, cut the grain ration of the mother at once and remove the milk from the udder several times a day by hand so as to limit the supply to the colt.

PUTTING THE MARE TO WORK

Before putting the mare to work, separate her from the colt for a day or two by placing the mare in an adjoining stall and permit the colt to nurse several times a day. When the mare is put into harness, let her work be of a very light character until she becomes gradually accustomed to service again.

Allow the colt to remain in the stall, but bring the mare to the barn for several days during the middle of the forenoon and afternoon so as to permit the colt to nurse. Gradually the time for nursing can be extended so that three times a day will be sufficient.

We favor keeping colts in the stall rather than permit them to follow the mare, for, everything considered, it works to their advantage. A colt is much more subject to accident while following the mare and is harmed by becoming fatigued in its attempt to keep up the pace of the mother. Besides they do no little damage in tramping down growing crops. When kept in the stall they soon become contented, especially if with mates, and soon learn to nibble oats and bran, which may be kept within reach. It makes the weaning process an easy one when colts are so kept and they do not receive a check in their growth at this period. One should be careful not to have the mare hot when the colt is turned with her to nurse and it is well when this cannot be avoided to strip a part of the milk so that the colt will not get too much.

HALTER BREAKING

A colt should be broken to halter early, and when taken upon the road should be tied alongside of its mother. This precaution will save many an accident by preventing young colts from being run through wire fences by worthless dogs or injured in numerous ways. Especially should care be exercised if the colt is to be taken through town where traffic serves to confuse and produce all sorts of vexations.

In the course of a week or 10 days it is well to permit the colt access to a lot where it may have opportunity for exercise and needed sunshine. Do not forget that the latter is one of the best and cheapest tonics we have for growing animals and is very necessary for their thrift. These principles are the basis of the well developed, sound and healthy animal that in later years renders satisfactory service or gives back financially a good reward for the time and labor spent.

"Yes, this tea is nice, Amy. But I pay five whole "cents a pound less!"

"No, honey! You only think you do. Just order some Red Rose and notice how much further it goes!"

AVERAGE YIELD OF FAT PER COW

From Farm and Dairy.

C. F. Whitely, In Charge of Records, Ottawa

The average yield of fat per cow in one association in Quebec was 27.9 lbs. for the month of last October. In another Quebec association it was only 16.2 pounds. A simple calculation shows therefore that in one section 183 cows had to be handled to produce as much butter fat as in the other section was produced by just 100 cows. From statements made out by the owners of various herds it is apparent that in many cases five cows out of 14 are not producing enough milk to pay the cost of their feed.

Such plain, unvarnished facts ought to open the eyes of every one who is the least particle interested in the progress and development of Canada. Profitless toil on the farm is unnecessary. Human energy properly directed is almost limitless in its possibilities, but to see it misdirected, wasted on poor cows, is one of the saddest sights in this day and generation. Valuable beyond comparison with water power or any other power is this enormous volume of vital human force at present so uselessly squandered.

We have smiled too long at the low average, we have thought only with ridicule of the 3000 pound cow. What we need to do is to awaken from this dull lethargy, and endeavor to realise what a shocking, appalling waste is occurring to-day on thousands of dairy farms. Millions of valuable hours spent now in handling poor cows, and thousands of "foot-pounds" of manual strength might be turned to profitable account.

The problem is pressing, the best energies of our wisest leaders in thought and action might well be exercised in grappling with the situation, so as to conserve that most precious asset, human energy. Cow testing is playing a leading part in the reformation.

THE HAY CROP THIS YEAR IN ONTARIO

The hay crop this year in Ontario is considerably below the average; in some places in Western Ontario the

"Some Alfalfa"

A farmer with alfalfa such as that shown in the illustration need not worry about a short hay crop. The longest of this alfalfa is three feet, eight inches and the rest is not much shorter. This alfalfa was grown by Mr. Geo. Marsh, Farm and Dairy's alfalfa expert, on his farm in Grey Co., Ont.

timothy and ordinary clover meadows will not yield over one-half ton per acre. Anyone unfortunate in having so poor a stand of hay can, on seeing the wonderful first growth of alfalfa this year (some plants are shown in the illustration herewith) appreciate what a boon the alfalfa is to those farmers who are fortunate in having the crop.

The top of one of the alfalfa plants shown in the illustration measures three feet eight inches. The others are not much shorter. These were received by Farm and Dairy last week from Mr. Geo. Marsh, Grey Co., Ont., and were photographed by one of the editors of Farm and Dairy. What a crop of these plants would yield per acre may be estimated fairly high. And then this is only the first crop. There is, all being well, the second and third cuttings yet to follow, these, of course, being somewhat shorter and finer in the stems than the plants of the first cutting, as here shown.

The factor of quality as well as quantity must be considered when one reckons the value of alfalfa. Timothy hay, as is commonly grown, has only 2.8 per cent. of digestible protein. (Owing to the failure of red clover in many parts of the country, thousands of cows will have to eat timothy hay, if they get hay at all, this coming winter.) Ordinary red clover has 6.8 per cent. of digestible protein; alfalfa hay has 11 per cent. of protein, while common wheat bran, for which we farmers must pay from $20 to $23 a ton, has only 12.2 per cent. of digestible protein.

Those who have alfalfa this year, even though it be but a partial stand are fortunate. When we all get to understand what a splendid crop alfalfa is we will all be in the fortunate class since we will all be growing alfalfa in abundance.

QUALITY OF EGGS

From Farm and Dairy.

The best method of ensuring that all eggs marketed are of good quality is to collect them twice a day and market them frequently—at least twice a week in summer. In order to make sure that eggs are fresh they may be candled, and this work can readily be done on the farm. Take a cardboard box large enough to hold a lamp and cut a hole in the side of the box the shape of an egg but somewhat smaller. This outfit makes a cheap and efficient candler.

The candling must be done in a dark room. Place the egg against the opening and its appearance will show whether it is fresh, stale or rotten. Mr. A. G. Philips, of Purdue University, gives the following indications that point to the condition of the egg:

Fresh.—Opaque, appearing almost entirely free of any contents, sometimes dim outline of yolk visible, air cell very small.

EARLY CLOSING AND HOLIDAYS

During the months of July and August, every Thursday afternoon at one p.m., the dry goods, clothing, gents furnishings, hatters and furriers and jewellers of the city will close their stores in order to afford the employees a half-day during the hot spell.

As Dominion Day comes on Saturday this year, the regular market day will be held on Friday preceding. All business houses will be closed on the holiday.

Coronation Day, June 22nd, will also be observed by all the stores closing.

BORDEN IN CALGARY

Touring Party Get Non-Political Welcome—Two Meetings Are Held But "Reciprocity" Badges Are Much in Evidence and Interruptions Frequent

OPENS NEW CITY HALL

Calgary, June 27.—The Conservative leader celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday yesterday by addressing two audiences on reciprocity and by opening the new City Hall of this city with a golden key. Mr. Borden came up to Calgary from Lethbridge yesterday morning, and on his arrival here was presented with a civic address of welcome. A large number of citizens turned out and gave him an enthusiastic, though non-political reception. After the ceremony at the City Hall, the party was driven around the city, and then returned to High River, where he addressed a public meeting attended by about six hundred people.

The audience at High River contained a large infusion of members of the United Farmers of Alberta, who wore badges bearing the word "reciprocity." An address was also presented to him in behalf of this body. It was couched in the same terms as that read at McLeod by the Provincial Secretary of the organization.

Speakers were interrupted with a frequency which has been rare during the tour. G. H. Perley, the first speaker, met with it when he was discussing the origin of the reciprocity agreement.

"We asked Laurier for it," came a voice from the crowd.

"Did you ask for reciprocity?" Mr. Perley asked back.

"We asked for free trade," was the reply.

10,000 Barrels of Oil Burn.

Port Arthur, Texas, June 27.—Two lives were lost, half a dozen men were injured, some seriously, three oil barges and one tug were burned to the water's edge and about 10,000 barrels of oil, two large warehouses and over 500 feet of wharves were destroyed as the result of an explosion, which was followed by a fire in the Port Arthur harbor and waterfront yesterday. The loss is about $300,000.

Capt. Frank Weber of the barge Humble and Samuel Sicero, an Italian laborer, lost their lives in an explosion aboard the Humble, where the fire started.

The flames swept rapidly over several small vessels belonging to the Texas Company and spread to two large warehouses of that concern. These, together with the wharves, were soon a mass of ruins. Other buildings were slightly damaged.

Suffragettes In Mexico.

Mexico City, June 27.—A suffragette movement which promises to become a factor in Mexican politics under the new regime was launched on Sunday by a woman's club, of which many of the leading women of the capital are members. In a petition directed to Emilio Vasquez Gomez, Minister of the Interior, more than 500 women, who style themselves "friends of the people," demand the right to vote and hold office. They announce their choice of Francisco I. Madero, jr., and Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez for President and vice-president respectively.

Joined the Rebels.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 27.—Many Haytien exiles who are arriving here report that Gen. Finche, formerly a warm adherent of President Simon, has joined the rebels with a large force in the northern section of the republic.

Made Thirty Knots an Hour.

Halifax, June 27.—The American steam yacht Sicilian, owned by Nathan Strauss, banker and philanthropist, of New York, arrived at Liverpool, N.S., Sunday from Bar Harbor. The yacht is commanded by Capt. Basil Richardson, a Nova Scotian skipper. After coaling, she proceeded yesterday morning for the Thousand Islands, where her party will board her for a cruise. The yacht showed herself able to reel off thirty knots an hour under favorable conditions.

Dartmouth Hotel Burned.

Halifax, June 27.—Fire last night partially destroyed the Handley House, an hotel in Dartmouth, across the harbor from Halifax. Most of the damage was from water. A servant girl entered her room over the kitchen to secure some of her belongings was almost suffocated by smoke, and had to be carried out. The insurance, amounting to $3,500, is in the Acadia and Halifax companies.

Fisk Must Die.

Ottawa, June 27.—The governor-in-council has declined to interfere in the case of John Fisk, waiting execution in Calgary for murder. An appeal for clemency or a new trial was made on the plea that Fisk was committed largely on the testimony of an accomplice. Fisk was hanged this morning.

THE RECIPROCITY BILL EMERGES FROM THE SENATE UNSCATHED

THE PULP INDUSTRY

Washington, June 27.—The Canadian reciprocity bill emerged from its first ordeal in the Senate last night unscathed. The Root amendment, proposing a modification of the wood pulp and print paper section of the agreement, was defeated after seven hours of debate, by an overwhelming vote. The friends of the amendment were so satisfied of its defeat that a roll call on the vote was not demanded.

This leaves the reciprocity measure open to the general fight that is to follow of amendment of important provisions of the Payne tariff law. Senator Lafollette announced, in a speech opposing the Root amendment, that he would give to the Senate a chance to pass on general tariff amendments for free paper, free lumber and lumber products, and for reductions in many other schedules. Senator Clapp also announced his intention of offering a free paper amendment later; and other Senators gave evidence of their purpose to force, from now on, consideration of the tariff revision on the widest plane.

Attack on the Root amendment was interspersed with attack on the whole reciprocity measure in the debate that ran throughout the afternoon, and which resulted in the defeat of Senator Root's proposal to change the House bill by requiring that all Canadian provinces should remove their export restrictions on pulp wood and its products before the reciprocal features applied to the wood pulp and print paper items of the agreement.

"I am opposed to this so-called reciprocity legislation as a whole, because I believe it is wrong, harmful and unjustifiable," said Senator Lafollette. "If it must pass, I want to see it made as nearly perfect as possible. I shall vote against the Root amendment because I believe it will defeat the very purpose of the wood pulp and print paper paragraph of the agreement."

Senator Lafollette declared there was no justification for any duty on print paper. He analyzed the figures of the tariff board to show that the west mills in the United States actually produce paper cheaper than the best mills in Canada. To continue a high tariff on paper, he said, was to put a premium on "inefficiency and sloth," and to make the protective tariff "deaden all constructive force" for the development of efficient management.

Senator Lafollette criticized the newspapers for having urged the reciprocity measure as a means of getting relief from the oppressive charges of the print paper manufacturers. He said they had joined with the "packers, the railroads, the flour millers" and others who would secure advantages through the passage of the reciprocity bill.

Senator Lafollette declared that in the testimony taken by the finance committee it would be shown that the newspapers had suppressed the news of the reciprocity proceedings, but on this point Senator Stone, who also is a member of the finance committee, declared the Wisconsin Senator was mistaken.

Broke the Record.

Halifax, June 27.—Records between New York and Halifax were eclipsed yesterday on the arrival of the Red Cross Liner Florizel, which made the run from New York to this port in forty-three hours. Twenty-five years ago a schooner made the run in fifty-six hours, and until the present no sailing vessel has ever been able to duplicate that record. The Florizel brought 150 tourists from New York, and sailed for St. John's, Nfld.

CHOOSING CABINET.

M. Cailleux Will Decide as to French Premiership To-night.

Paris, June 27.—M. Cailleux, Minister of Finance in the Monis Cabinet, who was requested by President Fallieres to form a new Ministry, announced last night, after advising with his friends, that he would be unable to give a definite answer to the President before to-night. At the same time he has made material progress towards the organization of a strong combination.

Leon Bourgeois, former Premier, declined the portfolio of Foreign Minister on the grounds of ill-health, and suggested Raymond Poincare, ex-Minister of Finance, for that office. M. Poincare at first was reluctant to accept the heavy responsibility of that post, for which he feared he was not sufficiently prepared, but agreed to give the matter his consideration, and answer to-day. In event of his refusal M. Deselves, prefect of the Seine, will be asked to take the Foreign Office.

While as yet nothing definitely has been decided upon, it is understood that M. Cailleux, in addition to the Premiership, will take charge of the Ministry of the Interior; M. Doumergue or M. Cruppi, justice; L. L. Klotz, finance; Eugene Etienne or Adolphe Messimy, war; M. Delcasse, marine; Jules A. T. Steeg, public instruction; M. Augagneur, public works; M. Chaumet, commerce; Jules Pams, agriculture; M. Messimy or M. Lebrun, colonies; M. Renoult, labor.

Of these MM. Cruppi, Delcasse, Steeg, Pams and Messimy were in the Monis Cabinet, MM. Klotz and Doumergue were members of the Briand Cabinets, while M Etienne is an ex-Minister of the Interior.

C.P.R. Train Derailed.

Vancouver, June 27.—All the passenger cars of the Toronto train which left Vancouver at 8 o'clock Sunday morning, were derailed at six o'clock in the evening at Semlin Station, a short distance east of Ashcroft. The train was going slowly and none of the cars were overturned. Five passengers were slightly injured.

"Conned" Man In the Cell.

Welland, June 27.—While Thomas Ward was languishing in the police cells at the Town Hall awaiting trial on a charge of vagrancy, an angular man, with a red moustache and red hair, strode into the room adjoining the cells, and announced himself to be a detective of some note.

He condescended to get the prisoner a good square meal if he would hand over his watch. This formality was agreed upon, and the "detective" strode out of the door.

He did not return, and when the prisoner was taken to court he explained matters. Later a farmer named T. Overholt was arrested on the charge, and admitted having taken the watch. He was remanded to jail.

Increase In Infant Mortality.

Montreal, June 27.—Sixty per cent of the total mortality in this city last week was of children under five years of age. Up till now it has been well under 50 per cent., but this great increase seems to show that death will reap a great harvest from children in overcrowded quarters, where sanitary arrangements are not well looked after, and the food, through poverty, is not of the right kind. Of 197 who died last week, 118 were children under five years of age.

ROYALTY AT OPERA

A GORGEOUS PICTURE

London, June 27.—One of the most magnificent spectacles in connection with the coronation was the command performance last night in Covent Garden, the interior of which was transformed into a veritable floral palace, wreathed with England's fairest flower. Those privileged to be within the gerat auditorium will long remember the gorgeous, scintillating picture, the fragrance of 100,000 perfect rose blooms, the noble company of men and women representing the royalty of the world, and all the most distinguished in British official and social life, who filled every box and every stall.

The King and Queen drove from Buckingham Palace in a state coach, escorted by Life Guards. On their arrival Their Majesties were received by the chief state officers and escorted to the royal box, while the brilliant audience rose.

The royal box consisted of ten boxes in the centre grand tier thrown into one, providing 100 seats, nearly all of which were occupied by guests of royal rank. Flanking the royal box were two other large boxes, each occupied by 100 representatives of foreign countries in gorgeous uniforms, and the representatives of the dominions. About half the stalls were allotted to the suites of the distinguished guests.

In point of picturesque attire, the Indian princes, glittering with jewels, were easily first, eclipsing the royalties in their most splendid uniforms. Special American Ambassador Hammond sat in the second row of the royal box, between the Duke of Connaught and the Grand Duchess of Hesse; his plain evening dress rendering him conspicuous by contrast.

The King was in an admiral's uniform and wore the Order of the Garter. The Queen's gown was of delicate pink, over which the blue riband of the Garter showed in marked relief. On her bosom were the twin stars of Africa, on her head a diamond fleur de lis and a maltese cross. The Queen was escorted to the royal box by Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, and the German Crown Princess entered on the arm of His Majesty.

Although rain again fell to mar the occasion, dense crowds gathered outside Covent Garden to witness the arrival and departure of Their Majesties, and the royal visitors. After the performance the royal guests, the special envoys and members of the diplomatic corps attended a ball given by the Duke and Duchess of Westminister at Grosvenor House.

Renowned artists took part in the gala performance. The program opened with a scene from the second act of Verdi's "Aida." This was followed by the second act of Gounod's "Romeo et Juliette." Then came Act III. of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," and Tableau II. of the Russian ballet, "Le Pavilion D'Armide."

Among the artists were Mmes. Melba, Destinn, Tetrazzini, Berat and Kirkby, Lunn and John McCormack, Sammarco, Franz, Bassi and Malatesta.

A Pacific Expedition.

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 27.—President Simon has started out again at the head of his troops for the purpose of bringing about peace in the northern districts of Hayti. He left yesterday with a large force under his command aboard the cruiser Antoine Simon, his destination being Cape Haytien, but the cruiser will call at St. Marc and Port a-Paix.

It is said the President has undertaken the expedition with the most pacific intentions, and will make an endeavor to persuade the insurgents to lay down their arms before employing force.

Found Dead In Bed.

Chatham, June 27—Samuel Sullivan, an aged resident of this city, was found dead in bed in his house on Houston street late yesterday afternoon. Sullivan has not been seen for some time, and had been dead for several hours when found. It is supposed that he died last Saturday night. He was found by some of his neighbors. Heart failure is supposed to have been the cause of death. There will be no inquest. He is survived by a grown up family. His wife is dead.

Condemned 400 Houses.

Toronto, June 27.—The inspectors sent out by the medical health department to investigate housing conditions condemned no less than 400 houses in various parts of the city, and notified the owners to put them in proper condition. The houses condemned were chiefly situated in the ward and on Eastern avenue and adjacent streets. Some were in an indescribably filthy condition and unfit to accommodate beasts. Sanitary conditions at some places were unendurable.

In most places the owners complied with the orders to put the places in better condition.

The Only Perfect 2-Vision Lenses

Kryptok Lenses embody two pieces of glass, of different refraction, coalesced with intense heat into one, and ground into a lens having two distinct focal points. (see all)

There is no cement—no clouding of vision—no edges to catch dust or to become cracked and jagged in cleaning. Kryptok lenses last indefinitely, barring accidental breakage. A pasted lens may separate at any time and become useless.

Choosing Sites For Hotels.

Montreal, June 27.—H. R. Charlton, general advertising agent of the G.T.R. and Grand Trunk Pacific railway, leaves for the west on an extended trip. At Edmonton he will meet Dr. A. Wheeler, director of the Canadian Alpine Club, and Mr. Douglass, superintendent of the Canadian National Parks, and will proceed to Jasper Park, the new national park of 5,000 square miles, reserved in the heart of the Canadian Rockies.

Mr. Charlton made the trip last year over the mountains of the through Yellowhead Pass to Fort George and many points were suggested in his reported hotel sites. On the present expedition sites that are considered the most attractive will be chosen and surveyed, so that the building of these mountain hotels may be proceeded with by the Grand Trunk Pacific as early as possible. The steel is now within 90 miles of where probably the first of the hotels will be located.

Navigation Merger.

Montreal, June 27.—The big navigation merger, including the Northern & Inland Co., and the Richelieu & Ontario, is now practically an accomplished fact, the arrangement for the consolidation having been ratified at a special meeting of the shareholders of the Richaelieu & Ontario Navigation Co., held yesterday, with the president, Rodolphe Forget, M.P., in the chair. The basis of consolidation was approved, as well as the increase of the capital and the appointment of the additional directors.

The capital of the company is raised to $10,000,000, the directors having the power to exchange shares of the Northern & Inland Co. for those of the Richelieu.

The five new directors named are: John R. Binning, W. Grant Morden, and C. A. Barnard, K.C., Montreal; Edmund Bristol, K.C., M.P., Toronto; and James Playfair, Midland, Ont.

Charged With Theft of Bonds.

Pittsburg, June 27.—A. L. Pearson, an attorney and president of the Union Realty Co. of this city, and S. M. Carnahan, a clerk, employed in the office of Holmes, Wardrop & Co., brokers, were arrested here late yesterday, charged with the theft of bonds valued at $10,000, belonging to the brokerage firm.

Pearson is prominent socially. His father, Gen. A. L. Pearson, was at one time commander of the troops of the state.

Both men were held in default of $12,000 bail each.

Another Fire Victim.

Nantucket, Mass., June 27.—The fourth victim of the fire that destroyed the house boat here of Wm. Barns, jr., the prominent New York Republican last Saturday, died last night when Thomas Kerr of New York succumbed to his injuries. Kerr was badly burned in an effort to rescue Helen Wilson of New York, and Mildred de Haven of Brooklyn, who were trapped by the flames.

once and found how inconvenient it was to be unable to use my eyes for the balance of the day.

I made a resolve then that I would make it possible to replace a broken lens, however complicated its formula, the same day the order was left with me.

I have succeeded even better than I hoped, for now we are able to replace any broken lens, even where you do not give us the prescription, in from one to three hours, with an exact duplicate (made in our own shop).

Is this worth anything to you? If so, remember this advertisement the next time you break a lens.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

"You don't know," he said.

"Do you know?" I asked. "Have you been to the rallies and met the men and studied their methods?"

"All you have to do is to read the papers," he answered.

"I don't think so," I said. "To beat an enemy you ought to study him at first hand. You ought to find out the good as well as the bad in him. You ought to find out where he gets his power."

"Graft and patronage," he answered.

"What about the other party?" I said.

"Just as bad."

"Then what are you going to do about it?" I asked.

"Our only hope is education," he said.

"Then," I said, "why not educate the young politicians? Get to know Rafferty—he's young and simple and honest now. Help him to advance honestly and keep him that way."

He shook his head doubtfully, but he agreed to have a talk with Dan. In the meanwhile I had a talk with Dan myself. I told him what my scheme was.

"Dan," I said, "you must decide right at the beginning of your career whether you're going to be just a tool of Sweeney's or whether you're going to stand on your own feet."

"Phot's the mather with Sweeney, now?" he asked.

"In some ways he's all right," I said. "And in other ways he isn't. But anyhow he's your boss and you have to do what he tells you to do just as though he was your landlord back in Ireland and you nothing but a tenant."

"Eh?" he said, looking up quick.

I thought I'd strike a sore spot there and I made the most of it. I talked along like this for a half hour and I saw his lips come together.

"He'd knife me," he said finally. "He's sore now 'cause I'm afther wantin' to run for the council this year."

I had heard the rumour.

"Then," I said, "why don't you pull free and make a little machine of your own. Some of the boys will stand by you, won't they?"

"Will they?" he grinned.

With that I took him around to the settlement house. Dan listened good naturedly to a lot of talk he didn't understand, but he listened with more interest to a lot of talk about the needs of the district which it was now getting cheated out of, which he did understand. And incidentally the man who at first did all the talking in the end listened to Dan. After the latter had gone, he turned to me and said:

"I like that fellow Rafferty."

That seemed to me the really important thing and right there and then we sat down and worked out the basis of the "Young American Political Club." Our object was to reach the young voter first of all, and through him to reach the older ones. To this end we had a "Committee on Boys" and a "Committee on Naturalization." I insisted from the beginning that we must have an organization as perfect as that of any political machine. Until we felt our strength a little however, I suggested it was best to limit our efforts to the districts alone. We took a map of the city and we cut up the districts into blocks with a young man at the head of each block. He was to make a list of all the young voters and keep as closely in touch as possible with the political gossip of both parties. Over him there was to be a street captain and over him a district captain and finally a president.

All this was the result of slow and careful study. All the workers down here fell in with the plan eagerly, and one of them agreed to pay the expenses of a hall any time we wished to use one for campaign purposes. At first our efforts passed unnoticed by either political party. It was thought to be just another fanciful civic dream.

We were glad of it. It gave us time to perfect our organization without interference.

This business took up all the time I could spare during the winter. But instead of finding it a drag I found it an inspiration. They insisted upon making me president of the Club and though I would rather have had a younger man at its head I accepted the honour with a feeling of some pride. It was the first public office I had ever held and it gave me a new sense of responsibility and a better sense of citizenship.

In the meanwhile Dan made no open break with Sweeney, but it soon became clear that he was not in such good favour as before. Although we had not yet openly endorsed his candidacy we were doing a good deal of talking for him. I received several visits from Sweeney's lieutenants, who tried to find out just what we were about. My answer invariably was "No partisanship but clean politics."

When it came time to register I was forced to register with one of the two parties in order to take any part in the primaries. I registered as a Democrat for the first time in my life. Little by little Dan had come to be an issue. Sweeney did not openly declare himself, but it was soon evident that he had come to the primaries prepared to knife Rafferty if it were possible. Back of Dan stood his large personal following; back of me stood the balance of power. Sweeney saw it, gave the nod, and Dan was nominated.

Six weeks later he was elected, too. You'd have thought he had been elected mayor by the noise the small boys made. Rafferty came to me with his big paw outstretched.

"Carleton," he said, "the only thing I've got agin ye is that ye ain't an Irishmon. Faith, ye'd make a domd floine Irishmon."

"It's up to you now," I said "to make a damned fine American."

It wasn't more than two months later that Dan came to me to ask my opinion on a request of Sweeney's. It looked a bit off colour and I said so.

"You can't do it, Dan," I said. "It means trouble," he said.

"Let it come. We're back of you with both feet."

Dan followed my advice and the trouble came. He was fired from his job as foreman under Sweeney.

But you can't keep down as good a foreman as Dan was, and he had another job within a week.

A few months later I had another job myself. I was made foreman with my own firm at a wage of two dollars and a half a day. When I went back and announced this to Ruth, she cried a little. Truly our cup seemed full and running over.

CHAPTER XIV.

Fifteen Dollars a Week.

My first thought when I received my advance in pay was that I could now relieve Ruth of some of her burdens. There was no longer any need of her spending so much time in trotting around the markets and the department stores. Nor was there any need of her doing so much plotting and planning in her endeavour to save a penny. Futhermore I was determined that she should now enjoy some of the luxuries of life in the way of better things to wear and better things to eat. But that idea was taken ou of me in short order.

"No," she said, as soon as she recovered from the good news. "We mustn't spend one cent more than we've been spending."

"But look here," I said; "what's the good of a rise if we don't use it?"

"What's the good of a raise if we spend it?" she asked me. "We'll use it, Billy, but well use it wisely. How many times have you told me that if you had your life to live over again you wouldn't spend one cent over the first salary you received, if it was only three dollars a week, until you had a bank account?"

"I know that," I said. "But when a man has a wife and boy like you and Dick—"

"He doesn't want to turn them into burdens that will hold him down all his life," she broke in. "It isn't fair to the wife and boy," she said.

I couldn't quite follow her reasoning, but I didn't have to. When I came home the next Saturday night with fifteen dollars in my pocket, instead of nine she calmly took out three for rent, five for household expenses and put seven in the ginger jar. I suggested that at least we have one celebration and with the boy go to the little French restaurant we used to visit, but she held up her hands in horror.

"Do you think I'd spend two dollars and a half for—why, Billy, you wouldn't—"

"I'd like to spend ten," I said. "I'd like to go there to dinner and buy you a half dozen roses and get the three best seats in the best theatre in town," I said.

She came to my side and patted my arm.

"Thank you, Billy," she said. "But honest—it's just as much fun to have you want to do those things as really do them."

I believe she meant it. I wouldn't believe it of anyone else but for a week she talked about that dinner and those flowers and the theatre until she had me wondering if we had not actually gone. Dick thought we were crazy.

And so, just as usual, after this she'd take her basket and start out two or three mornings a week and walk with me as far as the market. She's spend an hour here and then if she needed anything more she'd go down town to the big stores and wander around here for another hour. But Saturday nights was her bargain opportunity. If I couldn't go with her she'd take Dick and the two would plan to get there at about nine o'clock. From this time on she often picked up for a song odd ends of meat and good vegetables which the market men didn't want to carry over to Monday. In fact they had to sell out these things as their stock at the beginning of the week had to be fresh. I suppose marketing at this time of day would be a good deal of a hardship for those living in the suburbs, but it was a regular lark for her. Most everyone is good natured on Saturday night if on no other night. The week's work is done and people have enough money from their pay envelopes to feel rich for a few hours anyway. Then there were the lights and the crowd and the shouting so that it was like twenty country fairs rolled into one.

After the excitement of coming home Saturdays with so much money wore off, I began to forget that I was earning fifteen instead of nine. If Ruth had spent it on the table I'm sure I'd have forgotten it even more quickly. I was getting all I wanted to eat, was warm, and had a good clean bed to sleep in, and what more can a man have even if he's earning a hundred a week? I think people are very apt to forget that after all a millionaire can spend only about so much on himself. And after that the newness of fresh toys has worn off—like steam yachts and private cars—he is forced to be satisfied with just what I had, no matter how much more money he makes. He has only his five senses, and once these are satisfied he's no better off than a man who satisfies these same senses on eight dollars a week. Generally he's worse off because in a year or so he has probably duffled them all. Rockefeller himself probably never in his life got half the fun out of anything that I did in just crawling into my clean bed at night with every tired muscle purring contentedly and my mind at rest about the next day. I doubt if he knew the joy of waking up in the morning rested and hungry. The only advantage he had over me that I can see is the power he had to help others. In a way I don't believe he found any greater opportunity even for that than Ruth found right here.

For those interested in the details I'm going to give another quotation from Ruth's notebook. But to my mind these details aren't the important part of our venture. The thing that counted was the spirit back of them. It isn't the fact that we lived on from six to eight dollars a week, or the statistics of how we lived on that which makes my life worth telling about if it is worth telling about. In the first place prices vary in different localities, and shift from year to year. In fact since we began they have almost doubled. In the second place people have lived, and are living to-day on less than we did. I give our figures simply to satisfy the curious and to show how Ruth planned. But no one could do as she did or do as we did merely by aping her little economics, or accepting the result of them. Either they would find the task impossible or look upon it as a privation and endure it as martyrs. In this mood they wouldn't last a week. I know that people who read this without at least a germ of the pioneer in them will either smile or shrug their shoulders. I've met plenty of this sort. I met them by the dozen down here. As I said, you can find them in every bread line, in every Salvation Army barracks or the Associated Charities will furnish you a list of as many as you want. You'll find them in the suburbs or you'll find them marching in line the next time there is a procession of the unemployed.

Eczema Worse in the Spring

The Blood is Watery—Difficult to Get the Healing Process Started.

But Whatever the Cause You Can Relieve the Itching and Heal the Sores With

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Salt rheum and eczema are usually worse at this time of year because of the sudden change of temperature and the watery condition of the blood.

It is not necessary to refer to the suffering caused from the intense itching nor to the tendency of these ailments. The essential point is how to bring about cure, and if you have been reading the cures reported from time to time in this paper you will already know that there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and every form of itching skin diseases.

This ointment stops the itching almost as soon as applied, lessens the discharge from the vesicles or blisters, cleans out the morbid growth and stimulates the process of healing.

Because other treatments have failed, you may feel discouraged. But in Dr. Chase's Ointment there is a cure for you. We know this because of the reports we have received from so many thousands of cases.

For instance, there is the cure of Mrs. Nettie Massey, of Conneeon, Ont., who had psoriasis or chronic eczema so bad that almost the whole body was covered with sores, and three doctors failed to cure her. One doctor said she could never be cured. Write to Mrs. Massey about her case.

BEAVERS AS ARCHITECTS.

Villages Built by Them Are Marvels of Perfection.

Beavers arrange their homes in a neighborly way to form villages and towns. It has been pointed out that they are lake dwellers for the same reason that early races of men lived over the water. The chief differences between the two, however, is that men built over natural ponds, whereas the beaver makes a pond where he happens to want it. The labors of no other animal on earth, aside from man, present so many interesting phases as those of the beaver.

According to Macoun, who has made most exhaustive studies of these little animals, whole tribes of beavers unite to build villages. Houses, invariably of two floors, bear witness to the uniform genius of these architects. The pantry occupies the ground floor, but the upper floors of the beaver's domicile are reserved for his hours of sleep and leisure.

The walls and upper part are remarkably thick, sometimes measuring several feet. Then, at the beginning of hard frost, the exterior is coated with a thick layer of mud which immediately freezes and has the double advantage of perfectly shutting out the cold air and of guarding against the attacks of wolverines.

The smartness of the beaver is also seen in the care it takes not only to lay in provisions in advance, but also in arranging creep-holes to insure its retreat in case of surprise, and for its subsistence in a day of need.

The most extraordinary works of the beaver are, of course, the dams that they throw across rivers and along the shores of lakes. In this matter they are qualified to rank with the best of engineers. Two points especially in their work attract attention, the first being the skill and strength displayed in the construction, and the second being their unerring choice of the best materials.

In examining the construction of a beaver dam, one is at once struck with its extreme simplicity. The wonder is how the mud kneaded and applied by the beaver's paws, unassisted by even the trowel-shaped tail, becomes a hydraulic cement that time hardens instead of dissolves.

The extent of the beaver's works is as surprising as their perfection. Some of them are really colossal, and several chains in length. Artificial lakes of considerable size owe their origin to these dams. The extent of the dams is the most striking proof of the social habits of the beaver, for several families must have combined to carry out the plans, and if individual instinct produces the results of a general government among these laborers, they must be influenced by a sense of common interest as highly developed as that of the bees.

Virtues of the Squaw.

The Indian woman will stick to a drink-sodden husband till he drops dead, or she does. The Government is fighting the whisky evil on the reservations with every weapon it possesses, but the Indian brave will drink when he wants it and can get it just as the white man does. A squaw knows nothing of divorce, she would not listen to you if you told her about it. There is but one method to help the Indian woman; that is to educate her from childhood along industrial lines. Until a few years ago there was absolutely no future for the Indian girl except to marry. That was the first thing, provided she could find a decent, energetic, ambitious husband; only—there are so many of the other sort. Hospitals which have trained Indian girls are making one constant effort to enlist others of the race. She has infinite patience forbearance, generally a magnificent physique and no trace of the "nerves" which so often cause breakdown among overcivilized races. An Indian girl can go through the most trying surgical case with a stoical calm that is extraordinary. She never gets flurried, anxious or worried and she obeys the physician as a soldier does his commander. In caring for cases of severe illness she seems to live on some strange reserve force and is a tender as well as a painstaking nurse.

A Liverpool engineer has succeeded in guiding a model dirigible through the air and dropping objects from it upon designated places by wireless waves.

The Hope of the World

There Are Two Zions and Two Classes of Zionists, but All Parts of the Great Divine Arrangement.

San Francisco, Cal., June 25.—Pastor Russell addressed large audiences twice to-day at the Golden Gate. He addressed a Convention of the "International Bible Students Association" in session here. He has been making a sort of continental tour, including Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Pueblo, Colorado Springs Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and Santa Cruz. In all these cities local branches of the "I.B.S.A." invited him and made arrangements for public addresses. Notwithstanding the strain of continuous travel and continuous public speaking, the Pastor seemed in excellent health and vigor. He spoke enthusiastically of the warm receptions and attentive hearings which he had enjoyed. He was specially pleased with his California experiences and the glorious climate noted at his several stopping places.

The Pastor's visit is unique in another respect. Learning of his intended program, some of his friends asked permission to make up a party to accompany him. He gladly assented. As a result a train-load of Bible Students are with him—about one hundred and sixty in all.

While the Golden Gate Convention is the goal of the tour, it is but the turning point of the excursion party. Meetings are to be held on the return journey at Sacramento, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Duluth, Buffalo and Toronto, the latter being reached July 16th. The Pastor's scheme is a novel and a benevolent one; for surely what he has undertaken and is carrying out is not a lazy man's burden. From the evidences here we surmise that the Bible Students along his course of travel will be blessed, stimulated, energized. Pastor Russell and his party bear with them from the Golden Gate the good wishes and Christian love of many friends.

Speaking from the text, "The Law shall go forth from Mt. Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem" (Isaiah ii, 3), Pastor Russell declared that Christians have inadvertently misappropriated to themselves many promises of the Scriptures which are not wholly theirs. Christian creeds and theories have surmised that, through the rejection of Jesus, all Jews dying in unbelief of Messiah were foreordained to an eternity of torture because of that unbelief in the Only Name.

A more careful study of the Bible, he declared, is showing Bible Students the error of this position. Jews who do not accept Jesus as their Saviour and who do not become followers in His steps in the "narrow way" will indeed fail of attaining a place with Jesus in His Throne of Glory. They will fail to become joint-heirs with Him in His glorious Messianic Kingdom. They will fail to become members of the spiritual Seed of Abraham, respecting whom St. Paul said, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed and heirs according to the promise" (Galatians iii, 29). "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

But, asked the Pastor, are there not many besides Jews who will fail of making their "calling and election sure" to that Heavenly portion—to membership in the Messianic Body or Kingdom? His own conviction is that there will be found as many Jews as of any other nationality in that spiritual company which, the Scriptures declare, will, all told, be but a "little flock." Indeed, there are strong reasons for believing that the whole number of this "elect" company, this Royal Priesthood, this spiritual Seed of Abraham, this Messiah of glory, long promised, will be only "a hundred and forty-four thousand" (Revelation xiv., 1).

If the Church of glory, the Body of Christ, be but a small company out of the millions of Christendom, what becomes of the remainder of Christendom as well as the Jews? If only the Elect gain the Kingdom—if only the few make their calling and election sure—what will become of the great mass of the non-elect, both Jews and Gentiles, and the heathen myriads? Pastor Russell declared that very foolish and unscriptural conclusions have been reached in respect to elect and non-elect.

The Apostle declares that all non-elect are to be blessed by the elect as soon as the election is completed. But we, following the teachings of a darker time and a less convenient Bible, have declared that when God predestinated to elect the Church, He equally predestinated to damn to eternal torment all others. But not a word of authority could be found for such a view in the Bible. St. Paul's statement is wholly respecting the Church, not the world, when he declares, "Whom He did foreknow, them He also did predestinate that they should be conformed to the image of His Son." Such a predestination on God's part, all can heartily endorse. Who can say that it would be right on God's part to accept any to membership in the glorious Messianic Body, of which Jesus is the head, except such as are pure in heart, saintly, and so demonstrated even by fiery trials and disciplines!

God kept secret this mystery, St. Paul declares—the mystery that He is now selecting a favored class to be associates with Messiah in the Kingdom of God, for which we have been praying, and through which the whole world of mankind will shortly be blessed. Now the Church's election is about completed, the Pastor believes; and therefore now is the time for more light to shine out, that God's further gracious purposes toward natural Israel and the world may be more clearly seen.

The Zionism of the past eighteen centuries has been of the heavenly kind. It has been calling and inspiring to loving zeal, obedience and activity such as have the "hearing ear" for the heavenly calling to joint-heirship with Messiah. This glorious privilege is about to end because the full number predestinated of the Lord will soon have been completed. Meantime, the Pastor and others of God's consecrated people should be Zionists in the highest sense of the word, and, laying aside every weight and every besetting sin, each should strive to make his "calling and election sure" to a place in the Heavenly Zion—the Kingdom of Messiah.

It will be from this Mt. Zion, the spiritual Kingdom of Messiah, that the Law will go forth during the thousand years of the Messianic reign; the great Judge and Law-giver of the world will be the glorified Redeemer; and His associates, in His various offices of Prophet, Priest, King, Judge and Mediator, will be the faithful Zionists of the present time who follow in the steps of their Redeemer, delighting to lay down their lives for the Truth's sake and for the brethren's sake, in co-operation with the great Captain of their salvation, through the merit of His imputed righteousness.

As soon as Mt. Zion, the Kingdom, shall be completed by the glorification of the last member of the Church, it will be time for the Law to go forth therefrom for the correction in righteousness of the world's affairs—for the overthrow of every form of iniquity and everything contrary to the Golden Rule. In other words, when the Kingdom class shall have been completed by the elective process, which is the Divine arrangement of this Age, forthwith that Kingdom will come into power and the reign of righteousness will begin.

But God has a time and order and arrangement in respect to every feature of His Program. In the remote past, before Jesus came and became the Head and Leader of the Church to Glory, God was in covenant relationship with Abraham and his natural seed. The Scriptures assure us that a considerable number were so full of faith and loyal obedience to God that even though they lived at a time before the calling to the Church began they, nevertheless, were marked by the Lord for special blessing and a special share in the Kingdom work when the time should come for Messiah to take His great power and reign.

Reference is made to these Ancient Worthies by St. Paul, in Hebrews xi, 38-40. He says: "These all died in faith, not having received the things promised them—the earthly promises—God having provided some better thing for us (the Church) that they, without us, should not be made perfect"—should not enter into the earthly blessing which belongs to them.

Accordingly, the Scriptures tell us that one of the first operations of Messiah's Kingdom, after the binding of Satan, will be the resurrection of the Ancient Worthies of the Jewish race. These, the inspired Word tells us, will be made Princes in all the earth—representatives of the spiritual and invisible Messianic Kingdom. They will constitute the earthly Jerusalem, the capital of the New Dispensation. While the Law will proceed from the invisible and all-powerful spiritual Messiah, it will come through these resurrected, perfect and approved earthly representatives; and from them it will go forth gradually, as the Divine message and rule, to every nation, people, kindred and tongue.

Even if nothing were said in the Scriptures respecting God's special blessing to natural Israel, it might be inferred that they would most quickly fall into line with the leaders of their own race, particularly as this would be in harmony with the traditions of their race for the past thirty-five hundred years. Besides, the Law given to Israel, and represented on the two tables of stone, will be the same that will go into force again as the Law of the Kingdom—the Gospel Call being an appendage. The difference between the Old Law Covenant and the New Law Covenant (Jeremiah xxxi. 31) is that Israel's New Covenant will have a greater and more powerful Mediator than Moses; the Antitype of Moses — Jesus the Head and the Church, His Body (Acts iii, 22, 23). Besides, all coming under that New Covenant, by devotion to righteousness, will have their past sins so fully forgiven that the Lord will not remember them any more—the basis for this full forgiveness being the merit of Jesus' sacrifice.

Few have realized how clearly the Scriptures set forth that the New Covenant will be Israelitish — if the promise respecting it be carefully read and noted. Christ is the Mediator of that New Covenant and its "better sacrifices" have been in progress during this Gospel Age. It will be instituted with the Ancient Worthies first, but gradually with all the Israelites who flock to the standard and then lifted up amongst the people. As the blessings of restitution, earthly prosperity, health, strength etc., begin to be manifested amongst those living under that Covenant arrangement, other nations, the Bible tells us, will also desire to enter into its blessings; and they will be permitted so to do. By individually renouncing sin and accepting the Covenants and its Mediator they will become "proselytes of the gate." Hearken! "Many nations shall come and say, let us go up to the Mountain of the Lord's House, for He will teach us of His ways and we will walk in His paths."

It has escaped Christendom in general until recently that the Divine promise to Abraham is to be fulfilled through two Seeds—one a heavenly class, the other an earthly class, with Messiah the Head over all (Romans iv., 16). For eighteen centuries God favored the Seed of Abraham, the nation of Israel.

That period of favor, explain it how we may, began to wane about the time of Jesus' death. It was completely removed from them in the desolation of their land by the Roman army A. D. 70. Now a parallel time has been reached, hence it is time for the return of God's favor, as shown on previous occasions. The favor already is returning.

The Jew has not been so comfortable, nor so favorably fixed, as he is to-day, in more than eighteen centuries. But his blessing is only beginning. Shortly Divine favor, in God's due time, will accomplish for His Chosen People all the precious promises of the Law and of the Prophets. Already the Jew is awakening to a realization of this great truth.

A voice is sounding from the wilderness, and the Jews everywhere are harkening to it. It does not call them to become Christians, but to remain Jews and to realize, as Jews, the ideals set before them by the Lord in the Law and in the Prophets. To all those exercised thereby a great blessing is near, which will more than compensate for the sorrows of the past. Neither by swords nor guns nor dreadnoughts, neither by flying airships nor torpedoes will Israel's great victory be gained; neither by money power and worshipping of the golden calf of finance nor by trusting in the arm of flesh, but by looking to the Lord, from whom will come their help.

Messiah's Spiritual Empire, about to be established, will bind Satan, restrain every evil and lift up a standard for the people, blessing Israel and establishing with them the New (Law) Covenant instead of the Old Law Covenant—under the better Mediator, still more capable than the great Moses; under the greater King, still more wise than Solomon and still more beloved of God than David. This great Celestial Empire will be established with great authority in the world by a time of trouble, a time of earthly distress, which the prophecies picture as terrible.

The perplexing thought with our Jewish friends, as well as with Christians, is: If these things be so; if Messiah's Kingdom is yet to be established, as the Jews contemplated, only on a spiritual plane instead of an earthly one; and if God's purpose is to use those anciently favored people as the channels of His blessing in the future, why has there been so long delay?

We answer: This is what the Scriptures term the Mystery—the matter which God did not reveal directly either to Abraham or through any of the Prophets. Indirectly He hinted at it, saying to Abraham, "Thy Seed shall be as the stars of heaven, and as the sand of the seashore for multitude."

But Abraham did not discern, nor did others, that these two illustrations belonged not to the same people, but to two different Israels—the heavenly and the earthly, the star representing the heavenly Seed and the sand of the seashore the earthly Seed.

The restitution privileges soon to be opened, first to Israel, will, later on, be thrown open to all nations, peoples, kindreds and tongues—that they may press in also under the same glorious terms of Israel's New Covenant, because "Israelites indeed," without guile and sharers in all the blessings of God supplied through the great Mediator of the New Covenant and His earthly instrumentalities.

Zionism, among the Jews to-day, we believe the Lord is stirring up—a preparation of natural Israel for the great blessing which so soon will be at their door. As they begin to really appreciate the Land of Promise, the rich promises in connection with that land must become theirs, and the inspiration of those promises will lead their hearts back to the Lord in prayer and supplication and will lead the feet of a reverential, representative number of them back to the land itself, to which the Lord declared He would bring them; and that from thence they should be plucked up no more. Remember, in this connection, St. Paul's reference to the New Covenant and the time when it will go into force with Israel, as recorded in Romans xi., 27. The Pastor rejoiced in any opportunity he had of stimulating Zionism, both spiritual and earthly, for both are vitally connected with the salvation of the world of mankind in general.

How "Abide With Me" Was Written.

At the age of fifty-four Lyte found himself doomed to die of consumption, and in sorrow at having to leave his task unfinished he prayed that at the least it might be granted to him to write something which would live to the glory of God when he was dead. Then on the last evening he ever spent at Brixham, after preaching his farewell sermon, he took pen and as the sun was setting over the ships that lay in the harbor "Abide With Me" was written. Next morning he started for the Riviera and there died a month later.—London Telegraph.

Apples cored for baking are delicious filled with orange marmalade and a little butter and sugar.

Bananas fried in butter and seasoned with a tiny pinch of salt and paprika are often used as an accompaniment to roast mutton.

Dates stuffed with walnuts and then dipped in melted chocolate make a delicious bonbon. Among a mixed of such dates have for variety's sake a few that are stuffed with raisins and dipped also in chocolate.

HOW UNCLE SAM LOOKS TO THE FEEDING OF HIS FAMILY

MAKING a new Cattle Country of the Great Piedmont Region, Now Wasted, and Inducing the Farmer to Plant Corn in the Land of Cotton.

"MAYBE the tariff has something to do with it. Maybe the middleman gets more than his share. I don't know so much about that, but I do know one thing, and I think it is as plain as the nose on your face. If pork chops, bacon and ham are too expensive for the poor man to buy, then raise more hogs. If beef is too high, then raise more cattle.

"How are the farmers of the United States to be induced to raise more cattle and hogs?" Uncle Sam answers:—"By teaching the farmers of the South, the most fertile region in the United States and one of the most fertile in the world, to raise corn."

The man who was speaking leaned back in his office chair and eyed his interrogator in the manner of one who has said all there is to say on a subject. He was an old man. He had seen seventy-eight summers, and seventy of them had been spent on a farm. Dr. S. A. Knapp was his name, of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture—the man who under the direction of the United States government is teaching the South to raise corn. He died April 1, 1911.

"The price of corn," he continued, "has been so high in this country in recent years that it has been vastly more profitable to sell it than to feed it to hogs. Therefore the farmer of the great Middle West has stopped raising hogs for the market in such quantities as he did in the past. Therefore the supply of pork chops, bacon and ham has been less. It follows as the night follows the day that the price of these articles of food has been higher. It also follows that if the supply of corn is increased sufficiently to bring down the price a bit, there will be more hogs and lower prices for hog products.

"More than this, it is a fact that if the corn supply is increased there will be more fodder for cattle, and consequently more cattle. In a like manner the price of beef will go down."

Dr. Knapp had a very imposing title. He was the special agent in charge of farmers' co-operative demonstration work. He had an office in Washington and a big force of office helpers. Sometimes he was at his desk, but most of the time he wasn't. He was one of our most accomplished domestic travellers. He was carrying out a definite programme and was meeting with remarkable success.

Perhaps it is not generally known that the greater part of the cattle and hogs which furnish meat to the masses of the people in the United States are fattened on the most expensive lands in the United States—lands that in Iowa, Illinois and other Middle Western States. "Tama Jim" Wilson, the Secretary of Agriculture, and himself a veteran Iowa farmer, says that is one reason why meat costs so much.

Dr. S. A. Knapp, who is Helping the South to Become a Corn and Stock Raising Country.

This Boy Grew the Corn that Towers Above Him on a One-Acre Farm in Mississippi.

Another bit of information that may not be general properly is that the finest land on the North American continent, and perhaps in the world, for the raising and fattening of stock for the meat market is right here in the United States and is going to waste at this very minute. That is the Piedmont country, on the eastern and western slopes of the Appalachian mountain range, from the southern border of Pennsylvania down nearly to the Gulf of Mexico. What Uncle Sam is going to do is to bring this country into its own, and it won't be his fault if he doesn't improve our meat supply and bring prices down in the process.

For two hundred years or longer the South has devoted all of its agricultural energies to producing cotton, tobacco, sugar and rice. These crops yield more cash profit an acre than any other crop raised in this country. But somehow it has not followed that the Southern farmers are the most prosperous farmers in the country. They most distinctly are not. Dr. Knapp discovered this apparent paradox soon after he began a study of the South from an agricultural viewpoint, and he wasn't long in finding the reason.

The South vs. the West.

The expert learned that while corn bread, hominy and other corn products were probably more largely consumed in the South than in any other section, the people of the South were sending out into Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas to buy their corn. He saw the same folk eating pork in various forms every day in the week and buying it from the Middle Western States north of the Ohio River and west of the Mississippi River. They were also buying canned peas, canned tomatoes and all sorts of other canned things.

Of course, big prices were being paid for these imported articles. The big profits from the cotton, tobacco, rice and sugar crops were quickly eaten up. As the Southern farmer remained poor, the Middle Western farmer grew wealthier, and he grew wealthier, Dr. Knapp believed, largely at the expense of the Southerner.

The remaking of the South as a corn and stock country might have been delayed indefinitely if it had not been for one thing. That was the boll weevil, the pesky little creature which got into the cotton fields and destroyed millions of dollars' worth of cotton, and is still doing it. The people of Texas and Louisiana, where the boll weevil appeared first, appealed frantically to the government for aid. It was granted, but the battle is not yet won. So great were the ravages of the boll weevil in some sections, especially in Louisiana, that some of the planters gave up in despair and planted corn. Most of them are still raising corn, and hundreds of others all over the South are doing likewise.

Agents of the Department of Agriculture encouraged the planting of corn. The planters were told that corn meant cattle and hogs and that those meant cheaper food. Their attention was called to the fact that they were paying one dollar a bushel for corn when they could raise it for twelve cents a bushel. Last year in nine Southern States—namely, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas, the corn crop was 155,000,000 bushels larger than in 1900.

All this work of teaching the Southern farmer how to raise corn and then cattle and hogs is under the personal direction of Dr. Knapp, who, of course, reported through the Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry to Secretary Wilson. Dr. Knapp spent most of his time travelling in the South. He had hundreds of federal and State agents under his supervision. Last year 46,225 boys each planted an acre of corn and cultivated it under the direction of Dr. Knapp.

The remarkable result of the labor and genius of one hundred of these youngsters was an average yield of 183 1-8 bushels an acre on their plots. The average yield for the United States was something like twenty-two bushels an acre. Master Jerry Moore raised 228 3-4 bushels on his acre in South Carolina. The people of the South and of the North who heard about it began to open their eyes, and no wonder.

"In a few years," said Dr. Knapp, "the South will be producing such quantities of corn, cattle and hogs, not to mention other diversified crops, that Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas and the other States in the Middle West will no longer be able to sell their surplus to the South. Then they will have to send it East to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and up into New England.

"Then will come the day when the South will begin to have a surplus in these products. She will send, perhaps, better corn and meat to New York than come from the Western corn belt. It will not only be the best thing that ever happened to the South, but it will be a fine thing for the country as a whole. The price of corn and meat to the great body of consumers will go down. The Western farmer will share his prosperity with the Southern farmer, and both will share theirs with the whole people.

"That, what I am saying is not the idle dream is proved by the fact that last year Louisiana and Mississippi, which theretofore had imported corn, exported it in small quantities. There is another evidence of what is going on in the South. There are 300,000 fewer horses in use in London to-day than there were before the automobile became so popular. This is a falling off of 60.3 per cent in the demand for horses in that city, and the same is true in most of the great centres of population in this country.

"But has the price of horses gone down? Not a bit of it. It is higher to-day than ever before. The reason is that the South is taking horses as fast as it can get them. The old fashioned method of ploughing with one horse is being abandoned. The two horse plough is rapidly coming into use. Horses are wanted for all sorts of farm work by the awakened Southern farmer."

Dr. Knapp was not a native Southerner, though he had made Louisiana his home for the last twenty-five years when he was not at Washington. He was born in New York State, away up at Crown Point, on Lake Champlain, December 16, 1833. He was a graduate of Union University at Schenectady. The first farm he ever owned—and he had always been a farmer—was in Washington county, N. Y. When he died he had farms in Maryland, Texas and Louisiana. He loved the South perhaps better than any part of the country. He had made a study of economic conditions all over the United States, and he believed he saw the solution of many great problems for the whole country in that section.

Mistakes of the South.

Dr. Knapp saw the mistakes that the South has made and here is the way he described them:—

"These States were settled mainly by one of the most virile races that ever touched foot on Western shores. Why, then, did many of the results which appeared certain to follow fail to materialize? It was because of some economic error that crept into the civilization of the South at an early period, and it shows the far-reaching effect of even slight deviation from the fundamental laws that govern civilization.

"The labor was mainly compulsory and performed by another race. This lowered the dignity of labor, because unavoidably the character of the doer determines the dignity of the thing done. It ought not to be the case, but it has been so from the formation of human society. This condition was a barrier to free labor and an obstacle to the immigration of small farmers accustomed to till their own lands. These influences in many cases contributed to emigration of these classes from the South.

"The second great economic error was the adoption by the Southern States of one crop instead of diversified crops as a system of farming. The farmer should throw out an anchor of safety, so that whatever may occur to reduce the cash crop will not curtail the supply of food or clothing, interfere with the schooling of the family or place in jeopardy the home. A third economic error from the viewpoint of the States was the great number of large plantations. As generally managed they block highways, interfere with schools, retard rural development and create class distinctions as against mass development.

"The South also failed to utilize the wealth of minerals, the vast forests of woods material for construction purposes, and other natural resources in such a way as to build a commonwealth that would furnish markets as well as raw material, and thus in a measure become self-sustaining and independent. The price of virgin land ranged so low in many cases that it was cheaper to make a new plantation than to restore the impoverished soil of the old.

"This is only a general view of the situation. There were under the old conditions many planters of high character and great intelligence who maintained an excellent standard of agriculture. They bred the best stock in the world and followed a splendid system of crop rotation.

"The period of greatest disaster to agriculture in the South was from 1861 to 1890, when nearly all that was excellent in the old civilization was swept away and little of value substituted. During this period the South was laid waste by the barbarism of war. Then an unlettered and previously subordinate race, in some States more than equal in numbers to the rural white population and but slightly amenable to its public opinion, received the ballot and came into the possession of lands as owners, renters and occupiers. Non-resident ownership increased, and with it came a more careless tillage, immense waste of fertility by erosion, and a general deterioration in the character of farm improvements and equipment. Until within the last decade and a half rural conditions and general influence upon national life steadily declined.

"No other equal area on the globe surpasses these States in the natural resources which are theirs. If delightful climate, fertile soil, satisfactory rainfall, a large number of navigable streams, an abundant supply of valuable timber, an inexhaustible supply of minerals and a marvellous topography—wonderful valleys, fertile hills and picturesque mountains—are essential factors in the making of a mighty nation, then the South Atlantic and the South Central States of our Union are designed by nature to be the seat of great activities along broad lines, with a dense population, rich in all material things—the masses well housed, readily educated, independent and progressive.

"The time will come, is now on the way, when the South will be all of these things. And the South will not get all the benefit. The United States will share it, especially the enormous centres of population in the North that depend upon the agricultural and mineral resources of the rest of the land for their sustenance and progress."

A Girl Who Lives by Literally Peddling Antiques

NUMBERS of collectors will not bother to hunt for old furniture and china, but if the things are literally set down before their doors at a season of the year when time is being killed instead of chased they buy them eagerly and merely grumble at the prices asked unless they are unreasonably high. That is why I find it profitable to spend my summers in journeying from one resort to another with a carload of antiques.

It is an odd business for a girl to engage in, and I fairly stumbled into it by undertaking to dispose of twelve old fashioned hardwood rush seated chairs, three white tables and two mahogany bureaus belonging to an old lady with "traditions" who wished to raise the two hundred dollars entrance fee to a home for indigent gentlewomen. When the chair backs were cleaned, oiled and touched up a bit with paints and gilt they looked very well indeed, but the tables appeared decidedly commonplace until I began to sandpaper their surfaces preparatory to repainting them and discovered that they were made of dark, rich mahogany.

Fortunately the bureaus had escaped the coating of paint, and as several of their glass drawer knobs were missing I replaced them with others of modern brass and then announced an auction sale at the nearest summer hotel. These sixteen pieces of old furniture brought in five hundred dollars—much more than they were actually worth—because the women boarders nearly came to blows over the possession of the bureaus and tables, and one of them privately offered twenty dollars each for the rush-seated chairs just after they had been knocked down to her dearest foe at ten dollars apiece.

My commission from the indigent gentlewoman was the glass knobs from the bureaus, and these came into play a fortnight later when I found a mahogany desk of eighteenth century brand in the corner of a cobbler's shop, bought it for $8, scraped, beeswaxed, oiled and decorated it with the glass knobs and sold it for $50. That piece of good fortune so impressed me that I immediately launched into the business of buying decrepit furniture, cracked china and old fashioned draperies, putting them in usable condition and then peddling them to collectors.

Where do I find my bargains? It would be easier to say where I do not find them, and some of those places are the farm houses in New England, Long Island, New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia. Years ago the dealers secured these territories. The families then exploited have ever since been lying in wait for people to be exploited—and they frequently do it. My hunting grounds are chiefly the second hand shops and junk repositories in the poorest sections of the great Eastern cities. To these places naturally gravitate the belongings of dispossessed families, sacrificed by landlords for precisely the amount of unpaid rents.

Sources of Supply.

In the same quarters are hundreds of small shops of various sorts, all of them worth investigating because when starting in business these merchants make shift with all manner of second hand seats and receptacles for goods, and these furnishings they gladly sell so soon as they begin to prosper. The lower class foreigner doesn't like shabby black furniture. He saw enough of that in Italy, Hungary and Sicily and prefers to surround himself with American cabinet work of oak and plush. In a dozen Eastern cities are many citizens of Southern Europe birth who privately consider me crazy because of the battered chairs, tables, bureaus, sofas and secretaries, the cracked mirrors and crockery and the moth eaten, ragged curtains for which I have given them real money.

Had I waited until they were a little more prosperous they might have paid me to take those things away. But no commercial buyer of antiques can afford to wait. She must close a bargain the instant that she spies it lest a rival appear and outbid her. To confine myself to the purchase of very handsome pieces of furniture would be sheer folly, for a century ago the number of American families owning Chippendale, Hoppelwhite, First Empire and Dutch cabinet work was not great and most of that furniture is still in the possession of their descendants. Whenever a piece of such furniture comes into the market I offer a reasonable price for it, but my search is for the quaint rather than for the costly, and I therefore look with kindly eyes upon any article of domestic utility which has not less than fifty years to its credit.

I never neglect a chance to buy a door knocker, a door handle, an odd knob or even a carved or brass clawfoot which has suffered amputation. In the course of human events any one of those articles is certain to appeal to a customer, who incorporates it with a new house built on Colonial lines or is doing over a decrepit piece of antique furniture.

Another source of supply is the house wrecker's yard. In these places antiques are not to be secured for the proverbial "song," as the house wrecker himself knows the value of stationary mirror frames and carved doors of mahogany, walnut or teak, but bargains often are found there as well as information which puts me on the trail of some of the servants long employed in the disintegrated mansion. In nearly every instance a one time nurse, housekeeper or governess has become a caretaker and the last to leave the house, and these people invariably have a pair of damask curtains, a shawl or a piece of china to sell.

Newspaper real estate columns are valuable, because they report the parcelling of old homestead properties well worth visiting. If not in the house itself, then in some outbuilding are usually found articles more or less valuable from the antiquarian standpoint. Sometimes a carved broken chair or a grimy three legged table is discovered in a cellar or underneath the floor of a chicken house. In a toppling stable not far from Riverside Drive I literally fell over an iron bound box filled with rusty tools that is the replica of a Revolutionary officer's camp chest and regarded as a priceless heirloom by his descendants.

The Carpenter's Box.

The caretaker of the place sold what he termed "the carpenter's box" to me for a quarter simply because I refused to accept it as a gift from him. When that relic was scoured, provided with new leather hinges and its padlock repaired a D. A. R. member gave me $25 for it. She keeps her great-grandmother's pewter tea service in it, because, as she loves to explain, her soldier great-grandfather used it throughout the War for Independence. Perhaps he did. Anyhow, nobody can prove that he didn't.

Peddling antiques is not a get-rich-quick business, but it nets several thousand dollars annually. My freightage from one summer resort to another was a large item on the wrong side of the ledger until I bought a second hand box car and could pay wheelage. As this vehicle is never overcrowded, I occasionally use it as a showroom, but usually rent the parlor of some tradesman's cottage and from that address send out cards bearing my name and references—all well known people, of course—for to appear from out of space would cause collectors to regard my wares with distrust.

What shall I do when there are no more antiques to be bargained for? Time enough to cross that bridge when I reach it. Meanwhile I am prosperous and saving half of my profits.

MORE MEAT USED BY THE JAPANESE

An Increase Especially in the Consumption of Pork—Beef is Too High Priced

The old prejudice as to the eating of animal flesh among the Japanese has been broken down to a considerable extent. Indeed, there has been an increasing demand for beef among them, but its comparatively high price seriously militates against its being made a universal staple for diet. For this reason the consumption of beef in Tokyo—or through the country for that matter—has remained almost stationary during the last few years, but an increasing demand is noticeable for pork and horseflesh. A few years ago the consumption of pork in the capital did not exceed 20,000 head, but at present something like double that number are slaughtered and consumed. The highest mark for the consumption of beef in Tokyo was reached in 1904, when 3,600 cattle were slaughtered, not including those intended for military use. At this time the people were in an excited condition owing to the war, and they were apparently reckless in their household expenditure. With the cessation of hostilities a reaction set in and the demand for beef has considerably decreased. Within the last few years there has been a great increase in the consumption of pork, owing no doubt to its comparative cheapness, and to the fact that the people have become used to it.

Cattle are imported to Tokyo for slaughter from all parts of the country. Most of the animals, however, come from Central Japan, Shikoku and Kyushu, and the flesh of these cattle is sold under the general name of 'Kobe beef.' Most of the pigs slaughtered in Tokyo are imported from Chiba, Ibaraki, Kanagawa and Shizuoka prefectures.

Last but not least there is horse-flesh, which is in favor among the lower classes. It is a little more than a decade ago that Japanese took to the eating of horse-flesh, and since then there has been a slow but steady increase in its consumption. At present no fewer than 10,000 head of horses are butchered and eaten in Tokyo annually. In Tokyo horse-flesh is offered for sale under the highly practical name of 'cherry-flesh' which has evidently been suggested from an old popular song in which the horse and the cherry blossom are associated. Japanese are adept in this sort of coining new terms, of which there are many similar instances. It is, however, to be regretted that unscrupulous dealers are known to mix up pieces of horse-flesh with beef and sell the mixture as beef. Sometimes these men are brought to book. The consumption of mutton and veal in Tokyo is still very limited.

THE HABIT OF TEASING

Entertaining at First, But Soon Becomes Intolerable

There are few habits which should be more carefully looked after among youngsters than that of teasing and worrying their playmates or the elder members of the family. At the outset, and in its mildest form, it may be to a certain extent entertaining and amusing in the little one, but after a time it grows almost intolerable, and if allowed to strengthen with the growth of the child, it develops into a habit than which nothing is more annoying and exasperating. There are persons in good society who are simply tolerated because there seems no legitimate way in which to get rid of them. An accident, a misfortune, a trifling indiscretion or some uncomfortable event or another furnishes them a pretext, and there is no living with them once they get started. To show that one cares about such things is often to furnish occasion for further teasing; therefore the victims keep silence. Their only protection is the avoidance of the society of such people, and more than one man and woman have found themselves omitted from entertainments and left out of social gatherings without being able to account for the fact.

AN ANCIENT CLOCK

In Winnipeg There is One Made in the Year 1779

When a Winnipeg jeweller was called upon to repair a clock at Mrs M. M. Lockwood's residence, he was surprised on removing the face to find perhaps one of the first clocks made in America. At a glance it was seen that the works throughout were made of wood, the only portions of other material about it being two heavy iron weights. On further examination it was found that the clock was made in New Haven about 1779. A peculiar feature about this relic of the stormy days of early American independence is that although the most intricate parts are made entirely of hard wood, it has been in constant use since 1779, and has kept correct time. On one place is found the name of Emil Koch, followed with the information that he had repaired the timepiece in 1859, and only once in the recollection of the present generation of the Lockwood family has the clock stopped. In an interview with MRS. LOCKWOOD it was learned that the clock had been in their family since her marriage with the late M. M. Lockwood, and that previous to this time it was the property of his grandfather, having been in his home in New York State for sixty years. As near as she could remember it was given to him by his father, who was born in New York State about the time of the declaration of independence. The framework is made of maple and stands 26 inches high. The front is decorated with carved pillars. The figures on the dial are almost obliterated by time, and the same key which for generations has been used every 24 hours to wind it, is worn smooth by age, having been brought into service no less than 50,000 times.

ANTS' IRRESISTIBLE MARCH

As Straight, It Is Said, As a Roman Road

Eye-witnesses of the marches which ants make aver that when they come to an obstacle they go through it, or over it, or take it with them. They march as straight as a Roman road. Human occupants fly when an ant army takes its way through a house occurring on its line of march. The legions pass on and destroy nothing but such as will serve as food, but after they have gone not a beetle, a scorpion, a rat, or a mouse, or an insect or a reptile of any size, shape or name, remains. All have been eaten by the army. It is on record that one of these moving companies was obstructed in its passage by an elephant. It took the army eight hours to pass that spot, and then there remained nothing but the picked bones of the elephant.

INDESTRUCTIBLE STAIRS

No appreciable wear is noticeable on a stairway in a section of the Paris subway where carborundum crystals were mixed with the concrete of which the stairs were made. More than 14,000,000 people passed up and down the stairs during the time observations were taken.

NO ESKIMO WIDOWERS

At Least None of Long Standing, For They Remarry at Once

In civilization it is said that a wife does not always add to her husband's ease or render his life more supportable, but up on the barren grounds the worst of wives would be better than none.

There, among the heathen tribes, if a man's wife dies—provided he is not a polygamist, in which case, says the Wide World, there is less need for hurry—he often marries again within the week.

Even the Christian Eskimo widowers are with difficulty persuaded by the Moravian missionaries to allow six weeks to elapse between the death and remarriage. On the very day after the six weeks have elapsed the hunter presents himself with a new bride and asks that the marriage service may be speedily read.

The reason is not far to seek. It is said in civilization that "a woman's work is never done," and far more is that true of the helpmate of the savage and the semi-savage, the woman of the barren grounds or of the ice edge. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up and carries in camp her husband's kill; she dresses the skins of deer and seal.

She is responsible for the fashioning of footgear and clothes; on a journey she often paddles the canoe, and on portage she carries a heavy load. In fact, it is easier to write down the duties not expected of a squaw than those which by immemorial custom she must perform.

WOULD VERY OFTEN FAINT AWAY.

Doctor Said That Sometime He Would Never Come Out of One.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some little excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room or public building makes them feel faint or dizzy.

If you neglect the warning the slight feeling of dizziness gives you, and fail to take treatment, there will be a gradual progression to something more serious.

There is no reason you should wait till your case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mr. F. S. Chute, Wheatley, Ont. writes:—"It is with gratitude I tell how your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills benefited me. I was very weak and run down, and had headache, nearly every day and would very often faint away.

"In fact, my doctor said that sometime I would never come out of one of them. After taking three boxes of your pills I am glad to relate that it has been a number of years since I have had a fainting spell and scarcely have had a headache. Too much cannot be said in praise of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for in me they have effected a perfect cure."

Price 50c. per box, or 3 for $1.25.

THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS

1—The Tiny Tads are not afraid of snakes that do not bite,
The one they see beyond the trees is big and soft and white.

2—He is a Swanaconda, and he rides them all around,
And then he flies up in the air ten miles above the ground.

3—The Tiny Tads get dizzy and they tumble in a marsh;
Oh, what is this, behind the grass, that looks at them so harsh?

4—Can it be a Muskrattlesnake? The Tads, they ought to know
They call it a Cougarlersnake, and so I guess it's so.

5—But, anyhow, he frightens them, and down the road they tear,
Until they meet a Magpython, who takes them in his care.

6—"I hope he is not treacherous," a Tad says to his brother.
"I'm sure he's quite pythonest," is the answer of the other.

Veto Bill Again.

London, June 27.—Parliament reassembled yesterday after the coronation recess, and the struggle over the veto power of the Lords will be immediately resumed.

In the House of Lords, Lord Lansdowne gave notice of a series of amendments to the veto bill, providing for the exclusion from that measure of bills such as that relating to Irish home rule, for a joint sitting in cases of a disagreement between the two Houses, and for a referendum in other cases. As it is quite certain that the Government will not accept these amendments if passed, another deadlock and eventually the creation of 500 additional peers seems the only outcome, unless the Lords yield.

From Morgan to Kaiser.

Kiel, Germany, June 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan yesterday presented Emperor William with the autograph letter written by Martin Luther to Emperor Charles V., and for which the financier recently paid $25,500. His Majesty was immensely pleased, and forthwith conferred the Grand Cross of the Order of the Red Eagle on Mr. Morgan.

The letter, which is in Latin, is of great historical importance. It was written in 1521, during the reformer's return journey from the Diet of Worms, and described the proceedings and defended his attitude. The letter never reached Emperor Charles, as its contents were such that no one dared deliver it.

Assaulted Employer's Wife.

London, Ont., June 27.—Jas. Shorthill, a former member of the London police force, ran amuck on Dundas street west late yesterday afternoon. He was only mastered after a struggle with two detectives, the high constable of the county and several police officers.

John Cousin, a young Barnardo boy, against whom there is a warrant charging incendiarism for firing the barn of a former employer, brutally assaulted the wife of his employer, Web Coughlin, of London Township, on Friday afternoon. He spit open her nose with a rock, and battered the top of her head. She was alone in the house at the time, and Cousin escaped.

Freighter Wrecks Bridge.

Montreal, June 27.—A serious accident occurred at the bridge over the Lachine Canal at Cote St. Paul road yesterday. A large freighter from Kingston passing down the canal struck the bridge with great force, knocking it completely off the pivot, so that it is now impassable for traffic. The canal is free for boats to pass up and down, but pedestrians, vehicles and street cars are all blocked. A gange of men was set to work at once and are rapidly proceeding with the repair of the pivot.

The freighter suffered little damage and was got safely through the locks.

All Were Vaccinated.

Montreal, June 27.—The Allan line steamer Corsican arrived in port yesterday morning from Liverpool, after being detained at the quarantine station for ten hours.

A case of suspected smallpox was discovered amongst the steerage passengers, and nearly two hundred passengers who had come more or less into contact, on the voyage, with the suspect, were detained.

Everyone on the ship, including the officers, were vaccinated.

Shadowed by Detectives.

Washington, June 27.—Shadowed for weeks by detectives instructed to get anything possible against him, was the alleged experience of which C. S. Funk of Chicago, star witness in the present Lorimer investigation, complained of yesterday to the Senate committee enquiring into the Lorimer election. The statement produced a sensation, because the name of Edward Hines, whom Mr. Funk had testified had asked him to contribute $10,000 towards "$100,000 used to put Lorimer over at Springfield," was mentioned in connection with the services of the detectives.

Rabies Cases.

Toronto, June 27.—And still they come!

Two more dogs' heads have just been examined for rabies by Dr. Amyot, provincial bacteriologist, and positive signs of the malady have been found in either case.

Dr. McCullough of the Provincial board of Health said yesterday that one of the dogs came from Palmerston avenue, being sent in by Dr. Campbell. The other was sent in from East Toronto by Dr. Milne. No record is at hand of any person having been bitten by either of the dogs.

Glen Campbell Stung.

One of the best stories recently told in Ottawa centres about Captain Tom Wallace, M.P. The friendship of Tom and the western giant, Glen Campbell, is proverbial. Recently Glen was the guest of Captain Tom at Woodbridge. On Sunday they went to church, and Tom took up the collection as usual. When he came to the seat in which Campbell was sitting Tom politely presented the plate and said:

"Don't you remember promising me fifty dollars for the reduction of our church debt?"

And Glen was so astonished that he peeled a fifty from his bulky Western roll.—The Mace.

Evolution of Clothing.

Centuries ago, as Sir Walter Scott says in "Ivanhoe," men wore one thickness of clothes, whether of wool, leather or velvet. The shirt was invented, but for a long time was worn only by the nobility and gentry. Then followed the waistcoat, breeches and, later on, trousers. The overcoat, which succeeded the medieval cloak, was rare until the seventeenth century.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Largely on the strength of a big broad market in oats to day, every staple on the board today closed at a net advance—wheat 1-2 and 5-8 to 3-4; corn 1 1-8 and 1 1-4 to 1 1-4, and provisions 2 1-2 and 2 5-8 to 2%. Compared with 48 hours previous, latest figures showed that oats had risen 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 and 3 1-2 a bushel. The chief cause was a prediction by a crop expert that the government report next month would make a sensationally bullish exhibit.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ½d to ¾d higher than on Saturday on wheat, and ¼d to ⅝d lower on corn. Antwerp closed ⅝c lower on wheat, Buda Pest 1⅝c lower.

E. L. Woodward bought for Swift & Co. 378 steers all told, as follows: For London, 162 steers, 1260 lbs. each, at $6 to $6.20; for Liverpool, 180 steers, 1240 lbs. each, at $6 to $6.15; for Winnipeg, 36 steers, 1265 lbs. each, at $6.05.

Butchers.

Choice loads of butchers' sold at $6.90 to $6.10; loads of good, $6.70 to $6.85; medium, $6.40 to $6.65; common, $5 to $6.30. Cows, $2.50 to $6, with some cows almost as good as heifers, $5.10 to $5.25. Bulls, $4.60 to $5.10.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts moderate, prices steady at $40 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

Veal calves sold at $4 to $7.25 per cwt., and extra quality calves are worth $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, light, sold at $4 to $5 per cwt.; ewes, heavy, $3.50 to $3.75; rams, $3 to $3.50; yearling lambs, $5.50 to $6.50; spring lambs, 9c to 10 1-2c per lb.

Hogs.

Some of the packers are quoting prices lower, while others are quoting them unchanged. Some drovers stated that they had hogs sold at $7, f.o.b. cars, and we heard one drover say that he had hogs bought to ship at $6.90, f.o.b., and we heard another drover say that $7 was being paid to the farmers in his district, and that was the ruling price.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 26.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending June 24, were 2305 cattle, 550 sheep and lambs, 1940 hogs and 1100 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 850 cattle, 225 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 250 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle since this day week, prices being fairly steady. There was no demand for export account, owing to the fact that cable advices from all the leading foreign markets show no improvement in prices, but as the supply was not excessive and there was a good demand from local butchers and packers, a fairly active trade was done, and at the close few were left over.

Sales of choice steers were made at 6¼c, good at 6c to 6¼c, fairly good, at 5¾c to 5¾c, fair at 5c to 5¼c and common, at 4¼c to 4¾c per lb. Among the offerings there were a number of cows, of which the choice lots sold at 5¼c, and the lower grades from that down to 2¾c per lb. A few very choice bulls brought as high as 6c and the commoner ones went at 4¾c to 5¼c per lb.

A very unsettled feeling prevailed in the market for hogs and in consequence prices were irregular at a very wide range. This condition of the market is attributed to some extent to the keen competition on the part of some packers for supplies, both here and at country points, and the indications are that as long as this lasts there will be some irregularity in the course of values. The demand was good and an active trade was done with sales of choice selected lots at $7.50 to $7.75, mixed lots at $7 to $7.25 and heavy hogs at $6.25 to $6.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

There was no further change in the market for small meats, the recent advance in the price of lambs being well maintained, under a good demand and sales were made at from $5 to $7 each. Sheep were steady at $4.50 to $6 each, and calves were fairly active and unchanged at from $3 to $8 each.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, June 26.—Cattle—Receipts, 2750 head; market, dry fed cattle active and steady, grass kind, lower; prime steers, $6.60 to $6.65; butcher grades, $5.50 to $6.10; cows, $2.25 to $6.75.

Calves—Receipts, 2000 head, market fairly active and steady; cull to choice, $5 to $9.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 3400 head; market active, lambs, 25c higher; choice lambs, $7.40 to $7.50; cull to fair, $5.50 to $7.35; yearlings, $5 to $5.25; sheep, $2 to $4.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 15,200; market, fairly active, 5c lower; Yorkers, $6.75 to $6.90; pigs, $6.55 to $6.60; mixed, $6.80 to $6.90; heavy, $6.80 to $6.90; roughs, $6.35 to $6.75; stags, $4.50 to $5.

High Priced Portrait.

The highest price ever paid at a public auction for a woman's portrait in England was 14,500 guineas, which was the price of the portrait of Lady Louisa Manners, sold in 1901.

AXE-GRINDING

A Science With Some Dealers—Done at the Expense of the Public

There is nothing "just as good" as Newbro's Herpicide. Some dealers will even go so far as to tell you they have something better.

That dealer has an axe to grind.

You can't stop his grinding, but you can prevent him grinding it at your expense.

There is one sure, swift way to do it.

Go where you can get what you ask for.

You won't be obliged to do this very often, as fortunately the majority of druggists are honest and conscientious.

Newbro's Herpicide has been so long and favourably known as the original dandruff germ destroyer that no one should be deceived.

When you need a hair remedy, you don't want one which merely promises to kill the dandruff germ and prevent the hair from falling.

You want one that will do it.

Herpicide does it.

The hair becomes soft and lustrous. There is life, snap and beauty where formerly the hair was dead, dull and brittle.

Newbro's Herpicide is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

Applications of this wonderful prophylatic may be obtained at the best barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Send ten cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., for a nice sample of Herpicide and a booklet telling all about the hair.

HIT BY LIGHTNING.

The town clock was struck by lightning during this afternoon's storm, and pieces of the wood work strewn in every direction. he clock is still going, however. The rain came down in torrents and near Ormond Walsh's drug store looked like a branch of the Trent Canal.

Thrown Over A Fence During Wild Dash Of Frightened Horse

Mr. George Stenton, of the Post Office, Victim of Accident Last Night---Horse Bolted Down Benson Street, Throwing the Driver Out at the Corner of Smith Street---Not Seriously Hurt.

Mr. Geo. Stenton of the Post Office was the victim of a sensational accident last night, from which he miraculously escaped, without serious injuries. Mr. Stenton had driven Mr. Horace Walker home, and was returning along Benson street, when the horse took fright at something and bolted down the steep hill. It crossed the railway track at the foot of the hill at top speed, and, swinging into Smith street, the buggy wheels struck an obstacle on the road and Mr. Stenton was flung out of the rig and over the low railing at the sidewalk into the gully beyond. The rig was badly damaged, and the horse tore itself loose from the vehicle and continued its flight. People living in the neighbourhood heard the accident and hurried to Mr. Stenton's assistance. Medical aid was called in, but it was found that he was not seriously injured, escaping with some painful bruises and cuts.

Presentation Made To The Retiring Pastor Of Mark St. Church Last Night

Rev. H. C. Coon Was Presented With a Purse of Gold---Was Taken Completely by Surprise---Mr. Coon Leaves For His New Charge To-morrow.

Last evening representatives of the Quarterly and Trustee Boards of the Mark street Methodist church waited on Rev. C. H. Coon, their pastor, who is leaving, to take the Methodist church at Lakefield, presenting him with an address and a purse of gold. The following address was read by Mr. Joseph Sucee and Mr. John Speer made the presentation:

Peterborough, June 26th, 1911.

To Rev. C. H. Coon, Retiring Pastor of Mark St. Methodist Church:

Dear Brother,—You are about to leave us for another field of labour. Having been with us for four years, the last of the four by unanimous invitation of the Quarterly Official Board, you have remained the full limit allowed by the General Conference, and we feel it keenly that we have to part with you and your lovely family. You have been most unselfish and kind and many have expressed their appreciation of your efforts, and faithfulness as your pastorate has drawn to a close among us.

We would ask you to accept this purse of gold as a slight expression of our love for you. And we pray that the blessing of God may attend your every effort in your new field of labour. Also, we pray that you may find a place in the hearts of your people such as you hold in ours.

Signed on behalf of the Board and members of the Mark St. Methodist church, Peterborough,

JOSEPH SUCEE,
MALCOLM McINTYRE,
JOHN SPEER.

In replying Mr. Coon, who was completely taken by surprise, briefly reviewed his connection with Mark street church during the past four years, drawing attention to the very harmonious relations of pastor and people and regretted the termination of a pastorate that had been so satisfactory. He and his family regretted leaving a locality that had been made so friendly and homelike and trusted that God's richest blessings would follow them in all their endeavours.

In addition to the above presentation, members of Mr. Coon's family have been the recipients of valuable tokens of friendship, accompanied by addresses. Among them being a beautiful gold locket to Miss Myrtle Coon from her companions, and a leather suit case to Master Willard from his boy chums. It is doubtful if the removal of any family from East City will be regretted as much as that of Mr. Coon. They have been good friends and neighbours, and endeavoured at all times to be of assistance to those who required it. They will be greatly missed and Lakefield is to be congratulated on their removal there.

Flourished A Revolver And Ordered Up A Drink---Local Man Fined In Police Court

Fred H. Manning paid a fine of $5.00 in the Police Court this morning for flourishing a revolver in a local hotel last night. The charge was for carrying a revolver without a permit, but the instance was somewhat more sensational. Manning, who was on the blacklist went into a hotel and asked for some liquor and upon being refused, drew a revolver and flourished it in the air, and ordered up his drink, playing the Buffalo Bill trick. He did not have a chance to carry his little game to extremes, as he was promptly arrested and brought to the Police Station, where he appeared before City Clerk Armstrong, who was acting in the absence of Magistrate Dumble. He was given the option of a $5.00 fine or ten days in gaol. He could not pay the fine, so will spend the ten days at Castle Neabitt.

Thos. Killingbeck, was back in the Police Court this morning again, on the same old charge, that of being disorderly. He pleaded guilty. The charge was made more serious as the offence was committed in the middle of the night. He was fined $5.00 which he accordingly paid.

MAD AS A MARCH HARE.

The Mail and Empire is mad—mad as a March hare; that is with partizanship. It foams at the mouth over the refusal of the Welland Liberal Association to endorse the course of Mr. W. M. German, M.P., in his hostility to reciprocity and the reciprocity agreement. It declares that Mr. German is the victim of the political machine. This is mere fustian and foolishness. If there is any blame involved, Mr. German himself is to blame. He was elected to represent the people of Welland in the present parliament. He has ceased to represent them, and so far as his capacity in this respect is concerned, his usefulness is gone. The farmers of Welland want reciprocity, and they want a representative who will support the policy that will give it. Reciprocity as involved in the agreement, is the policy of the Liberal government, a policy by which they wil stand or fall. Mr. German is opposed to this policy, will vote against this policy and against the Liberal government he was elected to support, whose general policy involves reciprocity, as represented by the agreement now before Parliament. Mr. German's voluntary retirement, his resignation of his seat, would be in line with British principles. If a member of a British or Canadian Cabinet finds himself unable to support the policy of the government of which he is a member, he retires and gives place to a man who will be in sympathy with the government policy. Logically, a representative member of a constituency should take a similar course. He is not a representative when he ceases to represent the policy, sentiments and wishes of his constituents. Under the circumstances, Mr. German cannot expect a renomination. He would be as much of a misfit as the candidate of the Liberal party whose policy he opposes, as would be the rankest Tory. The Mail and Empire is simply raving when it pronounces Mr. German a victim of the party machine. If he is a victim at all, he is the victim of his perverted views, and honesty of conscience; he is the victim of the British genius of government which demands that a representative must represent, be, a cabinet minister or private member.

BRITISH NAVAL STRENGTH.

Reference has been made to the reckless and absurd statements of some of the Conservative organs as to "British naval decadence" and pointed out that instead of Britain's naval strength declining, it was constantly increasing and was now greater than at any stage of her history. We are quite convinced that no statement of facts, or arguments founded thereupon, will lead certain party organs to abandon their disloyal and unpatriotic efforts to disparage the British fleet if they have the slightest hope that by making the effort they could make the least bit of party capital and create in the minds of the ignorant hostility to the policy of the present British Government. But to the reader who bases his judgment upon facts, a consideration of the Coronation naval display will be comforting and inspiring.

On Saturday King George reviewed at Spithead the greatest fleet ever assembled in the history of the world. In this great armada, ranged in a parallelogram two miles broad and six miles in length, were 167 British warships, with an aggregate tonnage of over 1,000,000, the total cost of these representing $400,000,000 outlay. Nor does this represent the total of Britain's naval strength. In almost every part of the ocean her floating sentinels guard the rights of her subjects, and the world's peace. Hers is the strength of a giant; and hers the justice and the wisdom to use it for the benefit of mankind.

There is the answer to the absurd and slanderous statements made by certain un-British Canadian newspapers. British naval-power has not declined and is not declining. It is, on the contrary, tremendously increasing with the years. And costly as the competition is, and economically wasteful of human effort, Britain will continue to safeguard her interests and the peace of the world by continuing to lead in naval strength until the dawning of reason concludes the great powers of the world to come to an agreement to adopt saner and peaceful methods of international regulation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is something peculiarly unfitting, says the Toronto Star, about the term "entrance examinations." Of the thousands of children who are today undergoing the test, only the minority ever "enter" the High school. For the remainder these examinations mark the close of a school career. Why not call them "exit" examinations and be frank about it?

CANADIAN LOCOMOTIVE COMPANY

Issuing $1,500,000 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock, Carrying a Bonus of 25% in Common

The remarkable development of Canadian railways has enormously increased the demand for locomotives of ever increasing size, power and cost. The demand is one of the most certain in any line of manufacture.

There is a big field for a larger and up-to-date locomotive-building plant in Canada. The present plant of the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston is entirely inadequate to handle its orders, and just now there are contracts in sight, which would keep an augmented plant busy until the end of 1913. The owners of the plant—a powerful syndicate of English and Canadian capitalists—intend to enlarge the works, so as to cope with the increasing demands for locomotives in Canada. The present output is not much over 75 engines a year—depending on the type required—and many valuable contracts have to be declined, owing to the Company's inability to deliver. It is now intended to double the capacity of the plant, and perhaps treble it.

To enable them to make this expansion the Company are issuing, through Ameilius Jarvis & Co., and as announced elsewhere in this issue, $1,500,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, carrying a bonus of 25 per cent. in common.

Being exempt from taxation, and with little danger fro mlabour troubles, as explained in President Harty's letter, it is in an exceptionally favourable position to manufacture most profitably.

The company's premises occupy three blocks in the city of Kingston, having a street frontage of about 865 feet by a depth of about 555 feet, to a frontage on Lake Ontario of about 1,175 feet, the area enclosed being 353,000 square feet. There are about a dozen buildings, including one of the finest power plants in the country, a magnificent erecting shop, with huge travelling cranes, boiler shops, riveting shops, machine shops, tank shops, tender shops, blacksmith shops, foundry and pattern rooms, paint shops, and carpenter shop. In all, the works occupy seven acres. The company has its own branch railway line in Kingston, and its own wharves and docking facilities on Lake Ontario.

The engines it turns out are the most up-to-date possible, and that they are satisfactory in service is proved by repeat orders from all previous buyers. The C.P.R., the G.T.R. the I.C.R., the National Transcontinental, the Canadian Northern and the Government-owned Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railroad all are patrons of the Canadian Locomotive Company of Kingston. Six engines recently turned out for the T. & N. O. are said to be the largest ever built in Canada. Chairman Englehart of the T. & N.O. speaking of these engines, declared them to be the finest he had ever seen, and were giving the greatest satisfaction. At present the company has contracts for some 50 engines, with the C.P.R., the C.N.R., the I. C. R. and the Algoma Central, and it is becoming increasingly difficult to keep up with the orders.

The working staff is about 800 strong, and a big proportion of the employees have grown up with the works and own their own homes in the neighbourhood. This fact is a pretty strong safeguard against labour troubles common in other centres.

The men who are to control the new company are recognized powers in the financial world. The banking firm in charge of the business is Aemilius Jarvis & Company of Toronto, and associated with it are the well-known firm of Brown, Shipley & Company, bankers of London, Eng. The Directors are: Hon. Wm Harty, Kingston; John L. Whiting, K. C., Kingston; Aemilius Jarvis, of Toronto; Robert Hobson, Hamilton; Frank G. Wallace, Pittsburg, Pa.; Warren Y. Soper, Ottawa; James Redmond, Montreal.

Of the large amount for which firm subscriptions have been received, and which will be allotted in full, it is worthy of note that Paris, France, and London, England, have taken a substantial sum.

Mother Dies Son Absent

Mr. Ed. Huff, merchant tailor, left this morning for a trip to the Canadian West. His father, Mr. Wesley Huff, of Napanee, came to town this morning to take home his son's horse during his absence in the west, and this afternoon a telegraph despatch was received here announcing the sudden death of Mr. Ed. Huff's mother in Napanee. The message must have reached Peterborough after the train on which her son travelled had taken him out of reach of a telegraph message.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF THE CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The closing exercises of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, last night, demonstrated the important part this institution occupies in the musical culture of the city. The programme presented by the several pupils also showed that the Conservatory is doing a valuable work in imparting the elements of a sound musical education. Year after year the Conservatory is enjoying a larger patronage and necessarily doing larger and better work. The cumulative result is expressed in the excellent orchestra, which has developed gradually from the instruction imparted to pupils of the Conservatory. It is not numerically large, but forms a splendid, and the only existing, nucleus, for a more ambitious organization. The soloists last night also showed excellent proficiency, creditable to their several teachers, and those who have attended previous closing concerts are able to note most gratifying improvement. The children's part of the programme, conducted by Miss Choate, revealed not only astonishing proficiency, due to unusually capable instruction, but a great deal of remarkable natural talent. On the whole the closing exercises established the high water mark for proficiency of instruction and attainment, of the Conservatory. The result fully justified the warm commendation of Dr. Torrington, of the Toronto College of Music, who is to-day holding examinations at the Conservatory. He said that splendid work was being done, a work that called for the hearty support of the citizens.

The following is the programme rendered:

Rev. Dr. Clifford Is A Very Prominent Figure

The Toronto Star says: Toronto will welcome to-morrow several of the leaders of British Non-conformity who are coming this way on their return home from the Baptist World Alliance which closed yesterday at Philadelphia. The best known member of the party is Rev. Dr. John Clifford, of Westbourne Chapel, London, England, who was the presiding officer of the Alliance at the gathering just closed, and who is known the world over for his strenuous battle against the Education Bill in Britain. He has been the chief inspiration of the "passive resistance movement," and has been in jail more than a score of times for refusing to pay taxes in support of Church of England schools. He has also been one of the right hand men of Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, who is also a Baptist, in the battle against the veto of the House of Lords. Despite his threescore years he is one of England's most powerful public speakers.

Dr. Clifford will speak to-morrow evening at the special convocation of McMaster University to be held in Walmer Road Baptist Church. Two or three years ago the Baptist University did itself honour by conferring the degree of Doctor of Laws upon Dr. Clifford in absentia. He will say thank you, and tell something of the progress of non-conformity, in England. Honorary degrees wil be conferred upon a number of the other visitors, who will also give addresses.

On Wednesday evening Dr. Clifford will speak in the main auditorium of Jarvis street Baptist church, and on Thursday will lay the corner stone of a new Baptist church at Peterborough.

The Baptists of the city are planning a big welcome for their distinguished leader from across the water.

DAILY MARKET QUOTATIONS

The grain market is somewhat stagnant at present. The price has remained stationary for the last couple of weeks, and is likely to remain so for the present week. Baled hay is 80 cents and loose hay is selling very slowly at from $12.00 to $14 per ton. The following is a list of the prices of a few of the grains:

Buckwheat—45 cents.
Beans—$2.00.
Flour, $2.50 to $3.00.
Shorts, $24 per ton.
Barley, 50c bushel.
Oats, 42c bushel.
Rye, 55 cents.
Fall wheat, 85c.
Clover—$9 per bush.

EXAMINER'S DAILY LETTER ON THE STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 27.—The Root amendment to the Canadian Bill was defeated in the U. S. Senate. Indications are that the measure will now pass earlier than was expected.

New York, N.Y., June 27.—There is no significance to the reactionary tendency to the London market, since trading is light in anticipation of the fortnightly settlement and the local situation should not be appreciably affected. The Reciprocity agreement seems likely to go through without amendment. President Taft, it is said, will veto any tariff bill passed before the board of experts report on the various schedules, so that the prospects for legislation of this sort are not bright, though efforts may be made in this direction for the sake of political capital. Conditions are shaping themselves for a good revival in general business which Wall Street should foreshadow by higher prices, the increased inquiry from the railroads for steel products being a case in point. Sight should not be lost of the fact that the recent rains in the West have done an immense amount of good, especially to corn, which promises a bumper crop. The government weather report is given out to-day, and will be scanned with interest, because of the flood of damage stories lately in circulation. The subway question is nearing a solution, the B R T and Interboro being expected to put in their acceptance to-day. The copper producers' statement is expected to make a good showing. We would buy the better class of stocks on all setbacks.

1911 EDITION

We have just received from the publishers A. McKim, Limited, of Montreal and Toronto, a copy of the 1911 Edition of the Canadian Newspaper Directory.

This is the Seventh Edition of this valuable work, which fills a very real need in Canada, and deserves a place on the desk of every business man, whether he is an advertiser or not.

The Canadian Newspaper Directory lists and describes 1,526 periodicals in Canada and Newfoundland. Of these 136 are daily, 1,102 weekly or semi-weekly, 265 monthly or semi-monthly, and 23 are published less frequently. This is a considerable increase over the last edition.

In addition to this, the Directory supplies a comprehensive Gazetter giving the population, the chief industries, the railway, telegraph and banking facilities and other interesting features of every newspaper city, town and village in Canada.

This work contains over 475 pages. It is splendidly bound and is certainly a credit alike to the publishers and to Canadian newspapers generally.

A. McKim, Limited, are particularly well qualified to edit and publish this, the standard book of reference on Canadian publications. They are the pioneers in the Advertising Agency field in the Dominion, the McKim Agency having been founded in Montreal in January, 1889, twenty-two years ago, by Mr. Anson McKim, who is still at the head of the business.

During all this time they have been the acknowledged leaders in this line in Canada, and the Agency business has been developed from a very small beginning—then performing only the functions of the middle-man—to avery large producing enterprise which runs into the millions.

It goes without saying then that no other Agency is in closer touch with the publishers of the Dominion than McKim's, and they are therefore able to get the most reliable information The price of the 1911 Directory is $3.00.

No Games In Peterborough On Dominion Day

The ball games arranged for Dominion Day have been cancelled, both the Midland League fixture and the exhibition game between the Thistles and the leaders of the Toronto Juvenile League having been declared off. Most of the Peterborough Midland League team will be out of town on Saturday, and it was found that it would not be possible to secure a team to play Cobourg, so the contest has been postponed until a later date. With the calling off of the Midland League game it has been thought advisable to postpone the junior game as well.

Smashed The Record For A 440 Yard Run

The final series of events in the "Stratton Cup" contest were run off at Riverside Park last night, and they furnished some good sport, as well as surprises. In the running hop step and jump, S. Canniff won with a jump of 39 feet. The half mile was a great race between Joe Mahoney and P. Goforth, and after a long spring, Mahoney breasted the tape two feet in front of his opponent. Time 2.12 3-5.

The greatest surprise of the evening came in the 440 yard run, when H. Wood went out at the crack of the gun and without any let-up in the fast pace that he set, wheeled off his 1-4 in 54 3-5 seconds, clipping a 1-5 of a second off the record.

The standing by points are as follows: C. Canniff 770 points, H. Wood 666 1-2, Joe Mahoney 552 1-2, C. Bartlett 545.

This cup carries with it the all-round championship of the Association. Below will be found the record of events and holders:

100 yards, 10 3-5, H. Wood, made in 1911.

220 yards, 24 3-5, W. Willis, made in 1910.

BASEBALL

The Eastern League race is not so much of a procession as some people seem to think.

The Athletics are still four games behind Detroit, and yet we do not hear of any of the Philadelphia critics crying for the release of Connie Mack.

Tim Jordan made his eighth home run of the season on Saturday.

The double defeat of Rochester by Baltimore helped everybody.

Vickers and Dygert beat Holmes and Hughes at Baltimore Saturday.

Joe McGinnity pitched for Newark on Sunday and was hit for 13 hits.

The Toronto pitchers seem to need assistance to win their games.

The race among the American League pitchers is now to see which will be the first to keep Ty Cobb from getting a hit.

It looks as though Neal Ball had at last "arrived" for good in big league baseball. He is playing a bang-up game for the Naps and hitting well.

There's a difference of only two in the maximum and minimum number of games played by the teams of the National. Cincinnati has played 61 and Brooklyn 60.

Six hits in two games off two Cleveland youngsters shrank the St. Louis Browns' batting averages considerably.

The game must be getting tolerably dead in Cincinnati when they pull off doubleheaders on Sunday.

Brennan, the Buffalo pitcher, to whom Philadelphia still has a string, turned in the first two-hit game of the season. Jersey City was the victim.

Hans Wagner, the promising young Pirate, felt so good over his transfer to first base, that he walloped Ritchie's delivery four times.

Big Ed. Walsh relieved Doc White in the sixth round and struck out three Detroiters forthwith. He saved the day.

"OUR LADY OF THE SNOWS"

"What has become of that time-honoured superstition which credited Canada with being a frigid country, whose poetical emblem was "Our Lady of the Snows"? It must be effectively dispelled, at least with our English friends, else why should Keatings, of London, England, probably the oldest manufacturers of insect powder in the world, come to Canada to wage war against the merry June bug and other insects and household pests that are peculiar to Canada.

Keatings' Powder is advertised and sold widely in Africa, Indian, Australia, and, in fact, around the world wherever bugs are an annoyance. In Great Britain, when you want Keatings Insect Powder, you merely say "Keatings"—it is known so well. All the Old Country people know Keatings, and the Canadian soldiers who went to South Africa, remember it gratefully.

In the words of the poet, Keatings Powder comes to Canada to help our Lady of the Snows "set her house in order." Keatings has been doing this the world over with the British Colonies. Canada is not altogether a bugless country and Keatings is a welcome adjunct to the small comforts of life. As we become a greater nation we must expect more bugs. In a sense bugs are the measure of a nation's greatness. Therefore the consumption of Keatings is the measure of a nation's greatness.

Canadians should welcome the arrival of Keatings as a sign of the times."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

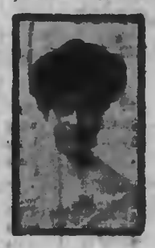
ANOTHER, to-day.

Yes, honest and truly, another letter has come in this last mail asking me to write an article saying that it is bad form for a girl to chew gum in public.

This one makes—well, I wouldn't really dare say how many. I'd be afraid you wouldn't believe me.

Truly, I can't understand it.

Write an article saying that it is bad form for a girl to chew gum in public. Why, that seems to me about like being asked to write an article saying that it is often hot in July, or that a pint of whiskey might be bad for the stomach, or that it is not kind for a man to murder his mother.



Can there really be a girl in this land who does not know that to chew gum in public is bad form?

Take a girl who hasn't had any home training at all, and if she has ever seen another girl deform her face by chewing gum—and if she indulges herself she probably has, for they usually seem to do it in droves—surely that sight is enough to teach her that chewing gum is not a pleasant habit.

Perhaps many correspondents are right and this is a matter that needs to be brought before our young girls, but I cannot help feeling that it's simply a case of "know the right and yet the wrong pursue."

One woman writes: "I once heard a man say, 'I was more than taken with Miss E., but I caught her several times chewing gum with her friends, and that was too much for me.'"

That's the ordinary masculine attitude toward the habit.

Of course every girl who chews gum knows that.

She must know, too, that no matter how pretty she is, the minute she begins to chew gum she ceases to be good to look at.

She must know that her attempts to solve the perpetual motion problem makes anyone who has to look at her desperately nervous.

She must know that nice girls, refined girls, the girls she admires never chew gum.

She probably knows that the habit is unhealthy. That fact has been stated often enough.

The only explanation of her conduct, then, is that the enjoyment she gets out of working her jaws over that bit of rubber, or whatever they make it of, outweighs all these considerations.

And if that is so, how could a newspaper article possibly turn the balance the other way?

I'm sorry, you folks who have written to me, but surely you see how helpless I am.

"What Canada Has To Offer To The Immigrant" As Described By Sir Wilfrid

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., JUNE 24.—What "Canada has to offer the immigrant was described by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Prime Minister of the Dominion, at the Canada Club dinner in the Princes' Restaurant, London, last week, in a characterstically eloquent speech. Lord Strathcona presided, and Mr. Harcourt, the Colonial Secretary, was another of the chief guests of the evening.

Lord Strathcona, in proposing "The Dominion of Canada and His Excellency Earl Grey, the Governor-General," referred to the part which the Canada Club had played in advancing the general interests not only of Canada, but of the whole Empire. There was, he said, no portion of the Empire that was more devoted to the throne than the Dominion of Canada, and they were proud to think that the successor of Lord Grey, none of whose predecessors had done more to further the interests of the Dominion, was to be the Duke of Connaught. Cheers greeted the announcement that His Royal Highness had become a member of the Club.

The toast was replied to by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was given an enthusiastic reception. Recalling the fact that the Canada Club was founded by the fur traders in London shortly after Canada became a possession of the British Crown, he said: "In those early days Canada was just as much on the map as it is to-day, but it was not so much in public esteem as it is at the present time. The men who founded the Canadian Club, and who were the first British traders in Canada, had full faith in the future, and backed it with all their energy, and we see the result at the present time. It is true that for a long time we were kept in the shadow.

Discovered 12 Years Ago.

"Canada was not much until a few cent date. It is a mistake to say that Canada was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534. Canada was discovered only within the last ten or twelve years. Before that time we were overshadowed by our great neighbour, the American Republic, and it was not at all a rare occurrence for a Canadian coming to London, to be asked in what part of the United States Canada was—whether it was in the east or in the west. No such question is asked at the present time. Then the world did not know that there was at the north of the United States a country as large as the American Republic itself, as wealthy as it is in natural resources, and with a population of the first calibre. Canada was kept in the dark. But of a sudden the mist was lifted, and a new org appeared in the Western sky. That new constellation was Canada.

The Open Door.

"Our doors," proceeded Sir Wilfrid, "are open to men of good-will from all parts of the world. Not that we want to create the impression that Canada is an easy land to live in; that it is a land of perpetual sunshine; that milk and honey flow in the streets and in its rivers. We do not want to create such an impression. We say that Canada is a hard land — a land fit for hardy men. We do not want any kind of men in Canada except those who are willing to work with their brain and with their brawn. Such as these are sure, in coming to Canada, to meet with ample success. Canada, to meet with ample success.

"I think it is not claiming too much at the present time to say that there is no part of the earth where labour is more part of a richer reward than the is surer of a richer reward than the dominion of Canada. Of course, we do not pretend that the young man who comes to Canada can have the same success as those who came over seventy years ago. We cannot pretend that all will be Strathconas, or William Mackenzies, or Donald Mannas; but if they do not do as well as any of these, they will do pretty well—well enough to tempt the ambition and fortune of any young man.

What Canada Offers.

"What is it that we have to offer to the man who comes to Canada? We offer, in the first place, the British institutions, such as they have been been made in these islands. Perfection is not of the world, as we know, but I think it may be said that British institutions are the most perfect that have ever been devised by man for the government of man. Those British institutions we have in Canada, and we cherish them as the very apple of our eye, and from them we would not part under any consideration whatever.

"What have we to offer them? We offer them good laws—laws which will make every man's life, property, reputation, and honour all the same. We offer them a code of laws which will give a man justice as he is entitled to justice—justice without fear or favour. What else do we offer them? We offer them lands—the best lands that are to be found to-day on the surface under the sun—lands that have been, ever since the Creation, only awaiting the tiller to smile and blossom at once.

A Nation's Heritage.

"To every man who comes to our shores, even if he has not a shilling in his pocket, we offer 160 acres of these lands, and if he has energy and enterprise he is sure, in a very few years, of a competence for his wife and for his children. We offer them, besides, the grandest forests that remain on the surface of the globe. We offer them fisheries on Atlantic and Pacific unequalled in the world, minerals of all sorts—gold, silver, coal, iron—everything in the shape of minerals to be found on the face of the world is to be found in Canada.

"What then, more can I say?" asked the Premier, amid cheers. "We claim that Canada is the land of sunshine and the land of snow, the land of freedom and the land of loyalty, the pride of the twentieth century, the gem of the British crown."

Sir Wilfrid added that in Canada they had been extremely fortunate with their Governor-General. Too much could not be said of what Lord Grey had done for Canada, and when the moment came for the Duke of Connaught to take his place they would say, in the old French phrase, "The King is dead; long live the King."

MR. P. ALEXANDER AT ELECTRICAL CONVENTION

Mr. P. Alexander, of the local firm of Messrs. Alexander & Miller, electricians, has returned to the city from Niagara Falls, Ont., where he has, for the past few days, been attending the great Electrical Convention held there. At this meeting of the leading electrical experts of Canada and the United States, Mr. Alexander kept his eyes and ears open, and in consequence learned some of the latest ideas in wiring and conduit work and other matters appertaining to electrical affairs. Whilst en route home, passing through Toronto, Mr. Alexander had the good fortune to meet a gentleman formerly a resident of Lakefield, Mr. Strickland, electrical inspector of the Queen City for the Fire Underwriters. He very kindly devoted some hours to Mr. Alexander, and had him taken to some thirty of the largest buildings in process of construction, where electrical wiring and other work of kindred nature is being installed. Mr. Alexander was thus enabled to familiarize himself with the very latest wrinkles in electrical construction and work.

GRANDMOTHERS' BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Colour and Beauty of the Hair Preserved With a Harmless Remedy Made From Sage

Druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair, making it fluffy and beautiful and restoring its natural colour.

The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Mr. R. R. Hall has kindly donated a trophy for the Baseball Match at the T.A.S. Picnic. Dodgers announcing sporting events will be out on Thursday. Everything points to one of the most successful picnics that the Society has ever had. 1d

SHOWERS AT INTERVALS

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, JUNE 26.—Those who are interested in strawberry shortcake will be cheered at the prospect of a little rain. A moderate depression developed the other day, and moving westward to the Great Lakes, sprinkled the Lake Erie counties and the Niagara Peninsula yesterday. Toronto and the north shore is getting the benefit to-day, and the Clarkson strawberry patches will take heart again, perhaps.

"I don't know if there'll be enough water in this Kansas consignment to make much difference," said the Weather Man this morning. "The showers have been very slight. I'm afraid it is too late to save the strawberries. We should have some good showers, though," he added hopefully, "and the raspberries will benefit."

The showers will occur at intervals to-day and to-night, clearing off this sections of the map by to-morrow morning.

APPLICATION LISTS

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, JUNE 26.—The applications lists for the new issue of preferred stock of the Canadian Locomotive Company, Kingston, were opened this morning at the office of A. Emilius Jarvis & Company, who report a large number of subscriptions as being received. These shares are apparently popular with the small investor as applications for small lots of shares have been numerous, owing no doubt to the attractive nature of the security and the bonus of 25 per cent. in common stock as an evidence of Canada's industrial progress. The showing of the company up to the present time is a gratifying one in the extreme and with the increased plant and equipment the earning powers of the company should be at least doubled.

Don't forget All Saint's Garden Party Wednesday evening, June 28th. 57th Regt. Band will leave Central Park by special car at 7.30 o'clock. 2d-148

FIERCE FIGHT

There was a fierce, free-for-all fight on Charlotte street, last night, about 11 o'clock, when two local men got into a tussle over some disagreement. The air was filled with blasphemy and offensive language. A crowd of men gathered around the two combatants, after which one of them fled, but not before he had knocked his opponent down on the pavement and hurt his head. There was blood all over the pavement from the wound on the injured man's head. His friends got after the other fellow, but he had made good his escape, so nothing could be done, but extend sympathy to the vanquished.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. WEDDING BELLS

SUDDARDS—EDWARDS.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. John's church this morning when Miss Emma May Edwards was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Walter Henry Suddards. The ceremony, which took place at 10 o'clock, was performed by the Rev. Canon Davidson, in the presence of immediate friends and relatives. The couple were unattended.

After the ceremony the wedding party met at the home of Mr. W. J. Hopwood, 213 Simcoe street, where a reception was held. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents. The happy couple left on the noon train via C.P.R. for points east. On their return they will reside in East City.

Lathangue—Gillies

A very pretty June wedding was celebrated on Wednesday afternoon, June 21st at three o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gillies, Pontypool, when their third daughter, Lucilla, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Norman J. Lathangue, of Ballyduff.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Millbrook, in the presence of the near relatives. The wedding march was played by Mrs. E. P. Jackson, of Peterboro, sister of the bride. The bride was handsomely gowned in Brussels net over white silk trimmed with satin and chiffon and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Little Hazel McWilliams, of Peterboro, niece of the bride acted as ring bearer and looked charming in white silk trimmed with silk insertion and carried a basket of flowers. The drawing room where the ceremony was performed was decorated with ferns and cut flowers. Many beautiful presents were received by the happy couple, a testimony to the high esteem in which they are held by their friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and chain and to the ring bearer a brooch set with pearls. After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served and the happy couple left on the evening train on their honeymoon trip to Toronto, Niagara and other western points. The bride wore a travelling suit of navy blue chiffon broadcloth trimmed with satin and wore a black picture hat. The young couple are followed by the best wishes of a host of friends who all join in wishing them a happy and prosperous life. On their return they will reside at Ballyduff.

PRESENTATION

The Ladies Aid of Mark Street Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. Dr. Middleton and presented Mrs. Coon with an address and a set of dishes on the eve of her departure to Lakefield. The address was read by Mrs. A. A. Fowler and the presentation was made by Mrs. S. Machett.

Mrs. Coon will be greatly missed in the work of the Ladies Aid which is a great factor in the good that is being done by Mark Street Church.

The following was the address read to Mrs. Coon:

Dear Mrs. Coon:—Upon the last occasion of your meeting with us and before you leave for your new home, we, the members of the Mark St. Ladies Aid wish to express our appreciation of your valuable services among us, both as a worker and later as our President. Always willing to help us in things temporal and spiritual, your life has been an example to us, and we feel that much of the success of this department of our Church has been due to your faithful efforts in labor and prayer. We hope that in your new field of labor God may abundantly bless you and yours. We ask you to accept as a remembrance from us these dishes, and may they remind you of old friends, although among new faces and scenes.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies Aid, Mrs. A. A. Fowler, Pres.; Mrs. T. Matchett, Sec.

AEROPLANE EXPRESS

Aviators Take Hurry-up Parcels to Big Liner—Deliver Merchandise on Board the Steamship Olympia

FIRST ON RECORD

New York, June 29.—The first piece of merchandise ever delivered at sea by aeroplane fell on the upper deck of the giant White Star liner Olympic yesterday, as she steamed through the Narrows, outward bound, on her maiden eastward passage.

W. Atlee Burpee of Philadelphia had contracted for delivery before sailing, with a New York and Philadelphia department store, which in turn engaged the services of Thomas Sopwith, the English aviator. With Richard R. Sinclair, secretary of the Aero Club, holding the package, Sopwith rose from the aviation grounds at Garden City, spied out the Olympic as she bore down the Hudson, timed his flight to meet her in the Narrows, and set his course over land and sea.

Even from the pier end, passengers on the Olympic are no more than animated dots of white and black to those on shore. Presently there was to be seen among those dots a scurrying to and fro, as bits of paper blown by the wind. Sopwith had been sighted bearing down on them from aloft. Working nearer and nearer, he circled the ship as low as he dared, hovered overhead for an instant, and then made back for shore, landing safely on the grounds of the Crescent Athletic Club at Bay Ridge.

While Sopwith controlled the aeroplane, Sinclair dropped the package at the given signal. No word came from on board whether it had landed or not, but to those in nearby craft, and to the aviators it seemed certain that it had fallen true.

"We descended to a height of about 250 feet, I should think, above the Olympic," said Sopwith after landing, "and I am positive the package reached its owner. We felt no disturbance worth speaking of from the ship's hot breath pouring from her great funnels —what we call a 'whiff-waff,' or pocket, that caused us to dip perhaps 20 feet."

Prisoner Makes Colt.

Chatham, Ont., June 29.—Walter Taylor, an immigrant, appeared in the Police Court yesterday morning before Magistrate Houston, charged with fighting on the street, but when the magistrate announced his fine Taylor refused to pay. He also refused to be locked up. Instead, he bolted from the prisoners' dock and started for the door.

Chief Holmes tried to intercept him, but Taylor broke away from him. Officer Dodson likewise grabbed him when he was near the door, but he eluded the policeman and gained the street. Later, Dodson found him at his home and arrested him once more. It was necessary for the officer to choke him before he could be managed. Taylor was placed in the cells.

It is likely the whole family will be deported. Taylor has served time in England, and was brought out here by an immigration agency.

While Taylor was making his thrilling escape, his mother, who was in the court room, offered every encouragement in a high, shrill voice.

Struggle Now Begins.

London, June 29.—The real struggle over the Parliament bill dealing with the veto power of the House of Lords began yesterday afternoon, when the Lords entered upon committee stage with the Marquis of Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition in the Upper Chamber, and his followers apparently determined to press the official amendments as announced by the marquis at the reassembling of Parliament on June 26.

The amendments provide for the exclusion from the operation of the measure of bills such as that relating to Irish home rule; for a joint sitting in case of a disagreement between the two Houses, and for a referendum to the country in other cases.

Urgent whips had been sent out by both parties and the benches were crowded with members.

Debate on the bill is likely to be prolonged until the end of next week.

At Loss For a Clue.

Winnipeg, June 29.—An inquest will be held on James Reive, the man found dead in the Red River yesterday morning, with a badly punctured skull. Mystery surrounds the case, and although four detectives from police headquarters are working on the case they admit that they are at a loss for a clue. He had lived in Winnipeg since 1879, coming here from Colborne, Ont. He is said to have a sister living near Morris, Man.

Serious Runaway.

Chatham, June 29.—While driving to Rutherford to deliver a carload of steers, Malcolm McDiarmid, an aged and well-known Dawn farmer, met with a serious runaway accident. His horse became frightened at a dog and bolted. Mr. McDiarmid was thrown from his rig and sustained a number of serious injuries. He was badly shaken up and bruised, and his hand and fingers were broken. The buggy was also badly demolished.

DARE-DEVILS AT FALLS HAVE NARROW ESCAPES

Leach Was Taken Out of His Barrel After Craft Had Been Whirled About Three Hours in the Water---Wire Walker Had to be Helped to Shore.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., June 29.—Lincoln Beachy, the fearless aviator, who on Tuesday afternoon performed a feat hitherto declared impossible, when he flew over the Horseshoe Falls and under the upper steel arch bridge, narrowly escaped death in his second flight over the Niagara River, yesterday.

Bobby Leach, who shot the whirlpool rapids in a barrel, was almost suffocated before he was taken from the whirlpool.

Yesterday, which marks the closing of Niagara's great international carnival, was hard on all three star performers, whose exhibitions were witnessed by three hundred thousand people, the great Houdin being marooned for half an hour on the wire on which he slid across the gorge. Leach is in a serious condition at his home here, but Beachy and Houdin are none the worse for their experiences.

When Leach entered the whirlpool rapids in his steel barrel, he was caught by a giant wave, and hurled twenty feet into the air. With a splash that could be heard above the angry roar of the rushing water, the staunch red-painted barrel re-entered the rapids and was carried on to the whirlpool, buffeted from wave to wave, and severely shaking up the man slung on a canvas hammock within its dark interior.

The barrel was caught by the outer current when it entered the whirlpool, and carried around the mighty maelstrom for over three hours before it was brought ashore.

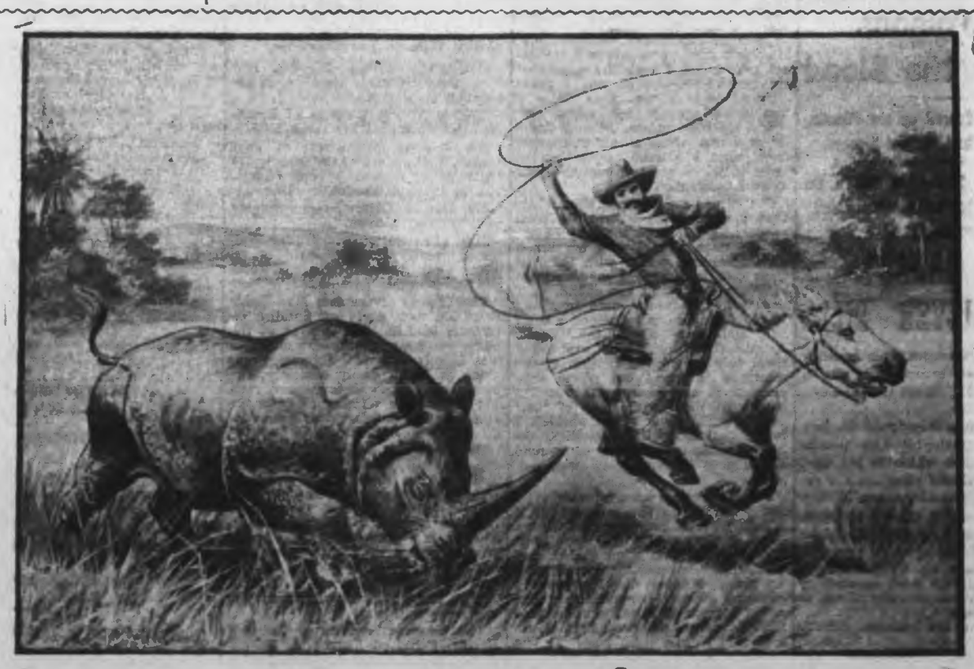
Exhausted, Leach was dragged through the small opening through which he had entered, apparently carefree, earlier in the day. Those who took him from the barrel thought that Leach was dead, but he soon revived and was carried up the steep river bank and hurried to his home on the Canadian side.

Leach's barrel was tossed on and many times in the very centre of the whirlpool. Despairing of ever again seeing the man alive, hundreds of those watching the barrel bob about on its merry-go-round like course, left the scene.

After the barrel had been held in the middle of the whirlpool for more than two hours by the mighty grip of the swirling water it suddenly shot out towards the outer edge of the pool. Several times it circled around within twenty or thirty feet of the shore before the expert swimmers, feverishly awaiting a chance to bring its human freight ashore, could grasp it.

The great Houdin, who really is Oscar Williams, Toronto, steeplejack, was within a hundred feet of the American shore on the wire on which he slid from Canada, when he was marooned. The wire was too slack to allow him to reach shore. There he stayed until hauled ashore by ropes. When Houdin made similar trips during last year's carnival, he was marooned in the middle of the wire for forty-five minutes. He was to have made the slide yesterday, hanging suspended from the wire by his teeth, with his wife suspended from his body on a trapeze, but the woman failed to make the trip, because of the dangerous footing at the landing stage.

A great grotesque and industrial parade, over five miles long, took place yesterday afternoon. The carnival closed last night with a reproduction of the burning of the steamer Caroline, which was destroyed by the British in 1837. A sixty-foot steamer was sent over the Horseshoe Falls ablaze.



When the English residents of East Africa heard that the Buffalo Jones Exploration party was coming to Africa to lasso lions and other wild animals, such as rhinoceri, they laughed with glee, but when the American cowboys returned from the interior with a full-grown lioness they piped another tune. Chief of these cowboys, with this expedition, was Ambrose Means, a devil-may-care sort of chap, who is absolutely fearless to any and all danger. It was he who cast the first rope that caught the first lion ever lassoed. When the Young Buffalo Wild West exhibits in Peterborough, Saturday, July 8th, AMBROSE MEANS will appear in the arena, and will give wild demonstrations of how the wild animals of the African veldt were captured alive. Means was the big feature of the sportsman's show, held in Madison Square Garden, New York, last winter. Annie Oakley, the peerless wing and rifle shot, is the bright particular star of the Young Buffalo Wild West Show. Other artists, who have achieved international fame, and whose names appear upon the programmes of this aggregation, are Capt. Bogardus, the undefeated champion marksman of the world; Curtis Liston, and Capt. Stewart, remarkable sharpshooters; Buffalo Vernon, the man who leaps from the back of a rapidly-moving horse to the head of a steer, and throws the beast by a quick turn of the steer's horns; Montana Jack, the world's greatest lariat thrower; Capt. Hardin and his company of Boy Scouts, said to be the finest drilled body of young men in the world. There are over 700 men and women with this show, which is claimed to be the largest of its character in the world. A big street parade will be given at 10.00 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition, at which time the Indians, Russian Cossacks, Mexican rurales, Northwestern Canadian Mounted Police, U. S. Cavalry men, and other representatives of the world's most daring men and women will be seen. Col. Stewart's 20-ox team is a feature of the street demonstration. Afternoon and evening performances.

Cocaine Merchant Fined.

Montreal, June 29.—A heavy sentence was yesterday passed upon Jos. Hudon by Recorder Weir. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $120 or six months on two charges of having and selling cocaine without a license.

Hudon was arrested Tuesday night by Constable Repper in a house on Charlotte Lane, where he sold some of the drug to one of the constables who was on watch for him. Constable Repper said that he was considered one of the worst traffickers in the drug that he had as yet captured.

As he had six packages of the stuff in his possession, which he tried to hide from the policeman, he was judged guilty, and sentenced under the new law, which provides a heavy fine for the offence.

Arrangements Not Complete.

Chatham, June 29.—In reference to the proposed flour mill merger reported from Guelph, in which the Canada Flour Mills and the T. H. Taylor Mills of this city were mentioned N. H. Stevens, of the former company has issued the statement that while negotiations are under way to form the amalgamation, nothing definite has been decided as yet. It is expected that the deal will be finally put through in a week or ten days. W. H. Taylor, of the Taylor Flour Mills Co., states that his firm are in no way connected with the merger, and will continue on as an independent milling company.

Noran Gets Three Years.

Toronto, June 29.—James Noran, who came hither from Montreal and at once began a systematic cleaning of rooming-houses by a series of clever sneak thefts, was sent to the penitentiary for three years from the Police Court yesterday. He was a steward on an Atlantic liner and missed his boat. It was then that he came to Toronto and embarked upon a record run in crime.

Opposition for Hydro.

Kingston, June 29.—Engineers for the Seymour Co. have been securing an estimate of the amount of power used by manufacturing firms in this city, so as to compete with the offer of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Kryptok Lenses

The Only Perfect 2-Vision Lenses

Kryptok Lenses embody two pieces of glass, of different refraction, combined with intense heat into one, and ground into a lens having two distinct focal points.

There is no cement—no clouding of vision—no edges to catch dust or to become cracked and jarred in cleaning. Kryptok lenses last indefinitely, barring accidental breakage. A passed lens may separate at any time and become useless.

Read through the lower part of Kryptoks (near vision)

Look through the upper part of Kryptoks (far vision)

Kryptok lenses are absolutely smooth on BOTH sides.

Try the Cannibe Test—If the reading wafer of your glasses separates from the lens when subjected to gentle heat, your glasses are not Kryptoks. The Optical fits genuine Kryptoks.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

Compare the old-time country grocery store with the modern provision house and it may help you to understand why our lean, sinewy fore-fathers have given place to the sallow, fat parodies of to-day. A comparison might also help to explain something of the high cost of living. My grandfather kept such a store and I've seen some of his old accounts. About all he had to sell in the way of food was flour, rice, potatoes, sugar and molasses, butter, cheese and eggs. These articles weren't put up in packages and they weren't advertised. They were sold in bulk and all you paid for was the raw material. The catalogue of a modern provision house makes a book. The whole object of the change, it seems to me, is to fill the demand for variety. You have to pay for that. But when you trim your ship to run before a gale you must throw overboard just such freight. Once you do, you'll find it will have to blow harder than it does even to-day to sink you. I am constantly surprised at how few of the things we think we need we actually do need.

The pioneer of to-day doesn't need any more than the pioneer of a hundred years ago. To me this talk that a return to the customs of our ancestors involves a lowering of the standard of living is all nonsense; it means nothing but a simplifying of the standard of living. If that's a return to barbarism then I'm glad to be a barbarian, and I'll say there never were three happier barbarians than Ruth, the boy, and myself.

CHAPTER XV.

The Gang.

If I'd been making five dollars a day at this time, I wouldn't have moved from the tenement. In the first place, as far as physical comfort went, I was never better off. We had all the room we needed. During the winter we had used the living room as a kitchen and dining room just as our forefathers did. We economized fuel in this way and Ruth kept the rooms spotless. We had no fires in our bedrooms and did not want any. We all of us slept with our windows wide open. If we had ten more rooms we wouldn't have known what to do with them. When we had a visitor we received him in the kitchen. Some of our neighbours took boarders and also slept in the kitchen. I don't know as I should want to do that, but at the same time many a family lives in a one-room hut in the forest after this fashion. By outsiders it's looked upon as rather romantic. It isn't considered a great hardship by the settlers themselves. Then we had the advantage of our roof and with summer coming on we looked forward to the garden and the joy of the warm starry nights. We had some wonderful winter pictures, too, from that same roof. It was worth going up there to see the house tops after a heavy snow storm.

If I had wanted to move I could have done only one of two things: either gone back into the suburbs, or taken a more expensive flat up town. I certainly had had enough of the former and as for the latter I could see no comparison. If anything this flat business was worse than the suburbs. I would be surrounded by an ordinary group of people who had all the airs of the latter with none of their good points. I'd be hedged in by conventions with which I was now even in less sympathy than before. I wouldn't have exchanged my present freedom of movement and independence of action for even the best suite in the most expensive apartment house in the city. Not for a hundred dollars a week. Advantages? What were they? Would a higher grade of wall paper, a more expensive set of furniture and steam heat compensate me for the loss of the solid comfort I found here by the side of my little iron stove? Was an electric elevator a fair swap for my roof? Were the gilt, the tinsel, and the soft carpets worth the privilege I enjoyed here of dressing as I pleased, eating what I pleased, doing what I pleased? Was their apartment-house friendship, however polished, worth the simple genuine fellowship I enjoyed among my present neighbours? What could such a life offer me for my soul's or my body's good that I didn't have here? I couldn't see how in a single respect I could better my present conditions except with the complete independence that might come with a fortune and a country estate. Any middle ground, assuming that I could afford it, meant nothing but the undertaking again of all the old burdens I had just shaken off.

Ruth, the boy and myself now knew genuinely more people than we had ever before known in our lives. And most of them were worth knowing. We were all pulling together down here—some harder than others to be sure, but all with a distinct ambition that was dependent for success upon nothing but our own efforts.

I was in touch with more opportunities than I had ever dreamed existed. All three of us were enjoying more advantages than we had ever dreamed would be ours. My Italian was improving from day to day. I could handle mortar easily and naturally and point a joint as well as my instructor. I could build a true square pier of any size from one brick to twenty. I could make a square or pigeon-hole corner or lay out a brick footing. And I was proud of my accomplishment.

But more interesting to me than anything else was the opportunity I now had as a foreman to test the value of the knowledge of my former fellow workmen which I had been slowly acquiring. I was anxious to see if my ideas were pure theory, or whether they were practical. They had proven practical at any rate in securing my own advance. This had come about through no such pull as Rafferty's. It was the result of nothing but my intelligent and conscientious work in the ditch and among the men. And this, in turn, was made possible by the application of the knowledge I picked up and used as I had the chance. It was only because I had shown my employers that I was more valuable as a foreman than a common labourer that I was not still digging. I had been able to do this because having learned from twenty different men how to handle a crowbar for instance, I had from time to time been able to direct the men with whom I was working, as at the start I myself had been directed by Anton. 'Anton' was still digging, because that was all he knew. I had learned other things. I had learned how to handle Anton.'

I had no idea that my efforts were being watched. I don't know now how I was picked out. Except, of course, that it must have been because of the work I did.

At any rate I found myself at the head of twenty men—all Italians, all strangers and among them three or four just off the steamer. My first job was on a foundation for an apartment house. Of course my part in it was the very humble one of seeing that the men kept at work digging. The work had all been staked out, and the architect's agent was there to give all incidental instructions. He was a young graduate of a technical school and I took the opportunity this offered—for he was a good-natured boy—to use what little I had learned in my night school and study his blue prints. At odd times he explained them to me and aside from what I learned myself from them it helped me to direct the men more intelligently.

But it was on the men themselves that I centred my efforts. As soon as possible I learned them by name. At the noon hour I took my lunch with them and talked with them in their own language. I made a note of where they lived and found, as I expected, that many were from my ward. Incidentally I dropped a word here and there about the "Young American Political Club," and asked them to come around to some of the meetings. I found out where they came from and wherever I could, I associated them with some of their fellows with whom I had worked. I found out about their families. In brief I made myself know every man of them as intimately as was possible.

I don't suppose for a minute that I could have done this successfully if I hadn't really been genuinely interested in them. If I had gone at it like a professional hand shaker they would have detected the hypocrisy in no time. Neither did I attempt a chummy attitude nor a fatherly attitude. I made it clearly understood that I was an American first of all, and that I was their boss. It was perfectly easy to do this, and at the same time to treat them like men and like units. I tried to make them feel that instead of being merely a dozen of Dagoes they were Italian workingmen. Your foreign labourer is quick to appreciate such a distinction and quick to respond to it. With the American-born you have to draw a sharper line and hold a steadier rein. I figured out that when you find a member of the second or third generation still digging, you've found a man with something wrong about him.

The next thing I did was to learn what each man could do best. Of course I could make only broad classifications. Still there were men better at lifting than others; men better with the crowbar; men better at shovelling; men naturally industrious who would leaven a group of three or four lazy ones. As well as I could I sorted them out in this way.

In addition to taking this personal interest in them individually, I based my relations with them collectively on a principle of strict, homely justice. I found there was no quality of such universal appeal as this one of justice. Whether dealing with Italians, Russians, Portuguese, Poles Irish or Irish-Americans you could always get below their national peculiarities if you reached this common denominator. However browbeaten, however slavish, they had been in their former lives this spark seemed always alive. However cocky or anarchistic they might feel in their new freedom you could pull them up with a sharp turn by an appeal to their sense of justice. And by justice I mean nothing but what ex-president Roosevelt has now made familiar by the phrase 'a square deal.' Justice in the abstract might not appeal to them, but they knew when they were treating you fairly and when they were not. I never allowed a man to feel bullied or abused: I never gave a sharp order without an explanation. I never discharged a man without making him feel guilty in his heart, no matter how much he protested with his lips. And I never discharged him without making the other men clearly see his guilt. When a man went, he left no sympathizers behind him.

On the other hand I made them act justly towards their employer, and towards me. I taught them that justice must be on both sides. I tried to make them understand that their part was not to see how little work they could do for their money and that mine was not to see how much they could do, but that it was up to both of us to turn out a full day's work. They were not a chain gang but workmen selling their labour. Just as they expected the storekeepers to sell them fair measure and full weight, so I expected them to sell a full day and honest effort.

It wasn't always possible to secure a result, but when it wasn't I got rid of that man on the first occasion. It was very much easier to handle in this way the freedom-loving foreigners than I looked for; with the American-born it was harder than I expected.

On the whole, however, I was mighty well pleased. I certainly got a lot of work out of them without in any way pushing them. They didn't sweat for me and I didn't want them to—but they kept steadily at their work from morning until night. Then too, I didn't hesitate to do a little work myself now and then. If at any point another man seemed to be needed to help over a difficulty I jumped in. I not only often saved the useless efforts of three or four men in this way but I convinced them that I too, had my employers' interest at heart. My object wasn't simply to earn my day's pay, it was to finish the job we were on in the shortest possible time. It makes a big difference whether a man feels he is working by the day or by the job. I tried to make them feel that we were all working by the job.

Without boasting I think I can say that we cut down the contractor's estimate by at least a full day. I know they had to do some hustling to get the pile-drivers to the spot on time.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 35 pounds in weight."

TO Get Poisons From the Blood

You Have to Depend on the Filtering Process of the Liver and Kidneys.

These Organs Alone Can Purify the Blood, and They Do Their Work Well When Helped by

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

No medical treatment can possibly purify the blood except as it sets in healthy working order the kidneys, liver and bowels.

To these organs is assigned the duty of filtering from the blood the poisonous waste matter which is left over when the nutritious elements are extracted from the food you eat. If they are not overcrowded or slow and sluggish in action they keep the blood pure and healthy.

For this reason Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills are the most satisfactory treatment you can possibly obtain to purify the blood.

Their effects are prompt, definite and certain. The liver action is quickened, the kidneys are invigorated, the regular movement of the bowels is assured. It is only a matter of a few hours until you begin to feel the benefit of this great medicine. Further use, as often as is necessary to keep these organs active, will cleanse and purify the blood and enable the digestive system to properly do its work.

Backache, headache and bodily pains will disappear, and the fatigue which is an accompaniment of poisons in the system will give way to new vigour and energy. One pill a dose 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE KING'S PRISONER

A Short Story.

The Cardinal's pen moved quietly and steadily down the sheet of foolscap that lay before him, until the page was almost covered with close handwriting. At length he paused, read carefully what he had written, and then with a satisfied smile, added the words, "The End."

"At last it is finished," he cried, with a note of pleasure in his voice. "At last. Well, if I do not go down to posterity as a Minister of France, I may at least be remembered as a man of letters. I am sorry it is finished, for it constituted the occupation of my leisure moments, filled up the few gaps in a life of routine, and fixed itself in my mind as my great work. Yes, I shall certainly miss it, certainly miss it."

So saying, Richelieu rose from his chair and strode two or three times up and down the room, little thinking how soon the world would discard his great tragedy "Mirame" as a very ordinary literary effort, remembering only the space he occupied in the history of Europe.

Carefully the Cardinal bound together the scattered leaves of his precious manuscript, and when he had locked them safely away, he drew towards him a pile of letters and papers that lay on his desk awaiting his inspection.

Rapidly, yet carefully, he read through his correspondence, making a note here or an alteration there, until only one despatch remained. This he opened, and read and re-read with the closest attention. It ran as follows:

At the Castle of Vincennes,
This twentieth day of March in the year of our Lord, 1627.

Your Eminence,—

I have a prisoner under my charge, who has most grievously importuned me to communicate to you his earnest desire of seeing you in person. He is known by no name, and has been a prisoner for nearly thirty years. The prison books record that he was incarcerated by order of the late Duke de Sully on the charge of lese majeste. He has, I fear, only a few days to live, and I should not have intruded this notice of him on your Eminence had it not been for his extreme importunity. If he has any matter to communicate, I know not, but knowing your desire for information on all points, I deemed it wise to write to you. I have the honour to be Your Eminence's Most Humble Servant, Gaston Rochemoret,

Governor of Vincennes.

For some time Richelieu sat motionless, lost in thought, with the letter spread out before him. Then he rose and going to a chest that stood in a corner, drew from it a leather-bound book, clasped, and cornered with silver, and locked. Unfastening this he rapidly turned over several pages as if searching for some reference. Not finding what he sought he shut the box and said,

"Strange, Sully does not name this prisoner in his private memoirs, and as a rule, he mentions everything, however trivial. Bah, he must have been some unimportant person who was speedily forgotten, or Sully would surely have made a note of him. Probably his long imprisonment has turned his brain, and his head is filled with the wild chimeras of madness. Yet Rochemoret is a man of sense, not easily deceived by a prisoner's ravings. Perhaps the case was too important for Sully to mention even in so sacred and private a volume as this. I wonder if the poor devil happened to chance on some scheme of Sully's that the worthy man desired to remain private. It may be so, it may be so. There are secret prisoners of State, even in these enlightened days. If it could only be— Well, well, who knows, who knows?"

Again the Cardinal paced the room, lost in meditation, until he paused before a large plan of the siege operations before La Rochelle, that hung on the wall.

"Oh," he murmured aloud, "if only the Treasury were better filled how soon would I humble this proud, rebellious and heretic city! To think that I should be brought to a standstill even for a moment by a handful of Huguenots. It is humiliating, and all for the lack of a few bags of coin. I have no private hoard to offer to the King. Sully had. It was known that he had amassed much, and yet the secret of his treasure house died with him. I would that I could light upon it. If this poor wretch of a prisoner could have found it! He might have done. Well, I will go to Vincennes to-morrow. 'Tis but the merest chance, but chance often directs us aright."

Although it was already late, many hours elapsed ere the Cardinal retired to rest, for he had much work to do. Not only was his time fully occupied in fighting the open foes of France, but he had to guard against her most dangerous enemies, those who lived within her own borders, who showed themselves loldly at Court, and were secretly and quietly endeavoring to undermine his power over the weak and vascillating Louis XIII.

Richelieu at this moment was almost at the zenith of his power. He ruled France with a rod of iron, curbing the nobles, and forcing foreign countries to pay a greater deference to France than they had shown for many years. His advice and alliance were craved by all, and there were not a few amongst those who surrounded the King, who envied his high position and aspired to fill it. Foremost amongst these was the Bishop of Clancy, a man who had risen into favor with the King, more by reason of his courtly manners and insinuating address than by any high qualities of brain or statesmanship. He pandered to the King's vices, flattered his vanity, and propounded schemes which he artfully allowed the King to imagine were the fruits of his own brain.

Such was the man who was Richelieu's chief and most formidable foe at the present time, and it behoved the Cardinal to watch carefully every move on the part of the shallow-minded but unscrupulous bishop.

This deviation from the thread of the story is necessary in view of subsequent events.

Somewhat earlier than usual on the following day the Cardinal held his usual levee, and then attended by a single officer set out for the famous fortress of Vincennes. Once a Royal residence this historic building was now used solely as a State prison, but it was still considered a Royal Castle, and was held for the King by a Governor appointed by the Monarch.

Richelieu arrived at the Castle about two o'clock, and after a slight repast requested M. Rochemoret to conduct him to the prisoner's cell.

"From the tone of your despatch, M. Rochemoret," observed the Cardinal, "I gather that the prisoner is not sane."

"He certainly mutters a great deal to himself and cries out incessantly for the Minister, but as a rule his conduct is perfectly sane; nay, even gentle and most courteous to all."

"You do not know his name?"

"He has never been known by aught but his prison number, 63. His name is not even entered in the prison books."

"Poor wretch, poor wretch—to lose one's personality so much as to be merely known as 63! And the alleged reason for his confinement?"

"The charge sheet simply says, 'A prisoner to be confined for life for lese majeste,' and is signed by the late Duke of Sully."

"For life! 'Tis a long sentence for so trivial an offence."

"Your Eminence is right, and I think that his term has nearly expired. But here is the door of his cell. Will you see him alone?"

"Certainly, since you say he is harmless. But leave a turnkey to light me when I have finished. These passages are very dark."

The massive oaken door, heavily clamped with iron, swung back, groaning on its rusty hinges, and Richelieu entered the cell. A lamp was placed on the table, and he was left alone with the prisoner.

Raising the lamp he was able to take in his surroundings. Massive stone walls met his view on every side, a barred window high up in the wall, and a grated fireplace, save the door, the only outlet. A rough woden table and stool stood in the centre of the cell. On a low pallet lying deep in the shadow lay a thin, emaciated figure, who gazed at the Cardinal with eyes unnaturally brightened with fever.

Richelieu put down the lamp, and drew up the stool to the side of the bed, the prisoner never relaxing his piercing gaze. Taking the poor fellow's hand in his, the Cardinal said in a kindly tone,

"The Governor tells me, monsieur, that you wished to see the Minister of France. Well, I am he."

"Are you in very truth the King's Minister?" gasped the prisoner in a weak, quavering voice.

"In very truth. I am Cardinal Richelieu."

"I never heard that name before," answered Number 63. "For God's sake, Monseigneur, don't deceive me. I know that I am dying, and what I have to say is of the greatest importance."

"There, there, my poor fellow, don't distress yourself. Before Heaven, I swear to you that I am the Minister of France."

"How can I tell if you are speaking the truth?"

"Why," said Richelieu, humouring him, "if you will not believe my word, perhaps you can recognize the King's signet," and he stretched out his hand.

The prisoner gazed eagerly at the ring, graven with the arms of France, and muttered,

"It is the Royal signet. I saw it long ago. The Duke of Sully wore one like it."

"The Duke of Sully?"

"Yes, yes, but that was long ago, long before I came to this horrible place, and lost the taste of the fresh air and the beautiful green earth. Give me some wine, I feel very weak."

Richelieu poured out some wine from a bottle that stood on the table, and held it to the prisoner's lips. When he had drunk the poor fellow said,

"Now, listen to me. Who I am and what I am I never knew. I was brought up as a page by the Duke of Sully, but who my parents were I never learnt. Thirty years ago I was sent here a mere lad, and was told that I was to remain here till death released me. The end is in sight, and I shall welcome death as he is seldom welcomed!"

"Do you know why you were sent here?"

"No. They tell me it was for lese majeste, whatever that may be, but I committed no crime, injured no one. Perhaps it was my birth that rendered me dangerous. But it cannot have been that, for I was too poor, too obscure to stand in anybody's way. Give me some more wine."

Richelieu handed him the mug, and as he moved the light fell on to the prisoner's face. He muttered an exclamation of astonishment, and gazed intently on the worn features before him.

"One day," continued Number 63, "I discovered a secret hiding-place filled with papers. It was by accident that I did this, and thinking that they might be of importance I reported my find to the Duke of Sully. He turned very pale, asked me if I had read any of them, cautioned me against saying a word about the matter to anyone, and harshly ordered me out of his presence. A few days later, and I became the inmate of this cell."

"Poor fellow, poor fellow," replied Richelieu, pressing his hand. "I see it all now. Those papers must have been State secrets belonging to the Duke of Sully, and to prevent further knowledge of your discovery he consigned you to this living tomb."

"That is what I have often thought. But I was perfectly innocent. I meant no harm. But I have often wondered if the Duke knew who my parents were. Sir, it's very hard never to have known a father or a mother. I wonder who they were."

"I wonder too," said the Cardinal, "Perhaps we shall soon know." A violent fit of coughing shook the prisoner's attenuated frame. Richelieu gave him some more wine, and for a moment he revived.

"Where was this secret hiding-place," said he, "that you so happily lighted upon?"

"Go," gasped the dying man, when you return to Paris to the Rue des Temps Perdus, Number 22, a corner house. On the ground floor there is a large room. There you will find a carved oak mantel, supported by two eagles. Oh, I am choking, hold me up—I can't breathe. Air—air—for heaven's sake, air—Oh—h—h."

For a moment Richelieu thought all was over, but presently the prisoner's eyes opened, and he whispered.

"Press—the left—eye—of—of the right—eagle. Now I have told you all. Oh everything is dark—dark. No," he cried with sudden vehemence, and sitting up on his pallet he stretched out his arms; "no, I see a light, far, far away. Ah, at last I—am—free!"

For one instant he remained thus, his eyes shining with ecstacy, and then he fell heavily back on his pillow. Bending over him the Cardinal crossed himself and murmured,

"He is no longer Number 63. He is free for ever."

Carefully he composed the dead man's limbs, and examined his features with the utmost scrutiny, and stronger and stronger grew the conviction that he had seen them somewhere else. Certain he was that this face so cold and still recalled some other face to his memory, but whose that other face was he could not remember.

Leaving orders with M. Rochemoret that the body was to be undisturbed until orders were received, the Cardinal mounted his horse, and still puzzling over the baffling resemblance set out on his return to Paris. As he rode through the leafy Bois de Vincennes he took little heed of the natural beauties that surrounded him, for he was probing to the inmost recesses of his capacious brain to discover whom it was that the nameless prisoner reminded him of.

"I am sure," he murmured to himself, "that I have seen that face before, or if not it, then its counterpart. It haunts me, and revives a memory of many years ago. Still, unless the poor wretch was delirious, which I don't think he was, I shall satisfy my curiosity to-night, that is if no one has discovered the hiding-place before me. I wonder if it has aught to do with Sully's treasure? I wish it had for then—"

"Stop there!"

The Cardinal, thus interrupted in his meditations, looked up and saw before him three mounted men, armed and masked. So quietly had they sprung out on him in a secluded part of the wood that they appeared to have risen from the ground. The officer, riding some distance in the rear, judging that discretion was the better part of valour against odds like this, had already galloped off, so that Richelieu was alone.

"What would ye with me?" he asked.

"Simply your Eminence's company," rejoined the one who had already spoken, and who appeared to be their leader. "Favour us with your presence for a brief while. No, no violence, it would be useless. Relieve His Eminence of the inconvenience of his pistols and rapier. There, that is much better. Now, Monseigneur, be pleased to follow us to our master. He will communicate his wishes to you, but rest assured that for the present you are in perfect safety."

Richelieu had no will but to obey, and the centre of this small group he rode off down a bye-way in the forest. After a short distance had been traversed in this fashion they came to a small forester's lodge, and dismounting he was conducted within. He sat down before a table on which was spread ink, pens, and paper.

"Again I ask you, sirs, what ye would with me, and what this outrageous conduct means? Ye shall repent this bitterly."

"Softly, your Eminence, softly. All your questions will be answered to your complete satisfaction."

The Cardinal eyed them carelessly, leant back in his chair and then unfastened two or three buttons of his riding cassock as though he were hot. Glancing round he saw that he had his back to the wall, with the door on his left, and the window on his right, while the table stood between him and his three captors. After waiting a moment he said,

"Tell your master, then, that I am here, and be quick. I am not in the habit of waiting."

"Your Eminence shall wait no longer," replied a smooth voice, and turning his head Richelieu saw that a fourth man had entered, habited and masked like the rest. A smile flitted for a moment across the Cardinal's impassive face as he heard the voice, and then he said coldly,

"Your business with me, sir?"

"I will be prompt with it. All I ask is your signature to a somewhat important document. I regret that business between us should have to be conducted in this somewhat peculiar manner, but it was rendered imperative by your extreme caution. I could hardly ask you to sign this paper, at least not without risk, in your private cabinet at the Palais, Cardinal, could I?"

"You wish me to sign a paper?"

"That is all," answered the stranger, handing him a parchment closely covered with writing. Riche-

BACK WEAK AND TENDER.

George Gould, of 227 Dalhousie Street, Toronto, Ont., says: — "My back was weak and tender and if I would sit for any length of time a heavy, dull pain would catch me across the small of it and in the region of the kidneys, leaving me unable to draw a breath for many seconds. The urine plainly told of the disordered state of the kidneys, as it was highly coloured and scalding. The kidney secretions were frequent and irregular. Nothing benefitted me until I procured Booth's Kidney Pills and commenced treatment. In less than a week I began to improve. The kidney secretions gradually became normal. Had Severe Pains In His Back.

Could Hardly Work.

Mr. Alfred E. Davis, Gorrie, Ont. writes:—"For some years I suffered from severe pains in my back and could hardly work at all, and when I stooped down to pick up anything felt as if my back must break. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking two boxes I was entirely cured, and feel that I cannot speak too highly in their favor.

"This was nearly four years ago and I still remain cured."

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

Price 50c per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

THE KING'S PRISONER

lieu rapidly scanned the paper, and then with a light laugh tore it to shreds.

"Really, sir, you do my intellect no credit in asking me to sign that. Why, it is preposterous."

"Not at all. Consider the situation for a moment, and your common sense will, I am sure, persuade you that it is your only course."

"And I reply that I utterly refuse to do such a thing."

"Then I regret to say that we must use our only alternative, force."

"You have already done so."

"Look out of that window, your Eminence. This is not the time in which to choose words nicely. You see there two men digging. They are digging a grave, and unless within three hours' time you choose to sign that paper that nameless grave will contain the body of the late Cardinal Richelieu. You see that you are entirely in my power. You are strong, but circumstance is stronger still. You hesitate? Oh, come, I always took you for a man of decision. Why refuse?"

"You are in error, sir. I never hesitate. Why do I refuse? Because the King made me his Minister and until His Majesty relieves me of my post, I refuse to lay it down at the bidding of anycommon highway robber."

"Dear, dear, this is very foolish conduct for a man of your ability. Think now for a moment. Once you are dead and in that grave you will have vanished utterly. Do not count your life and freedom so small a boon that you fling them away so recklessly?"

"I count my honour and the King's command at a higher price."

"Well, well, I see that nothing will shake you. This conduct, my Lord Cardinal, is not diplomacy, it is foolish obstinacy. I fear that I must leave you to yourself for the three hours. You cannot escape for the house is well guarded inside and out. Stop, I have a thought. Tell me where the treasure of the Duke of Sully is hidden and—"

"Ah," returned Richelieu calmly, "I thought so. Robbers and conspirators both, eh? Character will always show itself. Anyhow I will answer your question."

"Ah, then where is the treasure?"

"I do not know."

"This is trifling with me. Did that prisoner tell you nothing?"

"You are cleverer than I thought. May I ask how you learnt that I visited a prisoner to-day at Vincennes?"

"Oh," replied the stranger hastily, "we have our system of espionage as well as you. Your household is not insensible to bribery. Before you utter your thoughts aloud take care that there is no one behind the arras. But this is your last chance. Will you reveal the secret to me?"

"I tell you I only know as much about it as you."

"Bah, you are incorrigible. Either you are acting or you think that I am playing a part in one of your own plays. Do you take all this for a jest? That grave—"

"Might very well be filled with your own body, M. l'Eveque de Clancy," replied Richelieu coolly, and the masked man suddenly became aware that he was looking down the barrel of a small pocket pistol that the Cardinal had withdrawn from beneath his cassock. "No," he added sharply, "don't any of you dare to stir a finger or this bullet is lodged in his Lordship's brain."

There was a deep pause, broken only by the deep breathing of the outwitted Bishop. Death stared at him from out of that unwinking eye of polished steel, and his spirit sank within him."

"What are you going to do," he muttered, "are you going to shoot me?"

"Perhaps," retorted Richlieu pleasantly, "only I don't like robbing M. de Paris of his fee. But I have something for you to do first, and I think that my argument will prove more irresistible than yours. But sit down at this table opposite me."

The Bishop stirred uneasily, but the pistol never wavered and he obeyed.

"Now take a pen and write what I dictate."

The Bishop glanced appealingly at his men, but they were too dumbfounded to do aught but gape at the Cardinal; besides, the pressure of the muzzle on his temple convinced him that serious business was intended, so he took up the pen.

"Now write as follows:

"I, Jacques Hujon, Bishop of Clancy, do hereby confess myself to be a rogue, a thief, and no true man. I am unworthy of my bishopric, and do resign it. I also promise to give within one month from now whatever sum the King may think fit to the poor of Clancy, and I will allow myself to be whipped from the King's presence if ever I present myself to His Majesty again."

It must not be imagined that this was written without protest from the bishop. The pistol barrel had to be pressed into his temple several times ere he wrote it out in full.

"Now sign and date it," said Richlieu, and the pistol was suddenly cocked. The pen hurriedly scrawled the signature and the date.

"So," said the Cardinal sitting, but still keeping the pistol at his bishop's head, "so you, poor fool, thought to intimidate me with your theatrical clap-trap? I still have a good course to complete, but your race I fear will soon be ended. I am sorry to keep you waiting but I expect my attendant back soon, and then probably—"

Here a bugle rang out, and a detachment of dragoons dashed from the forest, and surrounded the hut.

Sooner than I thought," said Richelieu.

"Thank Heaven your Eminence is safe," exclaimed the young officer who had been in attendance on him. "I met this troop of dragoons soon after I had left you, and we followed your tracks here."

"It might have ended differently," replied the Cardinal, with a glance at the half-dug grave. "Bind these men, and bring them to the Palais Cardinal. Guard them well for the King will wish to see them to-morrow."

Late that night the Cardinal pondered over the papers he had found at No. 22 Rue des Temps Perdus. They had been untouched, and as he read and re-read the furrows deepened on his brow, and his manner became sad and heavy."

"This is truly a day to be marked on the calendar of the Secret History of France," he murmured as he retired to rest. "I have indeed stumbled on a State secret. Thank heaven it has fallen into my hands and into mine alone."

It was early the next day when he demanded a private audience of Louis XIII. To him he retailed the account of his visit to Vincennes, his interview with the nameless prisoner, and his subsequent adventure with the Bishop of Clancy.

"But, Sire," continued the Cardinal when the King had expressed his amazement and indignation at the outrage, "a stranger thing yet remains to be told. After I had arrived in Paris last evening I went to the Rue des Temps Perdus, and found the secret hiding-place where the prisoner had described it. In it I found papers of such serious import to the State that I earnestly recommend your Majesty to burn them when you have read them."

"Are they as important as that?" asked Louis.

"You shall judge, Sire. You remember I told you how haunted I was by some resemblance in the prisoner's face, to a memory I could not recall. There are four papers here. First the confession of a woman. Let us take that first. The author of this paper was a nurse in the employ of Queen Margaret, your father's first wife. She confesses to having been induced by a heavy bribe from the Duke of Sully to kidnap a certain child, a male child. This she managed to do, and at the same time to steal the certificates of its birth. Why the affair was never heard of at the time I will explain later." This infant was reared at the expense of the Duke of Sully, who, when the lad grew older, employed him as a page in his own service. One day it seems that this lad stumbled on the secret hiding place wherein Sully kept the mystery of his boarded treasure. The lad disappeared at once. The second paper is a deed in the handwriting of Sully himself, the third is the birth certificate, and the fourth the key to the treasure that now reposes in your Majesty's coffers."

"Yes, but Sully's dead?"

"Relates at full length the reason for the abduction. But first, Sire, read the birth certificate."

The King took the paper, read it, and then let it flutter to the ground.

"Your Eminence," he gasped, "is this—it cannot be."

"I am afraid, Sire, it is too true. The certificate is in every way legal. Here is Sully's deed. In it he relates how after a serious quarrel, your father and his first wife parted, not meeting for many months. During that time a male child was borne by the Queen Margaret: this was your father's son. The King who was away in the country never heard of this, indeed Sully took care that he should not. In every way the birth was kept a secret. Now Sully, fearing the strain of Valois blood, abducted this child."

"But the Queen? Why did she not tell my father?"

"She feared his temper too much to disclose the fact that she had been the mother of his son, when she found that the child had been stolen."

Suffered for Years From Constipation and Sick Headache.

Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief. The most frequent of all are bilious or sick headaches, and are caused by some derangement of the stomach or bowels, or both.

Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the digestive and biliary organs, removes acidity of the stomach, improves digestion, regulates the constipated bowels, and promotes a perfect circulation of pure blood to all portions of the body.

Mrs. C. Meadows, Clarksburg, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with sick headache and dizziness, and was also constipated. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I only took three bottles of the medicine, and now feel like a new person as I am completely cured. I can truthfully testify that B.B.B. is the best medicine I have ever used."

Burdock Blood Bitters, has, during the last 35 years, built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for all troubles arising from a constipated condition of the bowels.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THERE are more things in Heaven and Earth, Horatio,
Than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

"Well, I don't believe there is anything in hypnotism or telepathy or any of those tomfool things. The whole kit and boodle of them are nothing but fakes, gotten up to please a public that's crazy to be faked."

With an air of having settled the whole matter, the speaker, a young newspaper man, sat back in his chair and eyed the rest of the group.

In the group, besides the young newspaper man, were the man-who-thinks, the writer-man, a professor of psychology and two or three women. They had been discussing the performances of a non-professional hynotist who was personally known to the professor.

At the delivery of the conversational bombshell noted above, the man-who-thinks started to speak, then bit it back, the writer-man lifted his eyebrows, and the professor inquired very mildly, "You have been studying into this matter? You have read something that convinced you?"

The disbeliver snorted at that.

"Well, hardly. Never had, time to waste reading that sort of stuff. But I've seen enough about these exposed fakes in the newspapers to convince me it's all nonsense. Take it from me, it's all faking, mighty cleverly done, maybe, but faking just the same."

"You are surely a hard and fast materialist, sir," admitted the professor, courteously—he is as noted for his courtesy as his learning—and turned the conversation into other channels.

All of which I have related for this reason. The first speaker is a type. A type of the ignorance that without having read or studied or investigated any of the phenomena connected with the psychic powers of man, feels qualified to announce boldly that he knows that all supposed manifestations of these powers are fakes, and all people interested in investigating them are fakers.

If you bring up the subject of hypnotism or clairvoyance or spirit communication in a group of people you will notice that it is always the ignorant one who speaks up promptly and says he does not believe in anything of that sort.

The men and women who are readers and thinkers and who have consequently read something on these subjects, though they may not be believers, do not feel qualified to express such sweeping unbelief.

Twenty-five years ago if anyone had told you that a man claimed to be able to send a message from a ship fifty miles out at sea to the land, you would probably have said, "He must have some accomplice on the land. It is a trick."

To-day—well, you know what I would say, so why take the space to say it?

Many manifestations of clairvoyance and hypnotism and telepathy are already being recognized and studied by sober, scientific men. Hypnotism is already an increasingly common medical agent. All the methods and forces of science are being employed to push farther into this unknown realm of man's psychic powers.

Who knows but that the black art of yesterday will be the commonplace of to-morrow and telepathy and clairvoyance may seem no more wonderful twenty-five years from now than the wireless telegraph and the moving pictures of to-day?

The next time you go to the library, suppose instead of bringing home an armful of novels, you get one good scientific book on some of these subjects.

If you do I think you will be repaid both in immediate interest and in subsequent breadth of view.

I don't promise you will be convinced of anything.

But I do think you will be ready to say: "This is a very wonderful world. There are many things in it that I do not fully understand."

Reciprocity Gets Angry Knocks in United States Senate—Adjournment Until Fall is Suggested

LITTLE INTEREST

Washington, June 29.—Yesterday was a day of bitter arraignment of the Canadian reciprocity bill in the Senate. Beginning with Senator Cummins' attack on the measure as legislation unjust to the agricultural interests of the country, and concluding with Senator Borah's denunciation of the bill as Republican betrayal of the farming interests, the debate was all antagonistic to the agreement and critical of the President and his methods.

The Senate gave but partial attention to the speeches, although they were among the most important that will be made against the bill. Several times a call of the Senate was demanded. Senator Nelson of Minnesota finally proposed that as so little attention was given to the subject the Senate take a recess until November or December.

Senator Cummins, who will continue his speech to-day, attacked not only the construction of the reciprocity agreement itself, which he said put the whole burden of free trade upon the farmer without giving him any benefits in the way of reduction of duty on manufactured products, but he criticized also the power exercised by the President to negotiate and to bring it to the point of a definite agreement between the two countries.

"I know that the day has come for the farmer," declared Senator Cummins, "the day in which he is to be excluded from the benefits of the protective tariff. The decree has been written; it needs only the official signature for the time to begin to exclude him from the company of the manufacturer of the United States."

Senator Borah's criticism was placed on the record of the Republican party as the advocate of protection for the farmer. He quoted at length from Republican platforms, campaign documents, campaign arguments and definitions of policy to show that the abolishment of the protection on farm products was a reversal of all Republican policy.

Senator Borah said both political parties were now striving for the vote of the cities and the support of the press.

"The administration now in control," said Senator Borah, "came into power on a pledge to protect the American market for the American farmer. The time was when the farmer was not disputed within this chamber, that such legislation as this was destructive of his prosperity. Then every Republican in the Senate was his attorney. Now, because he calls in a New York attorney to present his case before the finance committee, he is accused of being the friend and companion of the trusts and big interests."

Mother Couldn't Pay.

Boston, June 29.—Thirteen-year-old Jimmie Conway of South Boston will accept no more invitations to play ball in the street on a Sunday. Twenty-three hours in Charles street jail has taught him the enormity of his offence against the laws of this sovereign state. When Jimmie and two other boys were arrested on Tuesday, the parents of his comrades were able to pay the fines imposed for Sunday ballplaying, but Jimmie's widowed mother could not furnish the $200 bail ordered to hold the boy for the next session of the juvenile court on Saturday, and he had to go to jail. Friends bailed him out yesterday afternoon.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 28.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the offerings of live stock this morning were 700 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 900 calves. Owing to the increased supplies of cattle, the extreme heat and the somewhat limited demand from butchers, an easier feeling prevailed in the market and prices only ruled ¼c per pound lower than on Monday, and even at this reduction the trade thruout the day was slow. Consequently some stock was left over. Choice steers sold at 6¼c; good, at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good, at 5¾c to 5¾c; fair, at 5c to 5¼c, and common, at 4½c to 4¾c per lb. Cows brought from 4c to 5¼c, and bulls, from 4½c to 5½c per pound.

There was a good demand for small meats and as the supplies of such were larger than they have been of late, a more active trade was done. The tone of the market for lambs was weaker and prices declined with sales at $4 to $5, as to size. Sheep were steady at $4 to $5.50 each. A good trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $2 to $7 each.

There continues to be a very unsettled feeling in the market for hogs and prices in consequence are very irregular and at a wide range. The supply was considerably larger than on Monday, but at a reduction in prices the demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.50, and mixed lots at $8 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the offerings of live stock were 400 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 1375 hogs and 900 calves.

The condition of the market for cattle, sheep, lambs and calves was much the same as the above one and the prices realized showed little change except for hogs, which ruled much higher, as sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 to $7.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Crushed to Death.

Montreal, June 29.—Crossing St. Lawrence street to buy something to eat for his dinner, Francois Xavier Menard, a cabman for over thirty years, was crushed to death under a street car at Milton street crossing yesterday. He lived at the corner of Cadieux and St. Emily streets, Villeray Ward. He leaves a wife and six children. He was 66 years of age.

Menard was well-known to Montreal citizens, and when Sir John Macdonald would visit Montreal he always called for him, and he drove that statesman in many progressions.

Another Forward Step In The Growth Of The Local Churches

CORNER STONE OF THE NEW MURRAY ST. BAPTIST CHURCH WELL AND TRULY LAID

Important Ceremony Performed This Afternoon by Rev. Dr. John Clifford, of London, Eng., in the Presence of a Big Gathering---History of the Congregation Was Read by Mr. Vincent Eastwood---Dr. W. D. Scott Reads Address of Welcome to Dr. Clifford.

MANY DISTINGUISHED VISITORS ARE HERE

When Dr. John Clifford of London, Eng., this afternoon pronounced the corner stone of the new Murray St. Baptist Church well and truly laid, another step was made in the rapid advance in church affairs that has characterized Peterborough in the past few years. Within a very short time no less than six new churches have been completed, the corner stone of the seventh was laid to-day, and the eighth, the new Charlotte Street Methodist Church, now in course of construction, will be before long. The last couple of years has seen the erection of the Sacred Heart Church, St. James' Methodist Church, the new Park Street Baptist Church, a new edifice for Knox Church congregation, the new All Saints' Church and the Free Methodist Church on Aylmer street. Such a growth, among the churches, is gratifying indeed, and reflects most favourably upon the spirit of the community.

To-day's ceremony was a most successful event. Favoured by delightful weather, bright and sunshiny, yet with a fresh breeze to temper the ardent rays of the summer sun, no better conditions could have been hoped for. A very large gathering showed their interest in the career of the Murray St. Church by attending. The event was featured by the presence of Dr. Clifford, the eminent English Non-Conformist minister, and of a party of distinguished Baptists from Toronto, who accompanied Dr. Clifford to Peterborough, for the occasion. On the platform were the clergy of the city, and many other prominent local citizens and visitors.

The service was opened with Scripture reading by Rev. Thos. Trotter, D.D., a former pastor of the Murray Street Baptist Church, followed by prayer, by Rev. Dr. Thomas of Toronto.

Historical Sketch.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood then read the following interesting historical sketch of the Church:

The earliest reference available in connection with the founding of what is now termed the Murray Street Baptist Church, is contained in a document, promising to supply material towards the construction of a place of worship, and is dated Jan. 8th, 1843, and was for the amount of £3. It would therefore appear, according to this, that there had been for some years, a small community of Baptists resident in the Town of Peterborough, and that about the time referred to, concerted action had been taken to provide a suitable place of worship. Towards the end of that year sufficient funds and material had been secured, and on Jan. 2nd, 1845, arrangements were definitely completed for the erection of a building during the ensuing year. The specification was drawn up, a copy of which is hereto attached, and in due course contracts were awarded. As a matter of interest, the following is a partial list of the different trades: Mogg & Curran, brickmakers; P. Kingsey, bricklaying; John Heard, plastering; John Taylor, carpentering, and the Rev. John Gilmour, in person, painted the building. The Rev. John Gilmour was the donor of the site, and as described in the original deed, from him to the first trustees, as "part of town lot No. 7, North of Simcoe street, and west of George street, in the said Town of Peterborough, and commencing at the north west corner of said Lot No. 7, then running south along Aylmer street, 55 feet, then running north along the said limit 55 feet to the north east corner of the said Lot, then west to the place of beginning, together with all and singular the chapel, outhouses, buildings, etc.

The first trustees were John Walker Gilmour, chemist; John Walton, farmer; James Edwards, merchant; Thomas Graham, farmer; Duncan McDonald, blacksmith; and the nominal consideration was 5s., although in the subscription list the valuation was placed at £50.

The building contract named Aug. 31st, 1846, as the date on which the building should be completed. The records show that this building was duly opened for service on the second Sunday of December, 1846. The total cost amounted to £358-1-1, of which at this time there remained a debt of £130-8-11½, and, as a matter of interest, it was some twelve years before this liability was finally disposed of. In May, 1847, Rev. John Edwards and Mrs. Edwards, who were the pioneers of the cause in this district, took leave of Peterborough to take up the work in the Ottawa Valley.

The next event of importance is dated Sept., 1855. At this time the church, by vote, declared for strict or close communion. This vote, not being unanimous, resulted in the withdrawal of Rev. John Gilmour and a number of others in January, 1856. These brethren proceeded to organize what they termed "The Regular Baptist Church." In this connection we find that in July, 1856, these brethren applied for a new deed of the property from Rev. John Gilmour on the claim that the original deed as given by Mr. Gilmour had never been registered, and would appear, according to the law at that time, to be therefore lapsed. The Trustees did not agree to this action and this then led up to an action at law. This action was afterwards abandoned and the regular or open communionists then decided to build for themselves another chapel, and which was accordingly erected on Lot 7, south of Dublin street, and west of George street, and which was formally opened for worship Oct. 5th, 1862, by Revs. Gillett and Gilmour, the latter being the pastor of the church. On May 8th, 1865, that section of the former church body, who had continued to worship as close or strict communionists, in the original building, decided to waive their objections, and accordingly, we find a reunion. As a matter of further interest the chapel erected in 1860, now forms part of the dwelling house known as street number 588 Aylmer street. Rev. John Gilmour continued to be pastor of the re-united church until November 26, 1867. Rev. Thomas Stock then became pastor, owing to the increasing years of Mr. Gilmour. In May, 1869, Mr. Gilmour passed to his reward full of years of great service and usefulness, and mourned by all classes and creeds of the entire community. The successive pastorates up to the time when the Aylmer Street building was sold and the present church building on Murray street, purchased from the Bible Christians, were occupied by Thomas Dyall, J. Nulhern, E. Stobo and A. H. Munro. This change took place in 1885. Since that time the successive pastors have been Rev. A. H. Munro, P. C. Parker, A. T. Dykeman, Jonathan Bastow, J. Freeman Scott and John R. Webb. This brings our record up to the present time, viz., June 29, 1911.

In connection with this short historical sketch there is attached a list of the church officers for the current year, also the building Committee, in connection with the edifice under construction. Copies of the Daily Examiner, Daily Evening Review, Morning Times, Canadian Baptist, and one of each of the following current coins:—1c, 5c, 10c 25c and 50c, are deposited in this box.

The First Specifications.

The following are the specifications of the Chapel to be built in Peterborough during the summer of 1845, for the Baptist denomination:

Length of building outside, 42 ft.

Breadth of building, outside, 34 ft.

The foundation to be built of stone and nine, twenty inches thick, three feet high, with apertures on each side opposite each other, a stone wall is also to run lengthwise, in the centre for supporting the sleepers for the floors.

The walls to be built of brick one and one half bricks thick, fourteen feet and a half high and the gables are to be built of brick also of the same thickness. The openings for windows and doors in the walls are to be made according to the plan.

The person building to find all the materials save the brick. The west and the south side of the building to be laid with the Flemish Bond, the remaining side and end with the English Bond.

The whole of the building to be constructed in a workmanlike manner by the last day of August.

Address of Welcome.

Dr. W. D. Scott then read the following address of welcome to Rev. Dr. Clifford and at the appropriate moment Miss Robina Hardwicke presented him with the handsomely engraved and embossed silver trowel to be used in the ceremony.

The Rev. John Clifford, M.A., B.Sc., LL.D., D.D.

Dear Mr. Clifford,—The Baptists of Peterborough greet you and bid you a hearty welcome. We are doubly conscious of our obligation to you in that you are giving us one day of your precious time, while making

Seamen's Strike Causes an Advance of 25 Per Cent. in Food Prices —Rioting Reported

FACTORIES SHUT DOWN

Special Wire to the Examiner.

LONDON, JUNE 29.—England is today facing its most serious crisis of recent years, owing to the seaman's strike. Food prices have already advanced 25 per cent. and rioting is reported from a dozen cities. Coastwise and foreign traffic is paralyzed with the exception of the channel steamers. Vessels coming into port are compelled to drop anchor as no experienced men are available to aid them entering the berths. The crews of the light ships at the mouth of the Mersey have joined the strikers. If not replaced before night this will mean terrible danger to incoming vessels. The factories in a dozen cities shut down to-day because of lack of raw materials. A small increase granted by the shipping federation without recognition of the Union, was rejected by the strikers.

Ice cream and other refreshments were served and a most pleasant time was enjoyed. The 57th Regimental band was in attendance and rendered music of a very pleasing and entertaining nature, which tended to brighten the proceedings. Men From Lindsay Sold Counterfeits---Met In Swamp

Attention of Dominion Officers Again Directed to the Town Where Several Convictions Were Obtained a Few Years Ago.

(Toronto Globe.)

The green goods men who met David Watson of Orillia by appointment in a swamp and sold him packages of bogus bank notes may yet find their way behind the bars.

Watson, who passed through Toronto on his way to Kingston, told the police here as well as Detective Parkinson of the Dominion Police, Ottawa, that he believed the men he dealt with belonged to Lindsay.

Detective Parkinson has been making inquiries around Lindsay, and has discovered some of the bad bills. Some were passed in Toronto last spring and more in Buffalo, where the gang who "shoved the queer" appeared to have agents.

The Buffalo police are also co-operating in the search for the plant of the counterfeiters.

More than once police officers have been taken to Lindsay to investigate the making and circulation of counterfeit money.

A number of convictions were secured there a few years ago by Detective Parkinson and J. E. Rogers, now Superintendent of the Provincial Police.

QUEBEC NOT BEHIND.

In our superior, if not supercilious assumption of morality, we of Ontario—some of us—are apt to regard the people of Quebec as less temperate than we are in this province. Poets and romancers have sung and written of the wine-loving spirit of the French people and we are apt to associate inordinate wine-bibbing with our French Canadian cousins. We are apt to think that their views and practices, in this respect, are less orthodox than ours. Some support of this idea may be regarded as found in the strong, hostile pronouncement of Quebec at the time of the Dominion prohibition plebiscite. But that was not hostility to real personal temperance in the use of drinks. It was more a protest against the doctrine of repression and the abnegation of moral free-will, that prohibition implied. In regard to temperance principles and practices, our Quebec brethren are not very far behind us in Ontario. The church, whose influence is regarded by many as undue, has taken a decided stand against the terrible immorality of intemperance, and with sensible results. The Quebec government has issued a return giving, by districts, counties and municipalities, the exact condition of the province in relation to the liquor traffic. This shows that there are in all 991 separate municipalities, in only 320 of which are liquor licenses granted, leaving 671 under prohibition. In 339 municipalities licenses are excluded by local option by-laws; and there are 332 others in which such by-laws have not been adopted, but in which nevertheless no licenses are issued.

WEED OUT THE WEEDS.

Do our civic authorities and Chief of Police know that the statutes against noxious weeds are being broken every hour of the day, as our weeds are breaking the record in vigour of growth and universal prevalence Do they know, or do they ignore the fact, that in our streets and in vacant lots weeds are enjoying a riotous growth, rampant enough to justify the mayor in reading the riot act? The law in relation to dealing with noxious weeds is as plain as the weeds on our streets, and the duty of the civic authorities is equally plain. In some of our streets there are sturdy burdocks growing fully five feet in height, and in other streets the starry blue bloom of the pestilent chickory is in malignant evidence. In other streets there is a veritable swamp of growth of grass, intermingled with weeds. We have never "tackled" the weed problem with the energy, that is the experience of a half-back in a football game. A man is sent out, armed with a scythe, which he does not know how to use, and he leisurely proceeds to worry off the tops of a few prominent weeds, and they are left to die and turn brown and give a farm-yard look to our handsomest streets. Thoroughness is the secret of dealing with weeds. Cutting off the tops of burdocks is only a kindness to the affected weed, a sort of pruning that puts it on its mettle and makes it grow more strongly. Here's one sure way of killing weeds, especially burdocks: Take an ordinary pick, get a blacksmith to flatten the point to about two inches wide; arm a man of judgment with this pick, have him bend the burdock trunk towards him and hold it firmly down with his foot. Then let him with his pick, cut clean through the root underground about two inches below the crown—the point where the leaves spring—and the burdock is dead forever. We need some unpleasant attention given the weeds. They are shamefully prevalent, an eyesore and a nuisance.

POLITICS IN QUEBEC.

(Brantford Expositor.)

Bourassa & Co., who are co-operating with Mr. Borden in an attempt at destroying the Laurier Government, have recently been campaigning in Quebec, representing Sir Wilfrid as an Imperialist and the enemy of his race. Hon. Rr. Lemieux has been replying to these gentlemen, and in one of his speeches is reported as saying:

"Mr. Bourassa has accused me of being a traitor to my country, has taunted me with being an official diplomat for Canada and has generally reviled me. But anything I possess has been hardly won. I am not of lordly origin, like him, nor was I cradled in the lap of a duchess. My mother was a poor schoolmistress and my father of humble origin. But talent is not the exclusive possession of the son or grandson of seigneurs. I can endure his laugh, which is the laugh of a fool of disappointed ambition."

Referring to the Nationalist cry for autonomy for the province of Quebec, Mr. Lemieux said:

We are no longer the subjects of France. Years have passed since the French first set foot upon this soil. Royalty has passed away from France and a republic has now been established. There is an abyss between France and Quebec to-day. We belong to England to-day. And although it is a Protestant King who will be crowned this week, yet he respects our religion. The flag which will float on the banks of the St. Lawrence this week down to the Gaspe is the flag which protects our church, our faith and our religious institutions. We have remained faithful to our religion and our convictions, but we respect the flag which shelters and protects us, and we will not have it insulted by the exploiters of prejudice.

A strange alliance surely is that between those who seek to destroy the Laurier Government because it will not link arms with Imperialistic faddists, and those who would destroy it because, as they say, it is sacrificing Canadian autonomy on the altar of Imperialism. There is a happy medium between the attitudes represented by these two extremes; it is one which is endorsed by the British government of to-day and by all the self-governing colonies, including Canada. It is the policy of which Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been the chief exponent, and which has brought to Imperialism the only real quality which it possesses.

MR. BOURASSA APPLAUDS MR. BORDEN.

(London Advertiser)

"The most significant lesson of Mr. Borden's oratorical campaign," writes Mr. Bourassa in Le Devoir, "is his discreet reserve on the problem of imperial defence and imperialism in general. Did some friend remind him that in that very town of Winnipeg his predecessor, Sir Charles Tupper, stigmatized with his proverbial vigour the want of insight, and of patriotism of those Canadians who 'slander' their country in pretending that Canada has not done her whole duty and more than her duty to the mother country? I do not know. But at any rate, we are far from the patriotic tirades of 1909 and 1910. Not a word of German peril, of a present of Dreadnoughts, or of twenty millions! Not the least criticism of the 'separatist tendencies' of the navy law!"

Evidently Mr. Bourassa is highly pleased at the sudden recovery of Mr. Borden from Imperialistic fever, and German ague. The western air, which the Winnipeg Telegram hoped would do wonders for Mr. Borden's economic education, has proved just the thing to dispel those Imperialist delirimma which gave his anti-Laurier ally in Quebec such concern. Bourassa is now well pleased with Borden. He welcomes him, perhaps a little doubtfully and wistfully, yet, as almost a recruit to the Nationalist or anti-imperialist cause. He sees him at least convalescing from "the falsity of the imperialist legend," and coming into the light.

That Mr. Borden should now not be testifying to the faith, even under the Roblin-Rogers shadow, shows indeed how weakly and insincerely he ever held the Dreadnought doctrine. The opposition to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's naval plan was the hollowest kind of conspiracy. It was nothing but a catch-vote programme, drawn up mainly by the Roblin-Rogers cabal. And now under Roblin's nose, with Montreal and Toronto tuft-hunters whooping behind, Mr. Borden simply forgets the articles to which he swore. While the navy is made the big issue by Nationalist orators in Quebec, Mr. Borden has not a word to say on imperial defence to the people of the West. At the same time he attacks the reciprocity pact as anti-imperial. But Mr. Bourassa, noting all this, contrasts the frankness and courage of Mr. Borden with the evasiveness of Sir Wilfrid Laurier!

Another Invasion Of Privileges Sacred To The Landed Gentry

(Ottawa Free Press)

The conflict of the House of Commons of England with that of the House of Lords has brought forth many strange contrasts, but not one more out of the common than that of the Earl of Midlothan os Lord Rosebery. He had a following that was second to none, and every utterance was looked on by that large section of the Liberal party who are known as the moderates as a vox dei. Then to everybody's surprise, Lord Rosebury chose to plough a "lone furrow," and until quite recently he was satisfied with that occupation, combined with that of horse racing, and writing the lives of other people, which he did so brilliantly that many of his works will stand as standards for future generations.

But it appears, now, as if Lord Rosebery were tired of "ploughing the lone furrow," and is prepared to hitch his plough to the horses of the Lords, which are being driven by Lord Lansdowne. There was a time, and it is not so very long since, when Lord Rosebery, or the Earl of Midlothian, as one pleases, stood in the vanguard, as a champion of English liberty, aye, and of the freedom of oppressed people abroad. He has been at the head of the Liberal party, as Premier, and he has pledged himself, time after time, to carry out reforms that would be for the benefit of the people, and for the welfare of the nation. He has stood in the fore-front of those who were working for the government of the people, by the people, for the people, and yet at the present time he seems desirous only of the benefit of the few. It appears apparent that there is more than one "last phase" to be written, for there is that of Lord Rosebery.

His latest is an hysterical outbreak in a letter to the London Times, that museum of grievances, and city of refuge for rich out-of-works. He has taken alarm, like many another peer, who has so much money that he cannot afford a subscription to a cricket club because the taxation of the wealthy men is so great that they do not know how to live, through the new finance bill. In his letter he says that under this measure a valuer may enter any house and inspect it at his will for the purpose of a land valuation. And he asks if the readers of the Times knew that, for he adds "I did not, but so it is."

For a man in the position of Lord Rosebery, the promoter of financial legislation, this is crass ignorance. He must have known that the laws allow of the entry into a man's house for many purposes. For example an inspector may enter an Englishman's castle to inspect the drains, to see if the electric wiring or the gas pipes are in conformity with the law, to enquire as to infectious cases, if the vaccination regulations have been carried out, to assess premises for the purpose of taxation, and, further, and more important than all these, a man is compelled, if required, to submit all his business books to the inspection of the Income Tax Commissioners, if there is any suspicion that he has made a false return.

All these demands are only to see that the requirements of the law have been carried out, and so long as a man keeps to the law he need have no fear for the safety of his "castle." Many a man welcomes these inspections. In the case of the sanitary laws they are a safeguard to health, and they often force a recalcitrant landlord to "come up to the scratch". The Englishman enjoys all the natural and constitutional rights that have been wrung from reluctant peers, and so long as he keeps within the limits of the law he need have no fear but that his rights will be respected, and that he will not be disturbed in them.

Lord Roseberry, as one of the leaders of the House of Lords, should have been the last man in the world to have made such an outbreak as this. At the present time there is scarcely a man-jack amongst them possessed of wealth, who is not making every effort to evade the law of the death duties, and to cheat the people of that which, according to the law, is rightfully theirs. In this case there is no question of "I did not know." And if there were, ignorance is no excuse in the eye of the law, as many a poor man, without a thousandth part of the intellect, or intelligence, or knowledge of a Lord Roseberry, has found out to his cost, from the mouth of a magistrate.

All this is simply another instance of the conflict that arises when private interests clash with the public weal. It is easier for a rich man to drive a coach and four through an act of parliament than it is for an aged man to get an old age pension.

Mr. R. R. Hall Makes An Explanation In Regard To Fatality At Nassau

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—In an interview which I gave to you on the 19th inst., respecting the late George Wagner, who was unfortunately electrocuted while working on the line of the Otonabee Power Company at Nassau, I find that I made a statement which cast reflections upon Mr. George Newberry who is in charge of the Power House at Dam No. 5 for the Company, which is not borne out by the facts, nor by the evidence before the Coroner's inquest.

In the interview I stated as follows:

"While Mr. Peter Kerr was in the "telephone booth, Newberry undertook to start the generator, thinking that there would not be enough "current to do any injury to any "person who might be working on "the line. In addition, he supposed "that the men would be at their "lunch, it being between the hours "of twelve and one o'clock. Mr. "Newberry unfortunately miscalculated the volume of water and the "consequent current which came "from the generator."

Upon reading the evidence taken before the Coroner's inquest and upon making a personal examination of the works and hearing the statements of Messrs. Peter Kerr, superintendent of the works, George Newberry and others employed at the works I am satisfied that Mr. George Newberry was not in the Power House, nor was he in any way responsible for the turning on of the power which in any way contributed to the electrocution of the unfortunate man. It appears that before Mr. Newberry came into the power house at all that the generator was set in motion in order to test whether or not the crown wheels which were being repaired properly meshed in the pinion wheel. Mr. Peter Kerr is quite satisfied that the switch was out when the generator was started up and consequently no power would be transmitted over the line. The only theory, Mr. Peter Kerr says, that can be advanced for the transmission of the power is that the oil in the oil switch must in some manner have been carbonized and thereby came in contact with the power line and transmitted current over it. This theory seems to be borne out by the fact that the electric current which did come over the line was unsteady and seemed to come in undulating waves.

Previous to my interview, I had not discussed the matter with Mr. Newberry and I very much regret that any injustice was done to him.

Yours, etc.,
R. R. HALL.

EXAMINER'S DAILY LETTER ON THE STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 29.—London shows higher prices this morning, presumably covering of short commitments, because of the more favourable crop news. In fact, the factors making for fluctuations in the market are generally bullish, though the indifference of the public which usually prefers to buy at the top, rather than when prices are low, keeps trading within narrow bounds. Aside from the likelihood of good harvests, the improvement in the Iron and Steel industry should cause a more optimistic feeling, the recent reduction in prices stimulating business, the export inquiry being also large. The bureau of corporations makes its report on the U. S. S. Co soon, which should clear up the talk of action by the Government on the combine. Wall Street would welcome the adjournment of Congress, but the insurgents seem disposed to prolong the agony by speech making, in an effort to kill reciprocity, which seems certain to be put through. Hot weather may slacken the ardour of the tariff reformers for legislation at this session. Money is easy and will probably continue so for some time to come.

We would buy the better class stocks on reactions. The board of estimate passes on the subway question to-day.

New York, N.Y., June 29th, 1911.—According to the best channels of information the reactionary tendencies in the stock market are due more to manipulation and profit taking supplemented by a raid by shorts to get back stocks sold than to anything else. The active rails may at any time become oversold and recover. The fundamental conditions are strongly improving and we feel that the best policy is to buy on the recessions the good rails.

New York, N.Y., June 29.—London consols are off 79 5-8 for money and account.

Bank of England rate unchanged. Crop advices uniformly favourable, with rain reported throughout the west and northwest.

Liverpool, 1.30 p.m.—Wheat 1-8 higher, corn 1-8 higher.

LAWN SOCIAL

A very pleasant time was spent last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greene, 202 Perry St., where a lawn social was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. James' church. There were about 100 people present despite the coolness of the evening, and a programme of exceptional merit was rendered, and greatly appreciated. Rev. J. G. Brown, of St. James' church, presided during the programme. The following was the programme:

Piano solo—Miss Ruby Carr.
Duet—Misses Alberta and Mabel Rehill.
Duet, Messrs. Huycke and Pollard.
Piano solo—Miss Aileen Braund.
Duet—Misses Carr and Rheill.
Trombone solo—Mr. J. M. Greene.

Refreshments were served at the close of the programme, and the social side in general, was cultivated, and a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Greene and the people who assisted. The affair was a very successful one, and despite the coolness of the evening, a most pleasant time was enjoyed.

ST. JAMES' TEAM WON FROM COLDSPRINGS.

On Monday night Coldsprings entertained St. James at Brinton's field in what proved to be a very interesting game, but St. James were in first-class form and had very little trouble in adding another victory to their already fine record, thus gaining the Church League championship and cup.

Both sides put in a strong team, and at the kick-off the field was well filled with spectators, the lady supporters of St. James' team being very much in evidence.

The game had only been in progress a few minutes when Gash was winded, but he did not have to leave the field. Shortly afterwards Turner had a fine opening, but put the ball over the bar. Both sides were playing well and Coldsprings had hard lines in not scoring in the first half. D. Gribb was laid out for a few minutes, but was soon all right again. Gash and Hotston both took a shot at goal and Coldsprings were very lucky in clearing. Half time arrived with no score.

On resuming St. James at once got down to business and Turner was seen to advantage. Taking a pass from Hotston, he worked his way through the backs and gave the goal-keeper no chance, thus giving St James the lead. A few minutes later Turner and Gash again got through and Turner added a second goal for the Saints. Coldsprings tried hard to retrieve the situation, but found St. James' defence too strong for them. Sandiford who was playing left full-back in place of Phil Braun was especially worthy of notice. A few minutes before time the referee saw fit to order Coldsprings' centre forward off the field for fouling, etc., and as he refused to go, the referee declared the game ended.

OWEN MORAN MEETS WOLGAST NEXT WEEK

The question of chief interest now before students of Queensberry science is whether that strong-jawed British bulldog, Owen Moran, can vanquish the sharp-fanged Michigan Wildcat, Ad Wolgast, says the New York Press. The answer to the problem will be given on July 4 when these great lightweights meet in a boat limited to twenty rounds at Coffroth's open air arena in Colma, Cal.

Judging from the caliber and achievement of the men the contest should prove to be remarkable in all respects. The light weight championship of the world, a title that was brought to America by Kid Lavigne and descended in regular order to Wolgast, is at stake, and if Moran should win he will be in the peculiar position of holding the world's championship, but not the light weight title of his native country. The spectacle of two Englishmen, Moran and Wells, fighting for the world's title would then be thrown on the Queensberry screen.

However, if Wolgast can prevent it, Moran will never hold a championship unless he beats his compatriot Wells for the English title.

In reviewing the relative merits of Moran and Wolgast the question of personal conduct must be taken into consideration. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Briton has been going a fast pace, while Wolgast has led the simple life. In the matter of age Wolgast has the advantage by four years, and at 23 is at the height of his physical powers. The thorough manner in which he disposed of Frankie Burns, a formidable lightweight of the coast, shows that Wolgast is at his best. The champion's two ten-round bout with K. O. Brown should be thrown out of the record, for at that time the champion's broken arm had not completely knit and he was very careful of it.

Both Wolgast and Moran have beaten Nelson, the present champion winning 10 rounds in February, 1910, while Moran stopped the Battler in eleven rounds ten months later. Nelson after his terrific battle with Wolgast knew a swift retrogression and was a difficult proposition when he faced Moran.

In the matter of weight and physical measurements, Wolgast and Moran are well matched, but in speed and combativeness the champion has the advantage. Moran is the better boxer, but has not stopped any men of class in recent years. To Moran the bout with Wolgast is the battle of his life-time. He has prepared carefully for the bout, but there is room for doubt that he retains all his former vigour. However, in the opinion of the writer, Wolgast, in his present form could beat Moran, in the best condition of his career.

There has been a disposition in some quarters to regard Wolgast as overrated. This has been due to the fact that the champion has not knocked out inferior men like Murphy and Brown in short bouts. Wolgast is essentially a distance man and there is not a lightweight in the world who can oppose defeat at the champion's hands in a 45-round bout.

Twenty rounds may be too short a journey in which to dispose of Moran, but the chances are it will suffice.

COMPLIMENT FOR MR. CULVERWELL

The Bowmanville Statesman has the following compliment for Mr. Culverwell: Our energetic friend, Mr. J. A. Culverwell, C.E., the laird of Glenridge, Port Hope, is now enjoying home life, after the successful completion of his public affairs. He is now superintending landscape and building improvements to his new home on American Colony Hill. He has recently purchased the Fort Orton property, making together with the present consolidated three properties, some five acres of parkland, glen and ridge, overlooking Lake Ontario and Cobourg and the hills in the distance, possibly the hills surrounding Campbellford on the Trent River. Mr. Culverwell is a benefactor to his town and his fellow-citizens highly appreciate his love for the beautiful, as shown in the great improvements he is making.

Aldermen Sustained.

Montreal, June 29.—The case instituted by Henri Larin against the aldermanic members of the civic finance committee, who paid for Mayor Payette's trip to Paris in what was alleged to be an illegal manner, was decided yesterday by the judicial committee of the Privy Council, judgment being given in favor of the aldermen, with costs to the plaintiff.

Aldermen Lapointe, Lavalle and Robinsen are the three in the council who had taken action against them. The case went through four Canadian courts, the Superior Court the Court of Appeal, the Court of Review, and finally the Supreme Court of Canada, where the aldermen were condemned. Now the Privy Council has reversed the decision of the highest Canadian tribunal.

Socialism a Heresy.

Chicago, June 29.—Socialism was condemned as a heresy and an evil, and all Catholics were warned against it by Archbishop G. Messmer of Milwaukee, who was one of the central figures in yesterday's proceedings of the Catholic Educational Congress in session here.

"Socialism is a heresy and an evil, the viciousness of which is apparent to every thinking man," said the archbishop. "The immorality which Socialism breeds and the dangers which it leads to can be averted only by the influence of religion and religious teaching."

Won't Do It Again.

Kingston, June 29—Because her mother objected to her keeping company with a boy friend, a fourteen-year-old girl drank a mixture of laudanum and carbolic acid, but was caught as she had taken one sip from the bottle. Her mouth was badly burned. She is not anxious to try it again. She belongs to a prominent family.

DEPRIVED OF DIPLOMA.

Kingston Paper Protests Against Injustice to Cadet.

Kingston, June 29.—An interesting fact is disclosed through an editorial in The Daily Standard of this city.

A graduate of the Royal Military College was deprived of his diploma and commission on the very last day of his college term, and this after his name had been announced among the graduates and as having won a commission. The Standard takes the occasion without mentioning the cadet's name, to make a plea on his behalf, claiming that the punishment does not fit the crime, and declaring that it is "Puritanical Justice," if justice at all, that deprives a graduate of his diploma and commission after three years of hard work, merely because of a personal lapse of this kind, committed, as The Standard points out, "not when on duty, or in the performance of duty, but on a purely social occasion." It, therefore, suggests that this is a case where Government clemency might well be exercised and expresses the hope that the Ottawa authorities will take the matter up and "not punish for a lifetime," a youth "who has sinned no more than many another good man."

The graduate in question comes of a good family, has been a good student, and popular with the professors.

New French Cabinet.

Paris, June 29.—The new French Cabinet is definitely constituted, and Joseph Caillaux, the Premier, who succeeds M. Monis, presented his colleagues to President Faillieres, who signed the nomination decrees. The Cabinet is composed as follows:

M. Caillaux, Premier and Minister of the Interior; Jean Cruppi, justice; Justin G. DeSelves, foreign affairs; L. L. Klotz, finance; Adolphe Messmy, war; Theophile Delcasse, marine; Jules Steeg, public instruction; M. Augagneur, public works; M. Couyba, commerce; Jules Pams, agriculture; M. Lebrun, colonies; Rene Renoult, labor.

Under Secretaries: Interior, M. Taivy; finance, M. Besnard; fine arts, M. Dujardin-Beaumetz; posts, M. Chaumet.

She Used an Axe.

Ottawa, June 29.—According to Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday, Mrs. A. Paquette was quite justified in using the axe on her husband last week to defend herself, but he did not believe in using an axe unless in extreme cases.

The magistrate let the accused go on suspended sentence. He warned her that an axe was a formidable weapon to use except in cases of extreme emergency. The bench, however, considered that the prisoner was goaded to use the axe and had done so without intent to kill.

Paquette, arranged on a charge of drunkenness, was also released, in view of his punishment with the axe.

Gave Employes a Social.

Chatham, June 29.—The Canadian Wolverine Co., Ltd., gave a complimentary social for their employes on the factory grounds in Chatham North on Tuesday evening. Speeches were given by a number of the influential men of the city, and a large crowd was in attendance. The company intend to give a series of these socials during the summer months.

Ladies' Grand Lodge.

Winnipeg, June 29.—The Grand Ladies' Orange Association of British North America is holding its 18th annual convention here yesterday with Grand Mistress M. Cullum of Toronto, presiding. Routine business was conducted yesterday morning and afternoon. Degrees will be conferred to-night on visiting delegates.

After License Reduction.

Kingston, June 29.—Citizens League are at work endeavoring to secure any other reduction in the number of liquor licenses. Petitions are being sent out to ratepayers, asking them to sign for further reduction. The league succeeded in having three licenses cut off two years ago.

Citizens Should Help.

Ottawa, June 29.—Sir Alan Aylesworth addressed the Chief Constables Association meeting yesterday afternoon. He thought the ordinary citizen should take more part in the police work than he does. Now he merely gets a policeman to lay the information and do all the hard work. It was not right that the police should chase after every petty little complaint that the people made. Let them lay the information themselves, and then help to prosecute. All right minded people should be on the side of the law and order, and ready at all times to help and not refuse as is often the case.

Bequest For Sanitarium.

Toronto, June 29.—The trustees of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives have received from the executors of the estate of the late William McTaggart, formerly secretary-treasurer of the Gordon Mackay Co., Ltd., the sum of $1,000 as a bequest to the funds of the above-named institution.

King Entertains Hon. Mr. Duff.

Toronto June 29—Hon. James Duff Minister of Agriculture, was entertained yesterday by King George at the Royal Agricultural Show, Norwich England. The Minister sails for home July 14. Sir James Whitney is expected home the previous week.

Injured In Auto Collision.

Montreal, June 29.—F. W. Thompson, managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., was injured in a collision yesterday afternoon between his motor car and a Seave Hall street corner car at the corner of St. Catherine and Bishop streets.

Examination at the hospital showed bad cuts about the head. There was, however, no other injury, and he is reported as doing nicely.

A Long Mile.

The German mile is more than four times as long as the English.

Queer Indian Tribe.

There is an Indian tribe in Bolivia which shuns the whites and lives as in the stone age, making tools and weapons of stone, wood or bone.

DEAD SEA WATER.

Its Density Is More Than Double That of the Red Sea.

The Dead sea contains 23 per cent of solid matter and is bulk for bulk heavier than the human body.

Many believe that it is impossible to swim in this sea, and even in Jerusalem ridiculous fables are told as to the impossibility of bathing there and that no animals or vegetation can exist near its shores.

So far as swimming is concerned, the excessive buoyancy of the water simply renders it difficult to make much headway, but a swim is both feasible and enjoyable. Care should be taken, however, not to let the water get into the eyes.

Indeed, did Palestine belong to any power but Turkey probably the northern shore of the Dead sea would be a popular bathing station. No doubt the chloride of magnesia which enters so largely into the composition of the water would be found to have medicinal and curative properties.

Perhaps a better idea of the density of the water of this inland sea may be realized from the following statistics: In a ton of water from the Caspian sea there are eleven pounds of salt; in the Baltic, eighteen pounds; in the Black sea, twenty-six pounds; in the Atlantic, thirty-one pounds; in the English channel, seventy-two pounds; in the Mediterranean, eighty-five pounds; in the Red sea, ninety-three pounds; in the Dead sea, 187 pounds.—World's Work.

JOHN BANISTER.

An English Violinist Who Won Fame in the Seventeenth Century.

Public concerts owe their direct encouragement to John Banister, who had won fame by his playing on the violin and who succeeded the celebrated Baltzar as leader of Charles II's band of twenty-four violins. Pepys, in an entry in his diary for February, 1667, tells us the court gossip of the day—"how the king's violin Banister is mad that the king hath a Frenchman come to be chief of some part of the king's musique."

Banister's concerts at the close of the year 1672 were advertised in the London Gazette as follows: "These are to give notice that at Mr. John Banister's house (now called the musick schoole), over against the George tavern in White Fryers, the present Monday will be musick performed by excellent masters, beginning precisely at 4 of the clock in the afternoon, and every afternoon for the future precisely at the same hour."

Four years later on we read again, "At the academy in Little Lincoln's Inn Fields will begin the first part of the parley of instruments, composed by Mr. John Banister." The admission was at this time as a rule a shilling, and these concerts seem to have been held pretty regularly down to within a short time of Banister's death, which took place in 1679.—London Graphic.

The Peanut.

The common peanut originally came probably from tropical America. Peanuts were introduced into the United States in the days of the colonies. Botanically the peanut belongs to the same group of plants as beans and peas, but the peanut matures its fruit or nut under the surface of the soil, not above ground, as do most other leguminous plants. Properly speaking, the peanut is a pea rather than a nut, the term "nut" having been added on account of its flavor, which is similar to that of many of the true nuts. The peanut is known under the local names of goober, goober pea, pindar, groundpea and groundnut.

A Surprised Poet.

Wife—What is the matter, dear? Haven't they published your poem? Poet—Oh, yes, that's all right, but they're actually selling the paper at a penny, as though there was nothing unusual in it.—London Tit-Bits.

Tickled With a Feather.

"I never knew any one who could be so tickled with a feather as my wife."

"Ticklish, is she?"

"Not usually, but this was an ostrich feather she bought at a bargain sale."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"GO INTO THE HOUSE OR I'LL BLOW OUT YOUR BRAINS"

Case of Family Quarrels in the Police Court This Morning ---Above Threat Made But Case Was Dismissed

Mrs. John Boulton, 282 Romaine street, appeared in the police court this morning, charged by Mrs. Thomas Killingbeck, 288 Romaine street, with threatening to blow the latter's brains out. According to evidence, Mrs. Boulton has for some time back been causing trouble on the street, by different offences. The annoyance to all the neighbours on the street in general, was caused by family fights going on at night between the Killingbeck and Boulton families. Mrs. Killingbeck admitted in court that she was jealous of her husband. She said that he paid attention to Mrs. Boulton, and that they went out together, and would come home all hours of the night. When Mrs. Killingbeck threatened to make the complaint to the police authorities, Killingbeck told her he would stand by Mrs. Boulton, no matter where they went. It may be stated that Thomas Killingbeck has been arraigned in the police court twice within the last few weeks, charged with raising a racket on the street, at his home, owing to his relations with Mrs. Boulton, and on each occasion he was fined $5.60. In her evidence, Mrs. Killingbeck stated that she saw Mrs. Boulton talking to her husband out in the back yard, and she put her head out of the window and said something to Mrs. Boulton, who immediately replied that if she did not go into the house, she would blow her (Mrs. Killingbeck's) brains out.

Several of the neighbours on the street testified to having heard this threat made, and all of them gave evidence to the effect that Mrs. Killingbeck had just cause for complaint, and some of them spoke of Mrs. Boulton in pretty strong terms. One witness stated that Mrs. Killingbeck had not been able to go out in her back yard for the last year without being insulted by Mrs. Boulton.

The magistrate asked Mrs. Killingbeck, if Mrs. Boulton had any firearms to carry out her threat, to which she replied that Mrs. Boulton had nothing she saw, but the broom stick. His Worship wondered if it was loaded, but Mrs. Killingbeck could not enlighten him on this question.

The authorities stated that over thirty people on the street offered to come and give evidence against Mrs. Boulton, but none of their evidence had much bearing on this charge, so they were not called. All the neighbours of the parties in this quarrel stated that quarrels are going on between the two families all night, so that it was impossible for them to sleep.

His Worship, Magistrate Dumble, dismissed the case on the grounds that there was no evidence to show that Mrs. Boulton had any intention of carrying out her threat.

BUGGY STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR

A very serious accident was narrowly avoided yesterday morning, when a street trolley struck a buggy on George street, in front of LeBrun's store. The occupant of the buggy was a young lady, who showed remarkable presence of mind during the incident. The car was going up George street, and it would appear that the girl tried to drive across in front of it, misjudging the distance. The motorman also, is deserving of thanks for his quick work in bringing the car to a stop. The car struck the buggy between the front and back wheels and tilted it right up on one side, but did not upset it or throw its occupant out. The horse plunged, but the plucky young lady held on to it until an onlooker caught it by the head.

THE CITY WATER COMMISSIONERS MET

The Water Commissioners met yesterday afternoon, with the following present: Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman, Mr. W. H. Moore and Mr. W. H. Hill.

A letter was read from H. W. Petrie, saying they would keep the selling of the old pumps in view.

A letter was read from A. R. Williams, asking for further particulars in regard to the old pumps.

An offer was read from Johnston Greer, to take the old pumps, and load them in cars.

The Secretary was instructed to write R. B. Martin, and ask him if he wished to tender on the removal of the old pump, water wheels and draft tube at Auburn and loading them on cars on the Hilliard siding.

A letter was read from the City Clerk authorizing the location of hydrants on Bonnicord street, one on Charlotte street, 500 feet east of Monaghan Road.

The Secretary was instructed to ask for authority to set two hydrants on Bonnicord street.

It was moved by W. H. Moore and seconded by W. H. Hill, that an account from the Wm. Hamilton Co. for $198, be paid on their contract, and that the balance will be paid when Nos. 1 and 2 pumps are in good working condition.

The Secretary was instructed to inform Mr. R. A. Morrow that a sewer connection is needed at the Superintendent's office, on Hunter street, and to ask him to have one put in.

POISONED BY EATING SALMON

(Lindsay Warder.)

LINDSAY, JUNE 29.— A case of poisoning, which might have resulted fatally, from the effects of eating canned salmon, occurred in town this week, Mr. Thos. Murtha's family being the victims. The salmon was eaten at tea time on Monday evening, and during the night the four children were taken violently ill, Mrs. Murtha seeming to escape the illness. Dr. Blanchard was summoned and found that they were suffering from poisoning due to the eating of canned salmon. After a few days of treatment the victims all recovered and feel no ill effects.

Annual Choir Trip Was Great Success

The annual choir trip of St. John's choir to Burleigh Falls per steamer Stoney Lake came off yesterday, when a company numbering about eighty embarked at 8 a.m. for a thoroughly happy day. Numerous cameras were aboard, and as the wardens, Messrs. Johnson and A. H. Stratton, with the Choir committee, Messrs. H. Morphet and R. J. Devey had made such complete arrangements for the comfort of the whole, one of the most enjoyable choir outings in recent years resulted.

Mine host at Burleigh Falls hotel put up a splendid dejeuner, after which a general dispersion took place until 3 p.m., when a good programme of races caused endless fun. The great event was the wardens' race, ending in a dead heat and a new record for the 100 yards dash was set up. It will be duly inscribed in the St. John's athletic archives, but will not be available for international purposes. Special prizes for the best catch of fish, boys only, were won by: First were the wardens, Mr. W. E. Conway. The largest catch fell to Walter Flower, although Mr. Edney secured the biggest fish. The size is a subject of dispute, varying from 3 feet long to 12 inches, and will be finally decided to-night by vote, after practice.

Coleman Bros. sent along a choice supper, which was served on the steamer at 5.30 p.m. and a happy day was ended about 8 p.m. by cheers for everybody who had contributed to such a glorious day.

Liberal contributors to the prizes were the wardens, Mr. W. E. Conway, Coleman Bros., Mr. R. Munro and Mr. F. Linton.

A GREAT SUCCESS

The excursion yesterday afternoon down the river to Idyl Wyld, Gore's Landing and Jubilee Point, conducted by Mr. F. E. Wilson of Springville, under the auspices of the Springville Old Boys, was a great success.

The steamer Geneva left the wharf at 8 o'clock, taking on passengers also at Whitfield's Landing. There were, in all about 200 on board.

Dinner was served at Idyl Wyld, and the boat was also stopped for a short time at Gore's Landing and at Jubilee Point for games and supper. A game of football was played between Ida and Springville which resulted in a draw, 2-2. There was a tug of war between the married and single men, which also resulted in a tie. The younger portion of the assembly indulged in races, etc.

Credit was due mainly to the boat hands and to Mr. Fred Wilson, to whose honour "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung before disembarkation.

CARS WERE DERAILED

A slight wreck occurred on the main line G.T.R. this morning about 3.30, when several cars attached to a fast freight coming from the west were derailed a short distance out of town.

No damage was done to the cars, and at 7 o'clock the line had been sufficiently cleared to permit of the No. 3 mail train and the No. 5 Chicago express from the east to pass through. The cause of the accident is unknown.

WILLIAM PINKERTON

London, June 28.—"Come right in." The voice was unmistakeably American. The owner of it was a big, burly, broad shouldered gentleman with hair just tinged with gray. Diamond rings flashed on his fingers; a large cigar was pressed between tight lips. A keen searching glance rested upon the visitor for a moment. Then out stretched a strong hand.

"Guess I'm glad to see you. Sit down."

The interviewer breathed a sigh of relief. He had anticipated a somewhat different reception from "Bill" Pinkerton, the head of the world-famous American organization.

Mr. William Allan Pinkerton and his 1,500 expert detectives can lay claim to a remarkable record in tracking culprits and in unravelling the mysteries of crime. American crooks in London for the coronation festivities will probably fight shy of the Hotel Cecil, where the great detective is staying.

"Say," said Mr. Pinkerton, slowly, when the initial question was put to him. "I'm simply here in connection with my own affairs as well as on a bit of pleasure trip. I'm not looking for trouble; guess that comes quick enough."

A paragraph from an American newspaper was shown the famous detective. Here it was stated that Mr. Pinkerton had been invited to London by the home office to become one of the advisers-in-chief of the secret service men at Scotland Yard who will be on duty at the coronation.

"Cut that out right away," he flashed. "Absolute bunkum; re-diculous. There's nothing to it. Guess the English detectives are simply able to take care of themselves without any assistance from me. That's the newspaper men on the other side. They generally help themselves, and they don't keep no regard for the truth either—so long as it's readable matter.

"Why," he went on, impressively, dismissing the subject with a wave of the hand, "I think your police are the most thorough men in the world. They are plodders—they don't jump at conclusions. When they bring a case into court they have got it prepared like a lawyer. When a case from Scotland Yard goes before the judge it's ready. If there are any American crooks over here just now, take it from me they won't come back again. Your men will get them."

"What we think they are very adept in and more perfect than in the United States or anywhere else in the world, is finger print identification. That's a marvellous system at the 'Yard,'" Mr. Pinkerton exclaimed. "Something the New World has to pick up yet. Why, some two years ago a chap was arrested in Chicago for 'lifting.' I got his finger prints taken, and without any name or description of the man I sent them to Scotland Yard. Almost immediately I got a reply giving the chap's whole criminal history and record, with his photographs. Now, that's real smart. Out in America the police are adopting this system. It's used in the prisons and all the soldiers are identified by finger prints. There's a convention of the police chiefs of the United States and Canada on June 13 and 17, when the universal adoption of the English system throughout the world will be strongly urged.

Discussing the big cases, Mr. Pinkerton became reminiscent. The recovery of the stolen Gainsborough portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire was cited. "Guess I'm sick and tired of her," said the detective. "There wasn't a detective in London who did not know who had it, but you couldn't prove it."

Adam Worth, who stole the Gainsborough, Mr. Pinkerton regarded as the greatest criminal of the age. "He was in every big job that was pulled off in Europe in ten years. He had a big house near Clapham Common, and lived like a prince. He took very little active part in the big coups, simply directed them, and this made it difficult to place him. I came over here on his track in connection with a big bank robbery in Baltimore. Then one day a yacht with 16 men on board left Southampton. Worth was on board. The next thing we heard was a big diamond robbery from the Cape Town post office; 400,000 dollars' worth of stuff was cleared off."

It was while the great detective was investigating the Baltimore Bank robbery that he accidentally became associated with the Bank of England forgeries case. "I was in a shop in the Strand when Bidwell and McDonnell walked in and bumped right into me. I thought they were in prison in America. Then when on my way back to the States the discovery of the bank frauds was made." It was through the assistance that Mr. Pinkerton was able to give that the Bidwell brothers were captured and sentenced.

One of the detective's most exciting experiences was the carrying of half a million dollars' worth of bonds on a train through a country where there had been a great many train robberies. Mr. Pinkerton had an empty safe in the luggage van and carried the bonds on his person.

Mr. Wm Pinkerton was last in London seven years ago. Since his brother Robert died a short time ago he has had the entire responsibility of the huge organization known as Pinkerton's National Detective Agency upon his own shoulders. When the chief leaves his home in Chicago on a round of inspection of his offices throughout the United States, it takes him ten weeks to do the journey. "Organization is the secret of our success and strength," said Mr. Pinkerton In all the big banks and concerns where money plays an important part Pinkerton's men are established.

INJURED IN TEST

Accident at the C. G. E. Yesterday—Not Seriously Hurt

A young man named Wood was the victim of a very painful accident, in the Test Department of the C. G. E. yesterday morning. He touched a live wire with his hand, and it burned a hole into the wrist. The young man was thrown off his feet, but fortunately received no other injuries except a bad shock. He was later taken to his home, where medical skill was summoned.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

LAYING OF CORNER STONE

a trip across this continent. We rejoice in your spared life and continued vigour, which you have always used in the ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ. You will never lose your life in the attempt to save it, and long after you have entered the world where conflicts are no more thousands will rise up to call your name blessed, because of the battles you have fought and the victories you have won for truth, while serving your day and generation. We hope, therefore, that the splendid health that you seem to be enjoying may be a prophecy of many more years of activity in this world before you go to your reward.

We consider ourselves honoured in having you to lay the corner stone of Murray Street Baptist Church, and beg your acceptance of this trowel, with which to render the service, after which we will listen with pleasure to the message you bring us.

Signed on behalf of the Church,

J. R. Webb,
Minister.

T. F. Matthews,
Chairman of Building Committee.

The impressive ceremony of the laying of the corner stone then took place. Dr Clifford declaring the stone to be well and truly laid. At the same moment, by means of an electric message, transmitted over the wires to the tower of St. John's church, the People's Chimes pealed out "The Church's One Foundation."

A most eloquent address was given by Rev. Dr. Clifford, followed by speeches from other speakers. A more extended reference to the discourses will appear in to-morrow's Examiner.

That's the newspaper men on the other side. They generally help themselves, and they don't keep no regard for the truth either—so long as it's readable matter.

"Why," he went on, impressively, dismissing the subject with a wave of the hand, "I think your police are the most thorough men in the world. They are plodders—they don't jump at conclusions. When they bring a case into court they have got it prepared like a lawyer. When a case from Scotland Yard goes before the judge it's ready. If there are any American crooks over here just now, take it from me they won't come back again. Your men will get them."

"What we think they are very adept in and more perfect than in the United States or anywhere else in the world, is finger print identification. That's a marvellous system at the 'Yard,'" Mr. Pinkerton exclaimed. "Something the New World has to pick up yet. Why, some two years ago a chap was arrested in Chicago for 'lifting.' I got his finger prints taken, and without any name or description of the man I sent them to Scotland Yard. Almost immediately I got a reply giving the chap's whole criminal history and record, with his photographs. Now, that's real smart. Out in America the police are adopting this system. It's used in the prisons and all the soldiers are identified by finger prints. There's a convention of the police chiefs of the United States and Canada on June 13 and 17, when the universal adoption of the English system throughout the world will be strongly urged.

Discussing the big cases, Mr. Pinkerton became reminiscent. The recovery of the stolen Gainsborough portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire was cited. "Guess I'm sick and tired of her," said the detective. "There wasn't a detective in London who did not know who had it, but you couldn't prove it."

Adam Worth, who stole the Gainsborough, Mr. Pinkerton regarded as the greatest criminal of the age. "He was in every big job that was pulled off in Europe in ten years. He had a big house near Clapham Common, and lived like a prince. He took very little active part in the big coups, simply directed them, and this made it difficult to place him. I came over here on his track in connection with a big bank robbery in Baltimore. Then one day a yacht with 16 men on board left Southampton. Worth was on board. The next thing we heard was a big diamond robbery from the Cape Town post office; 400,000 dollars' worth of stuff was cleared off."

It was while the great detective was investigating the Baltimore Bank robbery that he accidentally became associated with the Bank of England forgeries case. "I was in a shop in the Strand when Bidwell and McDonnell walked in and bumped right into me. I thought they were in prison in America. Then when on my way back to the States the discovery of the bank frauds was made." It was through the assistance that Mr. Pinkerton was able to give that the Bidwell brothers were captured and sentenced.

One of the detective's most exciting experiences was the carrying of half a million dollars' worth of bonds on a train through a country where there had been a great many train robberies. Mr. Pinkerton had an empty safe in the luggage van and carried the bonds on his person.

Mr. Wm. Pinkerton was last in London seven years ago. Since his brother Robert died a short time ago he has had the entire responsibility of the huge organization known as Pinkerton's National Detective Agency upon his own shoulders. When the chief leaves his home in Chicago on a round of inspection of his offices throughout the United States, it takes him ten weeks to do the journey. "Organization is the secret of our success and strength," said Mr. Pinkerton. In all the big banks and concerns where money plays an important part Pinkerton's men are established.

INJURED IN TEST

Accident at the C. G. E. Yesterday—Not Seriously Hurt

A young man named Wood was the victim of a very painful accident, in the Test Department of the C. G. E. yesterday morning. He touched a live wire with his hand, and it burned a hole into the wrist. The young man was thrown off his feet, but fortunately received no other injuries except a bad shock. He was later taken to his home, where medical skill was summoned.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the cysts a when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

a trip across this continent. We rejoice in your spared life and continued vigour, which you have always used in the ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ. You will never lose your life in the attempt to save it, and long after you have entered the world where conflicts are no more thousands will rise up to call your name blessed, because of the battles you have fought and the victories you have won for truth, while serving your day and generation. We hope, therefore, that the splendid health that you seem to be enjoying may be a prophecy of many more years of activity in this world before you go to your reward.

We consider ourselves honoured in having you to lay the corner stone of Murray Street Baptist Church, and beg your acceptance of this trowel, with which to render the service, after which we will listen with pleasure to the message you bring us.

Signed on behalf of the Church,

J. R. Weeb,
Minister.

T. F. Matthews,
Chairman of Building Committee

The impressive ceremony of the laying of the corner stone then took place, Dr. Clifford declaring the stone to be well and truly laid. At the same moment, by means of an electric message, transmitted over the wires to the tower of St. John's church, the People's Chimes pealed out "The Church's One Foundation."

A most eloquent address was given by Rev. Dr. Clifford, followed by speeches from other speakers. A more extended reference to the discourses will appear in to-morrow's Examiner.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston, Park street, when their daughter, Edith Mabel, was united in marriage to Mr. Norman Barrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Barrie, of 520 Chamberlain street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. C. Riddiford, pastor of Park street Baptist church, in the presence of the near relatives and a few friends. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents, which indicated to all present the high esteem in which both are held among their numerous friends.

After a wedding trip to Toronto and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Barrie will take up residence on George street, south of Romaine.

WOODBRIDGE—EDWARDS.

Canon Davidson. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Miles, an esteemed friend of the family, was becomingly gowned in cream silk, trimmed with Irish lace, and with veil to match. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

A sister of the bride, Miss Phyllis Edwards, acted as bridesmaid. She wore a dress of pink silk, with a cream lace hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Arthur E. Rodgers acted as best man.

After the ceremony at the church, the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, 64 Hunter street, where a dainty wedding dejeuner was served.

RAIDED GAMING HOUSE

NEW YORK, JUNE 27.—A despatch to the World from Lynn, Massachusetts, says: After being surprised by the police, six poker players halted the raid and requested the officers to make themselves at home until a pot was decided. The winner then called a taxi by 'phone and all went to the station. The police were searching for liquor, when they heard cries of, "I'll raise you." Their entrance was not noticed by the players until an officer exclaimed: "We place you under arrest."

"All right, have a cigar," was the reply. "Sit down and amuse yourself. You see I have got to lose $5 anyway, and there's a chance of winning $50 in the pot."

The spokesman called and laid down three kings against the "bluff" of three other players. He collected $22.50 and winked at the raiders.

TRUST ON CARPET

Nine Wire Manufacturing Associations are Indicted—Influential Companies Charged With Forming Pools.

APPORTIONED TERRITORY

New York, June 30.—Nine indictments charging restrait of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, were returned by a federal grand jury yesterday afternoon against that many associations, and a long list of individuals comprising the so-called "wire trust," affiliated with the steel industry. Prominent amongst the defendants are Herbert L. Satterlees, a son-in-law of J. P. Morgan, and Wm. P. Palmer, president of the American Steel & Wire Co., a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, and Frank J. Gould, the well-known railroad financier.

The Government does not seek to establish a physical or fiscal merger of the properties or interests indicted, but a series of pools to maintain prices and apportion territory, in elimination of competition.

There is no indication, however, that evidence gathered by the bureau of corporations in its investigation of the steel corporation, played any part in the indictments. Only two of the indicted associations contain subsidiaries, namely the American Steel & Wire Co., and the Trenton Iron Co.

It is set forth that the various associations described organized under their association names, and each elected what was called a supervisor and adopted sets of rules and regulations. An arbitrary rating was determined, it is charged, by the ratio of output for an agreed time; each member was obligated to pay $5,000 or less into a fund called "the general deposit," and in case any member failed to abide by the regulations his deposit was forfeited.

Raw materials were bought, it is alleged in one indictment, at "arbitrary and non-competitive prices to the end that the respective corporations would be enabled to purchase said raw materials but for the unlawful conspiracy herein described."

In the indictment against the Bare Copper Wire Association, it is charged that the corporations forming the association produced 95 per cent. of the bare copper wire consumed in the United States and that they had absolute control of the price.

Boys Charged With Arson.

Montreal, June 30.—Raymond Bamford, John Collins and James Milloy were in court yesterday on a charge of arson, in connection with fires discovered in the lumber yard of Shearer, Brown & Wills and in other places in Point St. Charles, and were remanded for voluntary statement on July fifth.

Thomas Mitchell and John Currie pleaded guilty to the charge last Saturday, and it is expected that the evidence produced by these last two youths will set the responsibility on the five, who are all companions. The boys state that they lighted the fires to see which of two fire stations could get its men on the spot first.

She Leaped From Train.

Toronto, June 30.—Rose Rae, 24 years old, who with a party of four other women was being conveyed by Female Bailiff Mrs. J. Scott from the North Bay jail to Toronto to serve a term in the Mercer Reformatory, jumped from the G.T.R. train in which they were traveling near Gravenhurst yesterday afternoon and regained her liberty. The bailiff, owing to the fact that no one was with her to guard the remaining quartette, was unable to have the train stopped, and it would have been almost suicidal to have followed the escaping one.

A Redistribution Saw-Off.

St Catharines, June 30.—The Conservatives will not put up a candidate to oppose W. M. German, the Liberal member for Welland, who opposes reciprocity, provided that in the redistribution bill, the Township of Pelham, a Liberal stronghold, returning 500 Liberal majority every election, is not tacked on to Lincoln, which would result in E. A. Lancaster's defeat.

Great Dog Harvest.

Chatham, June 30.—The municipal authorities are conducting a strenuous campaign against the dog-owners of the city. There are so many ownerless dogs traveling the streets that the police have received instructions to compel owners to procure tags or destroy the stray dogs. As a result, the city is reaping a great harvest in additional revenue from dog taxes.

Lobster Catching Season Extended.

Ottawa, June 30.—An order in council has been issued affecting the lobsters off the Nova Scotia coast. Because cold weather delayed the season, the Government has granted an extension from June 30 to July 10.

Mayor of Waterloo Dead.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S SPLENDID SPEECH AT BANQUET IN TORONTO

Veteran Campaigner Says Evils of the Gerrymander Are Too Serious Matters to be Overlooked.

MAKES SUGGESTIONS

Toronto, June 30.—Sir Richard Cartwright was tendered a banquet by the Toronto Reform Association last night and in his address to the large gathering of Liberals he made some important political forecasts.

The veteran politician showed a good deal of his old-time vigor, although he said his mission was not a fighting one. One of his suggestions to the voters was the grouping of constituencies and another was the limitation of Parliamentary debate.

He spoke of Canadian opportunity, Canadian progress, Canadian prosperity. So remarkable had been the all-round development under Liberal rule that political opponents were to-day acclaiming it, and constituting their campaign on the extraordinary argument that everything had become so prosperous that "we beg of you to let it alone."

"There may be force in that," gleamed Sir Richard, "in this respect at least. It would seem that both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. R. L. Borden are the right men in the right places."

But there were other things beside material progress. He felt that something more might be done towards improving and amending the present system of representation which he held was exposed to certain dangers. These he defined as the necessity felt by both parties to "recognize and make provision for" the loose vote not dominated by principles and party allegiance; and the opportunity for "setting at naught the will of the people by the legislative fraud of gerrymander."

The remedy prescribed was proportionate representation and the grouping of constituencies, thereby reducing the turmoil and expense of election and placing a number of seats at the disposal of the respective parties in proportion to the popular vote of the province.

Canada was essentially a leader in reform and progress. Sir Richard elicited renewed applause when he pointed to the fact that Britain was soon to follow the example of Confederation in a home rule legislative system for the third units, and a central Parliament for all.

King at Berlin.

Berlin, Ont., June 30.—Hon. Mackenzie King addressed an audience that filled the Town Hall at Waterloo last night on the reciprocity agreement. He dealt with the question in a comprehensive manner and argued that its adoption would result in increased prosperity of the people as a whole, because the benefit that would accrue to the great primary interests in the free interchange of natural products would not but have that effect.

He was bitter in his denunciation of the opponents of the pact, arguing that their actions tended to corruption of the press and deterioration of public morals in the manner in which they were seeking to deceive the great mass of the people. He believed that this opposition came chiefly from the "combinesters," as he termed them, "members and sycophants of the trusts and combines existing in Canada, and from the tariff reform party of England," whose efforts, if successful, would tend to destroy rather than forward the permanency of the British Empire.

He believed Sir Wilfrid Laurier's action at the Imperial Conference had resulted in action constituting more real advance in strengthening the Empire than had been accomplished in the past fifty years.

Formed New Church.

Brockville, June 30.—Owing to a split in the congregation of the First Baptist Church some months ago, the majority of the members and adherents withdrew and formed a new church, under the pastorate of Rev. Officers have been elected and a name will be decided upon at a congregational meeting to be held later. Preparations are being made for the building of an edifice.

TREATY IS READY

Pact Between Britain and the United States is at the Last Stage —France Will Come Into Agreement Too.

GERMANY SILENT

Washington, June 30.—All formalities necessary to the final conclusion of the general arbitration treaty between America and Great Britain could be completed within four hours, assuming that the machinery was working properly and smoothly, was the official declaration yesterday. The differences between the two countries now relate merely to phraseology and can be readily adjusted. The British ambassador has full powers to sign the treaty and the administration so far has failed to find any signs of objection to the compact on the part of the Senate.

It is distinctly stated that, notwithstanding impressions to the contrary, the treaty conserves to the utmost the constitutional powers of the Senate in treaty making, and that every question to be submitted to arbitration must first receive the approval of the Senate. But it is pointed out that the very negotiation of the treaty will almost have the effect of lessening the number of issues to be arbitrated. This is explained by the fact that through the creation of a commission of enquiry, composed of disinterested members of The Hague tribunal, most of the issues that may arise between the two Governments can be settled satisfactorily by the adoption of the findings of that commission and without the necessity of proceeding to arbitration.

Unofficial advices indicate the French Government is practically ready to enter into treaty with the United States on the basis of Secretary Knox's terms, and action may soon be had in that direction, the French ambassador being on his way here.

Nothing definite has been heard from Germany since the Knox proposal was handed to Ambassador Bernstorff upon his application. Holland also has been furnished with a copy of the projected treaty, and other nations are showing marked interest in the subject.

An interesting feature of the projected treaty is the provision for the reference of issue to a tribunal. This is so framed as to forecast the creation of the permanent court of arbitration, towards which the administration is steadily working.

Little Boy Killed.

Toronto, June 30.—Five-year-old Hazen Maynard, who lived at the head of Dufferin street, was crushed to death beneath the wheels of one of Neilson's ice cream wagons at Dufferin Heights, Wednesday afternoon. He had climbed on the wagon while an order was being delivered and when the wagon started up was caught by the wheel and went around with it. Finally he was thrown off and the wheel passed over his head. A clerk from a nearby store picked up the little fellow and carried him home, where he died shortly afterward. The driver of the wagon did not learn of the accident till yesterday morning. Coroner Singer is investigating.

By WILLIAM CARLETON

On the next job I had to begin all over again with a new gang. It seemed a pity that all my work on the other should be wasted, but I didn't say anything. For two months I took each time the men I had and did my best with them. I had my reward in finding myself at the head of a constantly increasing force. I also found that I was being sent on all the hurry-up work. I learned something every day. Finally when the time seemed ripe I went to the contractor's agent with the proposition towards which I had all along been working. This was that I should be allowed to hire my own men.

The agent was skeptical at first about the wisdom of entrusting such power as this to a subordinate, but I put my case to him squarely. I said in brief that I was sure I could pick a gang of fifty men who would do the work of seventy-five. I told him that for a year now I had been making notes on the best workers, and I thought I could secure them. But I would have to do it myself. It would be only through my personal influence with them that they could be got. He raised several objections, but I finally said:

"Let me try it, anyhow. The men won't cost you any more than the others and if I don't make good it's easy enough to go back to the old way."

It's queer how stubbornly business men cling to routine. He finally gave me permission to see the men. I was then to turn them over to the regular paymaster who would engage them. This was all I wanted and with my note book I started out.

It was no easy job for me and for a week I had to cut out my night school and give all my time to it. Many of the men had moved and others had gone into other work, but I kept at it night after night trotting from one end of the city to the other until I rounded up about thirty of them. This seemed to me enough to form a corps. I could pick up others from time to time as I found them. The men remembered me and when I told them something of my plan they all agreed with a grin to report for work as soon as they were free. And this was how Carleton's gang happened to be formed.

It took me about three months to put all my fifty men into good working order, and it wasn't for a year that I had my machine where I wanted it. But it was a success from the start. At the end of a year I learned that even the contractor himself began to speak with some pride of Carleton's gang. And he used it. He used it hard. In fact he made something of a special feature of it. It began to bring him emergency business, he secured the contract through my gang. He used us altogether for foundation work, and his business increased so rapidly that we were never idle. I became proud of my men and my reputation.

But of course this success—this proof that my idea was a good one—only whetted my appetite for the big goal still ahead of me. I was eager for the day when this group of men should really be Carleton's gang. It was hard, in a way, to see the result of my own thought and work turning out big profits for another when all I needed was a little capital to make it my own. Still I knew I must be patient. There were many things yet that I must learn before I should be competent to undertake contracts for myself. In the meanwhile I could satisfy my ambition by constantly strengthening and perfecting the machine.

Then, too, I found that the gang was bringing me into closer touch with my superiors. One day I was called to the office of the firm, and there I met the two men who, until now, had been nothing to me but two names. For a year I had stared at these names painted in black on white boards and posted about the grounds of every job upon which I had worked. I had never thought of them as human beings so much as some hidden force—like the unseen dynamo of a power plant. They were both Irish-Americans—strong, prosperous-looking men. Somehow they made me distinctly conscious of my own ancestry. I don't mean that I was over-proud—in a way I don't suppose there was anything to boast of in the Carletons—but as I stood before these men in the position of a minor employee I suppose that unconsciously I looked for something in my past to offset my present humiliating situation. And from a business point of view, it was humiliating. The Carletons had been in this country two hundred years, and these men but twenty-five or thirty, and yet I was the man who stood while they faced me in their easy chairs before their roll-top desks. It was then that I was glad to remember there hadn't been a war in this country in which a Carleton had not played a part. I held myself a little better for the thought.

They were unaffected and business-like but when they spoke it was plain "Carleton" and when I spoke it was "Mr. Corkery," or "Mr. Galvin." That was right and proper enough.

They had called me in to consult with me on a big job, which they were trying to figure down to the very lowest point. They were willing to get out of it with the smallest possible margin of profit for the advertisement it would give them, and in view of future contracts with the same firm which it might bring. The largest item in it was the handling of the dirty. They showed me their blue prints and their rough estimate and then Mr. Corkery said::

"How much can you take off that, Carleton?"

I told him I would need two or three hours to figure it out. He called a clerk.

"Give Carleton a desk," he said. Then he turned to me:

"Stay here until you've done it," he said.

It took me all the forenoon. I worked carefully because it seemed to me that here was a big chance to prove myself. I worked at those figures as though I had every dollar I ever hoped to have at stake. I didn't trim it as close as I would have done for myself, but as it was I took off a fifth—the matter of five thousand dollars. When I came back, Mr. Corkery looked over my figures.

"Sure you can do that?" he asked I could see he was surprised.

"Yes, sir," I said.

"I'd hate like hell to get stuck," he said.

"You won't get stuck," I answered.

"It isn't the loss I mind," he said. "but—well, there is a firm or two that is waiting to give me the laugh."

"They won't laugh," I said.

He looked at me a moment and then called in a clerk.

"Have those figures put in shape" he said, "and send in this bid."

Corkery secured the contract. I picked one hundred men. The morning we began I held a sort of convention.

"Men," I said, "I've promised to do this in so many days. They say we can't do it. If we don't, here's where they laugh at the gang."

We did it. I never heard from Corkery about it, but when we were through I thanked the gang and I found them more truly mine than they had ever been before.

Every Saturday night I brought home my fifteen dollars, and Ruth took out three for the rent, five for household expenses, and put seven in the ginger jar. We had one hundred and thirty dollars in the bank before the raise came, and after this it increased rapidly. There wasn't a week we didn't put aside seven dollars, and sometimes eight. The end of my first year as an emigrant found me with the following items to my credit: Ruth, the boy and myself in better health than we had ever been; Ruth's big mother-love finding outlet in the neighbourhood; the boy alert and ambitious; myself with the beginning of a good technical education, to say nothing of the rudiments of a new language, with a loyal gang of one hundred men and two hundred dollars in cash.

This inventory does not take into account my new friends, my new mental and spiritual outlook upon life, or my enhanced self-respect. Such things cannot be calculated.

That first year was, of course, the important year—the big year. It proved what could be done and nothing remained now but time in which to do it. It established the evident fact that if a raw, uneducated foreigner can come to this country and succeed, a native-born with experience plus intelligence ought to do the same thing more rapidly. But it had taught me that what the native-born must do is to simplify his standard of living, take advantage of the same opportunities, toil with the same spirit, and free himself from the burdensome bonds of caste. The advantage is all with the pioneer, the adventurer, the emigrant. These are the real children of the republic—here in the East, at any rate. Every landing dock is Plymouth Rock to them. They are the real forefathers of the coming century, because they possess all the rugged strength of settlers. They are making their own colonial history.

CHAPTER XVI.

Dick Finds a Way Out, Too.

When school closed, in June, Dick came to me and said:

"Dad, I don't want to loaf all summer."

"No need of it," I said. "Take another course in the summer school."

"I want to earn some money," he said, "I want to go to work."

If the boy had come to me a year ago with that suggestion I should have felt hurt. I would have thought it a reflection upon my ability to support my family. We salaried men used to expect our children to be dependent on us until they completed their educations. For a boy to work during his summer vacation was almost as bad form as for the wife to work for money at any time. It had to be explained that the boy was a prodigy with unusual business ability or that he was merely seeking experience. But Dick did not fall into any of these classes. This was what made his proposal the more remarkable to me. It meant that we was willing to take just a plain every-day plugging job.

And underlying this willingness was the spirit that was resurrecting us all. Instead of acting on the defensive, Dick was now eager to play the aggressive game. I hadn't looked for this spirit to show in him so soon in his life outside of school. I was mighty well pleased.

"All right," I said, "what do you think you can do?"

"I've talked with some of the fellows," he said, "and the surest thing seems to be selling papers."

I gave a gasp at that. I hadn't yet lost the feeling that a newsboy was a sort of cross between an orphan and a beggar. He was to me purely an object of pity. Of course I had formed this notion like a good many others from the story books, and the daily paper. I connected a newsboy with blind fathers and sick mothers if he had any parents at all.

"I guess you can get something better than that to do," I said.

"What's the matter with selling papers?" he asked.

When I stopped to think of the work in that way—as just the buying and selling of papers—I couldn't see anything the matter with it. Why wasn't it like buying and selling anything? You were selling a product in which millions of money was invested, a product where you gave your customers their money's worth. The only objection I could think of at the moment was that there was so little in it.

"It will keep you on the streets five or six hours a day," I said, "and I don't suppose you can make more than a dollar a week."

"A dollar a week!" he said. "Do you know what one fellow in our class makes right through the year?"

"How much?" I asked.

"He makes between six and eight dollars a week," said Dick.

"That doesn't sound possible," I said.

"He told me he made that. And another fellow he knows about did as well as this even while he was in college. He pretty nearly paid his own way."

"What do you make on a paper?" I asked.

"About half a cent on the one-cent papers, and a cent on the two cent papers."

Stops Itching Heals the Skin

And Cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and All Skin Diseases

These Results You Can Be Sure of When You Use

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Quick and certain are the effects of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Itching is stopped almost as soon as it is applied. The sores are cleaned out, morbid growth is arrested, and the healing process is soon set in action.

Compare these results with the tediousness and uncertainty of internal treatment for itching skin disease. By all means look after the health of the blood and the system generally, but get rid of the annoying and torturing skin ailment at once by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The reputation of Dr. Chase's Ointment has been made by its marvellous success in the cure of eczema and piles. But it is just as effective in the cure of old sores and wounds which have defied ordinary treatments and been given up by doctors.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is prized by mothers as a treatment for the skin troubles of babies, such as chafing, skin irritation, scald head and baby eczema. Its soothing influence stops the itching, and it prevents the development of eczema from these lesser skin troubles.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine, Sask., writes that Dr. Chase's Ointment cured her boy of eczema when his head was a mass of scabs, and he suffered untold agony from the itching. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

A COOL CURING ROOM

From Farm and Dairy.

John B. Muir, Oxford Co., Ont.

The advisability of installing a cool curing room depends largely upon where the factory is located. If it is some distance from a refrigerator, I think it a very good investment. If there is a public storage plant, however, within three or four miles, it might be better to use it.

A cool curing room delays the curing not more than a week or 10 days. It effects a direct gain by saving from one to 1½ per cent. in the shrinkage of the cheese during the period of curing as shown by the government tests at Woodstock. We have not made any tests as to shrinkage at Avonbank Factory, but intend doing so this summer.

Cool curing eliminates the heated flavor and mealy texture that are characteristic of all ordinary cured cheese in hot weather, and thus avoids what has been one of the chief defects in a large proportion of Canadian cheese. It tends to prevent the development of bad flavors in many cheese which would otherwise be very inferior on that account.

Cheese that have been properly cool cured do not require subsequent storage at an extremely low temperature to check the injurious processes that are set up by high temperature, but may be kept under conditions suitable for developing the rich, nutty flavor which is essential in a strictly fancy cheddar cheese.

The general improvement in the quality of cool cured cheese increases the consumption of the cheese enormously, thereby increasing the demand and ensuring a better average price.

We have no difficulty in controlling the temperature of the curing room and holding it at 60 degrees or lower in the hottest weather. Our curing room is 28 by 28 feet and 8½ feet to the ceiling. It will hold 680 cheese. The ice chamber is nine by 28 feet, with a 12 foot ceiling, holding 15 cords of ice, that has cost us this year, $40 to fill.

HOW ARRANGED

The factory is built on sloping ground. The floor of the curing room is even with the ground on the high side and about 2½ feet high on the lower side, which makes it very convenient for loading cheese. We think the arrangement is better for the cheese than if the floor was two or three feet lower than the surface as it is not so apt to get mouldy in the fall. The room is heated by steam pipes connected to the boiler of the engines. Heating is very necessary to aid the curing in spring and fall.

We have made a great many improvements to our plant, besides installing a cool curing room such as putting in cement floors; but as near as I can estimate, not counting floor in curing room or ice chamber, it would cost us $730.00 for curing room and ice chamber alone.

SHOULD NOT BE FOLLOWED

From Farm and Dairy.

J. G. Moore, Madison, Wis.

It is a very common practice to fertilize newly set trees with yard or stable manure. This practice should not be followed. The first activity of a newly set tree should be to develop an extensive root system. If large amounts of plant food materials be placed within easy reach of the tree, the root system will then be confined to a comparatively small area. After the supply of food materials provided at planting have become exhausted, the roots will not have developed sufficiently to secure sufficient food to keep up a normal growth of the young tree, and what was supposedly gained at the beginning will be more than lost by the check which the tree receives.

Under normal conditions, little if any benefit is derived by watering newly set trees. In the first place, enough water seldom is applied to moisten the soil around the root. If water is to be given it should be applied in quantities sufficient to nearly saturate the soil to some little depth below the bottom of the roots. Another mistake commonly made is applying water on the surface after the hole has been entirely filled. If water is to be applied, it should be put on either before the top two or three inches of soil are filled in, or if applied to the surface as soon as the soil is sufficiently dry the surface soil to a depth of two inches should be cultivated and put in a fine tilth.

* * *

Practically the same objections that have been raised against watering can be offered against mulching. It is expensive, and as a rule, not enough mulch is applied to be of any material benefit. Mulching as it is commonly understood, means putting litter of some kind around the base of the tree for the purpose of conserving the moisture and protecting the roots from too much heat transmitted through the soil. The most efficient and least expensive mulch for this purpose is not one of litter, but one obtained by keeping the surface soil around the base of the trees in good tilth. If kept fine and loose, the dust mulch is much more efficient in conserving moisture than the litter mulch, and at the same time retains the moisture at the point where it is needed rather than at the surface of the soil, as does the litter mulch.

MR. R. L. BORDEN'S VISIT TO WESTERN CANADA

From Farm and Dairy.

The grain growers of Western Canada have proven conclusively that party ties cannot blind them to their own best interests. When it was announced that Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, would visit Western Canada, people in Eastern Canada particularly waited with interest to see how the leader of the Opposition would be received in the West. Would Western Conservatives remain firm in their stand for Reciprocity or would they rally around their party leader?

The grain growers made their position perfectly plain when they met Mr. Borden at Brandon, Man., on June 20th. Here a delegation of grain growers representing every section of Manitoba met Mr. Borden and laid before him their views. Mr. J. W. Scallion, the principal spokesman for the farmers is a life long Conservative. There were as many Conservatives as Liberals in the deputation and all united in declaring that "political-party names have ceased to have any weight or influence with us. We will support any Government or any party that will honestly endeavor to legislate in the interests and promote the welfare of all the people." The resolution in regard to reciprocity as presented by the Grain Growers read as follows:

THE FARMERS DEMANDS

"The products of our farms, when exported, are sold in the markets of the world where prices are fixed by free competition, and the export prices practically fix the prices for home consumption, while the supplies for our farms are purchased in a restricted market where prices are fixed by methods already mentioned. That is not a square deal, and we demand that such restrictions be removed. We strongly urge that the British preference be increased to 50 per cent. of our general tariff, and gradually be increased from year to year until free trade with Britain is established, at farthest, within 10 years.

"We are strongly in favor of and will continue to press for the widest possible measure of reciprocal trade with the United States. Such a measure was pressed for when the Premier was in the West last summer, and it was demanded by the delegation representing the farmers of Canada at Ottawa last December. We not only regret, but we wish to record our entire disapproval of the tactics resorted to in Parliament to try to prevent the passage of that measure and force a dissolution of Parliament upon it before a redistribution measure could be passed which would give the West fair play in Parliamentary representation.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE

"We have studied the question of reciprocity with the United States, more especially with regard to its bearing on the present and future agricultural interests of our country, for in its present form it deals almost entirely with the natural products of both countries, and is therefore largely a farmers' question. We have endeavored to inform ourselves as to its effect on present and prospective conditions, and the capabilities of both Canada and the United States, with regard to production and consumption of foodstuffs, and we find that while the lines of production and consumption of foodstuffs are rapidly converging in the United States, these lines are rapidly widening in Canada.

"In the year 1898 the total acreage of wheat, corn, oats, barley, and rye sown in the United States was 151,784,501 and the exports of that crop were 598,715,000 bushels. In 1907, nine years later, the acreage under these grains was 185,353,000, or an increase in acreage of 22 per cent. But the exports in these grains that year were only 227,442,000 bushels, a decrease in nine years, notwithstanding the increased acreage under crop, of 69 per cent., showing how rapidly home consumption of these grains was overtaking their production.

FINISHED PRODUCTS DECREASE

"But it might be said that this tremendous falling off in the export of grain was owing to its being fed to stock and exported in the form of beef or pork. However, the falling off in the export of these commodities was fully as remarkable as in grain for the period named. In 1900 the report of the United States Department of Agriculture shows 27,610,000 cattle on the farms of the nation. In 1908 the number had increased to 50,000,000, an increase of 81 per cent. The exports of cattle had decreased 14 per cent. In 1899 the number of swine on United States farms was 38,500,000. In 1908 the number had increased to 56,000,000, an increase of 45 per cent. But notwithstanding the large increase in production, the exports of pork and its products showed a falling off of 441,000,000 lbs. During the same period the number of cows increased 34 per cent., while the exports of butter and cheese went down from 79,000,000 lbs. to less than 15,000,000 lbs., and the imports of butter and cheese increased from 10,000,000 to 33,500,000 lbs., an increase of 232 per cent., showing that the consumption of butter and cheese in the United States had outgrown the production of these commodities, and that it was necessary to import in order to meet home consumption. The United States Bureau of Statistics, 1909, shows a falling off as compared with the previous year in the exports of beef of 36 per cent., of pork and its products 15 per cent., and of grain 29 per cent.—this falling off in one year.

WILL SOON IMPORT FOOD

"During all these years in which consumption of foodstuffs has been overtaking production the United States was bringing new land under cultivation. But she has practically reached her limit in that respect. This statement of facts taken from the records shows that in a short time the United States will be a large importer of foodstuffs, and there is no country in the world more capable and in a better position to supply that demand than Canada. Canada is just beginning to develop her immense resources for the production of foodstuffs. In a few years our great West will be raising for export hundreds of millions of bushels of grain and hundreds of thousands of live stock and other produce. Where are markets to be found for all this? Britain can only take a limited quantity. Last year we exported 50,000,000 bushels. Britain took only part of it. France and Belgium took some, and the United States took 2,000,000 bushels in flour and wheat in the face of a tariff of 25 per cent.

WE WILL NEED MARKETS

"When Canada has in the near future, as it is calculated she will have, 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, besides millions of bushels of other grains for export, where is she going to send it? Where is she going to send her large production of other commodities? Shall we refuse the market offered by 90,000,000 or 100,000,000 of people right at our doors an open market which will in a short time be the best market in the world for our surplus products? Our trade with the United States is greater than our trade with all other countries combined. Last year it was greater by over $100,000,000 than our trade with Britain, notwithstanding the preference given Britain in our tariff, and that trade has been increasing from year to year in face of a hostile tariff, which makes it less profitable to all engaged in it. This trade with the United States, in view of the conditions already stated, will expand immensely. Why should that great open market now offered us be refused? The whole range of history furnishes no example where the offer of such a market under such conditions was refused by any nation."

MR. C. J. SWANSON.

"Twenty years ago I was taken sick with Typhoid and Malaria Fever, and for a time was at the point of death. As soon as I turned a little toward the better my physician prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it was just what I needed to build me up. I have also found it excellent for weak lungs and rheumatism. I am near the age of seventy, and will always continue to use it."—C. J. Swanson, 5140 Michigan ave., Chicago, Ill.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

not only serves to keep the bodily health at the highest notch of excellence, but in typhoid and malaria, especially, when the bodily functions are at their lowest ebb and death seems imminent, it is retained by the stomach when other agents are rejected, and as a food and stimulant sustains life until the crisis is passed. While convalescing after fever it is the greatest strength-giver and body builder known to science. It is a wonderful remedy in the prevention and cure of all lung, throat and stomach troubles, and all wasting and weakening conditions.

EXPERIMENTS WITH TREE FRUITS

From Farm and Dairy.

Experiments with tree fruits have been conducted by the Dominion Experimental Farms ever since 1887 with the object of finding out what varieties, if any, can be successfully grown in the colder districts of the northwestern provinces. The first year in which these experiments were conducted seed of a wild Siberian crab apple (pyrus baccata) was imported from Russia. This crab was pollenized with pollen from the hardier varieties of apples grown in Eastern Canada.

Many hundreds of seedlings were obtained but only a few of these are of sufficient merit to deserve a trial in western Canada. One of the best seedlings is the Alberta. The tree is a strong grower and an abundant bearer. The fruit is a greenish-yellow with a bright red cheek and the quality is fair to good. Other promising varieties are the Bow, Charles, Columbia, Elsa and Jewel. Full information about these hardy fruits is given in a bulletin recently published and which may be had free on application to the Canadian Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

HAS BEEN AMENDED

From Farm and Dairy.

On the recommendation of the Dominion Seed Commissioner, Mr. Geo. H. Clark, the Bill establishing standards of quality for grain products has been amended so as to make it necessary that bran, shorts, and chop feed must be free from vital seeds of any of the noxious weeds mentioned in the Seed Control Act.

The Seed Commissioner recommended this amendment after three years of investigation work. Many samples of feed were analyzed, and it was found that on the average bran, shorts and middlings, as sold by retail dealers, contained 246 vital weed seeds a pound, crushed grains 677, meals 1,802, and feed oats (unground) 4,022. These seeds included more than 50 species of plants troublesome as weeds. It is known that when consumed by farm animals a proportion of such weed seeds pass into the farm manure with vitality unimpaired, and from this source have come many of the weeds now becoming troublesome in eastern Canada.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. FINISHED PRODUCTS DECREASE

"But it might be said that this tremendous falling off in the export of grain was owing to its being fed to stock and exported in the form of beef or pork. However, the falling off in the export of these commodities was fully as remarkable as in grain for the period named. In 1900 the report of the United States Department of Agriculture shows 27,610,000 cattle on the farms of the nation. In 1908 the number had increased to 50,000,000, an increase of 81 per cent. The exports of cattle had decreased 14 per cent. In 1899 the number of swine on United States farms was 38,500,000. In 1908 the number had increased to 56,000,000, an increase of 45 per cent. But notwithstanding the large increase in production, the exports of pork and its products showed a falling off of 441,000,000 lbs. During the same period the number of cows increased 34 per cent., while the exports of butter and cheese went down from 79,000,000 lbs. to less than 15,000,000 lbs., and the imports of butter and cheese increased from 10,000,000 to 33,500,000 lbs., an increase of 232 per cent., showing that the consumption of butter and cheese in the United States had outgrown the production of these commodities, and that it was necessary to import in order to meet home consumption. The United States Bureau of Statistics, 1909, shows a falling off as compared with the previous year in the exports of beef of 35 per cent., of pork and its products 15 per cent., and of grain 29 per cent.—this falling off in one year.

WILL SOON IMPORT FOOD

"During all these years in which consumption of foodstuffs has been overtaking production the United States was bringing new land under cultivation. But she has practically reached her limit in that respect. This statement of facts taken from the records shows that in a short time the United States will be a large importer of foodstuffs, and there is no country in the world more capable and in a better position to supply that demand than Canada. Canada is just beginning to develop her immense resources for the production of foodstuffs. In a few years our great West will be raising for export hundreds of millions of bushels of grain and hundreds of thousands of live stock and other produce. Where are markets to be found for all this? Britain can only take a limited quantity. Last year we exported 50,000,000 bushels. Britain took only part of it. France and Belgium took some, and the United States took 2,000,000 bushels in flour and wheat in the face of a tariff of 25 per cent.

WE WILL NEED MARKETS

"When Canada has in the near future, as it is calculated she will have, 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, besides millions of bushels of other grains for export, where is she going to send it? Where is she going to send her large production of other commodities? Shall we refuse the market offered by 90,000,000 or 100,000,000 of people right at our doors an open market which will in a short time be the best market in the world for our surplus products? Our trade with the United States is greater than our trade with all other countries combined. Last year it was greater by over $100,000,000 than our trade with Britain, notwithstanding the preference given Britain in our tariff, and that trade has been increasing from year to year in face of a hostile tariff, which makes it less profitable to all engaged in it. This trade with the United States, in view of the conditions already stated, will expand immensely. Why should that great open market now offered us be refused? The whole range of history furnishes no example where the offer of such a market under such conditions was refused by any nation."

"Twenty years ago I was taken sick with Typhoid and Malaria Fever, and for a time was at the point of death. As soon as I turned a little toward the better my physician prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it was just what I needed to build me up. I have also found it excellent for weak lungs and rheumatism. I am near the age of seventy, and will always continue to use it."—C. J. Swanson, 5140 Michigan ave., Chicago, Ill.

not only serves to keep the bodily health at the highest notch of excellence, but in typhoid and malaria, especially, when the bodily functions are at their lowest ebb and death seems imminent, it is retained by the stomach when other agents are rejected, and as a food and stimulant sustains life until the crisis is passed. While convalescing after fever it is the greatest strength-giver and body builder known to science. It is a wonderful remedy in the prevention and cure of all lung, throat and stomach troubles, and all wasting and weakening conditions.

EXPERIMENTS WITH TREE FRUITS

From Farm and Dairy.

Experiments with tree fruits have been conducted by the Dominion Experimental Farms ever since 1887 with the object of finding out what varieties, if any, can be successfully grown in the colder districts of the northwestern provinces. The first year in which these experiments were conducted seed of a wild Siberian crab apple (pyrus baccata) was imported from Russia. This crab was pollenized with pollen from the hardier varieties of apples grown in Eastern Canada.

Many hundreds of seedlings were obtained but only a few of these are of sufficient merit to deserve a trial in western Canada. One of the best seedlings is the Alberta. The tree is a strong grower and an abundant bearer. The fruit is a greenish-yellow with a bright red cheek and the quality is fair to good. Other promising varieties are the Bow, Charles, Columbia, Elsa and Jewel. Full information about these hardy fruits is given in a bulletin recently published and which may be had free on application to the Canadian Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

HAS BEEN AMENDED

From Farm and Dairy.

On the recommendation of the Dominion Seed Commissioner, Mr. Geo. H. Clark, the Bill establishing standards of quality for grain products has been amended so as to make it necessary that bran, shorts, and chop feed must be free from vital seeds of any of the noxious weeds mentioned in the Seed Control Act.

The Seed Commissioner recommended this amendment after three years of investigation work. Many samples of feed were analyzed, and it was found that on the average bran, shorts and middlings, as sold by retail dealers, contained 246 vital weed seeds a pound, crushed grains 677, meals 1,802, and feed oats (unground) 4,022. These seeds included more than 50 species of plants troublesome as weeds. It is known that when consumed by farm animals a proportion of such weed seeds pass into the farm manure with vitality unimpaired, and from this source have come many of the weeds now becoming troublesome in eastern Canada.

SEES CIVILIZATION CENTRE OF WORLD IN JAPAN EMPIRE

Dr. Terao Thinks Nation Will Be Most Prominent Pacific Competitor.

CITES EVER WESTWARD STREAM OF PROGRESS

Main Current Now Proceeding Toward Far East Across Ocean, Argument of "Jingo" Professor.

[Special Despatch.]
Tokio, Saturday.

DR. T. Terao, a prominent member of the galaxy of "seven jingo professors" who did their best to involve Japan in hostilities with Russia, lets it be known in no uncertain language that, in his opinion, the "next centre of the world's civilisation" will be located in Japan and nowhere else, and while he does not go so far as to assert that Japan can absolutely monopolise the Pacific in the future, he thinks there is no room for doubt that she will become the most prominent amjong the international competitors for economical and political supremacy in these waters.

These and some other points are expounded by Professor Terao in the current issue of the monthly magazine Taiyo (Sun), which is one of the most widely circulated publications of the kind in this country.

For the Japanese, writes the professor, the Pacific question is a riddle which must be solved at any cost, inasmuch as the destiny of the entire empire wholly depends upon success or failure in its solution, and that representative brains of the nation are not indifferent to the vital issues at stake may be gathered from the recent inauguration of two special societies for the investigation of Pacific problems, the Taiheiyo-Kyokai and Taiheiyo-kai respectively, with both of which Professor Terao is connected. He avows his greater partiality for the latter, whose aims are admittedly more political and less academic than those of the former.

The scope of the association is limited only by the boundaries of the Pacific itself and should not be confined to the United States and China alone, although the professor grants that, vast as is the association's field of investigation, the two continents named may for the time being become the chief centres of observation. The writer argues that the main stream of the world's civilisation is ever flowing westward and is now proceeding toward the Far East, across the Pacific, with the Japanese empire right in its path and inevitably destined to feel its influence most powerfully.

Whereas in ancient times Japan had to adopt and assimilate the Oriental civilization of India and China, so to-day she is required to accept and digest the new Occidental cultures.

Professor Terao dwells upon the necessity of considering the United States as Japan's most formidable rival. He does not go so far as to say that European countries are inferior to America in point of culture, but he does contend that they are not to be compared with the latter in point of activity. Spain, Italy and Portugal he dismisses with contemptuous brevity as countries of the past; and England and France he declares have become stagnant in their national development.

The economic evolution of Japan constitutes for America a serious stumbling block in the path of her Pacific aspirations, while for Japan the prospect of this impending commercial and industrial struggle is no less disturbing.

Curious Story of the Garter and the Foundation of the Greatest Order of Chivalry as It Has Been in Existence Since Probably 1344

THE ROYAL PROCESSION ENTERING THE CHAPEL

GARTER INVESTITURE OF THE PRINCE OF WALES AT WINDSOR. THE KING AND QUEEN IN THE PROCESSION

PROCESSION OF KNIGHTS LEAVING THE CHAPEL AFTER THE CEREMONY

Recent Investiture of the Prince of Wales Recalls Many Strange Legends.

THE recent investiture of the Prince of Wales with the Order of the Garter has stirred the London Graphic to reproduce various legends concerning the origin of the picturesque and coveted decoration.

"It is one of the ironies of history," says the Graphic, "that there is no certainty as to the date of the foundation of the greatest order of chivalry now existing in the world or as to the origin of its curious title. Volumes have been written upon the Most Noble Order of the Garter, but the authorities do not agree as to the precise year, about the middle of the fourteenth century, when the order was founded, though it would seem that, after all, the date assigned by Froissart, who was a contemporary of King Edward III., namely, 1344, is likely to be the real one. Here is Froissart's account of the foundation of the order:—

"'About this time the King of England (Edward III.) resolved to rebuild and embellish the great Castle of Windsor, which King Arthur had first founded in time past and where he had erected and established that noble round table from where so many gallant knights had issued forth and displayed the valiant prowess of their deeds at arms over the world. King Edward therefore determined to establish an order of knighthood, consisting of himself, his children and the most gallant knights in Christendom, to the number of forty (error for twenty-six). He ordered it to be denominated Knights of the Blue Garter, and that the feast should be celebrated every year at Windsor upon St. George's Day (April 23). He summoned, therefore, all the earls, barons and knights of this realm to inform them of his intentions. They heard it with great pleasure, for it seemed to them highly honorable and capable of increasing love and friendship. Forty knights were then elected, according to report and estimation the bravest in Christendom, who sealed and swore to maintain and keep the feast and the statutes that had been made. The King founded a chapel at Windsor in honor of St. George, and established canons there to serve God with a handsome endowment. He then issued his proclamation for this feast by his heralds, whom he sent to France, Scotland, Burgundy, Hainault, Flanders, Brabant and the empire of Germany, and offered to all knights and squires that might come to this ceremony passports to last for fifteen days after it was over. The celebration of this order was fixed for St. George's Day next ensuing, to be held at Windsor, 1344, and the Queen was to be present, accompanied by three hundred ladies and damsels, all of high birth and richly dressed in similar robes. St. George's Day drew near when the grand feast was to be celebrated at the Castle of Windsor. The King had made great preparation for it, and there were earls, barons, ladies and damsels most nobly entertained. The festivities and tilts lasted a fortnight. Many knights came to them from beyond sea from Flanders, Hainault and Brabant, but not one from France."

"As to the origin of the title of the order, most people are familiar with the story of the Countess of Salisbury's little mishap with her garter, which was promptly made use of by the amorous King for the purposes of the order of chivalry, which he intended, either before or after her ladyship's accident, to found. Polydore Vergil is believed to have been the first to give the legend in his history of England, printed at Basle in 1534, and it was followed after him by most of the writers on the subject. Elias Ashmole who was Windsor herald under Charles II., wrote in 1672 a history of the order, which, he says, if we consider either its antiquity or the nobleness of the personages that have been enrolled, excels and outvies all other institutions of honor in the whole world. And he goes on to give 'the vulgar and general opinion' as to its origin—namely, that the garter of the Countess of Salisbury dropping casually off as she danced in a solemn ball, King Edward, stooping, took it up from the ground. Whereupon some of his nobles, smiling as at an amorous action, and he, observing their sportive humor, turned it off with a reply in French, 'Honi soit qui mal y pense,' but withal added in disdain of their laughter that shortly they should see that garter advanced to so high an honor and renown as to account themselves happy to wear it.

"Another tradition is thus given by Ashmole:—'The Queen, departing from the King to her own apartments, he, following soon after, chanced to espy a blue garter lying on the ground supposed to have slipped from her leg. Some of his attendants carelessly passed by it as disdaining to stoop at such a trifle, but he, knowing the owner, commanded it to be given him, at the receipt of which he said, 'You make but small account of this garter, but within a few months I will cause the best of you all to reverence it alike.' Some suppose that the motto was the Queen's answer when the King asked her what men would conjecture of her upon losing her garter in such a manner."

WORLD'S CAVALRY OFFICERS TO MEET IN STEEPLECHASE

International Race Is Planned for Next Year at Sandown Park.

DEPENDS ON VIEW OF AMERICAN OFFICIALS

Mr. Perry Belmont and President Taft's Brother Are Interested in Project and Are Hopeful.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

If the United States government supports the project there will be an international steeplechase meet between officers of the armies of the world at Sandown Park next summer.

Mr. Perry Belmont, president of the National Hunt Association, says he has been working for it for some time. He talked with Mr. C. P. Taft, brother of the President, and Mr. William H. Moore on the subject at the Olympia Horse Show this week, and they will lend their hearty support.

The Sandown Park directors will offer substantial prizes. Mr. Belmont has obtained promises from several European countries to compete. Lord Suffolk is co-operating in England, and, dependent on the attitude of the United States authorities, there is every prospect of brilliant success. Mr. Belmont thinks that American officers have an excellent chance of winning. He says:—

"The project is part of the continued effort to place American cavalry horses on a plane with the mounts of European cavalrymen."

MR. REID'S TASK IS ONE OF BURDENS

Ambassador, Harassed by Demands, Still Finds Time To Be a Genial Host.

AMERICANS IN ENGLAND

Some of the Plans of Well Known Persons for Their Entertainment During the Summer.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THOSE Americans who have established themselves in England for the summer have been laying siege to their harassed Ambassador to obtain favors quite out of his power to accomplish. In fact, Mr. Whitelaw Reid's position for some time before the coronation was no more a bed of roses than it was at the time of the courts.

So heavy have been the Ambassador's official duties that he has had little time for any big entertainment at Dorchester House, with the exception of the dinner and reception given for Mr. John Hays Hammond, representing the President of the United States at the coronation, and Mrs. Hammond. Mrs. Reid, however, has had innumerable guests and visitors, and has offered them some of the pleasantest hospitality in a quiet way.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft have been guests at Dorchester House, and their daughter has been a great favorite, winning the good graces of Queen Mary herself. On leaving London they are going on a long tour through England before returning to America in the fall.

The Duchess of Marlborough, among her coronation guests at Sunderland House, has her aunt, Mrs. Tiffany. There was a suggestion that the Duchess might be out of London during the coronation, a rumor which had no foundation. But Lady Dufferin, who was Miss Flora Davis, of New York, is one who did not come to London for the coronation festivities, preferring, according to the Onlooker, to celebrate the occasion with parties at her new house, in Putney, which she is still busy decorating. One room is done entirely in the Chinese style, with strange and beautiful embroideries and prints and carvings. The ballroom, which is very large, is not yet finished.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, who also do not intend to return to America till the fall, are going north after their visit to London is over, but they will, according to present plans, spend part of the autumn in Hungary, where they have rented some shooting from Prince Paul Esterhazy.

Mrs. Theodore Shonts, who is the guest of her daughter, the Duchesse de Chaulnes, in Paris at present, is to be in England soon with her daughter on a visit to the Duchess of Manchester, who is one of her intimate friends. The Duchesse de Chaulnes is now, however, a Parisian of Parisians and seldom goes elsewhere except on short visits. The Duchesse is devoted to her late husband's family, and she and her sister-in-law, the Duchesse d'Uzes, are fast friends. The young Duc de Chaulnes is being brought up on the lines of the old régime, and his pretty mother is so passionately attached to him that she refuses, although in Paris as in the country,

WHY WASH DAILY? ASKS MR. G. B. SHAW

Playwright Says He Does Not, and Finds His Genius Keeps Up Without Ablutions.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

MR. GEORGE BERNARD SHAW does not see much use in washing one's self every day. He says he does not do it himself and is no less a genius for it.

Invited to attend a meeting of the Anti-Smoke Abatement Society, he said:

"Smoke is a very common thing, and I know very little about it. Genius is a very uncommon thing, and I know all about it. I am in that line myself. Sir A. Wright, who brought me here, delivered an address a short while ago which contained a great deal of valuable matter about smoke which the press did not mention, but he casually let fall some words to the effect that he was rather sceptical as to the value of washing one a self, and he found himself famous.

"I have some sympathy with Dr Wright, for I have really not washed myself, except the obvious portions of my face and hands, since the time somebody else did it for me. I do, indeed, yield to a superstition that has become enormously attractive in the nineteenth century, and that is to indulge in a cold tub, but that is not washing. I do it as a stimulant. I think sometimes I might have done better had I taken some whiskey instead.

"As to our faces, well, look at them. There is only one lady in this room as to whom I can speak with absolute domestic authority as having washed her face two hours ago, and it wants washing again already. Really, according to any decent standard, there is not a person in this room who is not a disgrace."

NEW PLAY MAKES FUN OF MARRIAGE

Mr. C. B. Fernald's Work Is Similar in Style to Mr. Shaw's—All Talk and No Action.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE Incorporated Stage Society produced another new play before its members at the Aldwych Theatre called "The Married Woman," written by Mr. C. B. Fernald. It is so like in style to the work of Mr. Bernard Shaw that only an expert could tell the difference. Every character in it is a cynic and the wit is all sarcastic. There is absolutely no action in it, but pages and pages of talk, much of which is bright. All hands take turns at shooting off long winded views on what an undesirable state matrimony is. In the mind of the author it seems to have no redeeming feature. His characters, especially the women, were a catty lot, and for one I don't wonder that their marriages were not successful.

The play undoubtedly pleased the members of the society, but I imagine that if it were played before a general audience there would be more yawns than applause. There is time enough to take a nap in almost every speech, and still know what it's all about. That is, if anybody really does know what it's all about more than being ill tempered talk.

RED CROSS ACTION PLEASES CHINESE

[Special Despatch.]
SHANGHAI, Saturday.—The Chinese are enthusiastic over the news that the Red Cross is sending out an engineer, Mr. Charles Jamieson, to survey the famine region. They think his report will solve the famine question.

SNOBS IN THE ROW IMPERIL THE KING

Revival of Riding in London Has Its Serious Aspect as Well as Its Comic.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

KING George having set the fashion, there has been a great revival of riding in the Row in Hyde Park, but the comic may find malicious delight in the spectacle presented by the Row in the early morning, for it is now crowded with painful snobs of all degree, anxious to catch the King's eye when he takes his morning gallop.

The figures many of these cut on horseback, says an observer in "M. A. P.," are truly amusing, and remind one of the description of a certain sporting gentleman as "the horsiest man on foot, and the footiest man on a horse you ever saw."

There is, however, a more serious side to the comical antics of these "equestrians." Many of them have absolutely no control over their mounts. They do not even seem to know the rule of the road, and careen all over the Row, a nuisance and a danger to the King and other riders. The nuisance has grown to such an extent that many regular riders have deserted the Row or at least avoid being there at the same time as the King.

Promoters of Doubt.

Washington Star: "Every criminal is sure to leave a number of clews behind him."

"Yes, replied the old police officer. "I suspect that some of them leave as many clews as they can so as to keep the detectives theorizing while they catch a steamboat."

AMERICAN CHOSEN TO BE ADVISER TO PEKIN MINISTRY

Dr. John C. Ferguson Appointed to Post in Communications Department.

[Special Despatch.]
PEKIN, Saturday.

Dr. John C. Ferguson, an American, has been appointed adviser to the Ministry of Communications, which has charge of the railways, telegraphs and post offices of China.

Dr. Ferguson has long been a resident of China. He is the proprietor of the Shanghai Times and was president of Nanking University and also of Nanyang College in Shanghai, both Chinese institutions.

For several years he has held the post of adviser to the Viceroys at Nanking and Wuchang and has been closely associated in an advisory capacity with Sheng-Hsuan-Huai, Minister of Communications; Lord Li, Vice Minister, and Tuan Fang, Director General of Railways.

That his appointment was entirely unsolicited and not brought about through diplomatic influence is a high tribute to the valuable services which Dr. Ferguson has rendered to China.

Putting It in Practice.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Son, I hear you have joined the Boy Scout movement."

"Yes, dad."

"Well, suppose you scout ahead and see if your mother is sitting up for me."

AMERICANS JOIN A LONDON GOLF CLUB

All There Are Invited to Become Members of Organization for Tournaments.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday

SOME score or so of Americans who are more or less permanent residents here have formed a club for the benefit of American visitors who are golf enthusiasts. The object is to supply the visitors with a course on which they are at liberty to play whenever they feel like it without going to the inconvenience and expense of joining an English club or finding one that affiliates with the club the visitor belongs to at home.

All Americans over here are cordially invited to join it or take part in the tournaments. The secretary is Mr. F. E. Shearer, whose office is at No. 439 Oxford street, where all information can be obtained in detail.

Mr. C. S. Colton, a well known American business man who lives here, is one of the prime movers in the new club.

"A handful of us started this association about a year ago," said he, "with the idea of having tournaments among Americans on American holidays—that is, on four set days a year, New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Thanksgiving Day. The idea worked out so well and was so popular that we decided to form a real American club that would be a resort for visiting Americans.

"You see we all belong to clubs here, some of us to two or three, and so in the past we have been taking our visiting friends to our clubs. That was all right as far as it went, but it scattered the visitors among a lot of different clubs and we thought it would be a good idea to get them together. Hence this club, which is named the London-American Golfing Society."

JAPAN'S NATIONAL DEBT INCREASED

[Special Despatch.]
Tokio, Saturday.

ACCORDING to an official statement the national debt of Japan now stands at more than 2,050,000,000 yen ($1,025,000,000), working out an average of 51.09 yen ($25.75) per capita. In other words, the national indebtedness of Japan has increased nearly fivefold in ten short years.

As recently as 1900 the per capita figures were only 10.24 yen ($5.12), and during the ensuing two years increased to 12.68 yen ($6.41). Thereafter the rate of increment showed alarming acceleration, the per capita proportion making a prodigious jump from 12 yen ($6 odd) in 1903, to 28 yen ($14) in 1904, followed by an another enormous increase to 44 yen ($22) in 1905 which, of course, is explained by the great war.

Analyzing the various objects for which this indebtedness has been incurred, it is seen that nearly one-half the huge total, or 1,200,000,000 ($600,000,000) is on account of military and war expenditure. Of the remainder, 607,500,000 ($300,750,000) has been expended in connection with railroads and other public works (800,000,000 ($400,000,000) for the financial adjustment scheme and 23,000,000 ($14,500,000) on account of new Japanese territories.

Under the latest budget, justice, education, agriculture, trade and communications are allotted only a fifth of the total expenditure. It would seem, therefore, that Japan is doing all that is humanly possible to develop the efficiency of her fighting arm at the expense of productive domestic activities.

THE ENTRIES HAVE CLOSED

From Farm and Dairy.

With the possible exception of two entries concerning which there has been some correspondence, the entries in the Interprovincial Prize Farm's Competition for 1911 and 1912, have closed. Altogether there are 35 entries compared with 46 entries in the competition held two years ago. As, however, 10 of these entries are from the province of Quebec, it will be seen that the number of entries from Ontario in this competition are much less than in the competition held two years ago. We find it hard to account for this as the competition has been equally as well advertised, the only possible explanation being the extra shortage of labor.

The fact that three counties in the province of Quebec have entered almost one-third as many farms as the whole province of Ontario, shows that the farmers of this famous section of Quebec are thoroughly progressive and indicates, as we have intimated before, that Ontario will have a hard time in the Interprovincial Contest next year. The famous gold and silver medal farm of Mr. R. R. Ness, of Howick, Que., is included among the entries from that province.

Owing to the fact that only six entries were received from districts 4 and 5 in western Ontario, in each of which 10 prizes were offered, the committee, in accordance with the rules of the competition, has revised these districts, making them into one, and including two entries from that portion of the county of York, east of Yonge street, that otherwise would have been in district No. 4, covering all of western Ontario and York county.

THE JUDGES

The judging of the farms will commence in Quebec during the first week in July. In the province of Quebec, through the kindness of Hon. Mr. Caron, Minister of Agriculture, arrangements have been completed with Mr. I. J. A. Marsan, of L'Assomption, Que., the secretary, by which the judges sent out by the Quebec Department of Agriculture, to judge the farms entered in a special contest being held in that portion of Quebec this year by the Quebec Department of Agriculture, will also judge the farms entered in Farm and Dairy's Prize Farm's contest. These judges are Mr. Thomas Drysale, Allan's Corners, County of Chateauguay, and Arsene Dennis, St. Norbert Station, County of Berthier, P. Q., who have been kind enough to consent to act. All the farms entered in Farm and Dairy's contest, with the exception of the farm of Mr. Ness, which being a gold medal farm, is not eligible to compete, have been entered in the Provincial Farm's Competition this year. The courtesy of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, and of the officers of the Provincial Farm's contest, in granting this assistance, is much appreciated

The farms in Districts 2 and 3 of Ontario, will be judged by Mr. Henry Glendinning of Manilla, president of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, and the well known institute speaker and dairy authority, who judged the farms in western Ontario in the contest held two years ago, assisted by Mr. F. E. Ellis, B.S.A., one of the editors of Farm and Dairy. The farms in western Ontario will be judged by Mr. Simpson Rennie, Ontario's famous gold medal farmer, and by Mr. Chas. C. Nixon, B.S.A., another of the editors of Farm and Dairy.

THE CONTESTANTS

One noticeable feature of the Prize Farm's Competition held this year, is the fact that only four farms in Ontario that were entered in the contest held during the past two years, have re-entered this year's contest. The prize-winning farmers of the past competition seem content to rest upon their laurels.

The farms entered in the various districts are as follows:

District No. 1—Including the counties of Chateauguay, Beaurnhois and Huntingdon, in the province of Quebec.—Jas. Ritchie, Dewittville; John Brown and John W. Logan, Howick Station; John Geddes, Andrew Geddes and R. D. McNeil, of Ormstown; Jas. McKell, Riverfield; Alex Younie, Brysonville; R. R. Ness, Howick, and Stirret Cameron, Dundee, Que.

District No. 2—That portion of Ontario lying east of Kingston.—J. D. McInnes, Glen Payne, Ont., Stormont county; J. E. Caldwell, City View, Carleton county; W. W. Hicock, Seeley's Bay, Leeds County; T. J. Graham, Britannia Bay, and W. F. Bell, Britannia Bay, Carleton county; Wm. Wightman, Lancaster, Glengarry County; Wm. H. Gallinger, Cornwall, Stormont county.

District No. 3.—That portion of Ontario lying between Toronto and Kingston, not including the county of York.—J. A. Stewart, Sr., Menie, Northumberland county; Chas. Dunn, Little Britain, Victoria county; S. A. Northcott, Taunton, Ontario county; C. Howsen, Keene, W. Telford, Bridgenorth, and C. & E. Telford, Bridgenorth, Peterborough county; E. Budd, Prescious Cors., Northumberland county; R. E. Gunn, Beaverton, Ontario county; Jas. Gay, Frankford, Northumberland county; Geo. W. Anderson, Rossmore, Prince Edward county.

District No. 4, being all of western Ontario, including all of York county.—Wm. James and R. F. Hicks, Newtonbrook; W. A. Patterson, Agincourt, and J. C. Bales, Lansing, all of York county, Ont.; Jas. Pate, Brantford; Isaac Holland, Brownsville, Oxford county; Wm. Jull, Norwich, Oxford county; A. S. Turner & Son, Ryckman's Cors., Wentworth county.

FOR 25 YEARS HE SUFFERED

Well Known Merchant Of Sarnia Cured by "Fruit-a-tives"

SARNIA, ONT., Feb. 5th, 1910.

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of The Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors but derived no benefit whatever.

Finally I read an advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives". I decided to give "Fruit-a-tives" a trial and found they did exactly what was claimed for them.

I have now taken "Fruit-a-tives" for some months and find that they are the only remedy that does me good.

I have recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to a great many of my friends and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly"

PAUL J. JONES

Thousands now use "Fruit-a-tives". Thousands more will try Fruit-a-tives" after reading the above letter. It proves, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that at last there is a cure for Constipation and Stomach Troubles.

WEAK STOMACHS MADE STRONG

Through Tonic Treatment With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

After all has been said about indigestion and stomach trouble, there is only one way to get a real cure. The stomach must be made strong enough to do its own work. Indigestion disappears when the stomach has been made strong enough to digest ordinary plain food. This strength can only be given the stomach through the tonic treatment supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood ,strengthens the nerves and thus enables the stomach to perform the duties which nature intended it should. In every neighbourhood you can find people who have been cured of indigestion or other stomach troubles after a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this is the best proof that they are the one remedy to successfully do this. Mr. D. B. McLean, Sterling, N.S., says: "For a couple of years I suffered very much from indigestion with most of the accompanying painful symptoms. As a result I became very much run down, and as the medicines I tried did not give me any relief I grew melancholy and unhappy, and felt as though my constitution was breaking down. Quite accidentally my attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them, and I am happy to say that they affected a complete cure and made my stomach as strong as ever it had been. I am glad to say a few words in praise of the medicine that cured me, and I hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

Enrich the blood and you banish most of the every day ailments of humanity, and you can enrich it quickest and best by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A GREAT MISTAKE

From Farm and Dairy.

L. C. Smith, Peel Co., Ont.

"It is a cruel practice to subject calves to the hot sun and the torments of flies during hot weather; yet it is a very common thing to see calves tied out in the hot sun all day long and where they have to pant to get their breath. A combination of the heat with the fly pests is sufficient to cause any animal not to do well, and often they cannot even hold their own."

I just read the above in a United States paper, and the ideas here expressed are my sentiments exactly. How many poor little runts of calves we see running around the pastures these hot days fighting with the flies, suffering from heat, and not a bit of shade except such as is afforded by a rail fence! I always have a feeling of satisfaction when I see calves kept under such conditions and then think of our calves at home in a cool basement stable, with no flies to bother them, putting on flesh and preparing to make good records at the pail in the not very distant future.

It is cruel to force the calves to fight with flies and swelter in the heat. I have another reason as well for not allowing such a practice on my farm. It doesn't pay. The calf of to-day is the dairy producer of tomorrow. Whether male or female, the start that they are making now determines their usefulness later on. The bull calf that is stunted in his youth is never a very satisfactory sire. We all know that a strong, vigorous, well grown heifer makes the best cow.

I prefer fall calves to spring, because we can then give them, in the first few months of their life, ideal conditions to make a vigorous growth. What calves do come in the spring, however, are not turned on pasture till three or four months old, and then the orchard is utilized as a calf pasture. Here there is shade in abundance. Water is supplied to them a couple of times daily. They get thirsty in hot weather the same as we do, and need a drink in addition to the skim milk supplied. When kept in the stable they are offered water once a day.

THE OFFICIALS

From Farm and Dairy.

Officials in connection with the new extension work of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, are now located in Peterboro, Lanark and Oxford counties, Ontario; St. Hyacinthe and Brome, Que., and at Kensington, P.E.I. They are gathering specific information as to the exact standing of the dairying industry in the district; each such district is termed a dairy record centre. Each farmer within a certain area will be called on, and there will be obtained from him a statement as to the number of acres cultivated and in pasture, the number of cows, the type of sire, the weight of milk sent to the factory, the milk used at home, the cost of feed, and so on. When these statements are compiled there will be definite and valuable information for the encouragement of other dairymen. It is intended to follow up this work closely for a number of years both in these and other sections.

The recorders are paying special attention to the encouragement of cow testing in these districts; they are already collecting weights and tests of about 4000 cows, so that it is evident that a tremendous impetus is being given to cow testing by this new forward movement.

A special bulletin on cow testing is available to all applicants. Forms for recording weights of milk are supplied free by the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa. When applying, state the number of cows, and whether forms are wanted for weighing daily, or on only three days each month.—C. F. Whitely, in Charge of Records, Ottawa, Ont.

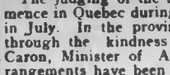
HAS BEEN MODIFIED

From Farm and Dairy.

Regulation 2, section 4, paragraph 2, of the regulations issued by the Secretary, United States Department of Agriculture, under date of November 25, 1910, and amendment thereto, issued December 20, 1910, regarding the recognition of specific breeds of horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs registered in the Canadian National Records has been modified so as to provide that no animal or animals registered in the Canadian National Records shall be certified by the Secretary of Agriculture as pure bred except those which trace, in all crosses, to registered animals in the country where the breed originated, or to animals which are proved to the satisfaction of the department to be of the same breed and that have been imported into the United States or Canada from the country in which the breed originated.



The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of those experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds Himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is entirely free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

AMONG THE MICMACS

MARITIME TRIBE DWINDLING FROM FORMER GLORY.

Reservation on Bay Chaleur, With Its Little Mission, Is the Home of Remnant of Tribe That Dominated New Brunswick — The Children Knew No English a Few Months Ago, But Are Progressing Rapidly.

Extending from the mouth of the Grand Cascapedia River westward, along the shore of Bay Chaleur for a distance of two miles, is the Indian Reservation of Maria; known as La Pointe Sauvage or Indian Point. This tract of land was granted to the Indians in the year 1800, and comprises three hundred and fifty acres of good arable land beautifully situated on the Baie des Chaleurs, says G. M. MacWhirter in The Canadian Century.

The inhabitants are a remnant of the old Micmac tribe which once roamed over the Province of New Brunswick. The first chief of this Mission was Gilbert Martin, who lived to the great age of one hundred and ten years. His wife was equally tenacious of life, attaining the age of one hundred and eleven years. The present chief is Abraham Martin. Elections for the office are held every three years. It is the duty of the chief to preserve order and settle disputes.

The people of Indian Point are Roman Catholic in religion. Their first settled priest was Rev. Father Bosse, and their church was built in 1838, being erected by the Indians themselves at a cost of nine hundred dollars. Mass is celebrated once a month by the priest of St. Jules.

Educational matters are not neglected in this settlement of the red men. The present teacher instructs them in English and French at a salary of three hundred and fifty dollars per annum. Visiting this interesting school lately, the writer found a snug and comfortable building; the walls adorned with prints of King George and Queen Mary. The teacher, Miss Josephine Audet, is most energetic and much interested in the progress of her pupils, who are docile and quick to learn. There is an enrolment of twenty-nine scholars, and an average attendance of twenty. She told me that when she took charge of them six months before, they were entirely ignorant of English. She was compelled to point to an article and pronounce the English word: thus little by little they acquired words; and as the teacher knew no Micmac we can imagine how trying those first days must have been. A class in the Third Reader read in English and spelled for me. The little girl at the head of the class knew her multiplication table perfectly, replying so readily that one marvelled at the rapidity of question and answer. I was much struck with the musical voices of the children as they sang an Ave Maria. The desire of the teacher's heart is to obtain an organ for use in the school. She spoke gratefully of the interest taken in her school by Hon. Charles Marcil. With great good-will she marshalled her pupils into position while I endeavored to get a photograph of them.

At present there are one hundred and fifty persons on the reservation: the oldest being Etienne Dedam. The wigwams of the aborigines have been displaced by houses similar to those of their white neighbors, and in many instances comfortable houses and barns testify to the energy and ambition of the owners. The occupations of the Indians are various: during the winter many work in the lumber camps, while others hunt, fish or make mocassins, snow-shoes and baskets, and in the summer they act as guides to the sportsmen and as ship laborers, while between times they do a little farming and berry-picking.

The Indians are very hospitable. The story is related of an Irishman's experience along this line. Although fifty years have passed since the incident occurred the tale has lost none of its interest. The man had occasion to visit the Mission and was invited to dinner. In order to induce him to remain his host remarked with evident satisfaction:

"Duck for dinner, not fly-away duck; bow-wow duck!"

When the savoury dish appeared and proved to be young dog the visitor suddenly discovered that his business was too pressing to permit him to remain, and hastily withdrew. Another visitor, no longer than twenty years ago, ate heartily of porcupine, and pronounced it excellent, "Just like other meat."

The Indians are full of resource when times are hard. Dressing himself in his most dilapidated garments, old Louis Jerome presents himself at the stores of the neighboring village, where his story and appearance are sure of reward, although all are up to his dodge to secure charity. One year he tried a more ambitious plan. During Lord Lansdowne's term of office in Canada he received from Louis, who had been one of his canoe-men on the Grand Cascapedia, a letter which read something like this:

"Mister Governor-General, Writin' you to let you know very hard times here, no breakfast last night no supper this morning, if you'll be good enough send me ten dollars will pay you polin nex summer if you do so will be very much surprised Louis Jerome."

Lord Lansdowne, greatly amused at this characteristic epistle, responded to the Chief's "surprise" and satisfaction.

In the early days the Government had supplied seed-grain to the Indians; each man was allowed as much land as he could clear.

The number of people on the reservation has decreased greatly since his young days. A large picture of the ex-chief and other photographs adorn the walls.

Lots of Mary's.

"Mary" is the name one of in every seven of the girl scholars at North Harringay School, London, England.

The flies that are now in your kitchen and dining room were probably feasting on some indescribable nastiness less than an hour ago, and as a single fly often carries many thousands of disease germs attached to its hairy body, it is the duty of every housekeeper to assist in exterminating this worst enemy of the human race.

CHEERS IN MINORITY.

Mr. Borden Is Still Meeting With Reciprocity Sentiment.

Vermilion (Alta., June 30.—The Conservative leader held his last meeting in the Province of Alberta at Vegreville yesterday afternoon. In the evening he spoke at Lloydminster, which is on the border between the two provinces. The main street is the dividing line, and Mr. Borden's meeting was held on the Saskatchewan side.

The audience in Vegreville exceeded the capacity of the Town Hall. As usual the personal reception accorded the Opposition Leader was enthusiastic. A large section of the audience cheered the reciprocity arguments, but apparently it was not a majority. Vegreville is in a Liberal constituency. A civic address was read by the mayor, who is a Liberal.

The Conservative Association of Fort Saskatchewan presented an address of welcome, in which it was declared that reciprocity can confer no benefit, and can only work injury to the country and the Empire.

In the morning addresses were presented by two locals of the United Farmers of Alberta. That from Vegreville was along the customary lines. That from Lavoy began by stating that this society is framed independent of party politics, and the farmers of Western Canada will support the party which is willing to support their end. Then, dealing with Mr. Borden's statements on the Hudson Bay Railway, terminal elevators and the chilled meat trade, it went on to express satisfaction at the Opposition Leader's plans.

Memorial to Tecumseh.

Chatham, June 30.—The citizens of Thamesville have decided to erect a boulder on the battlefield of Moraviantown, to commemorate that important event in history, and also to establish a mark of esteem for the Indian Chief Tecumseh. John McDowell, on whose farm the site is situated, has donated sufficient ground for the erection of the boulder, and the citizens of Thamesville have already subscribed the funds, so that Kent County's greatest historical site will be plainly indicated.

This has again aroused in Chatham the interest in a public monument to Tecumseh, to be erected in Tecumseh Park here. It is quite likely a subscription will be started with this object in view.

Big New Office Building.

Montreal, June 30.—Tenders for the erection of a new ten-storey $530,000 office and factory building on St. Catherine street west, between Mance and Balmoral streets, were called for yesterday by Messrs. Henry Morgan & Co. The new building will have a frontage of 150 feet on St. Catharines street and a depth of 100 feet.

Getting Big Prices.

Chatham, June 30.—Horse buying was brisk on the local market yesterday. An eastern buyer named Smith was holding forth, paying all the way from $150 to $250 a head for horses.

Hogs are still commanding $6.75; hay brought $10 a ton and oats 38c and 40c. a bushel.

Troops Lined the Route.

Madrid, June 30.—The Eucharistic Congress closed yesterday with a long and brilliant procession through the principal thoroughfares, which were lined with cordons of troops, because of rumors that there might be clashes between the paraders and the Republicans.

The procession marched from St. Jerome Church to the Royal Palace, where, in the presence of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, Cardinal Aguirre pronounced the benediction.

The organizers of the demonstration had requested those who took part to maintain absolute silence, so as not to afford opportunity for a hostile demonstration.

The Republican newspapers last evening call attention to the tolerance exhibited toward the Catholics, and demand that the same rights be granted them on the occasion of their open air assemblages.

Farewell to Connaught.

London, June 30.—The American ambassador and Mrs. Reid gave a dinner at Dorchester House last night which was in the nature of a farewell to the Duke of Connaught, who is leaving, after the King's visit to Ireland, Scotland and Wales, for Canada to assume the Governor-Generalship.

The duke was accompanied by the duchess, Princess Patricia, and Prince Arthur of Connaught, and the party invited to meet them formed a most distinguished company of diplomats, statesmen, and persons socially prominent. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier, was among those present and many Americans and colonials came in to the dance which followed the dinner.

Mann and Mackenzie Home-Bound.

Montreal, June 30.—Sir Donald Mann, vice-president of the C.N.R., and Col. A. D. Davidson, land commissioner for the company, are due to arrive in New York on the Mauretania to-day. Sir William Mackenzie, president of the company, left England Wednesday on the Royal Edward, and is due at Montreal next Wednesday.

Conservative Nominations.

Ottawa, June 30.—Specials yesterday afternoon from Pembroke announce definitely that Gerald White, M.P., is the unanimous choice of the Conservative convention there, and from Carleton Place that Wm. Thoburn and Dr. Preston, M.P.P., will respectively be the federal and provincial nominees for the riding of North Lanark.

Fatal Seizure While Fishing.

Brockville, June 30.—Abram Abraham, a partner of Nathan Strauss of New York and a life long friend of Mayor Gaynor, died on Wednesday at his summer home at Cherry Island, near Alexander Bay, on Tuesday. While fishing from a motor boat he was seized with a fatal attack of acute indigestion.

Held Up on Bridge at Midnight.

Kingston, June 30.—Edward Williams, a waiter at the Frontenac Club, was held up on Cataraqui bridge after midnight Wednesday by a thug. A blow on the jaw followed his refusal to give up money. This is the second time within three weeks that Williams has been held up on this bridge.

The first aspirant for Legislative honours in West Peterborough has declared himself, in the person of Mr. Robert N. Scott, now of Peterborough who, in an interview with an Examiner representative, expressed his intention of presenting himself as a candidate for the nomination of the West Peterborough Conservatives to contest the riding for the Ontario legislature. Mr. Scott, is widey known in the district, having been reeve of Smith for some years and Warden of the Peterborough County Council. It has been generally known for some time that Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., who has represented West Peterborough in the Legislature for the past two terms is about to retire from public life. Mr. Scott is the first to announce himself as a candidate for Mr. Bradburn's shoes.

SEVEN WORKMEN CRUSHED TO DEATH HORRIBLE ACCIDENT AT BUFFALO

Roof and Part of Walls of New Pumping Station Collapsed, Burying In Its Fall A Number of Workmen Who Had No Chance To Escape---Seven Other Persons Were Seriously Injured---Cause of the Accident Is At Present Unknown.

Special Wire to the Examiner.

BUFFALO, N.Y., JUNE 9.—A horrible accident occurred here this morning which resulted in the death of seven people and serious injury to a similar number. Workmen were engaged at the new pumping station in connection with the water works system, when ,without warning, the roof and part of the wall collapsed, and the unfortunate men were caught like rats in a trap. The killed were at the work in the pit of the pump house and had not a chance to escape, being buried and crushed beneathed the weight of a hundred tons of steel, brick and mortar. So far as has been ascertained the cause of the accident is unknown. Some of those hurt are very badly injured.

RECIPROCITY WILL SWEEP THE CANADIAN NORTHWEST

EDMONTON, JUNE 9.—Hon. Frank Oliver, who was an interested auditor-at Mr. Borden's Edmonton meeting, stated to-day that after touring Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and holding political meetings at most of the important centres, he was more convinced than ever that on the reciprocity issue the Government would greatly increase its support in all three Provinces. He has found absolutely no defections from the Liberal ranks, while on the other hand in every riding scores of electors who, in 1908, voted Conservative, have openly announced their intention of supporting the Government's proposals at the polls when the opportunity comes.

Mr. Oliver will hold a number of further meetings before returning to Ottawa on July 18.

DR. CLIFFORD'S ADDRESS AT LAYING OF CORNER STONE OF THE NEW MURRAY ST. CHURCH

Eminent Visitor Speaks on the "Contributions of a Baptist Church to the Life of a Growing City."---Mr. S. J. Moore and Mr. F. Sanderson of Toronto were the Other Outside Speakers at Yesterday's Successful Event

As stated in the Examiner yesterday, the laying of the corner stone of the new Murray street Baptist church by Rev. Dr. Clifford was in every way a great success, the scheduled programme being carried out without a hitch, while the address of Dr. Clifford, and the remarks of the other speakers were followed with easer attention. Those in charge are to be congratulated upon the successful manner in which the arrangements for the ceremony were carried out.

Rev. Dr. Clifford arrived promptly at 2.40 o'clock and as he was driven up opposite the platform, was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

The particulars of the laying of the stone were fully reported in yesterday's issue and need no further mention here. Mr. T. F. Matthews acted as chairman and performed the duties of that important position with ease and effect.

A pleasing incident was the bestowing by Dr. Clifford of a hearty kiss upon little Robina Hardwick, the winsome child who presented him with the silver trowel with which to lay the stone.

Mr. Matthews in introducing Dr Clifford, referred to him as the foremost Baptist minister.

Dr. Clifford's Address.

Rev. Dr. Clifford, on commencing his address upon the subject, "The Contributions of a Baptist Church to the Life of a Growing City," remarked that the occasion was one of the greatest joys of his life. He had not anticipated the privilege of coming to Peterborough during his present pilgrimage, in which he had the supreme desire of more firmly joining the bonds between this country and the Old Country, and of extending the work of the Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. In the first place he desired to express his appreciation and recognition of the kindness of the people, particularly the Rector of St. John's, in consecrating, as it were, the ceremony by the public use of the chimes. It was an indication o Is spirit of unity that they did not get too frequently in the Old Country, and he welcomed it with enthusiasm and accepted it as a prophecy of the closer union that must come. He was grateful indeed, for the appreciative address of welcome that had been tendered him, and would welcome the privilege of again gazing upon the face of the little girl who had presented him with the silver trowel, in order that he might carry it in his memory back with him to England. He wished, too, to express his appreciation of the kindly and hearty reception he had received from the Chairman, Mr. T. F. Matthews, and from the pastor of Murray Street Church, Rev. J. R. Webb.

Rev. Dr. Clifford remarked that he was announced to speak upon "The Contributions of a Baptist Church to the Life of a Growing City". In doing so he would be speaking to a more or less extent of the contributions of all churches. In this sense there were two classes of contributions that might be mentioned---the first perfectly obvious and requiring cataloguing; the second, though intangible, nevertheless real. It was of this second class that he proposed to speak.

He illustrated his first point by reminding the gathering that there was another Peterborough---one in the Old Country, and drew a picture of the condition of a Baptist Church in that city at the beginning of the last century. Kept up by an endowment, it had but four or five members and seemed of little use. The beginning of railway expansion, however, opened an area of industrial growth, and the Baptist Church grew correspondingly. With its growth it brought forth in Thomas Barrows a most noteworthy figure, whose ministration was greatly blessed, and whose good work was proverbial.

This was one of the contributions that Baptist churches made to a city---the gift of good ministers. "You can't do a better thing for a city," remarked Dr. Clifford, emphatically, "than to put a man like Mr. Webb at the head of one of its churches".

He, himself, had been sometimes called a politician, a publicist, but he preferred to be known as he was known to the people among whom he had ministered for sixty years, as their minister, sharing their joys, consoling them in their sorrows, ministering to them by inspiration as well as by teaching. Nothing took precedence in a contribution to the life of a city than a really live pastor, contributing the force of a strong personality.

Then, the Baptist Church contributed by supplying men capable of taking municipal positions, men of honesty of purpose, and of conviction. "We Baptists," he remarked, "have made Lloyd-George the foremost statesmen in Britain to-day. He was brought up in a Baptist Sunday School, trained in a Baptist church, and gets his conceptions of statesmanship in the Baptist Church to such an extent that he has brought in a Baptist budget." — (Applause).

Every true church was a creator of optimism. He, himself, was not ashamed to be an optimist. He presumed they knew the word "grouchy." (Laughter.) He himself had not heard it until it came from the lips of a Professor of Chicago University, and upon interrogation he had found that it meant a person that closely resembled an unripe gooseberry—sour, acrid, bitter. To his mind, the last individual to be "grouchy" was an aged Christian. One effect of the Baptist Church was to develop among people a spirit of hopefulness and optimism.

Again, the Bpatist Church made men of conviction and courage. It taught people to think, and this was one of the noblest ways possible to assist a city. He quoted from Lloyd George to the effect that the men to stand most firmly against the Castle were the men of the little Baptist chapels throughout the land. Thus, one of the contributions of the Baptist Church was to increase courage to develop men, so that they will be able to accept the fiercest challenges that come to them in life.

Another contribution of the Baptist Church was faith, and the speaker pointed out that by preaching the Gospel they would Canadianize and Christianize the immigrants that were pouring into Canada from the different countries of Europe. In closing, he wished the congregation of the Murray Street Baptist Church every success.

Offering Taken Up.

Rev. J. R. Webb, the pastor of the church, in announcing the offering, made a plea for a liberal response. He stated that when the question of a new church was before the committee they had felt that no site was too good for the new Baptist edifice, and they accordingly chose the present site, facing the park, which alone involved an outlay of nearly $10,000. He felt that in building a magnificent stone building, with accommodation for 900 people, and a Sunday School, holding 500, in such a prominent place, they should receive the hearty support, not only of the Baptists of the city, but of the citizens generally. They felt that they could not put a poor building on such a splendid location, and their church would be worthy of it's site.

Hon. Mr. Stratton's Remarks.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., said that he did not purpose detaining the gathering very long. He knew that they had come to hear the distinguished visitors from outside, and he did not wish to take up their time However, he was glad of the opportunity to thank Rev. Mr. Webb for

SEVERAL CHARGES OF VAGRANCY WERE HEARD SMALL BOYS CHARGED WITH WINDOW BREAKING

Three young men appeared in the Police Court this morning on a charge of vagrancy, and two of them were remanded, while the third was allowed to go.

Joe. Reynolds was the first. He was found lying in a barn, and could not give a satisfactory account of himself. He was remanded until Tuesday, in order that the officers who arrested him could be present, and give the necessary evidence.

Theodore Jardine, who was remanded for a week on a charge of trying to obtain money. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared on behalf of the prisoner. He stated that the prisoner belonged to a good family and his only trouble was drink. His record was produced and went to show that he had been up on charges of drunkenness, and once was fined $50 for getting drunk, while on the black list, or, as the charge read, violating the Liquor License Act. The Magistrate told him he could go but that he must get out of the city.

A local young man was charged with vagrancy. He was found sleeping in a barn or shed. He stated that he was drunk, and that he had other places to stay. The case was enlarged until Tuesday.

Another young man, arraigned on the same charge, also said he was drunk. The Magistrate let him go.

Six little boys were arraigned on a charge of breaking 37 squares of glass in the Central School. The charge was not formal. His Worship gave them advice, as follows: "Some boys get the idea that as soon as a place is empty, so they can go and break glass without being seen, that it is no harm. I have been trying to put down this evil, and I cannot let you go. There are six of you, and for each of you pay $1.00 within the next week, I will not lay a formal charge against you, and the $6.00 will go to the School Board to pay for the damaged windows. You will have to stand the consequences of your bad actions."

A CLEVER NEW SWINDLE HAS BEEN WORKED

New York, June 28.—A letter to a jewelers' trade paper here from two men ,who boasted of having acquired $10,000 during the past two months by the "penny weight game" set detectives to-day on the trail of a pair of clever crooks who have been swindling jewelers in several large cities throughout the country. A description of the pair was given by Wm. Koontz, a local jeweler, who was their victim a few days ago.

The "game" was worked on Mr. Koontz and others of the trade by a bare-headed man who entered their establishments, saying he had just come in from a near-by drug store and wanted to look at diamond rings. While he was examining a trayful his companion came in, and while he occupied the jeweler's attention with a broken watch the bare headed man substituted a cheap ring for a valuable one from the jeweler's stock.

The letter to the jeweler's paper was mailed from Chattanooga, Tenn.

DR. CLIFFORD PAID A GLOWING TRIBUTE TO LLOYD-GEORGE AT THE OPERA HOUSE LAST NIGHT

Delivers an Inspiring and Impressive Address on "Social Evolution" to a Packed House.---The Eminent Divine Was Given a Warm Reception.---Will Proceed to Montreal.

Rev. Dr. John Clifford, M.A., B.Sc., L.L.D., D.D., England's great Nonconformist leader and orator, held a capacity audience spellbound with the magic of his eloquence and the clearness of his logic for an hour's duration last night at the Grand Opera House.

The subject of Dr. Clifford's speech was Social Evolution in Britain. It involved a wide range of subjects, including religion and politics. This renowned preacher, like many other famous orators, begins quietly, gradually increasing in vigour, till he reaches the supreme climax which carries everything before it. He is a man of 74 years of age, with thin, white hair, but his vigour is prodigious and compelling. He is famous for his smoothness of speech, clearness of enunciation and his wonderful flow of language, and no greater indication of the appreciation could have been given than the absolute silence that prevailed throughout his address, an even more noticeable tribute than the outburst of applause at its peroration.

Mayor Morrow was the chairman of the evening and in his introductory remarks expressed his appreciation at the honour conferred upon him, and the pleasure which was his in having to introduce such a distinguished gentleman as Dr. Clifford. (Applause.)

"Although I am teaching social evolution, I shall still consider myself as preaching the gospel," was one of the opening remarks of Dr. Clifford.

I don't think that it is easy for you, as a nation, to get through life with the many nationalities that you have at your door. But ease is not the thing; struggle, make use of the energy that you are endowed with to the culmination of the higher inspirations of life. To-day we stand at the dawning of a brighter era, a brighter one than has ever been recorded in the history of mankind.

Hard Times.

The attitude of the people in the old land from 1800 to 1830 was one of strong antipathy towards the government. The toiling masses had scarcely means enough to keep body and soul together, wages were low and the times were undeniably hard.

It is impossible for us, without minutely reading the history of that dark age, to imagine or conjure in our minds, a vague conception of the country's real condition at that period.

But in 1832, a change for the better took place, the crisis had reached the vortex. The middle classes commenced to undertake the responsibilities of political life. The people's attitude towards the government became more friendly—they had a strong conception of a new political dawn. The London School Board was inaugurated; formerly the children had been allowed to grow up untrained and ignorant.

A Reaction Sets In.

There was throughout the country the expectation among the working classes that this new era which was dawning would be the means of producing more factories, industries and better times. At all events, the social aspect had been raised to a considerable extent.

Praises Recent Legislation.

Dr. Clifford has a high opinion of Lloyd George and his Budget legislation.

He calls Lloyd-George, "the finest incarnation of the spirit of social service." "I have known him intimately for 25 years," he said, "and can testify not only to his commanding genius, but also to the sincerity and reality of his devotion to the service of the people. He is the spirit of broad, deep, human sympathy. The Budget of Lloyd-George is based on a broad and remedial sympathy with man as man."

"It provides for the invalid," he said, "brings the worker from the place where work is scarce to where it is abundant. It enlists state forces against tuberculosis, invalidism, etc., and is a means of protection in old age. All this is simply the principles of the 25th chapter of St. Matthew turned into practical legislation."

Dr. Clifford, who was one of the three British peace delegates to the United States, gave high praise to President Taft. "I was prepared for his geniality, the great personality of the man," he declared, "but what impressed me most was the great humility of the man. When I thanked him for taking the lead in this great movement, he disclaimed personal credit and stated that he simply voiced the uprising conviction of the nations of the earth in favour of the extinction of war, and alluded to the hearty and enthusiastic way in which Sir Edward Grey had met the overtures and their acceptance, also by Mr. Balfour and the House of Commons."

Unemployed.

One difficult problem that you have not here in this new country, but one that is a very prominentone in the old land, is the "unemployed," but thanks to Lloyd-George's legislation, and the inevitable outcome of social evolution, it will soon be a thing of the past.

The taxation of large incomes and the elimination of the tyrannical land owners were also two vital questions which Lloyd George deals with in his budget. In the small villages in the old country it was almost impossible to get a small holding. The congestion of the large cities was in no small measure responsible for the existence of these condit ions. But it is only a matter of a few years until you will see the influx turn the other way, from the cities to the country.

In the centre of that great metropolis, London, England, there is to be erected a statue commemorating the name of one of the greatest statesman that the world has ever known, Ewart Gladstone. It was not for his fame as a speaker that he was given the position of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, but by the opening of the door of the cottage to the advent of the cheap loaf. It was by this means and others of a like nature that his name is writen high in the scroll of fame to-day.

Before the young people of to-day lie unbounded possibilities. Can not you, for the small, insignificant things of this life, aim high,endeavour to develop a high moral and social standing in this world. To do this, it is not necessary that you should have a large brain, but it is necessary that you should have a large heart, live nobly, live high, get into parliament if you can, get into the Council if your fellowmen so desire, and by all means gird on your sword of righteous judgment, conquer and overcome those difficulties which will constantly beset your path, endeavour to infuse the self same spirit into your fellow men, and by a centralization and concentration of united effort, endeavour to advance this new era of social evolution. (Applause.)

Rev. Isaac Couch, in moving a vote of thanks, made a glowing tribute to the good work done by the famous preacher. We are all loyal to the Mother land, he said. We are well aware of the fact that advanced progress and social reform came from east to west. We will say to Dr. Clifford that we are delighted in acknowledging this fair Dominion of ours as the daughter of the Mother land. (Applause.) The coming of this great man to the continent, to Canada and to Peterborough, has been a blessing. My soul has been stirred, and I am sure yours also by the powerful and compelling address given by the distinguished Doctor to-night. (Applause.)

In seconding Mr. Couch's motion, the Rev. H. J. Keith made kindly reference to the weight of years which had fallen upon the Reverend Doctor so lightly. "I have been lost in the vigour of the man," he said. Dr. Clifford's stirring address impresses upon our minds the fact that the old land

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

FRIDAY, JUNE 30, 1911

DOMINION DAY, NO. 44.

To-morrow Canada enters upon its forty-fourth year as a confederated Dominion. Confederation has long since passed the experimental stage, and has developed into a pronounced and assured success. If progress, growth and prosperity are any indications, all doubt is removed. Canada has, since 1867, made incalculable progress. Those who can carry their memory back to forty or even thirty years ago, can note with pride and astonishment, the changes that even a few years have wrought. Forty years ago Canada was little and unknown. She was a mere geographical entity to the world at-large. Now, Canada has taken so prominent a position in the world of trade and enterprise, and political importance, that its name is known everywhere to every country, where boundless resources, great production and expanding trade are factors in international relations. The story of the growth of Canada and the development of its resources, position and self-confidence, would be a history of all its activities for forty years; but a few concrete examples of progress in one or two regards that are typical of national growth, will be interesting. The measure of national enterprise and the spirit of industry; of national, and popular prosperity, is trade and revenue. In 1868, the first year of Confederation, the total trade of Canada was $131,027,532. In the interval to 1911, or in forty-four years, it has grown to $759,094,389, a six-fold increase. A similar, but greater, increase of revenue, the measure of the purchasing power and prosperity of the people, is to be noted. In 1868 the total revenue of Canada was $13,687,928; in the year 1910-11, the revenue had reached the large figures of $117,500,000—of which about two-thirds, have been added in the past fifteen years—exactly a nine-fold increase in forty-four years. Not only has the past shown marvellous development on the material side, but there has been attendant political development and growth in morals. Canada has developed, in connection with a strengthened imperial tie, a higher autonomy. We make with the free consent of the Mother country, our own commercial treaties, and enjoy other autonomic privileges, that realize to the full Kipling's characterization of Canada's status — "Daughter in my Mother's house; mistress in my own." On this forty-fourth Dominion day, Canada can rejoice with good warrant; we are prosperous, peaceful, happy, with, under the favour of the divine Providence, a hopeful outlook for the future.

MR. KERR AND EAST PETERBOROUGH

Mr. E. D. Kerr, who received the unanimous nomination of the Liberals of East Peterborough for the Dominion House, and accepted the responsibility, is receiving numerous offers of support and assurances of confidence, both of which he abundantly merits. Mr. Kerr, a member of the legal firm of Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, is in the prime of physical and mental vigour and possesses qualifications that amply fit him for making an excellent representative. He has energy and ability, is a well informed student of political affairs, is a good thinker, a good speaker. He comes of good sound Liberal stock and is an enthusiastic believer in Liberal principles. He has been actively associated with the promotion of the success of Liberal interests, for the past fifteen years. In both East and West Peterborough, at every election contest, his services have been freely and effectively given. He is a personal admirer of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and is entirely in sympathy with the progressive nation-building and empire-building policy, for which the Liberal party, under his leadership, stands. In Mr. Kerr's platform addresses, given in both ridings during the past fifteen years on election and other occasions, he has shown the possession of very effective speaking ability, sound in logic and convincing, moderate, temperate, and respectful in argument. He is, in his civic relations, a public spirited citizen, taking an energetic and intelligent interest in all public movements tending to promote the public welfare. He is a prominent member of the bar of the Midland district, with a large practice in both East and West Peterborough. He enjoys the respect and confidence of the bar, and was for eight years the treasurer of the Peterborough Law Association and was prominently associated with the organization of the Canadian Club in Peterboorugh. Mr. Kerr is well known both in city and country and held in the highest esteem for his integrity, of character. In all respects, Mr. Kerr is well qualified to make a first-rate representative of East Peterborough and he has every reason for his confidence in redeeming the riding when the opportunity comes for the electors to express their sentiments in regard to the very important matter of selecting a representative who is in sympathy with a government policy calculated to promote the interests of a great agricultural constituency like East Peterborough.

THE QUESTION OF PURE WATER.

(Montreal Witness.)

The quest ion of pure water is a recurring topic everywhere, and the article in 'Engineering' to which the 'Witness' has already referred is being widely discussed on two continents. The article states that there are cities in America where the death-rate from typhoid fever attains the enormous figure of 130 per 100,000 of the population, compared with 4 in London, 2 in Edinburgh, and 1 in Stockholm. The cause of the mortality, as the article says, is well-known. A city turns its sewage into a river at its doors, and the next city down-stream pumps it into the consumers' pipes. The Sanitary Commission of Ohio has condemned the water in the Ohio River as being polluted and unfit to drink, and yet it is the only source of supply for the territory of that state lying along its banks. The water-plus-sewage of the Ohio River is drunk by the City of Cincinnati and the City of Cinsinnati turns its sewage into the river for others on the water-shed below to drink. The typhoid death-rate is very low in England as compared with Canada and the United tSates, but even in England the river water, including that of the Thames, is not above suspicion. The Thames receives the sewage of a dozen towns, as the 'Westminster Gazette says, but it is after the sewage has been treated, and that is a very different thing from the sending of crude sewage into a river. But although gross pollution is prevented, there is sometimes a storm overflow and at such times an overflow of untreated matter, so that London, for example, does not regard the purity of the river so much as the filtration of the water used as her safeguard against recurring epidemics. Let Montreal sanitariums and users of water mark this, that 'Long 'years of immunity have encouraged 'London to put complete trust in filtration.'

A BUSY MEETING

Court Chemong No. 530. Held Monthly Gathering Last Evening.

The regular monthly meeting of Court Chemong, No .530, Independent Order of Foresters, was held in the S.O.E. Hall last night. The meeting was presided over by Bro. F. C. Roake, C R. There were 12 applications for membership presented by Bro. F. Mullett, D.H.C.R., who was congratulated for what he had accomplished. There were then four of these new members initiated into the mysteries of Forestry.

Bro. A. Allison, S.P.C.R., on behalf of the Court, congratulated Bro. J. R. Brownlee, V.C.R., on the new position he had secured, and while expressing regret at his temporary absence from the city, he wished him every success in his new work. Bro. Brownlee made a suitable reply, thanking the brethren, and stating that he would still keep in touch with his Court and other Courts throughout the province.

The report of Bro. G. W. Powell, F. S., showed the finances to be in first class order, and that the members were keeping their assessments well paid up, but any who had not paid would have an opportunity of doing so at his office, 547 George street, as he is anxious to have his books in good shape this month, which is the end of the Forestric year.

HORSES ON PAVEMENT

A sensational incident occurred this afternoon, about 2.30, when a lumber man was driving down George street. The horses became frightened at a passing street car, and jumped up on the pavement, in front of Coleman's confectionery store, but were pulled off the sidewalk before they did any damage. They narrowly escaped breaking the window.

Traditions Regarding The Most Noble Order Of The Garter

The recent investiture of the Prince of Wales with the Order of the Garter has stirred the London Graphic to reproduce various legends concerning the origin of the picturesque and coveted decoration.

"It is one of the ironies of history," says the Graphic, "that there is no certainty as to the date of the foundation of the greatest order of chivalry now existing in the world, or as to the origin of its curious title. Volumes have been written upon the Most Noble Order of the Garter, but the authorities do not agree as to the precise year, about the middle of the fourteenth century, when the order was founded, though it would seem that, after all, the date assigned by Froissart, who was a contemporary of King Edward III., namely, 1994, is likely to be the real one. Here is Froissart's account of the foundation of the order:

About this time the King of England (Edward III.) resolved to rebuild and embellish the great Castle of Windsor, which King Arthur had first founded in time past, and where he had erected and established that noble round table from where so many gallant knights had issued forth or displayed the valiant prowess of their deeds at arms over the world. King Edward therefore determined to establish an order of knighthood, consisting of himself, his children and the most gallant knights in Christendom, to the number of forty (error for twenty-six). He ordered it to be denominated Knights of the Blue Garter, and that the feast should be celebrated every year at Windsor, upon St. George's Day (April 23). He summoned, therefore all the earls, barons, and knights of his realm to inform them of his intentions. They heard it with great pleasure, for it seemed to them highly honourable and capable of increasing love and friendship.

Forty knights were then elected, according to report and estimation the bravest in Christendom, who zealed and swore to maintain and keep the feast and statutes that had been made. The King founded a chapel at Windsor in honour of St. George, and established canons there to serve God with a handsome endowment. He then issued his proclamation for this feast by his heralds, whom he sent to France, Scotland, Burgundy, Hainault, Flanders, Brabant and the empire of Germany, and offered to all knights and squires that might come to this ceremony passports to last for fifteen days after it was over. The celebration of this order was fixed for St. George's Day next ensuing, to be held at Windsor, 1344, and the Queen was to be present, accompanied by three hundred ladies and damsels, all of high birth and richly dressed in similar robes. St. George's Day drew near when the Grand feast was to be celebrated at the Castle of Windsor. The King had made great preparations for it, and there were earls, barons, ladies, and damsels most nobly entertained. The festivities and tilts lasted a fortnight. Many knights came to them from beyond sea from Flanders, Hainault, and Brabant, but not one from France.'

"As to the origin of the title of the order, most people are familiar with the story of the Countess of Salisbury's little mishap with her garter, which was promptly made use of by the amorous King for the purposes of the order of chivalry, which he intended, either before or after her lady ship's accident, to found. Polydore Vergin is believed to have been the first to give the legend in his history of England, printed at Basle in 1534, and it was followed after him by most of the writers on the subject.

"Elias Ashmole, who was Windsor herald under Charles II., wrote in 1672 a history of the order, which, he says, if we consider either its antiquity or the nobleness of the personages that have been enrolled, excels and outvies all other institutions of honour in the whole world. And he goes on to give 'the vulgar and general opinion' as to its origin—namely, that the garter of the Countess of Salisbury dropping casually off as she danced in a solemn ball, King Eward, stooping, took it up from the ground. Whereupon some of his nobles, smiling as at an amorous action, and he, observing their sportive humour, turned it off with a reply in French, 'Honi soit qui mal y pense,' but withal added in disdain of their laughter that shortly they should see that garter advanced to so high an honour and renown as to account themselves happy to wear it.

"Another tradition is thus given by Ashmole:—'The Queen, departing from the King to her own apartments he, following soon afterwards, chanced to espy a blue garter lying on the ground supposed to have slipped from her leg. Some of his attendants carelessly passed by it as disdaining to stoop at such a trifle, but he, knowing the owner, commanded it to be given him, at the receipt of which he said, "You make but small account of this garter, but within a few months I will cause the best of you all to reverence it alike." ' Some suppose that the motto was the the Queen's answer when the King asked her what men would conjecture of her upon losing her garter in such a manner."

57TH REGIMENT LEAVES TO-NIGHT FOR BROCKVILLE

To-night, the 57th Regiment will leave for Brockville per C.P.R. and will return on Monday morning early. They will march from the armouries to-night about 10.45 to the C.P.R. station to entrain. The Regimental band will be in attendance and will render two concerts while at Brockville. There will be between 350 and 375 men in all, including officers and bands. The men are requested to be at the armouries to-night as early as possible, in order that everything will be ready on time. Those who have not yet gotten tunics and helmet decorations, also leggings and other necessary equipmen are requested to be at the armouries before eight o'clock, so that they can get their stuff and have it packed with the other equiment which will be sent to the station in advance. All are requested to have their buttons and brass shined, a thirty cent hair cut and a 25 cent shave before coming to the armouries. A PRESENTATION

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Honoured on the Eve of Their Departure.

On Wednesday evening the residence of Mr and Mrs. Anderson, was the scene of a very pretty home gathering when their neighbors gathered to present each of them with a beautiful silk umbrella on the eve of their departure for Lakefield. The following address was read by Mr. James Price:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Anderson:—As you are about to leave us, we, the neighbors of your community feel that it would not be of a kindly spirit to let you go without showing some appreciation towards you going into your new field of duty, as you and yours have been so kind to your neighbors around the vicinity, and we feel sure that in your new field of duty you will find lots to take you by the hand and make a friend in you and yours, and we trust that what may be our loss may be your gain. We regret to lose such friends but wish to show our appreciation by asking you to accept this gift as a slight token of love for you and yours; and we pray that the blessings of God may attend you and yours in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the neighbors.

The presentation was made by Mrs. J. W. Elliott, after which Mr. and Mrs. Anderson made a suitable reply. The gathering then sat down to a fine luncheon

This firm is also offering some snappy values in cigars and other smokers' sundries. Read the advt. and get your share while the bargains are going.

SPECIAL SHOOT OF THE GUN CLUB

A special shoot of the Peterborough Gun Club was held last evening in the Driving Park with a good turnout of the members. Being a very fine evening for shooting, some good sport was enjoyed. The scores were at 25 birds each. Scores:

C. Gutterson	17
H. Cook	16
A. Mott	16
H. Routley	15
C. Wood	15
C. Mills	12

F. Graham	5

After the match a ten bird sweep stake was shot off with scores as follows: A. Mott, 9; S. Rush, 7; C. Gutterson, 6; H. Routly, 4; L. Hill, 1.

EXAMINER'S DAILY LETTER ON THE STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 30.—The cables from the other side this morning are fractionally lower. Presumably the indictment of leading officials in the steel wire pools explains the heavy tone to the latter stock, the grand jury allowing that the Sherman Anti Trust Act has been violated by the companies. Trust busting seems still the craze by legislators. Fortunately Wall Street is hard fed to shatter attempts at making political carpet and the market will not be materially affected by the developments, though the uncertainty keeps the public from participating to any extent despite the promising prospects for a revival of prosperity. The Subway situation is gradually clearing, though the interboro is given another chance to assume its allotment of territory on somewhat more favourable terms. The B. R. T. obtains the Manhattan entrance for which it has been fighting, and if the rival bidder refuses to play will take the entire system. The bureau of corporations will make a report to-morrow on the U. S. S. Co., giving the results of investigation, which is aside from the probing of the Department of Justice. General conditions are shaping for higher stock market values, and the surface indications should not be given too much importance.

We feel that the worst has been discounted and would buy the standard issues on all reactions for moderate speculative profits.

Liverpool, 1.30 p.m.—Wheat unchanged to 1-8 higher, corn 1-4 higher.

New York, June 30.—A slow rally in the stock market would not be surprising to-day. The list is oversold according to our investigations. The holiday approach is calculated to inject dullness into the situation. We are favourable to purchases of good rails on all recessions. Steel, Ar. and Asl. are reported oversold, and may rally on the shorts. Car Foundry may do better on the good statement. We are friendly to Sou. Pac. Atch., Norfolk, R. I., Erie, M. K. & T. and the Hill stocks.

New York, June 30.—Undoubtedly there is a big future for the tractions. Get long of the Pacifics, these are certain to have advances. The wholesale indictment of officials makes it hard for steel bears.

New York, June 30.—London, 12.30 p.m., Consols off 5-16 at 79 1-4 for money and acct.

RICHARD HALL & SON

SERMON FROM SHAKESPEARE

(Copyright, 1909, by Bradley-Garretson Co., Ltd.).

My master is of churlish disposition,
And little recks to find the way to heaven
By doing deeds of hospitality.
As You Like It, Act III., Sc. IV.

In "As You Like It" there is a charming picture given of the purifying power of nature on courtiers and city dwellers. A holiday in the country rejuvenates the toilworn workers in grimy factories and stuffy offices. The cliff and cave dwellers—dwellers in skyscrapers and basements, in attics and cellars—have the roses called back to their cheeks and buoyancy to their minds by a sojourn in the country with its clear sky, pure air and flower-decked fields. This is true of those who waste their time, to use an expression of Shakespeare, holiday pleasantly in the forests and by the cooling streams; but there is another side to the picture.

Shakespeare, in representing the romantic life spent by the banished Duke and his comrades, and by Rosalind and Celia in the Forest of Arden, was not unmindful of the darker, less inviting aspect of country life. It is Corin, the kindly farm laborer of "As You Like It" who utters the words of the text of this study. His master was of churlish disposition, hard as the rocks among which he worked, sordid, mean, not given to doing charitable deeds. Audrey and William of the same play, although kindly, were stupid and clownish.

The cry of the city-weary man often is "back to nature." Good! If he go back as a visitor, but to cast from him the advantages civilised life has given him, to despise culture and learning places a man in a dangerous position. If nature takes such a man to herself she may reduce him to the level of the beasts of the field. Whether this be the case or not it is true that churlishness, coarseness, meanness, animality, are found among dwellers remote from civilisation to an extent to which they rarely manifest themselves, even in the most degraded parts of the city.

Primitive man as he has been found in the natural state is not a very lovable object. There has been much nonsense talked about the nobility of the red man before he came into contact with the civilisation of the white man. Examine carefully the records of the first explorers on the continent of America. For the most part, the aborigines will be found to have been bestial, devilishly cruel, utterly lacking in generosity. There are islands in the Pacific, absolute Edens, more beautiful and pleasant to live in than the enchanted island over which Prospero ruled. On them Cook and other discoverers found naked, cannibalistic creatures, in a sense lower than any savage beast. Nature had not made them beautiful in body and good in mind, but the reverse of this.

One of Shakespeare's most remarkable creations is Caliban of "The Tempest." He is a child of nature, a lover of natural sights and sounds; an exaggeration, it is true, but he serves to illustrate to what an absolute child of nature may come. It is undeniable that many dwellers in the country are gross, stupid, slovenly, miserly, unlovely and unlovable characters. Life in nature is a struggle of all against all. Nature is rough, rugged, at times tempestuous, and unless those who have to battle with her are patient and valiant she will vanquish and brutalise them. The trouble is that many strugglers against nature live too much to themselves. Man was never intended to live alone, nor were families. Synonymous terms—so-called—to [illegible] civilisation; isolated effort is apt to weaken and discourage. The man who lives much to himself, either in city or country, has a narrow horizon. His soul is not moved by the happiness or suffering of others, and he gradually takes joy only in satisfying the baser side of his being.

How is a peasant to grow refined, to free himself from the bondage of brutalising nature? Just as the city man is freeing himself from the degrading influence of trade, from the sordidness bred in the counting-house and the dullness born of monotonous industry. The city man has brought the country to his doors. Parks and shady streets and fountains keep him from forgetting that the earth is not all brick and mortar and paved streets—that there is other music than the roar of factories and the clatter of cars. If the dweller in the wildwood is to keep himself from being dragged down to the soil in which he toils for existence he must get into touch with his fellow-men. With homes comfortably furnished and adorned with noble pictures—even if they be but copies—with children educated and books to instruct and delight, like Prospero he can conquer nature and turn her to the ennobling of his character.

The ideal life is the one that is cultivated on both sides. The man who is familiar with the haunts of men, and with the silent places where God's dumb creatures are, has a happiness that is never possible to the self-sufficient, narrow-minded city dweller, or the self-satisfied clownish inhabitant of the country who is content to toil in the fields, to eat and sleep remote from and unmindful of the refining influences garnered from the fields of time.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

This boy goes to his business and at his business begins by simply doing the things he is told to do, and doing them in a common and ordinary way. If he stops here, he remains all his life long a drudge. But if he begins to see that business has a significance,—that his life is not merely sweeping the store, not merely writing letters, not merely selling goods; if he begins to see the higher life involved in business; if he begins to see that business is a greater instrument of beneficence, that trade is clothing thousands of men where charity clothes ten, that agricultural and milling industries are feeding thousands of men where charity feeds ten; if he begins to see how the whole history of the world is linked together, and God's way of building up humanity and serving humanity—as he gets this larger view, and enters into it, life is enriched and becomes itself the minister whereby love is enlarged and conscience is strengthened, the school wherein he is educated out of the lower into the higher.

* * *

Good breeding, like charity, should begin at home. The day is past when children used to rise when their parents entered the room where they were and stand until they had received permission to sit. But the mistake is now made usually in the other direction in allowing to small boys and girls too much license to disturb the peace of the household. We think the best way to train children in courtesy would be to observe toward them a scrupulous politeness. We would go so far as to say that we should make it as much a point to listen to children without interrupting them and to answer them sincerely and respectfully as if they were grown up. And, indeed, many of their wise, quaint sayings are far better worth listening to than the stereotyped commonplaces of the morning callers. Of course, to allow uninterrupted chatter would be to surrender the repose of the household, but it is very easy, if children are themselves scrupulously respected, to teach them in turn scrupulously to respect the convenience of others, and to know when to talk and when to be silent.

* * *

What it shall be we do not know.
How it shall come we cannot tell.
Whether it shall come as the old prophets thought "amid the clash of worlds or wreck of matter," or as the gentle beauty of a May morning we cannot see. But it will come. It will be just as easy for this world to end as it was for it to begin; and there is much greater reason for the ending than there is for the beginning. The inequality of this world must be somewhere adjusted. Here wrong is sometimes triumphant, in solent power occasionally victorious and unblemished, virtue misjudged and misunderstood. As surely as the sun shines, the time will come when the one will be punished and the other rewarded, and when equal and exact justice, the most glorious phrase known to any language shall be meted out to all.

The idea seems to exist among us that to be polite to each other in the family circle is foolish and like putting on airs. We must rid ourselves of this notion and act on the principle that whatever helps to make our intercourse pleasanter outside the family circle should be brought into use there. We should avail ourselves of any and everything that can be used to advantage in our daily intercourse. It is no exhibition of airiness to say "thank you" or "if you please." These little courtesies are indications of refinement, and costing nothing, they help to make the wheels of life move more smoothly. It is not in elaborate attempts at politeness that true gentility consists. It is in the simple, honest expression of the genuine feelings of the heart which is interested in the welfare of others.

* * *

Our men of wealth and influence did not start with any cash capital. They went to work with their plow, the hoe, the jack plane or axe, and in time their capital brought them a rich harvest. Ah! but there's the rub; you don't want to work. You want money on credit so you can play the gentleman, speculate and end your career by playing vagabond. You want to marry a rich girl who will support you, while you wear fine clothes, smoke cigars, and be a gentleman of leisure.

* * *

Young women have the same longing to get away from their native towns and live among new scenes and changed surroundings, that boys are possessed of. They feel the weight of local environments, even more than the opposite sex, and one frequently hears the remark, "I wish I were a boy, that I could have some freedom." This marks a critical period of a young lady's life. She needs, more than ever before wise and loving counsel, and the sympathetic companionship of a true friend; and there is no friend like a mother in unselfish, untiring devotion. Girls, tell your mothers of your hopes and ambitions, and you are quite certain to receive advice which you can accept with profit, and which will do you good.

* * *

It is only too true that to refrain from showing affection makes the wife miserable. She does not care for presents or lavish attention; she wants those little tokens such as may be given even in a look, which will prove her husband's love. We wish some of the good things that some men are saving up to say concerning their wives after they are dead could be said now.

Have a bright bouquet of flowers in each room of your home to cheer and brighten it and its inmates.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

JULY 2. 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.).

Isaiah's Prophecy Concerning Sennacherib.—Isa. xxxvii., 14-38.

Golden Text—God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.—Ps. xlvi., 1.

1. Verse 14—What letter was it that Hezekiah spread before the Lord?

2. Is it the privilege of every man to spread all his letters, including those which give him trouble, before the Almighty God, and if so, what is the advantage in doing it?

3. What if any advantage is there in telling our troubles to God in the house of the Lord, over doing so in our own homes?

4. Verses 15-20—Hezekiah tells God in much detail the nature of his troubles. Now what good is it to do that, seeing God knows all about it in any event?

5. Why does God not know all abut our heartaches and our needs before we tell Him, in the same way as He knows afterwards?

6. What is the advantage of urging God by all the argument we can think of as Hezekiah does here, to answer our prayers?

7. What effect does the degree of our vehemence, or the extent of our desire, have upon God in answering our prayers?

9. Why did not God answer Hezekiah direct, instead of through Isaiah?

10. Apparently some men with equal goodness are better able to receive detailed messages from God than others. If this is so, why is it?

11. May we rest with absolute certainty in the assurance that having told God our needs, He will supply them? Why?

12. What is the reason for believing that no person and nothing can bring ultimate injury to a man, or a cause trusting in God?

13. Why are men so foolish as to think they can prevail against God?

14. Verse 29—Why does God take injury done to His people as done against Himself?

15. Would you go so far as to say that every hurt by word or deed done against a child of God, is done against God? Give your reasons.

16. Give an example of how God restrains the wicked as stated here. "I will put my hook into thy nose, and my bridle in the lips."

17. Verses 30-32—As an example of how God rules and overrules, think of your own blessings, and say how many of them are a result of your own efforts and how many from causes over which you have had no control?

18. Verses 33-37—What means did God take to prevent Sennacherib from capturing Jerusalem?

19. How did the angels of the Lord slay probably 185,000 of the soldiers of the Assyrian army in one night? (Give some Bible examples of how such things have been done.)

20. Verse 36—To what extent is it a rule that men get what they would like to give others and that "They who use the sword perish with the sword?"

STORY OF A LAUNCH TRIP BETWEEN STONEY LAKE AND PETERBOROUGH

By Simon the Sailor

If you have never taken a trip down the canal from Stoney Lake to Peterborough on your own account (by that I mean, working your own way) then you will be interested in the experience of two young men, whom we shall call Dingle and Dingleberry. We might call them by the same name, but to make the distinction easier, we shall tack "berry" on the end of the name representing the older one, as he is nearer the burying stage of life.

Now, Dingle had a yacht, launch, or whatever-you-may-call-it, that would not go. Of all the useless things in the world, there is nothing that can eclipse a yacht that refuses to proceed. It was a dandy, large and roomy, and from outward appearances all that could be desired, but yet there it lay perfectly helpless. A closer examination revealed the fact that it lacked an engine. This very useful piece of furniture had been removed, owing to a break, the cause of which is not quite clear in the mind of Dingle. Nevertheless, he became animated at once with a desire to possess another and better one.

Strange to say, when this "motor-bug" gets thoroughly into one's system, it is impossible to "reverse." Instead of giving the whole thing up in disgust, as most people would have done, Dingle, being completely inoculated with the aforementioned germ, ordered an engine of four cylinders, instead of two.

As there are no gasoline engine experts nearer than Peterborough, it was decided to transfer the motionless yacht to that ancient 'burg for installation.

Now, Dingleberry had a yacht that would go (sometimes) so a bargain was made.

Bright and early, one morning in June, Dingle and Dingleberry commenced their arduous journey down the canal, accompanied by "yours truly."

The trip to the Point was quite uneventful. Arriving there we found only one inhabitant up. He removed the "clay" from his mouth long enough to ask us if we were going through.

Now, what a question to ask! Did he imagine for a moment that we were going to fly over? That man at Young's Point had a kind heart in him, though, for he let us through at once without waiting for the "next" steamer.

As we were emerging from the lower gates we were treated to an interesting sight. Dingleberry remarked that he often wondered how a large steamer like the Stoney Lake could be turned around in such a narrow space just below the locks. But "Cap" Scollard was not long in showing us the trick.

Ding-ding went the bell and slowly that handsome steamer slid astern. Another ding and she commenced retracing her steps, gradually veering over towards the pier in the middle of the river. Dingleberry thought the captain had fallen asleep but in a moment we discovered that "Billy" had performed that stunt before, for gracefully the swift current on the far side carried the bow around and presently we heard the little sheep bell say "tingle, tingle," and off she ploughed, full steam ahead, for Lakefield.

Our manoeuvres in this section of the canal were not quite so successful. Our engine resented the extra load we were imposing upon her, and human-like, refused to go. Only those who have attempted to run a gasoline engine know how human they can become. On this occasion she "heated up."

Now, we all know what it feels like to get over-heated. Invariably we stop work and cool down. Some people get over-heated by hard work, others by ill-temper. In that case we say they are "hot under the collar." I never could quite understand why that particular location was specified, for it always seemed to me they usually get hot under the hat.

However, be that as it may, our engine certainly was hot, and there was no mistaking the fact if you were close to it. Not having any books containing "hints for motor boat enthusiasts" we had to depend on the range of our own limited experience. Strange to say, when anything goes wrong the first desire that takes possession of one is to turn the fly-wheel. I suppose it is in the vain hope that perchance, in revolving the only part that seems to go, the pesky thing may start off suddenly, and thus be able to add a few more yards to the progress of the journey.

We strained our ears to listen for peculiar sounds. To the novice all the noises are peculiar, but to one skilled (killed) in the art there are certain scrapings or gratings which denote trouble. We thought we heard one, and proceeded with wrenches to take her apart; but after discovering nothing (usually the case) we built her up again.

Once more we cranked the wheel, and, happy to say, off she went. We managed to keep her going until we reached Lakefield.

Up to this point our troubles were quite tame compared with what we encountered in this blue-blood town. Here we ran up against a "switch," or more correctly, failed to run up against it.

To a married man this term signifies something used in the wife's toilet. To a traveller it indicates a device used on railroads whereby his train may be transferred from one line to another, but to one navigating the waters of the canal it designates a place where a boat may pass through a boom.

On a railroad it is a simple thing to find, but on a river it is about as easy to locate as the switch on a woman's head.

We ran up alongside the boom expecting to find the opening, but, woe to us, we had gone too far, and fast the loose logs were closing in upon us! Armed with a pike pole, Dingle turned the logs away from our stern, while Dingleberry tried to make the old engine go.

Our tribulations were at their height when a long, lanky river-driver stuck his head under the canopy and enquired in lumber camp phraseology what we were doing there. To us the answer to that question was painfully self-evident, but it plainly puzzled that log-dancer. For fully twenty minutes he strove to extricate us from our ill-fated position; for twenty minutes he endeavoured to instil into our heads the laws regulating the passage of "steamboats" through switches.

To our untutored minds his harangue was like Greek to an Indian. About all we could recollect after the ordeal was that a steamboat gave two whistles, and presto! she went through. Those who were not supplied with steam whistles (that meant us) should tie up at a wharf until some one came and opened the switch. If you are at all familiar with the movements of a boom-runner, you can possibly form an estimate of how long we would have to wait.

From Lakefield to Peterborough the journey has been described by a party of college girls as exceedingly picturesque and divinely pretty; but to a trio of young men running their own craft, it is exceedingly laborious and unearthly dull.

The locks are so close together that a motor boat has to begin to stop almost, before it commences to start. It seems to be one continual case of crank up, puff up, slow up, back up, stop up, and fill up.

During the speech of our benefactor, the switch-man, there seemed to have been a thought that permeated our confused brains to the effect that our misfortunes were mainly due to the fact that we were running a gasoline yacht instead of a steamboat.

We consoled ourselves with the idea that he knew more about steam engines than he did about gasoline engines, but we ruefully found out that he knew more about canals than we did.

It remained for the lockmaster of the famous Lift Lock to drive that truth into our skulls with a sledge hammer.

Precisely at noon we proudly pulled our yachts up beside that conspicuous sign: "All Boats stop Here." There did not appear to be the usual activity apparent upon the arrival of a boat wishing to get through. We concluded they had all got hungry at the same moment, and scampered off to the village for dinner. We felt painfully slighted that no one had asked us that monotonous query: "Are you going through?"

To be sure we were (not soon, but yet.)

Dingle made two or three "Marathons" up and down the myriads of steps to discover the cause of the delay.

An attendant presently emerged from a hole in the cement, and, calmly took in the situation. He announced with a tone of sympathy in his mellow voice that we could not get through till two o'clock. Now, the nature of our business, and the possible distress of our families remaining at the lake, made it necessary that we should proceed at once and "return" at 2 p.m.

But, no possible chance. We were cheered in our distress by the assurance that if King George came along he could not get through.

We were informed that the new rule was put into effect because of the numerous gasoline boat owners who came up from Peterborough with a few friends to give them a ride over the Lift Lock.

However, it is ever thus; the innocent have to suffer for the sins of the thoughtless.

We could see some reason for setting the afternoon hour at two o'clock, but we could not make out why nine was chosen as the morning hour. It is very apparent the new law was framed for the benefit of the people of Peterborough, with no thought for the convenience of the cottagers of Stoney Lake. Every day during the tourist season a steamer passes up the canal at eight or eight-thirty. Why could not the Peterboroians be served at that hour? It is a physical impossibility for a boat to get down from Stoney Lake in time for the 9 o'clock lockage. If eleven or eleven-thirty were chosen a boat from this section could "get through" to Peterborough and return the same day, whereas under the present arrangement, it is necessary to spend the night there and two days on the "cold molasses" canal.

One of the most peculiar features about the whole stupid thing is the fact that any old steam tub that turns up can get through without a question.

I suppose the Government will see fit to amend the Shipping Act sometime in the next generation to include gasoline craft allowing them the same privileges as the antiquated steam variety.

If some modification of this new Lift Lock regulation is not soon made it will be necessary for owners of gasoline yachts to adopt some method whereby they can shoot off a little steam on approaching this lock, in order that they may not be held up.

Probably a suggestion might not be out of place just here. Until some inventive genius puts on the market some such device, I would recommend that all those who contemplate navigating the Lift Lock purchase a small coal oil stove and an ordinary kettle, to the spout of which could be attached a small piece of tin pipe to project through the canopy. While passing through Nassau the stove should be lit by the time the lock is reached there will be quite a respectable jet of steam issuing from the "exhaust." If anyone asks you if you are going through, say, "Yes," and through you go.

DR. CLIFFORD'S ADDRESS AT LAYING OF CORNER STONE OF NEW CHURCH

his kindness in inviting him to be present, and to join with the Baptists and their friends in congratulating the officials of the church upon what their efforts were accomplishing. All citizens remembered the old church in which the Baptists had worshipped, and would be glad to see the new edifice erected, and the last stone laid. They were glad to have present such a distinguished minister and orator as Rev. Dr. Clifford, whose remarks they had listened to with so much interest. He hoped the same success would attend the Murray Street congregation in their new church, and closed by congratulating Rev. Mr. Webb and the management of the church on their pluck and courage in attacking such a large enterprise.

A Donation of $5,000.00.

At the conclusion of the speaker's remarks, Rev. Mr. Webb announced that the Hon. Mr. Stratton had donated $5,000 to the church building fund, an announcement that was received with loud applause.

Mr. Stratton, in making this substantial contribution, evidently had in mind the idea of a memorial of his father, the late Mr. James Stratton, who was, during his life, closely associated in action and practical sympathy, with the Baptist communion from its earliest days in Peterborough, and also as tribute on behalf of his venerable mother, who also has long been a devoted member of the Murray Street Baptist church, and still, at the age of 85 years, is deeply concerned in whatever tends to promote Baptist Church interests in Peterborough and elsewhere.

Visiting Speakers.

The Chairman, Mr. T. F. Matthews, after thanking the seventeen men and three lady visitors, who had accompanied Rev. Dr. Clifford from Toronto, called upon Mr. S. J. Moore, of Toronto, for an address.

"I want to congratulate the Baptists and the citizens of Peterborough generally," said Mr. Moore, amid much applause "upon having among you a man who, on the spur of the moment, can give $5,000 to a church. I wish we had a dozen such men in the west part of Toronto." The speaker congratulated the people of Murray Street, not only on their enterprise in building a new church, but also in securing the services of such a distinguished man as Dr. Clifford, to lay the corner-stone. He was sure that if other Baptist churches had known that it would have been possible to persuade Dr. Clifford to perform such functions, more Baptist churches would spring up in the next few months than had been built in the past three years. He was glad Dr Clifford was going to the Canadian Northwest to get a first view of the northwest heritage, that God had given the people of Canada there. He remarked that there was something significant in the location of the new church, with the armouries immediately opposite, where they would greet the eyes of the congregation as they came out of church. This would remind them that the church is militant, and that a vigorous militant spirit was necessary to ensure success.

In closing Mr. Moore made a graceful recognition to the use of the People's Chimes during the ceremony, and referred to the work being done in Toronto by Rev. Canon Davidson's brother, Mr. N. F. Davidson.

Mr. Sanderson's Speech.

Mr. F. Sanderson, M.A., LL.D., of Toronto, who was introduced as an old Peterborough boy, thanked the people of the Murray Street congregation for their courteous welcome, and the hospitable way in which he had been entertained. His mother and sisters had been members of the Murray Street church, and it was the first Sunday School he had ever attended. He was pleased to say that he was still going to Sunday School. He had watched the development of the city with interest, and was gratified to find that the Baptist Church had grown to such importance. It was on the present occasion, he felt, entering upon a new era of prosperity, and he wished it every success.

Rev. Mr. Couch.

Rev. Mr. Couch, pastor of the George Street Methodist church, was next called upon. He added his congratulations to those of the other speakers, in regard to the function at which they were present. As a church the people of Murray Street had done themselves credit in bringing to Peterborough such a distinguished minister as Dr. Clifford. They were building a beautiful church, and he pointed out the need of working with judgment and sympathy, and the necessity of standing loyally behind their pastor and giving him every assistance. He paid a very high tribute to Rev. Mr. Webb, as a minister and leader in church work.

Rev. Jas. Rollins.

Rev. Jas. Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, wished to express his congratulations to the people of Murray Street Church. He hoped that the church they were building would combine the old style of architecture, as far as the auditorium was concerned, while the Sunday School would be built along modern lines, with the classes separated. He had been struck, he remarked, lauchingly, with the fact that in listening to the remarks of Rev. Dr. Clifford, in stating the contributions of a Baptist Church to a city, had given all the points that the Presbyterians were strong in. He was glad and proud of the privilege of being on the same platform with such a famous minister as Rev. Dr. Clifford.

Rev. Canon Davidson.

Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church, spoke briefly in conclusion, expressing his pleasure at being present, and having an opportunity of expressing his congratulations to the people of the Murray Street Baptist church upon the success of their efforts in securing a new church. He recalled with pleasure, the many times he had been delightfully received in the building they were leaving, and hoped that the work in the new church would be crowned with even greater success than in the old edifice.

The service was then brought to a close with the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. Mr. Webb.

DR. CLIFFORD PAID GLOWING TRIBUTE TO LLOYD-GEORGE AT OPERA HOUSE LAST NIGHT

is not dead, but is still leading the nations of the world. It is hard for us to conjure in our minds a mental picture of the conditions in the old land, together with the rapid advance of social evolution. It should also serve to teach us a lesson that Canada, while yet in its infancy, is face to face with many of the evils that England has had to contend with, and that we should be prepared, as a unit of a great empire, to do our share towards the subjection of these conditions.

The chairman, Mayor Morrow, then presented the vote of thanks to Dr. Clifford in the usual manner.

In replying, Dr. Clifford expressed his appreciation of the kindly welcome which had been accorded him. "I would like to enter into a discussion with you as to why it is that I have lived so long, still retaining the old time vigour, living under the strenuous conditions that I do. I could talk to you longer on that subject that I have talked to you to-night. I have been acquainted with myself for about 75 years. My grandmother was older than I am now when she died, so what's the use of coming after grandmother if you cannot do better than her. A man is old when he cannot adopt himself to new circumstances. There are any amount of young people old at 18; the rare mastered by circumstances. Gladstone was able to adapt himself to new circumstances after he was 80 years of age.

The happiest day of my life will be associated with the thoughts of Peterborough, and as long as I live, I shall always look for references to your city in the newspapers. God has given you a great work to do in Canada the possibilities are unlimited. Canada is loyal to the Empire, to King George the Fifth and patriotic, and awake to her true sense of duty as Canadians in time of trouble. (Prolonged applause.)

Rev. U. R. Webb then paid a glowing tribute to the indefatigable efforts of one who had so nobly assisted in the success of the day, both financially and physically. Some months ago, when the Building committee instructed me to secure, if possible, the services of Dr. Clifford to lay the corner stone of the new church, I undertook the work with great pleasure, and was greatly pleased to receive the message, announcing his intention of being present with us to-day, and there is one, while not a member of the Baptist church, is its closest friend, who delighted in its prosperity in the promotion of Christian brotherhood. He comes forward and at his own expense engages the Opera House in order that the citizens of Peterborough might have the privilege and pleasure of hearing the distinguished visitor. This was done without my knowing anything about it. I was unaware of the fact that Dr. Clifford would be here to spend the evening with us, until last week. I was more than agreeably surprised. The gentleman to whom I refer is Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Prolonged applause.)

It would be unkind of me and an injustice were I to refrain from expressing the appreciation of myself, and I am sure the citizens of Peterborough towards Mr. Stratton's generosity and help in bringing this day to a successful issue.

Germany Anticipates Possible Partition of Morocco and Has Sent the Gun Boat Panther to Agadir

SEMI-OFFICIAL STATEMENT

Berlin, July 3.—Germany, in sending the gunboat Panther to Agadir and taking a claim in Southern Morocco in anticipation of the possible partition of the country, according to the general interpretation of the German press, will take its share in the Province of Sus with its rich copper and mineral deposits, its great agricultural possibilities and its equable climate, in which the whites can live and work, unless France and Spain withdraw from the present adventure and really respect the integrity of Morocco.

This is confirmed by the semi-official statement which appears in The Cologne Gazette, pointing out that France and Spain, under assurances of purely temporary and benevolent action, both landed troops and occupied territory in violation of the Algeciras Act. Germany, says the statement, is justified in taking steps to protect her interests. She has no intention of remaining permanently in Agadir, but will not leave that town before regular conditions are restored in Morocco.

This phrase evidently means until the retirement of the Franco-Spanish expeditions.

The Gazette further discusses the extent of German interests in the region and the prospects of the spread of disorders there on account of the attitude of the sultan and France toward the dismissed vizier, Sid Madani Glaui, whereby Germany subjects living in Morocco and others under the protection of Germany are endangered.

Special despatches from Tangier say that a German force has landed at Agadir. This is not confirmed, but it is stated here that it is likely that the phrase "for the present" in the official announcement of the despatch of the Panther implies that warships will be sent to Agadir later if such action is justified. The German Minister has informed the Moroccan Government that the Panther will remain as long as Germany considers it necessary.

Murphy to the Fore.

Kemptville, Ont., July 3.—Ideal weather and splendid attendance marked the Dominion Day celebration here. There were addresses by Hon. Chas. Murphy, Secretary of State, and Howard Ferguson, M.P.P. for Grenville. The marathon race was won by C. B. Cannon of Manotick, and the hundred yards' dash by B. Nott, Smith's Falls. Kemptville defeated Merrickville at baseball, by a score of three to two.

In the afternoon sports there was a parade from the public schools of hundreds of school children and boy scouts, headed by the band, to Victoria Park. Races for children and adults were indulged in. Tug-of-war, Hespeler v. Puslinch, won by Puslinch team.

Drowned While Bathing.

Toronto, July 3.—"There's the cemetery, boys, if any of us are drowned they won't have far to take us," shouted James Russell, as he and a band of picnickers from the Earlscourt Methodist Church entered Eldorado Park, Brampton, early on the afternoon of Dominion Day. Two hours later his body was dragged from the lake, after having been submerged for nearly half an hour.

Russell was a young man of twenty years, and lived with his widowed mother at 45 Goodwood avenue, Earlscourt. Immediately after a hearty picnickers' lunch had been eaten, he and several other of the young men of the party made for the lake.

Drowning at Brantford.

Brantford, July 3.—George Newman, 2 years old, was drowned in Mohawk Lake Saturday afternoon while canoeing with another young man. The canoe upset in twenty feet of water, and Newman went down, after grappling in vain for the canoe, while his companion swam ashore. The fire department life boat was called out, recovering the body in thirty minutes. Life was then extinct. Newman, who worked at Verity Plow Works, left a young wife. No inquest will be held.

Brant County Farmer Dies.

Brantford, July 3.—After living all his life near a farm where he was born 75 years ago, Thomas Brooks, one of the best known farmers in Brant County, died at his home on Mount Pleasant road, near this city, Saturday after a short illness. A widow and four sons survive. He was prominent in politics, being a Liberal, a fine speaker and an advocate of tariff reduction.

Hespeler Drowned.

Hespeler, July 3.—The Metcalf Brothers, aged 17 and 22, who were out bathing in Speed River dam in Hespeler yesterday afternoon were drowned. The sad features of the drowning is that the family have only been out from Glasgow, Scotland, about five weeks. The two young men were working in the Hespeler Furniture Factory.

No inquest will be held, as the drowning was purely accidental.

MINES ARE FIRE SWEPT

Forest Conflagrations Cause Great Loss at Porcupine—The Damage Will Reach One Hundred Thousand

BUILDINGS BURNED

Porcupine, Ont., July 3.—Forest fires driven by a forty-mile-an-hour wind have raged since yesterday morning, doing approximately one hundred thousand dollars' damage. The power plant and camps at Dome extension are destroyed, while fire now burns within one hundred rods of South Porcupine.

The Porcupine Centre townsite and Lakeview were swept over with the loss of several buildings, lumber for the railway station and a thousand cords of wood, flames also are sweeping through section of Whitney. Residents of Lakeview and Camp Six on the railway were rescued from the lake in boats.

It is by far the most disastrous forest fire in scope of the territory covered yet recorded in Porcupine and not until all the reports from outside districts are in will the full extent of the damage be known.

The flames started south of the West Dome, running across the body of the Dome property, threatening the new plant, as the fire brands fell like hail around the buildings. The wind changed slightly, driving the flames east to the Dome extension. One thousand men were out fighting back the flames, to no avail.

Losses are reported so far as follows: Dome Extension camps and power plant, transmission line, poles without the wire, Warner lighting, shot drill, T. & N.O. lumber for station at Lakeview, Joy sawmill plant, John Crawford dwellings and other buildings on Lakeview, Remsbottom and Edwards on Lakeview, dozen owners of small cabins.

The fire is still burning.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

There is said to be a potato famine in Manitoba.

George Hodgson of Montreal, the Canadian representative, won the mile swimming championship of the British Empire.

The Daily Express says the choice of a successor to Lord Strathcona is expected to lie between Sir Edward Clouston and Sir Montague Allan.

Prof. Charles R. Randall, special doctor of sciences, and for eighteen years teacher in the Lockport (N.Y.) High School, was drowned at Olcott Beach.

The new railway into Porcupine was formally opened on Saturday. Hon. Frank Cochrane accompanied the T. & N.O. Railway Commission on the trip.

Dying from convulsions, caused by the excessive heat, John Kemp, a shoemaker, living at 90 Geary avenue, Toronto, aged 50 years, was picked up outside of his home about a quarter to 11 o'clock Saturday night.

The report that Robert Swazey, Canadian, had been burned at the stake by Mexican bandits, near Fort Summerette, for refusing to reveal the whereabouts of money belonging to the railroad which employed him, has reached Ottawa.

Train Kills Baby Girl.

[illegible] the two-year-old daughter of Jewish immigrants, was instantly killed at the Stuart street station of the G.T.R. here about nine o'clock Saturday morning.

The parents, with the little girl and another child, were on their way from Newark, N.J., to Winnipeg, where they were to make their future home. The family were changing cars, and while boarding the Toronto train, just as the engine was being connected, the child lost her footing and fell from the steps underneath the wheels, where she was ground to death before she could be rescued.

G.T.R. Constable Darroch, on hearing screams, ran to the scene of the accident and pulled the tot from under the train, but life was then extinct.

The body was taken to the city morgue, and an inquest was opened by Coroner Anderson at four o'clock in the afternoon and adjourned until next week.

Strathcona to Quit.

London, July 3.—Two important announcements were made at the Dominion Day dinner, which was attended by 600 Canadians. The first was by the Duke of Connaught, who said that the Prince of Wales probably soon would visit Canada, and the other by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier, who said that Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, high commissioner for Canada, was about to resign his high office.

Lady in Whirlpool.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 3.—Efforts to take the body of an unknown man from the whirlpool yesterday proved futile. It has been floating about all day, seen by thousands from the gorge route cars. When first seen the body was fully attired with the exception of coat and hat. Last night practically no clothing remained upon it. No one has been reported missing.

GRAND-STAND BURNED.

Hamilton Jockey Club Loses Big $125,000 Structure.

Hamilton, July 3.—The $125,000 grand stand of the Hamilton Jockey Club, along with the judge's stand and railway platform, was destroyed by fire early Saturday morning.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but incendiarism is suspected. P. Maloney, superintendent of the Jockey Club grounds, whose residence adjoins the grand-stand, retired at two o'clock Saturday morning and at that time there was no sign of fire. About half an hour later he was awakened by the barking of his dog and the crackling of flames. Rushing out of his house he behld the mid-section of the stand in flames. He immediately attempted to notify the fire department, but could get no response from the telephone operator for some time. As soon as telephone communication was established the Sandford avenue fire brigade responded to the alarm, and reached the scene in a few minutes. Secretary Louden was [illegible] and lost no time in getting out.

Although the firemen, Secretary Louden and Supt. Maloney all worked heroically to subdue the flames it was soon apparent that nothing could be done to save any part of the grand-stand and the attention of the firefighters was then concentrated on Supt. Maloney's residence and the betting ring, both of which buildings were seriously threatened. Heavy streams of water were turned on these structures and both escaped any serious damage, although the superintendent's house was severely scorched.

'FRISCO IS SHAKEN.

Western Coast Gets a Bad Scare From Two Shocks.

San Francisco, July 3.—Two earthquake shocks, the heaviest since the big shake of 1906, and separated by only a few seconds, jarred the central portion of California and western Nevada on Saturday. The first sharp shock experienced at 2.01 o'clock, was followed in a few seconds by one of similar intensity, each lasting about five seconds. Only trivial damage has been reported from any section, but in San Francisco and other cities in the affected area, a panic seized upon crowds in stores and restaurants, and there was a pell-mell exodus from the large buildings.

One peculiar feature of the earthquake was that it did not appear to follow the old "fault" in the earth's crust, which has been the playground of trembles in the past, but extended from the seacoast eastward to the Sierras, including hitherto exempt mountain areas. It was felt to the northward of Sacramento in the Sacramento Valley, southward as far as Fresno, and to the east to Carson and Reno, Nev., the former place experiencing the heaviest shock in its history.

The mean time clock at the observatory of the University of California stopped for the first time since the great quake of five years ago.

The deep booming reverberation which usually marks disturbances of a widespread character, accompanied the first tremor. In San Francisco the groaning and cracking of the steel structures played a large part in frightening people.

Warrants Out For Dynamiters.

London, July 3.—At the request of the United States State Department, the magistrates of Bow street court Saturday issued provisional warrants for the arrest of David H. Kaplan and Milton A. Schmidt. The warrants were immediately placed in the hands of the Scotland Yard officials.

The Scotland Yard men insist that there is no evidence that the parties wanted in connection with the dynamiting of The Los Angeles Times' building are here, beyond the belief of the Californian authorities that they came this way.

The British police received the usual printed circular, giving descriptions of the men, and saying that they were supposed to be in England.

Seamen's Strike Still On.

The Lake Seamen's Union issued a long statement declaring that the strike inaugurated two years ago is still in effect, and that no concessions will be made from the original demands.

DRUGGIST IS SHOT

Reeve of Lancaster Township Arrested on Charge of Shooting a Carp Business Man on Saturday

FIRED AT AUTO

Cornwall, July 3.—The little village of Bridge End, a short distance north of Lancaster, was greatly stirred about five o'clock on Saturday afternoon by a shooting affray in which W. Shaw, a druggist of Carp, was shot in the left lung by Farquhar McRae, an aged resident of the Township of Lancaster, who is reeve of that township and represents the township in the County Council.

Dr. McGee of Carp, accompanied by Wm. Shaw, his druggist, and a brother of Dr. McGee, went to Bridge End on Saturday afternoon to the residence of D. O. McRae, father-in-law of Dr. McGee, where Mrs. McGee and child were supposed to be staying. The doctor was informed that they were not there, and an altercation followed, in which guns and an axe were produced by the McRaes. The chauffeur, fearing trouble, pulled the auto up the road.

The auto party pulled away, and as they got off Farquahar McRae got down on his knee, took aim and fired, the ball going through the back of the seat and into the back of Shaw, entered his lung. Dr. McGee took Shaw to Cornwall on the night train, and he was taken to the General Hospital. The bullet has not yet been removed from the lung, and internal hemorrhage is feared.

A warrant was at once taken out, and Chief of Police Smith of Cornwall went down on the early train on Sunday and brought Farquhar McRae to the Cornwall jail, where he will be detained pending the result of Shaw's injuries.

Shaw made an ante mortem statement at the hospital, believing he was about to die, in which he identified Farquhar McRae as the man who fired the shot. The affair has caused a sensation, as the parties connected with the affair are all prominent and respectable people.

Hottest on Record.

Toronto, July 3.—Yesterday in Ontario was the hottest day on record. The Dominion meteorological records at Toronto go back to August 24, 1854, to find the next hottest day. The official reading of the thermometer then was 99.02 in the city. Yesterday about four o'clock a temperature of 101 in the shade was registered at the Meteorological Office on Bloor street.

The exceptional heat was general throughout Ontario, and in some parts of the eastern states. But in Quebec and the eastern provinces it was nothing out of the ordinary. Toronto's figure was passed by Stonecliff, a small station in the Nipissing district, which reported officially to the Meteorological Office, 109 degrees. At London 98 was registered, at Ottawa 92, at Montreal, Quebec and Halifax 88, whilst the hundred mark was reached at Canton, Ohio, and in the State of Missouri.

Borden at Prince Albert.

Prince Albert, Sask., July 3.—Mr. R. L. Borden reached the most northerly point on his tour on Saturday night, at Prince Albert. This city gave him an enthusiastic reception. It has a Conservative representative in the Provincial Legislature, though represented at Ottawa by a Liberal, and the meeting was highly sympathetic in tone. It numbered about 800. A striking group of banners was displayed on the walls of the arena. One of these was in black, and read: "Reciprocity, Retrogression, Ruin"; another, in red, white and blue, declared "The West Appreciates Borden's Frankness."

No Ferry.

Kingston, July 3.—Wolfe Island is having trouble in regard to its ferry. Its own steamer is being enlarged and may not be ready for another month. The Island Council secured a gasoline yacht and scow and brought a crowd of islanders across the harbor to Kingston market. The customs officials heard about it and poured down on the owner of the yacht and scow, threatening him with prosecution for carrying passenger without a license. Finally a river steamer which was in port was secured for the rest of the day.

Prostrated by Heat.

Toronto, July 3.—Norks, before 12 o'clock last night Dalla E. Hookway, aged 14, an employe of the T. Eaton Co., was brought into the General Hospital, from her rooming house at 40 Hamilton street, in the police ambulance prostrated from the heat. She had been in a weak condition all day, and was very low when taken to the hospital, but later rested comfortably.

Drowned While Boating.

Hamilton, July 3.—The national holiday here was marred by one sad fatality, when Mrs. Edward H. Shepherd, 95 Ontario avenue, was drowned at Burlington Beach at 4.20 Saturday afternoon. As the Turbinia steamed up to the canal from Toronto, the small boat in which Mrs. Shepherd and her son were sailing, just outside the piers, became unmanageable and drifted in front the steamer just as it was entering the canal. A collision between the two craft seemed in evitable and the unfortunate lady, doubtless thinking that an accident could not be averted, jumped from the boat and immediately sank beneath the waters of the lake. The helmsman of the Turbinia, however, reviewing the situation quickly, threw his wheel over and by a very narrow margin missed running down the small boat. Mr. Shepherd and the son were rescued from their still perilous position by a launch.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

"Then these boys have to sell over two hundred papers a day."

"They have about a hundred regular customers," said Dick, "and they sell another hundred papers besides."

It seemed to me the boys must have exaggerated because eight dollars a week was pretty nearly the pay of an able-bodied man. It didn't seem possible that these youngsters whom I'd pitied all my life could earn such an income. However, if they didn't earn half as much, it wasn't a bad proposition for a lad.

I talked the matter over with Ruth and I found she had the same prejudices I had had. She, too, thought selling papers was a branch of begging. I repeated what Dick told me and she shook her head doubtfully.

"It doesn't seem as though I could let the boy do that," she said.

If there was one thing down here as though this wasn't plenty she kept the little woman always worried about deep in her heart, it was lest the boy and myself might get coarsened. She thought, I think, without ever exactly saying so to herself that in our ambition to forge ahead we might lose some of the finer standards of life. She was bucking against that tendency all the time. That's why she made me shave every morning, that's why she made me keep my shoes blacked, that's why she made us both dress up on Sunday whether we went to church or not. She for her part kept herself looking even more trig than when she had the fear that Mrs. Grover might drop in at any time. And every night at dinner she presided with as much form as though she were entertaining a dinner party. I guess she thought we might learn to eat with our knives if she didn't.

"Well," I said, "your word is final. But let's look at this first as a straight business proposition."

So I went over the scheme just as I had to myself.

"These boys aren't beggars," I said. "They are little business men. And as a matter of fact most of them are earning as much as their fathers. The trouble is that they've been given a black eye by well-meaning sympathizers who haven't taken the trouble to find out just what the actual facts are. A group of big-hearted women who see their own chickens safely rounded up at six every night, find the newsboys on the street as they themselves are on their way to the opera and conclude it's a great hardship and that the lads must be homeless and suffering. Maybe they even find a case or two which justifies this theory. But on the whole they are simply comparing the outside of these boys' lives with the lives of their own sheltered boys. They don't stop to consider that these lads are toughened and that they'd probably be on the street any way. And they don't figure out how much they earn or what that amount stands for down here."

Ruth listened and then she said:

"But isn't it a pity that the boys are toughened, Billy?"

"No," I said, "it would be a pity if they weren't. They wouldn't last a year. We have to have some seasoned fighters in the world."

"But Dick—"

"Dick has found his feet now. The suggestion was his own. Personally, I believe in letting him try it."

"All right, Billy," she said.

But she said it in such a sad sort of way that I said:

"If you're going to worry about him, this ends it. But I'd like to see the boy so well seasoned that you won't have to worry about him no matter where he is, no matter what he's doing."

"You're right," she said. "I want to see him like you. I never worry about you, Billy."

It pleased me to have her say that. I know a lot of men who wouldn't believe their wives loved them unless they fretted about them all the time. I think a good many fellows even make up things just to see the women worry. I remember that Stevens always used to come home either with a sick headache or a tale of how he thought he might lose his job or something of the sort and poor Dolly Stevens would stay awake half the night comforting him. She'd tell Ruth about it the next day. I may have had a touch of that disease myself before I came down here, but I know that ever since then I've tried to lift the worrying load off the wife's shoulders. I've done my best to make Ruth feel I'm strong enough to take care of myself. I've wanted her to trust me so that she'd know I act always just as though she was by my side. Of course, I've never been able to do away altogether with her fear of sickness and sudden death, but so far as my own conduct is concerned, I've tried to make her feel secure in me.

When I stop to think about it, Ruth has really lived three lives. She has lived her own, and she has lived it hard. She not only has done her daily tasks as well as she knew how but she has tried to make herself a little better every day. That has been a waste of time because she was just naturally as good as they make them, but you couldn't ever make her see that. I don't suppose there's been a day when at night she hasn't thought she might have done something a little better and lain awake to tell me so.

Then Ruth has lived my life and done over again every single thing I've done except the actual physical labor. Why every evening when I came back from work she wanted me to begin with seven-thirty a.m. and tell her everything that happened after that. And when I came back from school at night, she'd wake up out of a sound sleep if she had gone to bed and ask me to tell her just what I'd learned. Though she never held a trowel in her hand I'll bet she could go out to-day and build a true brick wall. And though she has never seen half the men I've met, she knows them as well as I do myself. Some of them she knows better and has proved to me time and again that she does. I've often told her about some man I'd just met and about whom I was enthusiastic for the moment and she'd say:

"Tell me what he looks like, Billy."

I'd tell her and then she'd ask about his eyes and about his mouth and what kind of a voice he had and whether he smiled when he said so and so, and whether he looked me in the eyes at that point and so on. Then she'd say:

"Better be a little careful about him", or "I guess you can trust him, Billy."

Sometimes she made mistakes, but that was because I hadn't reported things to her just right. Generally I'd trust her judgment in the face of my own.

Then Ruth led the boy's life. Every ambition he had was her ambition. Besides that she had a dozen ambitions for him that he didn't know anything about. And she thought and worked and schemed to make every single one of them come true. Every trouble he had was her trouble too. If he worried a half-hour over something, she worried an hour. Then again there were a whole lot of other troubles in connection with him which bothered her and which he didn't know about.

Besides all these things she was busy about dressing us and feeding us and making us comfortable. She was always cleaning our rooms and washing our clothes and mending our socks. Then, too, she looked after the finances, and this in itself was enough for one woman to do. Then light-hearted for our sakes. You'd find her singing about her work whenever you came in and always ready with a smile and a joke. And if she herself had a headache you had to be a doctor and a lawyer rolled in one to find it out.

So I say the least I could do was to make her trust me so thoroughly that she'd have one less burden. And I wanted to bring up Dick in the same way. Dick was a good boy and I'll say that he did his best.

Ruth says that if I don't tear up these last few pages, people will think I'm silly. I'm willing so long as they believe me honest. Of course, in a way, such details are no one's business, but if I couldn't give Ruth the credit which is her due in this undertaking, I wouldn't take the trouble to write it all out.

Dick told his school friend what he wanted to do and asked his advice on the best way to go at it. Then after went with him and helped him get his license, took him down to the newspaper offices, and showed him where to buy his papers, and introduced him to the other boys. The newsboys hadn't at that time formed a union, but there was an agreement among them about the territory each should cover. Some of the boys had worked up a regular trade in certain places, and of course it wasn't right for a newcomer to infringe upon this. There was considerable talking and some bargaining and finally Dick was given a stand in the banking district. This was due to Dick's classmate also. The latter realized that a boy of Dick's appearance would do better there than anywhere.

So one morning Dick rose early and I staked him to a dollar and he started off in high spirits. He didn't have any of the false pride about the work that at first I myself had felt. He was on my mind pretty much all that day, and I came home curious and a little anxious to learn the result. He had been back after the morning editions. Ruth reported he had sold fifty papers, and had returned more eager than ever. She said he wouldn't probably be home until after seven. He wanted to catch the crowd on their way to the station.

I suggested to Ruth that we wait dinner for him and go up town and watch him. She hesitated at this, fearing the boy wouldn't like it and perhaps not over anxious herself to see him on such a job. But as I said, if the boy wasn't ashamed I didn't think we ought to be. So she put on her things and we started.

We found him by the entrance to one of the big buildings with his papers in a strap thrown over his shoulder. He had one paper in his hand and was offering it, perhaps a bit shyly, to each passer-by with a quiet "Paper, sir?" We watched him a moment, and Ruth kept a tight grip on my arm.

"Well," I said, "what do you think of him?"

"Billy," she said with a little tremble in her voice, "I'm proud of him."

"He'll do," I said.

Then I said:

"Wait here a moment."

I took a nickel from my pocket and hurried towards him as though I were one of the crowd hustling for the train. I stopped in front of him and he handed me a paper without looking up. He began to make change, and it wasn't until he handed me back my three coppers that he saw who I was. Then he grinned.

"Hello, Dad," he said.

Then he asked quickly:

"Where's mother?"

But Ruth couldn't wait any longer and she came hurrying up and placed her hand underneath the papers to see if they were too heavy for him.

Dick earned three dollars that first week and he never fell below this during the summer. Sometimes he went as high as five, and when it came time for him to go to school again he had about seventy-five regular customers. He had been kept out of doors between six and seven hours a day. The contact with a new type of boy and even the contact with the brisk business men who were his customers had sharpened up his wits all round. In the ten weeks he saved over forty dollars. I wanted him to put this in the bank, but he insisted on buying his own winter clothes with it, and on the whole I thought he'd feel better if I let him. Then he had another proposition. He wanted to keep his evening customers through the year. I thought it was going to be pretty hard for him to do this with his school work, but we finally agreed to let him try it for a while anyway. After all I didn't like to think he couldn't do what other boys were doing.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE SECOND YEAR

Now as far as proving to us the truth of my theory that an intelligent able-bodied American ought to succeed where millions of ignorant, half-starved emigrants do right along, this first year had already done it. It had also proved, to our own satisfaction at least, that such success does not mean a return to a lower standard of living, but only a return to a simpler standard of living. With soap at five cents a cake it isn't poverty that breeds filth, but ignorance and laziness. When an able-bodied man can earn, at the very bottom of the ladder, a dollar and a half a day and a boy can earn from three to five dollars a week and still go to school, it isn't a lack of money that makes the bread line; it's a lack of horse sense. We found that we could maintain a higher standard of living down here than we were able to maintain in our old life; we could live more sanely, breathe in higher ideals, and find time to accept more opportunities. The sheer, naked conditions were better for a higher life here than they were in the suburbs.

I'm speaking always of the able-bodied man. A sick man is a sick man whether he's worth a million or hasn't a cent. He's to be pitied. With the public hospitals what they are to-day, you can't say that the sick millionaire has any great advantage over the sick pauper. Money makes a bigger difference, of course, to the sick man's family, but at that you'll find for every widow O'Toole a widow Bonnington, and for every widow Bonnington you'll find the heart-broken widow of some millionaire who doesn't consider her dollars any great consolation in such a crisis.

GODS OF THE MOUNTAINS

A Grotesque Form of Fancy Presented at the Haymarket Theatre

Of all forms of fancy, the grotesque is perhaps the most difficult effectively to carry across the footlights of a theatre. Yet, despite all the essential difficulties of presentation, Lord Dunsany's fantasy "The Gods of the Mountains," at the Haymarket, succeeded splendidly, and acted, it remains as it is written, a thing of pleasant and suggestive charm. The beggars lament that the gods no longer turn the hearts of men to charity. Then, on the suggestion of the super beggar, Agmar, they claim that they themselves are the Seven Gods come down from the mountain, and by craft and histrionic skill they delude the people of the city into faith. Danger comes when two men journey on their dromedaries to see whether the great green figures of the gods still rest among the hills. But they come back and report that the gods are no longer there. And all is well. A feast is prepared, gifts are made ready, and the most beautiful dancing girls are summoned. But the wise Agmar is troubled. Suddenly the sky is darkened, and the monstrous real gods come in wrath and strike the beggars into stone. But by this act the gods deify the beggars, for when they see the stone men, the people of the city make deep abeisance and acclaim that they are gods indeed.

With its Eastern setting and accompanied by Mr. Norman O'Neill's appropriate music, "The Gods of the Mountains" is a fresh and welcome experience. It is admirably acted, Mr. C. V. France as Agmar being splendidly impressive.

THE GAEKWAR OF BARODA

Indian Sikh chief, whose appearance at the Coronation of King George and Queen Mary created much comment by reason of his lavish display of jewellery. The Gaekwar is a native Prince of India and owns jewellery estimated to be worth $1,200,000. While it was impossible for him to adorn himself with all his gems, he astonished Great Britain and outshone British nobles by wearing the Star of the South, the Akbah Shah and the Eugenie, three diamonds weighing respectively 125 karats, 74 karats, and 51 karats, besides many other jewels of lesser importance.

MAKE EVERYONE BEAUTIFUL

Surgeons Who Are Skilful in What Is Called "Human Sculptery"

Dr. Hans Kersten, who is one of the great skin grafting specialists of Germany, in a recent lecture, asserts that shortly anyone can be made beautiful at small cost with the aid of the surgeon's knife. He describes this as "Human Sculptery." Skilful surgeons, says the doctor, are able to graft skin or missing organs so perfectly that no scar is to be seen. In such a way it should be easy to remedy other defects in the facial organs or contour, and as beauty relies on symmetry, it would seem that the most mis-shap n face can be transformed into a likeness of Apollo Belvedere.

The specialist describes as easy operations reducing the excessively large ears, narrowing unduly distended nostrils, straightening crooked noses, grafting skin, and removing black patches from the necks, faces and arms of women whose skin is otherwise fair. It would seem that women of the future will be the radiant daughter of these miraculous forces of nature.

DURBAN A GREAT CITY

Durban is indicated by the census as the second largest town in the South African Union, the total population exceeding that of Capetown and being second only to that of Johannesburg. Durban is also the only coast town with an increased total of inhabitants all round since 1904. The enumeration shows that the growth of Europeans has outstripped that of all colored races, in which respect Durban is unlike other large centres.

PRIESTS AND AEROPLANES

The aviation craze has affected even the Roman clergy, many of whom witnessed the arrival of the airmen competing in the great Paris-Rome-Turin race. Three priests, it is stated, have requested from the Pope permission to follow the course of aeroplane training. The Pope personally is inclined to grant their request, although the cardinals are opposed to having priests take up aviation at the risk of their lives. However, as they are likely to get the Pope's permission to learn flying these three priests will probably soon become veritable "sky-pilots."

The Air Is Germ Laden

In the Springtime—Disease is Ready to Make You a Victim When the Blood is Thin

Rich, Red Blood is the Greatest of Germicides—You Can Get the Blood Right by Using

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

When the blood is rich and red, when it is largely composed of red corpuscles, there is little chance for disease germs. They cannot thrive in the system which is filled with good blood.

But in the spring the blood is generally thin, weak and watery. It lacks the vitalizing red corpuscles and you become an easy prey to the germs of disease which seem to lurk everywhere at this time of year.

You can fortify yourself against the germs of disease by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment forms new, red corpuscles in the blood, makes the blood rich, red and healthy.

Weakness, tired feelings, stomach derangements and disorders of the nervous system soon disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

This medicine cures by the building-up process, and for this reason its benefits are lasting. Nearly everybody needs something in the spring to enrich the blood and tone up the system, and it would be impossible to get a more satisfactory spring tonic than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Insurance

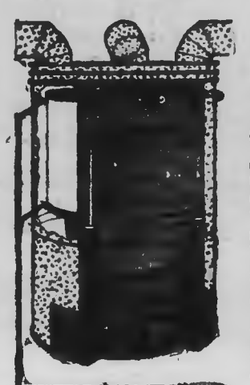
This furnace is built to keep gas, dust and smoke out of the house.

No matter how cosy your home, an odor of gas, however slight, is unpleasant and sometimes dangerous.

The health of your whole house demands a furnace that will give pure warm air without gas or dust.

Gas cannot escape from a "Hecla" Furnace. Every place where experience has shown that gas might otherwise find an opening has been made absolutely tight by our Patent Fused Joint.

The constant expansion and contraction of the steel and iron parts cannot break this joint.



"Hecla" Furnace

The "Hecla" has other safeguards against gas. The cast iron Combustion Chamber will not burn through and allow fumes from the fire to pass into the house.

The air jets in the door assure proper burning of any surplus gas.

The Automatic Gas Damper prevents danger from gas puffs.

There is a special dust flue to carry the ash dust up the chimney.

THE FUSED JOINT

In the "Hecla" the steel sides of the radiator are fused by our patented process to the cast iron plates at the top and bottom. This process welds the steel and iron into one piece, making an inseparable joint—one that cannot spread with the heat, and one that has proven perfectly gas and dust proof, even after years of service.

The 'Hecla' Saves One Ton of Coal in Seven

How steel ribs added to the "Hecla" Fire Pot make this saving is told in our booklet "Comfort & Health."

MUCH DEPENDS ON THE PONIES

Captain Scott is Making Extensive Preparations for the British Antarctic Expedition

Captain Scott, as leader of the British Antarctic expedition, is making important preparations for a second attempt to reach the South Pole should he fail to achieve his object next season. With the assistance of the members of the expedition he is hopeful, of course, of accomplishing a large amount of useful scientific and exploration work outside of the Polar dash altogether. Success depends almost wholly upon the transport arrangements, and it is in this question apparently which is causing Captain Scott some misgivings. His ponies when landed from the Terra Nova at Cape Evans, were in good condition considering what they had gone through. But Captain Scott is entirely dependent upon these ponies, and should any of them fail in the coming winter, he would be heavily handicapped, and might possibly miss his goal. Should this occur, his plan is to make another attempt in the following season, provided that fresh transport can be brought down by December next.

Captain Scott, before giving directions for the despatch of a further supply of ponies, went thoroughly into the matter with Captain Oates, of the Inniskilling Dragoons, who is in charge of the western party's transport animals. Captain Oates suggested that mules would be better than ponies for the work required of them, and that trained Indian transport mules would be ideal.

Both Captain Oates and Mr. Meares, his helper, have seen wonderful work done by mules in Northern India, especially during the expedition to Tibet, and there seems little doubt that these animals would do as well on the voyage and in the Antarctic cold as ponies, while they would draw greater loads at a more uniform pace. The Indian transport mules used by the Tibetan expedition accomplished remarkable work at great altitudes in very low temperatures when ponies, yaks, etc., broke down.

Captain Scott accordingly decided to fall in with Captain Oates suggestion, and before the Terra Nova left Cape Evans, he wrote to Major-General Sir Douglas Haig, Chief of the Staff in India. The agent of the expedition at Christchurch has now received word from the Secretary of the Army Department at Simla to the effect that seven mules have been selected to go south, and are now being trained to sledge work at high altitudes.

Satisfactory shipping arrangements have been made with the Union Steamship Company, whose steamer Aparima, will bring the mules from Calcutta early in August. The agent at Christchurch is also negotiating with a firm at Vladivostok for a further supply of trained Siberian dogs.

QUAINT STORY RECALLED

A Colony of Cossacks Taste the Experience of Their Forefathers

One of those curious instances of quaint historical survival, of which many occur in Asia Minor, has lately come before official Russian attention in Constantinople. It is the case of a colony of about 3,000 Russian Cossacks, settled in Anatolia, Asia Minor. The forefathers of these Cossacks left Russia for voluntary exile 350 years ago. Their departure was occasioned by an attempt to enroll their names for census purposes in writing. According to the creed of these peasants the writing down of their names jeopardizes their chances of salvation, for it involves the curse of Anti-Christ, enabling him to set his seal upon them. During the whole of this time the Cossacks have kept their identity absolutely intact. They speak a Russian dialect bearing the same relation to the language of the present day as does our modern English to that of Chaucer. They wear the Russian dress of three centuries ago, and even grow herbs, uncultivated elsewhere in Anatolia, to make the dishes that were the food of mediaeval Russia. A few months ago this little band of Russian exiles found themselves suddenly faced by the same danger that threatened their ancestors in the sixteenth century. The Turkish Government having decided to call upon its Christian subjects for military service, demanded the enrollment of these men of the community who were of age, and again they were in danger of the seal of Anti-Christ. This time a split occurred. The young men urged that since they could not avoid enrollment it were best to serve in Russia among their kindred, but the older members were in favor of remaining. The arbitration of the Russian Consul in Constantinople was invoked, and through his agency, funds were obtained from the Russian Government to enable those who wished to do so to return to Russia, leaving the rest to live on a tiny ethnological island among the races of Anatolia.

THE STRENGTH OF A CHAIN

Is that of its Weakest Link. Father Morrisey's No. 10 Forges it Anew.

The chain of the physical system is only as strong as its weakest link. When that link breaks, the chain breaks, and serious illness followed by death often results. The weak link with many people is the throat and lungs. In fact, statistics show that over twenty-five per cent of all deaths can be directly traced to diseases of these most important respiratory organs. Weakness here is very dangerous.

During his long and successful practice, Father Morrisey, the learned priest-physician, was often called upon to treat bronchial and pulmonary affections. He soon found that it was not enough to make temporary repairs on the "link," but that it had to be forged anew, in order permanently to strengthen the chain.

After much study, he succeeded in devising a prescription that would secure this result, by not only giving prompt relief but also by rebuilding and strengthening the delicate cells and membranes of the throat and lungs.

This prescription, Father Morrisey's Lung Tonic, or No. 10, has cured thousands. It is absolutely free from any dangerous drug, being compounded from Nature's own roots, herbs and balsams.

No. 10 stops the cough, relieves the soreness and strengthens and fortifies the system against future attacks. Even in the early stages of consumption it has proved helpful, but the wise plan is to take it in time, and avoid serious disease.

In our climate it is well to have a reliable and tested remedy like No. 10 always on hand. Take it at the first appearance of a cold, and keep the chain of life strong and capable of resistance.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

O'Reilly Denied That His Name was "O-blitherated"

In some country districts in Ireland, it is not unusual to see the owners' names simply chalked on traders' carts and other vehicles, in order to comply with the regulations. Unfortunately this custom lends itself to the playing of pranks on the part of "bhoys" maliciously inclined, who sometimes rub out the lettering. A case of this kind having occurred, a constabulary sergeant accosted a countryman whose name had been thus wiped out unknown to him.

"Is this cart yours, my good man?" asked the sergeant.

Av coorse it is," was the reply. "Do you see anaything the matter wid it?"

"I observe," said the pompous officer, "that yer name is o-blitherated."

"Then, ye're wrong, sorr," retorted the countryman, who had never come across the long dictionary word before, "for me name's O'Reilly, an' I don't care who knows it!"

FAMOUS EYES

Geniuses as a Rule Have Blue or Blue-Grey Orbs

It is said that the majority of the world's geniuses have had blue or blue-grey eyes; while the predominating color in lunatic asylums and criminal institutions is mentioned as brown.

The following are the eye-colors of some of the most famous people in history.

The eyes of Caesar were black and piercing.

Cleopatra's eyes were light hazel.

Helen of Troy had blue orbs; those of Joan of Arc and Mary Queen of Scots, liquid grey; Queen Elizabeth's were hazel.

Washington had very forceful grey eyes that commanded respect and obedience.

Keen glances came from Napoleon's grey eyes that seemed to search men's hearts.

Mark Twain's eyes were small, black and keen.

Gladstone had large, luminous grey eyes.

Disraeli's eyes in his youth were quite black, and it is remarked that they had "the most mocking, lying in wait sort of expression conceivable."

Carlyle describes the eyes of Wellington as "beautiful light blue, full of mild valor and geniality."

IF THE TREE COULD SPEAK

Bishop Seymour was very fond of trees, and one day while walking with a young woman he pointed out to her some of the fine trees of the neighborhood. She professed great interest and delight. She cried:

"How the noble aspects of beautiful trees stir up the keenest emotions of the soul."

Then, patting a great rough trunk, she went on:

"You superb oak, what would you say to me if you could talk?"

The bishop smiled.

"I believe I can be his interpreter," he murmured. "He would probably say, 'I beg your pardon, miss; I am a beech.'"

SENTENCED TO DEATH

An Indian Woman Who Poisoned Her Persistent Lover

Great excitement among Indians has been caused by the passing of sentence of death in Punjab, on Ranee Sahiba, the Suderani, for having caused the death of a Brahmin by giving him arsenic in milk. The Ranee, whose rank is equivalent to that of a princess, is the widow of Sirdan Singh, who was one of the most prominent men in the Punjab. The murdered man had been the Ranee's lover, but she tired of him and wanted to get rid of him. As he flatly declined to leave her, she admitted him to her private apartments on the night of February 20, and gave him a draught of milk with arsenic in it. Two days later she has the body removed by some trusted servants. In passing sentence, the judge said that it was difficult to conceive a more cold-blooded murder, as the Ranee must have heard the groans of her discarded lover, lying on the threshold of her apartments. "I therefore sentence her," said the judge, "to be hanged by the neck until she is dead." The Ranee has appealed to the Punjab Chief Court.

WON $170,000

Mr. Awberry Tells How He Became Acquainted with the Sweepstakes

The second prize, of $170,000, in the "Derby Sweepstakes" organized by the Calcutta Turf Club, has been won by Mr. Awberry, master of the Warrington Workhouse. Asked as to his future plans, he said he could not say whether he would give up his position or not because his 16 years' experience of Poor Law work had greatly attached him to it. He had had a host of suggestions, he said, as to what to do with his fortune, but he preferred to meditate upon it for a short time; in fact, he hardly yet realized his changed position. Describing what led to his becoming connected with the "sweep," he said he heard it casually mentioned that there were three tickets for sale in Dundee, and he purchased them through a series of friends, and for a few weeks thought no more about the matter. News reached him that ticket No. 211,915, in the name of "Glenside, Dundee," which was the nome-de-plume he had adopted, had drown Stedfast. A Dundee firm purchased a half interest in the ticket for $6,000, and the result of the race entitled him and them to $85,000 each. A well-known peer, he said, telegraphed, offering to purchase a quarter, half, or the whole of the ticket, but the offer was declined.

HEIR TO MILLIONS

Rudolph Uttinger, a young barber's apprentice of Budapest, Hungary, is co-heir with his mother to eight million American dollars, left by his uncle Leopold Nowak, who emigrated to the United States forty years ago. Nowak died after amassing a great fortune by speculating, and his heirs were advertised for. His sister, Uttinger's mother, was ultimately found, and informed that she and her son would share Uncle Leopold's millions. The amazing turn of fortune does not seem to have turned the young barber's head, for he continues to trim hair and shave as usual.

Sun-Dazed Chauffeur

Dazzled, he states, by the sun shining on his goggles, the chauffeur of a taxicab drove into the rear of a laundry van at Epping, overturning it and knocking down a lamp-post. The horse had to be killed owing to the shaft having entered its neck. Both drivers were unhurt.

The most important mining centres are Sudbury, Michipicoten, Temiscaming, Cobalt, Porcupine and Gowganda. The mineral output now exceeds $27,000,000 annually, and is increasing.

JUST BY CHANCE

Many of the Interesting Contrivances of To-day Were Discovered by Mere Accident

Many common objects of the present, many little personal adornments and useful articles which are seen and utilized by us day after day, have interesting though little-known histories of their own. Many of the contrivances of to-day were discovered through sheer chance. Soap, for instance, was the outcome of an accident. A woman found occasion to boil some lye of soda in an iron pot, and discovered that by so doing she had produced a substance which would form a thick lather in water, and was a great help in removing dirt. This set her thinking. She remembered that the pot used was a dirty one, which had still remaining in it some vestiges of olive oil. This had combined with the lye of soda, and thus led to the discovery of soap.

Do you know the meaning of the moustache? It has a deep symbolism. Several centuries ago, when a horde of Arabs and Berbers invaded Spain, they seized the fertile southern slopes and drove the Christians who had been in possession, into the mountains of the north. Though these Moors, as the Arabs and Berbers were called, were mild and tolerant rulers in many ways, and mixed marriages became common, there was constant strife resulting from the difference in creeds, and much confusion as to who were Moslems and who were Christians. It was therefore determined that the Christians should wear some badge of their faith by which they might always be known, and misunderstandings on this point avoided in the future. The moustache was grown by every male Christian in Spain, and this custom has been followed for hundreds of years. The moustache is supposed, with the nose, to form a rough representation of the Cross.

The origin of the silk top hat may be traced to a little advertising scheme of a London haberdasher. In order to attract attention, this man walked out in the streets wearing the first silk hat ever made. So great was the crowd that followed him that he was suspected of inciting a riot, and he was severely reprimanded by the magistrates. He had set a fashion, however, and silk hats became very popular.

A SEAT OF GYPSY ROYALTY

Kirk Yetholm, which for several centuries was the headquarters of the Scottish gipsies and the seat of their royal "palace," nestles at the foot of the Cheviot Hills, about seven miles south of Kelso. A little way below the village the Bowmount Water, which separates it from Town Yetholm, falls into the Till, near Flodden Field. According to tradition, the bodies of many of the Scottish nobles who fell on Flodden were conveyed to Kirk Yetholm, and were buried in the church and churchyard. In the same churchyard repose many generations of gipsy kings and queens, princes and princesses, lords and commons. But in the village there are now few gipsies left. Those of them who remain are known by the vulgar and unromantic name of "muggers" (potters).

ROMANCE OF A DIAMOND

One of the finest diamonds in the world is the Florentine Diamond, held by the Imperial Treasury of Austria. This diamond is principally interesting, however, on account of its curious history. It may be said to have had an adventurous career. Originally it belonged to Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, who carelessly thrust it into his pocket as one day he sallied forth to battle. In the fury of the engagement the diamond dropped out of the Duke's pocket, and was lost. Later, a Swiss soldier espied it lying in a roadway. Having no idea of its enormous value, he one day showed it to a priest, who offered him about two shillings for it, which the soldier gladly accepted. The priest sold it to a jeweller for half-a-crown, the jeweller to a merchant for something like $2,500, and the merchant sold it to an Italian noble for $1,000 more. Eventually it became the property of the Pope, and, after many further adventures, passed into the hands of the Imperial Family of Austria.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

HOW UNCLE SAM LOOKS TO THE FEEDING OF HIS FAMILY

THE LAST CHANCE of the DIAMOND BACK TERRAPIN

STEPS Taken by the Federal Bureau of Fisheries to Propagate This Crustacean, Which, as It Becomes Scarcer, Has Risen from $4.00 a Dozen to $120.00

Adult Female Known as "Counts"

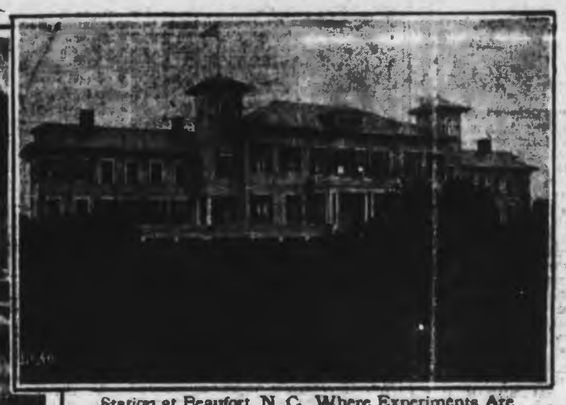
IN the year 1878 a vessel from the port of New York went to Wilmington, N. C., in search of diamond back terrapins. By judicious buying the captain obtained five hundred dozen of this species of edible turtle at the rate of $4 a dozen. Two years later another large consignment of diamond back terrapins was shipped from North Carolina for the price of $10 a dozen. To-day the wholesale price of this delicacy is $120 a dozen.

The total catch of edible turtles in 1880 by the Middle Atlantic States was 237,000 pounds and in the South Atlantic States it was 169,200 pounds. In 1908 in the Middle Atlantic States it was only 11,600 and in the South Atlantic States only 95,549.

These facts indicate more clearly than any others what is happening to the supply of edible turtles in this country. Although the increase in the demand, and consequently in the price, was enormous, the catch fell off to a remarkable degree. This condition is the more alarming from the standpoint of the lover of terrapin stew because of the fact that up to this day it has not been demonstrated to a certainty that there is any efficient means of artificially increasing the supply. Diamond back terrapins have never yet been propagated artificially for the market.

Adult Terrapins

Laboratory Station, Beaufort, N. C.



Station at Beaufort, N. C., Where Experiments Are Being Made with Terrapins

One other historical fact about the terrapin may serve to show the extent of the ravages of man upon his race. It is a matter of official record that the Maryland Legislature more than a hundred years ago passed an act declaring that slave owners should not be permitted to feed terrapin to their slaves more than twice or three times a week. The purpose of this act was not to protect the terrapin, which was so plentiful that it was the cheapest kind of food for the slaves, but to protect the slaves, who were not supposed to thrive and to do their work well when living on such a delicate food.

Aroused by the rapid decrease in the terrapin supply the United States government, through the Bureau of Fisheries of the Department of Commerce and Labor, has undertaken to discover if possible a means of artificially propagating them. The experiments have been going on for several years, but the outcome is still in doubt, although the scientists who are in charge of the work are extremely optimistic.

The first experiments were made about three years ago near Lloyd's, Md., on Chesapeake Bay, by Professor William Perry Hay, instructor in natural history at Howard University, Washington, D. C. He did his work under the auspices of the Bureau of Fisheries, and the facts which he collated are now serving as a basis for the further experiments of the bureau. Two years ago the scene of the terrapin investigations was changed to the Government Biological Laboratory at Beaufort, N. C.

It was first necessary to accumulate an adequate supply of breeders, males and females, of the best varieties. These denizens of the salt marshes along the Atlantic coast were confined in corrals or pounds extending out into the ocean. Three very important problems next presented themselves for satisfactory solution. First, it was necessary to make the terrapin thus obtained breed in captivity. Second, a successful method of protecting the eggs had to be devised. Last, it was necessary to induce the young turtles to take the proper sort of food to make them grow.

Like all other wild animals in captivity, the tendency of the terrapin is not to breed. To overcome this the conditions surrounding the terrapin in their natural places of abode were simulated as closely as possible. They were allowed a certain amount of freedom in the pounds built out into the sea in marshy regions. Great care was exercised to provide them with food like that which they find for themselves in the wild state. Their principal diet in the pounds is cabbage, fish and crabs.

This part of the experiment has proved successful. All of the old terrapins that were collected by the Beaufort laboratory two years ago were induced to breed, and three hundred eggs were obtained last year. At that laboratory there are to-day still 270 young diamond back terrapin from those eggs, born last summer. Every few weeks they are weighed and measured, in order that their rate of growth may be ascertained. The utmost care is being exercised in the feeding, but this is still largely guesswork.

It remains to be seen whether these turtles will grow to the edible size, which will take from five to seven years according to the popular theory—this has not been scientifically ascertained—and, what is equally important, it remains to be seen whether turtles bred and raised in captivity will themselves reproduce their kind in captivity. It can readily be understood that it will be at least four and probably six or seven years before this can be known with any degree of certainty.

To Be Kept in Captivity.

Unlike the lobster breeders on the New England coast, the terrapin breeders plan to keep the artificially propagated terrapins in captivity until they are ready for the market. The young lobsters are liberated in the sea by the millions each year, and it is to some extent a matter of guesswork to determine how many of these same lobsters ever grow up to reach the dinner tables in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and the other places where they are so greatly coveted. The terrapin is much too precious to be thus set free and allowed to escape capture if he can. Besides, the terrapin is by no means such a prolific breeder as the lobster.

It is only the female diamond back terrapin that commands the big prices and is considered the great delicacy. The males do not grow so large nor is their meat considered so good. A "count" terrapin, which is one that has attained the proper size and is a female, must be seven inches long. The measurements are taken on the bottom of the shell from tip to tip. This is well understood by even the negroes who make a business of catching terrapins along the eastern and western shores of Chesapeake Bay and other places in the Southern States. While they will sell a "count" terrapin for $5 or $6 to a buyer who is collecting them for wh esale distribution, they are willing to part with the smaller male for twenty-five or fifty cents apiece.

The latest figures of the Census Bureau on the catch of edible turtles in the United States serve to show how much more valuable the diamond back terrapin is than the other varieties. The total catch in the year 1908 of edible turtles was 1,088,000 pounds, and its value was approximately $40,000. In the same year the total catch of the terrapin was only 388,000 pounds, but its value was approximately $80,000.

Diamond back terrapins have been known to connoisseurs and purveyors of sea food for a great many years. They are distributed more or less continuously along the eastern coast of North and Central America from Buzzard's Bay, Mass., to Yucatan. Their occurrence along the Yucatan coast was recorded in 1895 by Professor Gray, a student of natural history. It is quite possible that the range extends further to the southward. The famous natural historian, Professor Agassiz, has stated that they are to be found or have been found as far south as the northern coast of South America. Generally, however, this statement of Professor Agassiz is taken with a grain of salt by other students of the terrapin.

All the species are lovers of salt or brackish water, and they find their most congenial homes in low lying swamps and protected bays or inlets. But they also occur more or less bountifully in nearly all the rivers that empty into the sea within the limits named, and they ascend these rivers to points where the water is quite sweet. In the James River, in Virginia, they have been found considerably above Jamestown. They were formerly abundant at West Point, in the York River. Individual diamond back terrapins have also been taken within four miles of the city of Washington in the Potomac River.

Adult Terrapin

Absolutely nothing is known of the habits of the more Southern varieties, except as they have been studied in the corrals on the Chesapeake Bay. There they have acted much like the Northern kind, going into hibernation early and emerging late in the spring. The Northern species is pretty well known, so far as its habits are concerned. Its period of hibernation begins soon after the advent of cold weather, but for some weeks it emerges whenever there is a warm day. Eventually, however, it buries itself completely in the mud at the bottom of some pool or stream and remains so hidden until spring. Very soon after the winter sleep is over it works its way out of the mud, seeks others of its kind, and the process of reproduction begins.

The lovemaking of the terrapin usually takes place at night or in the very early hours of the morning, and invariably in the water. The diminutive male is carried around on the back of the female. For the most part the eggs are laid in May and June. The female digs a nest with her hind legs. It is a hole in some convenient bank, and at a depth of five or six inches she deposits from five to twelve eggs. The lobster produces from 10,000 to 80,000 eggs every season. Having laid her eggs the female terrapin crawls out of the hole, carefully covers it up, effaces every trace of her work and forthwith departs. If the weather is warm the eggs hatch in about six weeks. They may require twice that long if the season is a cold one.

Food of the Terrapin.

The young soon after hatching go to a nearby marsh and burrow into the mud, where they remain for the first winter and sometimes for the first summer. As compared to the growth of other turtles, that of the diamond back terrapin is fairly rapid. The average increase in length is about one inch a year until a total length of five inches or thereabouts has been reached, when it becomes much slower. It is thought that growth continues throughout the life of the individual, but in old age it is so slow as to be practically imperceptible. Apparently the limit of a terrapin's life is twenty-five or thirty years.

For food in its wild state the diamond back terrapin has what crustaceans and molluscs it is able to catch and crush, but as its jaws are rather weak it is compelled to feed upon the smaller and softer animals of these groups. At unusually high tides it occasionally follows the water into the grassy lowlands, and may be seen catching and eating insects. The tender shoots and rootlets of the marsh plants are also eaten, and probably form a very considerable proportion of its food at times. Fresh water seems to be a necessity for the life of the diamond back terrapin at certain periods, but it can live for a long time without it.

It is the common belief in many places that the turtle is nomadic, moving restlessly from place to place, and that it is able to make considerable journeys in a very short space of time. There is no scientific evidence, however, to support this theory. On the contrary, the individual born in or accidentally transported to a favorable locality probably stays there for an indefinite period of time. No other theory than that has been found to explain the numerous local races and the stories of the reappearance of certain marked terrapins season after season.

The former abundance of the diamond back terrapin is a matter of unmistakable record. At one time in this country hundreds could be seen in a single day where now perhaps only one or two can be found in a season. Thanks to lax laws and ruthless hunters, the species is on the very verge of complete extinction, and before long, unless proper measures are taken, must be numbered among the lost host of animals that man has exterminated.

The turtles of this genus exhibit some very interesting and important changes in form and sculpture as they advance in age, aside, of course from the natural increase in size and weight. The young of the Northern species resemble the female parent very closely, with the shell a little rounder and the head proportionately a little larger. The color, however, in every case among a great many that have been studied by Professor Hay for the Bureau of Fisheries was a dark blackish brown, the soft skin being everywhere so thickly speckled with black as nearly to obliterate the ground color of the shell.

As the young animal increases in size the plates of the shell are spread apart. To fill the space thus left new shell is developed, underlying the original plates and extending beyond its margins, where it appears in the first year as the first concentric ridge. Presumably this growth takes place periodically, and the age of the turtle can be approximated by counting the ridges. The determination of a very large and old terrapin, however, becomes difficult, for the reason that the shell becomes worn off so as to obliterate all but the last formed ridges.

There is much difference of opinion as to the age which a turtle may reach. Professor Agassiz was of the opinion that most of the North American turtles, the diamond back terrapin included, could attain a very great age and continue to grow almost without limit. It is generally admitted to be true that there is almost indisputable evidence to support this assertion in regard to some of the species, but Professor Hay believes that for nearly all of them there is a limit, at least in size.

The maximum size of the diamond back terrapin, according to Professor Hay, is about nine inches. It very rarely exceeds eight inches, and he says this size is attained at the age of fifteen or twenty years. It is quite possible, of course, that the turtles live for many years after reaching the maximum growth, but Professor Hay believes in that event it would be natural to look for shells worn wholly smooth, which he says he has never observed in the case of any species except the Texas terrapin, which, probably as a result of the warm weather and more uniform climate of its habitat, seems to grow more continuously than its northern relatives. It is upon these investigations that he bases his opinion that the average duration of the life of the diamond back terrapin is from twenty to twenty-five years.

ORCHID COLLECTING.

AMATEUR orchid collectors and cultivators were aroused to a high state of enthusiasm recently over the report that the owner of a rare white orchid has refused an offer of a very large amount for the floral curiosity. Orchid collecting and cultivating, both as a fad and as a business, have grown to large proportions in the last few years, and, as few persons realize the hardships attendant upon the collection of these floral gems, it is interesting to know that the natives of Brazil sometimes travel sixty or seventy miles, suffering all the hardships of a journey over wild country, to deliver to the collectors a rare and valuable plant.

In the Brazilian State of Pernambuco orchid collecting has developed into a large industry which affords employment to many foreigners as well as natives. From there orchids are either shipped direct to foreign ports or are sent to coast firms which act as agents for business houses all over the world.

Among the many specimens gathered there are the Cattleyas—labiata, leopoldii, guttata and granulosa. Besides these, other species well represented are the Burlingtonia fragrans, Oncidium devaricatum, Oncidium gravesianium and the Miltonia spectabilis morelliana. The flowers of almost all of these are spectacular and some of them are remarkably beautiful, but for market purposes only the Cattleyas have any importance, and of these the labiatas are the most profuse and give the greatest return. They are the large lipped flaring flowers of mauve and pink, centred with magenta and yellow, that have become in the last few years a feature of floral decoration for the home. They generally grow three, four and five blooms on a stalk, and their delicious fragrance greatly resembles the scent of lilacs. Of these Pernambuco exports more than 17,000 eight leaved plants a season.

The plants are gathered at three central points—Iguara, Garabassu and Timbauba. Representatives of the business firms and individual collectors who foresee the study of the orchid as a hobby visit the country and announce they are ready to purchase. The news soon spreads, and it is not an unusual sight to see poor peasants carrying one or two plants, together with goatskin or corn for the market, who have travelled miles, bargaining with an agent.

The plants are immediately sorted according to quality and the number of leaves in good condition. The labiatas having less than eight leaves are discarded, as they are too small for profitable shipment. Plants of eight leaves are received in great quantities and are paid for at the rate of about ten cents each. There is a graduating scale of prices, the plants with fifteen, twenty, thirty leaves and up commanding higher prices.

Recently an extraordinary plant was brought in which had more than two hundred leaves, and a collector bought this at a great bargain, buying only about five dollars for it. This plant sold in the United States for many times its purchase price. It was taken to the market strung on a pole carried by three men, who said they had travelled more than fifty miles.

An exceedingly rare but occasionally found plant is the Cattleya labiata alba. It is a diseased plant, whose exquisite bloom is snow white. Properly packed, orchids will stand from forty to fifty days confinement and remain in a healthy condition.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

NEW LIGHT FOR BIBLE STUDENTS

Two Great Babylons and Two Great Captivities— The Mystic and Literal.

Seattle, Wash., July 2.—Bible students and the public in great numbers heard Pastor Russell here to-day. We report one of his two discourses on the "Two Babylons"—one Literal and the other Mystical. He took no specific text, but relied wholly upon Bible testimony, quoting the same frequently. He said in part:

For centuries Bible Students have observed that many of the strong expressions of the Old Testament respecting Babylon found their parallels in the New Testament, used in respect to Mystic Babylon. Many of these statements of the Old Testament seem far too vivid and too strong to be applied to Literal Babylon. Hence it was surmised that Mystic Babylon was more particularly referred to than the Literal. It was noticed also that as Israel and Judah went into captivity to Literal Babylon, so apparently the Book of Revelation teaches that Spiritual Israel would have drastic experiences in a captivity to Mystic or Symbolic "Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots" (Revelation xvii, 5).

Within the past fifty years, under the blighting influence of the Evolution theory and the destructive Higher Criticism of the Bible, these parallels have been lost sight of. Indeed, aside from International Sunday School lessons, Bible study has been very largely neglected, even in theological seminaries. And the Sunday School lessons, under the guidance of worldly wisdom, have sought to avoid everything except the "milk of the Word" (the simple doctrines) to avoid controversies.

Only very recently is true Bible study being revived in conjunction with the International Bible Students Association, a branch of which I have the honor to address to-day. We may well congratulate each other, dear friends, that in God's providence we have escaped the faith-destroying influence of Higher Criticism and Evolution. We may well congratulate ourselves also on the degree of liberty we have attained in the study of God's Word — freedom from the confusing creeds manufactured for us in a darker age—freedom from some of the rank superstitions and false theories which, for a time, fettered our reason and made the Divine Plan to appear ignoble—unworthy of a just and loving man, much more of an All-Wise, Just and Loving Creator.

Briefly we remind you that ancient Babylon was built on the river Euphrates; that she had impregnable walls, that the river ran through the midst of the city, and the great gates of brass spanned the river as a protection against assaults of an enemy from that quarter. The name of the city was attached to a large area of country outside of it, for which is served as the capital. Indeed, at its zenith Babylon was mistress of the then civilised world — the first Universal Empire.

We remind you of the captivity, first of the ten tribes of Israel, and later on of the remaining two tribes or kingdom called Judah. The method of Babylon was to scatter the Israelites amongst the Babylonians, and through their earthly interests to amalgamate them as part and parcel of Babylonia. This condition of things lasted until the fall of Babylon before its conqueror, Cyrus.

The General gained his victory in a remarkable manner, while the Babylonians, assured of their security, were revelling at a banquet. Although the crisis came suddenly, the preparation had been long in progress. The soldiers of Cyrus, under his direction, had digged a canal of considerable depth ready to drain off the water of the river as soon as the necessary connection was made. When the canal was in readiness the connection with the river was speedily made and the water flowed rapidly into the new channel, leaving the bed of the river under the great brazen gates, on both sides of the city, an open roadway, through which marched the army of Cyrus. Suddenly, at an unexpected moment, the boastful city, the proud babylon, was captured.

Then it was that Cyrus, the victorious general, gave the command which granted liberty to every Israelite carried captive thither, to return to his own land. Additionally, assistance was rendered to all who desired to return, and the golden vessels pertaining to the worship of God in the temple were sent back. But strange to say out of all the millions who had constituted Israel and Judah before the captivity, only about fifty-three thousand of all the tribes were anxious to avail themselves of the privilege of returning to the Land of Promise.

The Book of Revelation, the book of symbols, the last message of our ascended Redeemer to His Church through the Apostle John, was written long centuries after literal Babylon perished. Its reference to Babylon, therefore, can be viewed only in the light of symbolism. As already suggested, many of the prophetic utterances seem far too strong to be applied to literal Babylon and her fall.

Indeed, while speaking directly of Babylon and her fall at the hands of the Medes and Persians under Cyrus, the prophecies speak of the end of this Age and of world-wide calamities incidental to the overthrow of every institution contrary to the Divine will, preparatory to the inauguration of Messiah's Kingdom.

I request that at your convenience you read Isaiah xiii. 1-19, in confirmation of what I have said. I recommend further that you compare Jeremiah l. 15. 29. with Revelation xviii. 6, and Jeremiah l. 38. with Revelation xvi. 12. and the 46th verse with Revelation xviii. 9. Compare also Jeremiah li 6-9. with Revelation xviii. 4: and verse 13 of Jeremiah li with Revelation xvii, 1-15, and verses 37, 63, 64 with Revelation xviii. 2, 4, 21

No one can make these comparisons, I believe, and not feel fully convinced that the Holy Spirit operating through Isaiah and Jeremiah was the same Holy Spirit which guided St. John through the Apocalyptic vision. Nor can such students escape the conclusion that the force of the prophecies apply specially to Mystic Babylon rather than to the literal city and country. As one section of literal Babylon fell before another, so Revelation predicts it will be with Mystic Babylon. As Literal Babylon ruled over the whole world, so Mystic Babylon is represented as ruling the civilised world, and hence the entire world.

As the lords of Babylon were made drunk by wine which they drank from the golden vessels captured from the temple at Jerusalem, so Mystic Babylon, represented by a woman, is said to make all nations drunk with the wine, or doctrine, which she gives them out of the golden cup which she holds in her hand. As Literal Babylon fell by the drying up of the waters of the Euphrates, and that the way of the kings of the East shall be prepared by the drying up of those waters (Revelation xvi, 12).

Similarly we are assured Mystic Babylon's end shall come suddenly, "in one hour." Like a great millstone she shall be cast into the sea to rise no more. As the literal Israelites were invited to leave Babylon the literal, and were helped so to do, but only a few responded, so spiritual Israelites are urged to leave Mystic Babylon in which they have been in captivity, but only a comparatively small number have a sufficiency of courage, love and zeal to respond at the first—others will be delivered after her collapse. Now, however, the message is, "Babylon is fallen, is fallen (sentenced to fall). Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues" (Revelation xviii, 2-5).

No student can examine the records without astonishment and a realization that Mystic Babylon must be some great, influential system of great power in the world during this Gospel age, and especially at its close. The very prominence given to Babylon, both in prophecy and in Revelation, warns God's people that if they should not yet found Babylon they should seek for her. For so great an institution as made all nations drunk with her false doctrine must be very prominent, indeed, to those who were made so under the influence of the stupefying draft from her cup.

Indeed, the intimation is that the whole civilized world will be so intoxicated with the false teaching of Babylon as to be completely under her influence. And when she falls it is particularly explained that all the great, the rich, the mighty, the influential of earth will mourn the catastrophe of her fall. Only the saintly few will recognize its true import and rejoice; as we read, "Alas! that great city that was clothed in fine linen and purple and scarlet, and decked with gold and precious stones and pearls! For in one hour so great riches is come to naught. * * * What city is like unto this great city! And they cast dust on their heads and cried, weeping and wailing, saying, Alas, alas, that great city!" (Revelation xviii, 16-19).

But, on the contrary, another class rejoices, as we read:

"Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye Holy Apostles and Prophets; for God had avenged you on her. And I heard a voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia! Salvation, and glory, and honor, and power, unto the Lord our God; for true and righteous are His judgments; for He hath judged the great Harlot which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of His servants at her hand" (Revelation xviii, 20, and xix. 1, 2).

It seems very clear, my dear brethren, that many of us were once part and parcel of this great Babylon—this great system of confusion by which the Divine character has been so traduced through misinterpretations of the Divine Word. I am aware that Catholics declare that Protestants are this Babylon system, and I am aware that Protestants claim that Catholics are this Babylon system.

To my understanding of the Divine Word, both are right. Babylon is the Mother system and the various sects of Protestantism are the daughters, and the name Babylon is a family name. It belongs to the mother system first, and to all the daughters of the system now, as well. Improper association with the world, its governments and systems, is a crime to which they are parties. The "daughters" have followed the example of the "mother," and more or less are coming back into sympathy with her in all particulars. None of them have maintained the proper attitude of virginity and separateness from the world.

Do not misunderstand me. I believe that there are true saints of God in all the various parts of Christendom—mother and daughters. I do not even charge nor believe that those who have upheld and are upholding the various sections of Babylon have an evil intention; I believe that they are thoroughly "drunk," intoxicated with their own erroneous theories. The fall of their present institutions will be a startling blow to them, for they verily believe them to be Christ's Kingdom—and style them such—Christendom.

The fall of Babylon will astonish the entire world, so complete is the illusion that Christendom represents the throne and government of Messiah amongst men. And, be it remembered, the vast majority in all the various sects and denominations of Christendom are worldly people who have no conception whatever of the true Church and her cause. Their ambition is to approximate righteousness and a form of godliness, but no more than this seems to them necessary; more would be irrational, unreasonable, since they have not been begotten of the Holy Spirit and therefore cannot appreciate things from the divine standpoint.

To them the fall of Babylon at first is astounding, a perplexity, but will work no real injury, because the reign of Babylon over the earth will be superseded by the reign of the New Jerusalem — the Kingdom of God's dear Son. The most saintly of God's people will hear the voice of Divine command, "Come out of her, My people," and will obey it before the fall comes; but a large number, even of the Lord's people, lacking courage, will share with Babylon the troubles of that hour.

Subsequently, however, they will rejoice and be glad when they realise the justice of the Divine execution against Babylon, and to them will come, as an inferior company, an invitation to attend the "marriage supper of the Lamb." Their honorable position will be that of bridesmaids to the still more faithful and courageous "little flock," who will be accounted worthy to be the Bride class and to sit with the Redeemer in His throne. Then speedily will follow the long-promised Times of Restitution to the world of mankind, for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven."

As God and His glory and honor are to be first in the minds of His children, so their next thought should be for the glorious Kingdom, which He has promised shall bless the world. However much our own personal interests and affairs may be pressing upon us, and however much we may desire to have the Lord's blessing and guidance in them, they are not to outrank our appreciation of His beneficent arrangements which He has so clearly promised in His Word. We are to remember that the Kingdom, when it shall come, will be a panacea for every ill and every trouble, not only for us, but for the whole world of mankind. We are not, therefore, to permit our own personal needs to be too prominent, but are to remember that the whole creation is groaning and travailing in pain together, waiting for this glorious Kingdom and the blessing upon all the families of the earth, which our Heavenly Father has promised shall yet come through the Seed of Abraham.

This thought respecting the Kingdom, its necessity, and the blessings that it will bring will keep prominently before our minds our own high calling to joint-heirship with our Lord in this Kingdom. And in proportion as that hope is clearly before our minds it will be, as the Apostle explains, as "an anchor to our souls, sure and steadfast, entering into that which is within the vail." This anchorage of hope in the future, in the Kingdom, will enable us to pass safely, and with comparative quiet, through the trials and storms and difficulties of this present evil world. More than this, our thoughts respecting the Kingdom will remind us that if we are to be heirs of the Kingdom it will be necessary that we have the appropriate discipline and training.

This petition uttered from the heart implies that the one offering it has made a full consecration of his will, his heart, to the Lord, and that as he hopes for the Kingdom by and by to come and subdue all unrighteousness and to establish the Divine will from sea to sea, and from pole to pole, so now, the petitioner, being thus in accord with the Lord's will, and thus wishing that it might be universally in control, will see to it that this will is ruling in his own heart—that in his own affairs God's will is done to the best of his ability in his earthly condition, even as he hopes to have it perfected in the Kingdom. No one can intelligently and honestly offer this petition and not desire and endeavor to have the Lord's will done in himself while on earth. Thus a blessing comes to the one who offers this petition before he has asked any special blessing upon himself or others. The mere thought of the Divine arrangement brings a blessing, a peace, a rest, a sanctification of heart.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

LIVERPOOL, July 1.—Wheat—Strength in American, together with small tenders on contract, caused a steady opening, with prices ½d higher. There was some tendency to take profits. Later, however, shorts covered, and the decline was recovered on decrease in local stocks and less favorable reports from Russia. At the close the undertone was firm, ½d higher than yesterday, with strength in coarse grain and less favorable reports from India regarding dryness.

Corn—After opening ½d higher, further advanced ½d to ½d, with the strength in July. Dryness in Russia has reduced offers there, and the continued strength in America has caused extreme nervousness among shorts.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Hot weather today raised the price of every staple on the exchange. The wheat market in particular was affected by apprehensions regarding what might happen to the growing spring crop in the northwest. In consequence closing figures were 1-8c to 1-4c to 5-8c higher than last night. Corn made a net gain of 3-8c to 7-8c to 1c; oats, 1-4c to 1-3c, and hog products 2 1-2c to 32 1-2c.

Drowned In Surf.

Old Orchard, Me., July 3.—W. G. Marshall, a merchant of Montreal, took his first ocean plunge in twenty years on Saturday, and it cost him his life. Another bather, N. Hillary, a Toronto banker, nearly lost his life in an attempt to rescue Marshall. Mr. Hillary was bathing with a score of others when he noticed a man, who later proved to be Marshall, floating some distance from shore. After watching him a moment, Hillary made up his mind that something was wrong, and swimming to the man's side found him unconscious. In trying to reach shore with his burden, Hillary became exhausted and but for prompt assistance from his companions, would have drowned. Marshall was dead when a boat reached the two. It is supposed that death was due to heart disease.

The dead man was about 50 years old, and was junior member of the firm of Wm. Marshall & Sons, wholesale dealers in hay and grain at Montreal. His wife and two children were stopping with him at an hotel here.

Mr. Hillary is assistant general manager of the Traders' Bank of Canada, at Toronto, and one of the most popular officers of the institution.

Laurier Sails for Home.

London, July 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Frederick Borden and Hon. L. P. Brodeur left Saturday for Canada, Lord Strathcona, representatives of the Colonial Office and a number of official and private friends saw the party off.

Liverpool, July 3.—The Empress of Britain, of the C.P.R., with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, and the Canadian coronation troops aboard, sailed from here during Saturday night. The report that the Cunarder Carmania sailed for the United States on Saturday proved to be incorrect. The Carmania was not able to get together a crew, but many succeeded in doing so last night. The American liner St. Louis, which sailed Saturday from here, will call at Queenstown to take the Carmania's mail.

Two incendiary fires were discovered yesterday in the staterooms of the steamship Canada of the British and North American Steam Navigation Co., which runs to Montreal. The flames were extinguished, however, without damage.

Old Man Charged With Murder.

Vancouver, B.C., July 3.—John G. Taylor, a resident of this city for the past eighteen years, and now in his 76th year, a veteran of the civil war, existing chiefly on his monthly pension, is in police custody, facing the charge of murder. The dead man is Eli McCutcheson, a logger thirty years of age, unmarried.

According to the police the tragedy followed a row in a shack in the east end of the city, in which Taylor lived alone. McCutcheon and several companions had visited the old man late in the afternoon. There was not, it is said, any drinking, but a dispute arose, ending in Taylor ordering all the men to leave. McCutcheon declined, and Taylor is said to have instantly seized an old rifle, the bullet entering McCutcheon's thigh. All vanished, leaving McCutcheon to bleed to death.

Make It Hot for Churchill.

Glasgow, July 3.—A great demonstration of seamen and dockers was held yesterday. The men marched through the streets with bands of music. J. Havelock Wilson, grand secretary of the Seamen's Union, who made a speech, said they proposed to make it hot for Home Secretary Churchill in the House of Common, because a number of ships were allowed to sail without qualified crews, thus endangering the lives of the passengers.

He threatened that if the owners do not come to time, the strike will spread to every port in Europe.

Old-Time Celebration.

Heapeler, July 3.—An old Dominion Day celebration was held here yesterday. It was a big day of sports. The famous Preston Silver Band was in attendance. The morning sports consisted of calithumpian parade. Main street was crowded with people. After the parade, there were canoe races on the dam.

Collision Near Amherstburg.

Amherstburg, July 3.—The steamer Charles Hutchinson, a big new freighter, and the Queen City of the Pittsburg Steamship Co., collided in Lake Erie just below here, at midnight Saturday. The damage was not serious, and both boats continued up the lakes. The accident occurred off Dolph's Reef.

Saved Ten Babies.

Chicago, July 3.—Miss Anna West, a nurse, saved the lives of ten small babies early yesterday when fire destroyed five of the concessions at Riverview Park, an amusement resort.

The babes were housed in the baby incubator show building, which was one of the structures burned.

COMMITS SUICIDE

Farmer Named George Nicholls Residing Near Selwyn Killed Himself With a Shot-gun Yesterday Afternoon

RESULT OF ILLNESS

A farmer, named George Nicholls, who resided near Selwyn, committed suicide yesterday, between 3 and 4 o'clock, at his home, by shooting himself with a shot gun. He died in three-quarters of an hour after the shooting. Mr. Nichols was an old resident of that part of the country, and was well known. The circumstances of the case point to the conclusion that his rash act was due to despondency, agitated by sickness. His illness was such as to cause him to be a little insane at times, and it is thought that he committed the deed while in one of these periods. He was about 35 years of age, and leaves a wife and one little daughter. About 3.30 Mrs. Nicholls, accompanied by her daughter, went out to milk the cows, and a few minutes after their departure, they thought they heard a shot, coming from the direction of the house, and they immediately hurried back, when they found the unfortunate man lying on the step of the back kitchen door, with the shotgun beside him, and a great lacerated wound in his breast, near the heart. He was unconscious, and died about three-quarters of an hour later.

The Rangers' Enjoyable Invasion of Brockville

Regiment Had a Most Successful Trip and Made Favourable Impression Upon Their Hosts---Sail Through The Thousand Islands was an Enjoyable Feature---Trip as Described by Examiner Staff Representatives

With bands playing and enthusiasm roused to the highest pitch, the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, marched to the C.P.R. station Friday evening, for what has proved to be, one of the most successful holiday trips ever undertaken by the Regiment.

The spot selected for this year's outing was the beautiful town of Brockville. It would be a hard proposition to select a town so admirably adapted, conveniently located, as to bring out the successful issue of the Regimental vacation life.

Brockville is built on an elevation which rises from the banks of the St. Lawrence in a succession of graceful ridges, and is considered to be one of the prettiest towns in Canada.

Both the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. railways pass through it. Many fine public buildings and private residences attest the prosperity and enterprise of its inhabitants. It has a population of about 11,000 and the hotel accommodation was excellent. The plan by which the troops were provided with the sustenance of life was a very commendable one and one that did not give occasion for any complaints. Each company was assigned to one particular hotel for one meal, and the company eating breakfast in, say the Albion, would be switched to another hotel for dinner.

The trip was an uneventful one, with the exception of one tragic incident which was encountered while the train stopped at Sharbot Lake. A man, presumably a tramp, was picked up in a dying condition at Maplbry alongside of the railroad track, by the operator, bearing all evidence of having been struck by apassing train. He was taken on a freight train to Sharbot Lake, where medical attention was secured, and on the arrival of the troop train, was put on board and taken to the hospital at Smith Falls. During the time the injured man was on the train Doctors Eastwood and ——————, who accompanied the Regiment, did all in their power to alleviate the sufferings of the victim. The red cross corps was also brought into requisition. On the arrival of the train at Smith Falls the victim was conveyed in the ambulance to the General Hospital. His condition is serious and no hopes are entertained for his recovery.

On leaving Smith Falls at 3.45, the troop train, being about 45 minutes ahead of her scheduled time of arrival at Brockville, proceeded slowly to the scene of action, with a view of cutting down the time that was gained during the fast trip between Sharbot Lake and Smith Falls with the injured man on board, so in order that the time of arrival would not conflict with the prepared plans of those in charge. It being the desire of the officers to have the men detrain sharp at 6 o'clock, it was decided to have the train proceed slowly and kill the time on the way instead of at the station.

Sleep was entirely out of the question. In fact it was a fool hardy thing to even dream of sleeping at all. What with making raids on the various lunch counters at points along the way and the indulgence of musical programmes, principally of a vocal nature, the few hours of darkness that intervened between the time of departure and arrival was easily got away with. About two miles west of Brockville the train halted, this being considered the point at which the enemy would be located easily. Upon the troops detraining, a scouting party was sent out to reconnoitre and if possible locate the enemy. In the meantime those of the Regiment who remained were served out with their rations, consisting of meat sandwiches and buns, together with hot coffee. 20 rounds of ammunition were served out to each man and after a number of tactical advances had been made by the Regiment, a halt was made, and on the strength of the information received from the advance party, who had by this time discovered the stronghold of the enemy, No. 7 company was ordered to the front. This they did, spreading themselves out in single fashion to the right and to the left, every man eager for the fray. It took no small amount of persuasion on the part of Capt. Higgins and his sergeants of the company to keep the men from bunching and to induce them to single out about 100 yards apart, in order that they might not be so conspicuous to the enemy.

The land on which the scene of action cleared, was of a low lying variety, with numerous tracts of woods here and there, it was in one of these that the enemy was discovered. The advance of the attacking party was principally confined to the ploughed fields, pastures and lone ways, as one of the first one most important orders that were issued was that no damage was to be done to the growing crops. Needless to say, this was carried out to the letter. About 7.45 firing commenced in earnest. This was kept up for 30 or 40 minutes. Capt. Higgins' company assisted by others of the Regiment, on discovering the stronghold of the enemy in a clump of bushes, made a sharp detour to the right and succeeded in completing surroundin gthem, but not before the enemy, who were only about 35 or 40 strong, had captured six of the invaders and made them prisoners, but their position in that respect was one of thankfulness, instead of regret, for they had not received any breakfast, being made up of the scouting party that were immediately sent out as soon as the train arrived at its destination. The captain of the company who captured the Peterborough men, very kindly furnished them with the price of a meal out of his own pocket. The meal was furnished at a neighbouring farm house.

The culmination of this bloodless encounter was followed by the sounding of the reveille recalling the troops. They came in helter skelter from all directions, some hobbling along on one foot, others with their tongues hanging out about a foot, and all of them bearing the effects of the intense heat.

The Regiment, headed by the 41st Brockville Rifles, then commenced the long march to the camp, which was located about a mile east of the town, making in all about three miles of travel over hot, dusty roads. The entire body of men made an imposing spectacle as they marched down the main street of Brockvile. The citizens of the town were out en masse to see them. The camp ground was located in what is known as Fulford's athletic grounds. Here everything was in readiness for the reception of the visitors. Each company was then assigned to its respective row of tents after a general clean up.

After dinner all roads led to the wharf, as far as the Regiment was concerned. That trip to Alexandria Bay, on the cool and inviting waters of the St. Lawrence River, proved too irresistible for many to miss. The boat left the wharf at 1.30 o'clock. There were also present on board a large number of the 41st Rifles. That 24 mile voyage up the St. Lawrence river proved to be one of the strongest features of the trip. The scenery, as the palatial steamer of the R. & O. navigation wended her way among the Thousand Islands, was exquisite. Properties representing hundreds of thousands of dollars were located on the islands. The Gould property, which is located as Alexandria Bay, is estimated to be worth over a million dollars. The steamer just stopped long enough at Alexandria Bay to get her clearance papers. None of the troops were allowed to disembark, not but what they would have like to have had the pleasure of adding a few flags of the stars and stripes variety to the already extensive stock of souvenirs. The entire trip occupied about five hours.

In the evening a band concert and Sergeants' Mess banquet, given by the officers of the 41st Rifles, completed one of the finest day's outings the Regiment has ever had. Thousands of people turned out to the band concert and expressions of praise and commendation were to be heard on all sides, concerning the abilities of the 57th band.

The banquet which was held in the Strathcona Hotel, was attended by about 60 officers. An extensive toast list was run off, after which a short programme ,consisting of vocal selections, etc., was disposed of.

SUNDAY EVENTS

On Sunday, the main feature was the church parade. There was a splendid turnout, and the men looked well in their helmets and tunics. The streets were lined with people from the camp ground, also on the line of march to St. Peter's Church, where the service was held. The church was a large one, and seated comfortably the 375 men of the 57th, and also the 41st, and a number of the town's people.

The first thing on Sunday morning, as also the other mornings, was breakfast, of course, and to get this the men had to march down town, a distance of probably a mile and a half. This was done by marching the different companies separately, and each Company went to a different hotel for each meal. Breakfast over, the men marched back to camp, and proceeded to get ready for the church parade. Some of the men, however, took a plunge in the river in preference to the parade. The 41st fell in in front at the Armoury, which is situated about half way between the camping ground and the church. They were attired in their dress uniform, a neat fitting black trimmed with red. The blacks took the lead from the Armoury, followed by the bright scarlet ranks of the 57th, and the contrast made the appearance of the combined regiments much better. Both the bugle band and the regimental band were in attendance, and supplied very appropriate and pleasing music in their usual popular manner. The 41st bugle band was also in attendance, but did not play until the return parade.

Rev. Canon Davidson, Chaplain of the 41st Regiment, and Rector of St. John's Church, officiated, assisted by Rev. R. Bedford-Jones, Chaplain of the 41st eRgiment, and Rector of St. Peter's Church, Brockville. Rev. Canon Davidson, in very appropriate terms, expressed the thanks of the 57th Regiment, both men and officers,

St. Peter's T. A. S. Pic-nic Smashed All Records

Thousands of People Spent Dominion Day at T. A. S. Park---The Annual Event Being the Most Successful in its History---Sacred Heart Team Won the Ball Game---A Grand Programme of Sports Was Given

The St. Peter's T. A. S. picnic, held on Saturday, was one of the most successful of the picnics yet undertaken by the Society. Under a scorching sun the Rainbow left on its first trip to the Park at 8.30. The steamer was full, and the Water Lily, leaving half an hour later, also had a good complement of passengers. The two boats were crowded on every trip down.

The first item of interest was the opening of the Park and the hoisting of the T. A. S. flag, which was performed by Mr. W. C. Howden, the Reeve of Monaghan. This was followed by a ball game between the Sacred Heart and the East City teams of the Inter-Catholic League, and although the former club had the better of the game, from the opening inning, the struggle furnished some real good baseball. The Southerners broke into the score column in the first chapter, securing no less than five runs, and took three more in the second. It took the Ashburnham outfit several innings to get going, but ultimately they piled up a nice score, coming, in the seventh, to within one run of the leaders. The latter came back strong in the two concluding sessions, driving seven men across the pan. For the winners, Rose and LeFavre put up a nice battery game, while Guerin and O'Hearne, for the others, did not get the support accorded the former battery.

The Sacred Heart team appeared on the field in their new white and blue uniforms, and they were much admired by the spectators. The suits and caps are white, with blue trimmings and lettering. The teams were as follows:

Sacred Heart T. A. S.—Lefavre c., Rose p., Kennealley 1b., Heffernan 2b., Mulloy 3b., Gorham s.s., J. Neary l.f., F. Neary c.f., Condon r.f.

East City T. A. S.—O'Hearne c., Guerin p., Coughlin 1b., Murphy 2b. Russell 3b. Coughlin s.s., Keenan l.f. Barrie c.f., McDermott r.f.

The Rev. Dr. O'Brien and the Hon J. R. Stratton opened the game, the former acting as pitcher, the latter wielding the bat.

A good bill of sports was run off during the afternoon, and, as some of the best local athletes were on the grounds, the competition was keen. The following were the winners of the various events:

Prize winners, who have not yet come into possession o ftheir prizes may obtain them from Mr. Cane, at the T.A.S. rooms.

The prize for the clog dance fell to Mr. A. Winn, while Mr. F. Connors brought home the jewellery given for the Irish clog. Mr. Ed. O'Brien, who takes the quoit pitching event every year lived up to his reputation again on Saturday, although he was given a merry chase by Mr. A. Puffer, who took second place. Jimmy Grisdale's crew of hand-picked huskies on the St. Peter's T. A. S. tug-of-war team, pulled Muiloy Deannard and company, of the Sacred Heart parish, and won the blue-ribbon event after a hard battle. The prize for the largest family on the grounds went to Mr. John Shevlin, who was accompanied on the outing by his wife and eight little Shevlins. Three other fond papas laid claim to second money, and a toss-up was decided upon. The god of fortune turned loose a few rays on Lou LeBarr, who added one more scalp to his already well-filled girdle of trophies taken during the day, by Lou and his fleet-footed family.

The river, for a considerable distance, was dotted with canoes, in which many of the members found relief from the heat, and fishing was also indulged in to a large extent.

The assembly was well cared for in the matter of food and drink. Mr. J. Hanrahan directed the soft drink booth, Mr. Merrell the ice cream booth, and Mr. Jos. Picard managed the arrangements for meals. The chairman of the Joint Committee was Mr. Arthur Shrap, and the chairman of the grounds committee was Mr. Dan Cushion, while Mr. Tom O'Gorman acted as chairman of the Boat Committee.

The handsome trophy, so kindly offered by Mr. R. R. Hall, for the game between the Sacred Heart and East City teams, and won by the former, was presented to the Sacred Heart team by Mr. J. J. Hickey, on behalf of the donor. Mr. W. E. Meagher, secretary of the winning team, made a very neat speech, in reply, giving evidence of having developed into no mean orator.

Credit was largely due to the Captains and crews of the steamers, who did everything possible to minister to the comforts of the public, as, while the boats were taxed to their utmost capacity, perfect order prevailed.

The Society wishes to thank all their friends, who helped them ot make the day such a great success. That they had such a large prize list for sports is due to the good will and generosity of a large number of citizens who sympathize with the good work they are accomplishing.

Great credit is due the Society and its officers for the perfect and complete manner in which they managed every detail of the day's proceedings, which tends to show everything was well organized.

The Park is an ideal place to hold a picnic. The grounds comprise about eight acres, three of which are covered by beautiful shade trees—the balance, a well-levelled, grassy campus for sports. The bank of the river at this point is high, and makes a good place for landing small boats, to facilitate which a special wharf was constructed. Adjoining the park proper there are about 20 acres of wooded land, owned by the Society, a portion of which has been surveyed into lots for summer cottages. A considerable number of these have already been sold.

HEAT WAVE WAS GENERAL AND CITIES EVERYWHERE SUFFERED

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, JULY 3.—From all over America come stories of yesterday's and to-day's drownings as the result of efforts to keep cool and from heat alone. Ten died from the warmness in New York, eight in Detroit, and three in Toronto. In Washington the sun concentrated through a store window, exploded fireworks, and firemen were seriously injured in an attempt to stop a fire. The temperatures recorded at different points are the highest in years. In some places new records were made.

Dodging The Heat Was Holiday's Chief Feature

Peterborough spent Dominion Day in a vain effort to dodge the sweltering heat. Naturally the Otonabee River came into mind as the most de-most anything that would float, and probably there were never so many people down the river on one day before. St. Peter's T.A.S. picnic took thousands down to the T.A.S. Park, but thousands more went down in canoes, skiffs and launches, in fact in almost naything that would float, and every little grove for miles on each side of the river had its group of picnic parties. There was absolutely nothing in the way of entertainment in the city itself and those who remained in town sought the parks to find a shady spot away from the fierce sun. The Radial Railway Company did a record business. Many people spent the day at Stoney Lake, there being a large exodus from here of people who have summer homes at that popular resort. Toronto, with its baseball and lacrosse games as attractions, was the Mecca of many more Peterborough people.

FIRE IN A WAGGON

Load of Furniture Was Totally Destroyed This Morning and Mr. Gerald McFadden Had His Hand Painfully Burned

AN UNUSUAL BLAZE

Mr. Gerald McFadden, the catcher of the Peterborough Midland League team, was the centre figure in a most unusual fire this morning which resulted in the total destruction of a valuable parlour suite to say nothing of painful injuries to Mr. McFadden. He was driving out to Fraserville with a load of furniture for a customer there and got five miles on the journey when he was hailed by a lady who came running out of a farmhouse and on turning around found that the contents of his wagon were a mass of flames. It is thought that he must have stepped on some matches in his coat which was beneath the seat. At all events the parlour suite was blazing merrily, the fire having made such rapid headway that it was impossible to save the furniture. With the assistance of a number of people who hurried to the scene the wagon was saved, but in doing this Mr. McFadden had his left hand badly burned. The wind was blowing away from him and he did not notice the conflagration until he was notified of it.

COMMITS SUICIDE

Farmer Named George Nicholls Residing Near Selwyn Killed Himself With a Shot-gun Yesterday Afternoon

RESULT OF ILLNESS

A farmer, named George Nicholls, who resided near Selwyn, committed suicide yesterday, between 3 and 4 o'clock, at his home, by shooting himself with a shot gun. He died in three-quarters of an hour after the shooting. Mr. Nichols was an old resident of that part of the country, and was well known. The circumstances of the case point to the conclusion that his rash act was due to despondency, agitated by sickness. His illness was such as to cause him to be a little insane at times, and it is thought that he committed the deed while in one of these periods. He was about 35 years of age, and leaves a wife and one little daughter. About 3.30 Mrs. Nicholls, accompanied by her daughter, went out to milk the cows, and a few minutes after their departure, they thought they heard a shot, coming from the direction of the house, and they immediately hurried back, when they found the unfortunate man lying on the step of the back kitchen door, with the shotgun beside him, and a great lacerated wound in his breast, near the heart. He was unconscious, and died about three-quarters of an hour later.

The Rangers' Enjoyable Invasion of Brockville

Regiment Had a Most Successful Trip and Made Favourable Impression Upon Their Hosts---Sail Through The Thousand Islands was an Enjoyable Feature---Trip as Described by Examiner Staff Representatives

With bands playing and enthusiasm roused to the highest pitch, the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, marched to the C.P.R. station Friday evening, for what has proved to be, one of the most successful holiday trips ever undertaken by the Regiment.

The spot selected for this year's outing was the beautiful town of Brockville. It would be a hard proposition to select a town so admirably adapted, conveniently located, as to bring out the successful issue of the Regimental vacation life.

Brockville is built on an elevation which rises from the banks of the St. Lawrence in a succession of graceful ridges, and is considered to be one of the prettiest towns in Canada.

Both the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. railways pass through it. Many fine public buildings and private residences attest the prosperity and enterprise of its inhabitants. It has a population of about 11,000 and the hotel accommodation was excellent. The plan by which the troops were provided with the sustenance of life was a very commendable one and one that did not give occasion for any complaints. Each company was assigned to one particular hotel for one meal, and the company eating breakfast in, say the Albion, would be switched to another hotel for dinner.

The trip was an uneventful one, with the exception of one tragic incident which was encountered while the train stopped at Sharbot Lake. A man, presumably a tramp, was picked up in a dying condition at Maplbry alongside of the railroad track, by the operator, bearing all evidence of having been struck by apassing train. He was taken on a freight train to Sharbot Lake, where medical attention was secured, and on the arrival of the troop train, was put on board and taken to the hospital at Smith Falls. During the time the injured man was on the train Doctors Eastwood and _____ who accompanied the Regiment, did all in their power to alleviate the sufferings of the victim. The red cross corps was also brought into requisition. On the arrival of the train at Smith Falls the victim was conveyed in the ambulance to the General Hospital. His condition is serious and no hopes are entertained for his recovery.

On leaving Smith Falls at 3.45, the troop train, being about 45 minutes ahead of her scheduled time of arrival at Brockville, proceeded slowly to the scene of action, with a view of cutting down the time that was gained during the fast trip between Sharbot Lake and Smith Falls with the injured man on board, so in order that the time of arrival would not conflict with the prepared plans of those in charge. It being the desire of the officers to have the men detrain sharp at 6 o'clock, it was decided to have the train proceed slowly and kill the time on the way instead of at the station.

Sleep was entirely out of the question. In fact it was a fool hardy thing to even dream of sleeping at all. What with making raids on the various lunch counters at points along the way and the indulgence of musical programmes, principally of a vocal nature, the few hours of darkness that intervened between the time of departure and arrival was easily got away with. About two miles west of Brockville the train halted, this being considered the point at which the enemy would be located easily. Upon the troops detraining, a scouting party was sent out to reconnoitre and if possible locate the enemy. In the meantime those of the Regiment who remained were served out with their rations, consisting of meat sandwiches and buns, together with hot coffee. 20 rounds of ammunition were served out to each man and after a number of tactical advances had been made by the Regiment, a halt was made, and on the strength of the information received from the advance party, who had by this time discovered the stronghold of the enemy, No. 7 company was ordered to the front. This they did, spreading themselves out in single fashion to the right and to the left, every man eager for the fray. It took no small amount of persuasion on the part of Capt. Higgins and his sergeants of the company to keep the men from bunching and to induce them to single out about 100 yards apart, in order that they might not be so conspicuous to the enemy.

The landscape which the scene of action cleared, was of a low lying variety, with numerous tracts of woods here and there, it was in one of these that the enemy was discovered. The advance of the attacking party was principally confined to the ploughed fields, pastures and lone ways, as one of the first one most important orders that were issued was that no damage was to be done to the growing crops. Needless to say, this was carried out to the letter. About 7.45 firing commenced in earnest. This was kept up for 30 or 40 minutes. Capt. Higgins' company assisted by others of the Regiment, on discovering the stronghold of the enemy in a clump of bushes, made a sharp detour to the right and succeeded in completing surroundin gthem, but not before the enemy, who were only about 35 or 40 strong, had captured six of the invaders and made them prisoners, but their position in that respect was one of thankfulness, instead of regret, for they had not received any breakfast, being made up of the scouting party that were immediately sent out as soon as the train arrived at its destination. The captain of the company who captured the Peterborough men, very kindly furnished them with the price of a meal out of his own pocket. The meal was furnished at a neighbouring farm house.

The culmination of this bloodless encounter was followed by the sounding of the reveille recalling the troops. They came in helter skelter from all directions, some hobbling along on one foot, others with their tongues hanging out about a foot, and all of them bearing the effects of the intense heat.

The Regiment, headed by the 41st Brockville Rifles, then commenced the long march to the camp, which was located about a mile east of the town, making in all about three miles of travel over hot, dusty roads. The entire body of men made an imposing spectacle as they marched down the main street of Brockville. The citizens of the town were out en masse to see them. The camp ground was located in what is known as Fulford's athletic grounds. Here everything was in readiness for the reception of the visitors. Each company was then assigned to its respective row of tents after a general clean up.

After dinner all roads led to the wharf, as far as the Regiment was concerned. That trip to Alexandria Bay, on the cool and inviting waters of the St Lawrence River, proved too irresistible for many to miss. The boat left the wharf at 1.30 o'clock. There were also present on board a large number of the 41st Rifles. That 24 mile voyage up the St Lawrence river proved to be one of the strongest features of the trip. The scenery, as the palatial steamer of the R. & O. navigation wended her way among the Thousand Islands, was exquisite. Properties representing hundreds of thousands of dollars were located on the islands. The Gould property, which is located as Alexandria Bay, is estimated to be worth over a million dollars. The steamer just stopped long enough at Alexandria Bay to get her clearance papers. None of the troops were allowed to disembark, not but what they would have like to have had the pleasure of adding a few flags of the stars and stripes variety to the already extensive stock of souvenirs. The entire trip occupied about five hours.

In the evening a band concert and Sergeants' Mess banquet, given by the officers of the 41st Rifles, completed one of the finest day's outings the Regiment has ever had. Thousands of people turned out to the band concert and expressions of praise and commendation were to be heard on all sides, concerning the abilities of the 57th band.

The banquet which was held in the Strathcona Hotel, was attended by about 60 officers. An extensive toast list was run off, after which a short programme ,consisting of vocal selections, etc., was disposed of.

SUNDAY EVENTS

On Sunday, the main feature was the church parade. There was a splendid turnout, and the men looked well in their helmets and tunics. The streets were lined with people from the camp ground, also on the line of march to St. Peter's Church, where the service was held. The church was a large one, and seated comfortably the 375 men of the 57th, and also the 41st, and a number of the town's people.

The first thing on Sunday morning, as also the other mornings, was breakfast, of course, and to get this the men had to march down town, a distance of probably a mile and a half. This was done by marching the different companies separately, and each Company went to a different hotel for each meal. Breakfast over, the men marched back to camp, and proceeded to get ready for the church parade. Some of the men, however, took a plunge in the river in preference to the parade. The 41st fell in in front at the Armoury, which is situated about half way between the camping ground and the church. They were attired in their dress uniform, a neat fitting black trimmed with red. The blacks took the lead from the Armoury, followed by the bright scarlet ranks of the 57th, and the contrast made the appearance of the combined regiments much better. Both the bugle band and the regimental band were in attendance, and supplied very appropriate and pleasing music in their usual popular manner. The 41st bugle band was also in attendance, but did not play until the return parade.

Rev. Canon Davidson, Chaplain of the 41st Regiment, and Rector of St John's Church, officiated, assisted by Rev. R. Bedford-Jones, Chaplain of the 41st eRgiment, and Rector of St. Peter's Church, Brockville. Rev. Canon Davidson, in very appropriate terms, expressed the thanks of the 57th Regiment, both men and officers,

St. Peter's T. A. S. Pic-nic Smashed All Records

Thousands of People Spent Dominion Day at T. A. S. Park---The Annual Event Being the Most Successful in its History---Sacred Heart Team Won the Ball Game---A Grand Programme of Sports Was Given

The St. Peter's T. A. S. picnic, held on Saturday, was one of the most successful of the picnics yet undertaken by the Society. Under a scorching sun the Rainbow left on its first trip to the Park at 8.30. The steamer was full, and the Water Lily, leaving half an hour later, also had a good complement of passengers. The two boats were crowded on every trip down.

The first item of interest was the opening of the Park and the hoisting of the T. A. S. flag, which was performed by Mr. W. C. Howden, the Reeve of Monaghan. This was followed by a ball game between the Sacred Heart and the East City teams of the Inter-Catholic League, and although the former club had the better of the game, from the opening inning, the struggle furnished some real good baseball. The Southerners broke into the score column in the first chapter, securing no less than five runs, and took three more in the second. It took the Ashburnham outfit several innings to get going, but ultimately they piled up a nice score, coming, in the seventh, to within one run of the leaders. The latter came back strong in the two concluding sessions, driving seven men across the pan. For the winners, Rose and LeFavre put up a nice battery game, while Guerin and O'Hearne, for the others, did not get the support accorded the former battery.

The Sacred Heart team appeared on the field in their new white and blue uniforms, and they were much admired by the spectators. The suits and caps are white, with blue trimmings and lettering. The teams were as follows:

Sacred Heart T. A. S.—Lefavre c., Rose p., Kennealley 1b., Heffernan 2b., Mulloy 3b., Gorham s.s., J. Neary l.f., F. Neary c.f., Condon r.f.

East City T. A. S.—O'Hearne c., Guerin p., Coughlin 1b., Murphy 2b., Russell 3b. Coughlin s.s., Keenan l.f. Barrie c.f., McDermott r.f.

The Rev. Dr. O'Brien and the Hon. J. R. Stratton opened the game, the former acting as pitcher, the latter wielding the bat.

A good bill of sports was run off during the afternoon, and, as some of the best local athletes were on the grounds, the competition was keen. The following were the winners of the various events:

Prize winners, who have not yet come into possession o ftheir prizes may obtain them from Mr. Cane, at the T.A.S. rooms.

The prize for the clog dance fell to Mr. A. Winn, while Mr. F. Connors brought home the jewellery given for the Irish clog. Mr. Ed. O'Brien, who takes the quoit pitching event every year lived up to his reputation again on Saturday, although he was given a merry chase by Mr. A. Puffer, who took second place. Jimmy Grisdale's crew of hand-picked huskies on the St. Peter's T. A. S. tug-of-war team, pulled Mulloy Deannard and company, of the Sacred Heart parish, and won the blue-ribbon event after a hard battle. The prize for the largest family on the grounds went to Mr. John Shevlin, who was accompanied on the outing by his wife and eight little Shevlins. Three other fond papas laid claim to second money, and a toss-up was decided upon. The god of fortune turned loose a few rays on Lou LeBarr, who added one more scalp to his already well-filled girdle of trophies taken during the day, by Lou and his fleet-footed family.

The river, for a considerable distance, was dotted with canoes, in which many of the members found relief from the heat, and fishing was also indulged in to a large extent.

The assembly was well cared for in the matter of food and drink. Mr. J. Hanrahan directed the soft drink booth, Mr. Merrell the ice cream booth, and Mr. Jos. Picard managed the arrangements for meals. The chairman of the Joint Committee was Mr. Arthur Shrap, and the chairman of the grounds committee was Mr. Dan Cushion, while Mr. Tom O'Gorman acted as chairman of the Boat Committee.

The handsome trophy, so kindly offered by Mr. R. R. Hall, for the game between the Sacred Heart and East City teams, and won by the former, was presented to the Sacred Heart team by Mr. J. J. Hickey, on behalf of the donor. Mr. W. E. Meagher, secretary of the winning team, made a very neat speech, in reply, giving evidence of having developed into no mean orator.

Credit was largely due to the Captains and crews of the steamers, who did everything possible to minister to the comforts of the public, as, while the boats were taxed to their utmost capacity, perfect order prevailed.

The Society wishes to thank all their friends, who helped them ot make the day such a great success. That they had such a large prize list for sports is due to the good will and generosity of a large number of citizens who sympathize with the good work they are accomplishing.

Great credit is due the Society and its officers for the perfect and complete manner in which they managed every detail of the day's proceedings, which tends to show everything was well organized.

The Park is an ideal place to hold a picnic. The grounds comprise about eight acres, three of which are covered by beautiful shade trees—the balance, a well-levelled, grassy campus for sports. The bank of the river at this point is high, and makes a good place for landing small boats, to facilitate which a special wharf was constructed. Adjoining the park proper there are about 20 acres of wooded land, owned by the Society, a portion of which has been surveyed into lots for summer cottages. A considerable number of these have already been sold.

HEAT WAVE WAS GENERAL AND CITIES EVERYWHERE SUFFERED

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, JULY 3.—From all over America come stories of yesterday's and to-day's drownings as the result of efforts to keep cool and from heat alone. Ten died from the warmness in New York, eight in Detroit, and three in Toronto. In Washington the sun concentrated through a store window, exploded fireworks, and firemen were seriously injured in an attempt to stop a fire. The temperatures recorded at different points are the highest in years. In some places new records were made.

Dodging The Heat Was Holiday's Chief Feature

Peterborough spent Dominion Day in a vain effort to dodge the sweltering heat. Naturally the Otonabee River came into mind as the most de most anything that would float, and probably there were never so many people down the river on one day before. St. Peter's T.A.S. picnic took thousands down to the T.A.S. Park, but thousands more went down in canoes, skiffs and launches, in fact in almost naything that would float, and every little grove for miles on each side of the river had its group of picnic parties. There was absolutely nothing in the way of entertainment in the city itself and those why remained in town sought the parks to find a shady spot away from the fierce sun. The Radial Railway Company did a record business. Many people spent the day at Stoney Lake, there being a large exodus from here of people who have summer homes on that popular resort. Toronto, with its baseball and lacrosse games a attractions, was the Mecca of many more Peterborough people.

MONDAY, JULY 3, 1911

EDITORIAL NOTES.

From January, 1905, to April 1911—6 years—the municipalities of Canada have been borrowers in old London of money to the immense total of sixty-three millions of dollars, or at the rate of ten million dollars per year. Quebec was the largest borrower, with twenty-two millions. Manitoba next with four millions, while, Ontario's total was only five millions.

Kingston, good old gray Kingston, is stationary as to population, and the only thing that keeps her moving is locomotives. The threatened closing or removal of the locomotive works was regarded as a sentence of doom. But owing to the energy and promptitude of Hon. Wm. Harty, M. P., the locomotive works are to stay and be operated with all the energy, that largely increased capital can give. It is fortunate that Kingston has a representative who represents, not only in parliament, but in the domain of industrial activity and interests.

DOMINION CONSERVATION COMMISSION.

(Toronto World.)

How wide and various are the activities of the Dominion Commission of Conservation can be easily seen by a glance at the table of contents prefixed to its second annual report. It includes accounts of the proceedings at the second annual meeting held at Quebec in January last and of the Dominion Public Health Conference held at Ottawa in October, 1910, and a number of special articles on particular phases of conservation policy. For convenience of treatment the work of the commission has been classified under public health; lands; forests; minerals, waters and water powers; fisheries, game, fur-bearing animals, and publicity. In addit ion a summary of the opinions by the commission of proposed undertakings in which conservation of natural resources is given. Much of the matter contained in the report is of great public importance, the opinions by the commission is performing valuable service which in years to come will have its utility and advantage fully demonstrated.

Among the more interesting portions of the report is the address by Dr. Robertson on the work of the committee on lands. During 1910 a survey was made of 986 frams, or an average of over one hundred farms in each province. It was found that not more than nine per cent. of the farmers visited follow any intelligent and effective system of crop rotation. The practice of the beneficial principle is however very uneven, some localities having fifty per cent. following good rotation and in others not a single farmer reporting any rotation. These and other results of the committee's investigation show how large a field there is for the education of the farmer and the adoption of scientific methods of farming. Immediately connected with this branch of the commission's labours is an article by Mr. C. C. James, deputy minister of agriculture for Ontario, describing the manner in which this province is solving the problem of the indifferent farmer by the district representative system.

Attention is called in the report to the increasing number of instances where corporations holding monopolies of water powers are demanding unreasonable prices for electricity. In dealing with this matter the commission has adopted certain principles with the view of securing for the public a proper share of the unearned increment in water powers. These require that all grants and alienations should be for a limited period; that a grant should only be made after a full report from a competent authority; that a fair commercial value should be fixed at the time of alienation and the rental be subject to revision at stated periods; that the rates be approved and subject to revision by the Railway Commission and that provisions to the latter effect be inserted in all charters dealing with water powers previously alienated. To these requirements it would be well to add that the capitalization of such public service corporations should also be subject to the control of the Railway Commission. Important recommendations were made to the governent by the Dominion Public Health Conference and these have already induced special action.

FLEXIBLE CONVICTIONS.

(Brantford Expositor.)

The Halifax Chronicle, published in Mr. Borden's home city, does not think the Conservative leader is entitled to any great credit for courage, and traces his career to show that he is possessed of "flexible convictions." It says it knows of no other man in public life who has been so agile in changing front or such an adept in adjusting his convictions to suit political expediency.

Then The Chronicle man proceeds to narrate some of the leading events in Mr. Borden's career; how that he was born and bred in the Liberal faith; took a prominent part in a Liberal demonstration to Blake and Laurier in his native county of King's and was a stalwart member of the Young Men's Liberal Club of Halifax. At that time a much larger measure of reciprocity was on the tapis than at present, and Mr. Borden never raised his voice against it, although the political club of which he was a member was a militant champion of the policy.

Just what led to Mr. Borden's change of party, The Chronicle says nobody is aware of. "All that is known is that he blossomed out overnight into a full-blown Tory and accepted the Tory nomination in the City of Halifax."

The story is continued as follows:

In 1897, Mr. Borden joined with his leader, Sir Charles Tupper, in denouncing the Fielding tariff as an instrument which would accomplish the ruin of Canadian industries. It must be assumed that he had "convictions" on that question, too. Yet, to-day, in the West, we find him bearing eloquent testimony to the "magnificent prosperity" and "unexampled progress which have resulted from the operation of that same Fielding tariff. So enamoured is he of its success that he is fairly pleading with the farmers of the West to drop the idea of getting a larger market for their products and to "let well enough alone."

We pass over the kaleidoscopic changes of the years and come down to the date of the inauguration of the National Transcontinental Railway. Who does not recall the wonderful exhibition of devotion to principles and adherence to "convictions" which he gave us on that occasion? One, in fact, could hardly keep track of the number of policies which he evolved in an attempt to discover an "alternative" to the Governments policy. He did not succeed in producing anything which the country would treat seriously, but one thing in his speeches all over the country, and that was that he denounced the contract which the government had made for the construction of the Transcontinental as most ruinous and disastrous. To-day, what do we find? In Mr. Borden, in his peregrinations through the West, denouncing the building of the National Transcontinental and telling the people of that great country that they are oppressed with a burden from which they can never escape, by reason of its construction? By no means. Mr. Borden is not saying a word about the National Transcontinental, and in that he is showing his wisdom. The policy of the government on this quest ion has been completely vindicated. Most people in Canada today recognize that the government was right, and Mr. Borden, by his silence on that question, is bearing testimony—the best testimony that could be adduced—to the wisdom of the Government's policy.

Let us turn next to the establishment of the Canadian Navy. When the question of a Canadian contribution to Imperial Naval defence was raised in the House of Commons in March, 1909, Mr. Borden made a speech in which he strongly endorsed the building of a Canadian Navy as the best and wisest policy, both in the interests of Canada and in the interests of the Mother Country. He joined with the Prime Minister in framing the resolution which was unanimously endorsed by the House of Commons. He went over to London, and, at a great banquet on Dominion Day, 1909, strongly and eloquently upheld the position which Canada had taken. He returned to Canada and, in the city of Halifax, in the most explicit and direct way, advocated the Canadian Naval policy. He went up to Ottawa and reaffirmed his stand there, as he did subsequently in Toronto.

A few months later he changed front suddenly and violently and came out flat-footed against the Canadian Navy, which he had endorsed so strongly and so repeatedly, and favoured sending a contribution of $25,000,000 of Canadian money, to be spent by the Admiralty in England. Mr. Borden has never yet ventured to tell us what he did with his "convictions" on that question.

The Expositor is not disposed to regard Mr. Borden as being a political mountebank; it rather believes him to be a high-minded gentleman. The incidents in his career to which The Chronicle calls attention merely serves to show that changing conditions and perhaps party exigencies lead public men to change their minds frequently, and sometimes radically. And so, when Mr. Borden tells the grain-growers of the West that he would not sacrifice his "convictions" on reciprocity if they promised to make him Prime Minister of Canada, it is just as well not to take the declaration too seriously.

WON HIS GAME

Manager Quinlan Pitched Against Rochester Team Saturday

Manager Quinlan of the Peterborough Midland League team, pitched for the Wellington team on Dominion Day against a Rochester City League team, and won an easy victory over the invaders from across the borders, who were trimmed back by a 14 to 1 score. The "Yanks" could do little with Quinlan's offerings, while the batting of the Wellington team was hard and timely. Billy Wilder gave the Peterborough manager fine support behind the bat.

RANGERS ENJOYABLE OUTING AT BROCKVILLE

to the 41st Regiment, and the people of Brockville for the warm welcome they had extended to the visitors. He closed his text from the 33rd Psalm and the 12th verse: "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, and the people whom He has chosen for His own inheritance."

The second speaker spoke in part as follows: "We are celebrating the anniversary of the Confederation. We wish to show our loyalty to our country and King, and you must show patriotism as you would not be here in our ranks. Blessed then is the nation which is no longer a colony, but a nation of patriots. Then let us push on and promote the work which was begun by the pioneers of our country, and which from God through them, came to us. God is behind our laws, our customs and our institutions. Then I say, blessed is this country—Canada—whose God is the Lord. Though our position in life may not be as high as we would wish it to be, we may feel thankful for the position we hold regarding our National hope and National life. We have received a wonderful heritage—heritage for God and religion. We should be upright, not only as a soldier, but as a man. You should have a soldierly attitude, and I know you will be true to it. We desire that you should enjoy these days. Canada's unity depends upon small things, the most important of which is to try and agree with those who differ from us."

After a few other remarks, Rev. Canon Davidson brought his sermon to a close, and Rev. Mr. Bedford Jones, Rector of the church, spoke a few words of congratulation and appreciation.

After the church service, the 57th men fell in in front of the church, and marched off, followed by the 41st men. When the two regiments reached the Armoury, the 41st fell out, and the 57th proceeded to the camp to prepare for the sight seeing in the afternoon.

At noon the 41st officers entertained the 57th officers at the Armouries where luncheon was served and music provided. In the afternoon about 4 o'clock the 57th officers entertained the 41st on the camp grounds. The grounds were completely covered with people, and a very pleasant time was enjoyed.

After supper, which was served about 6.30, the boys walked around the city, and enjoyed the rest for a couple of hours. They marched back to camp about 10.30, and the last parade took place to the station about 11.30. Even at that late hour, the admiring citizens were thronging the streets, watching for the march out of the 57th, and when they did come they were greeted with cheers from the crowd, which were returned in a manner as enthusiastic as their own had been. The station platform was crowded, and many farewells were taken by the new acquaintances. At 11.45 the train moved out from Brockville amid cheers, and in a few minutes the lights of the place, in which two of the most enjoyable days ever experienced by the 57th regiment had been spent, faded from view.

There was nothing very eventful in the return trip other than a feast at Smith's Falls. There was a stop of 15 minutes at that place, and the men lined up at the lunch counter, and the stock was exhausted long before half the men were served. After Smith's Falls was passed the men settled down to rest, and all but a few stragglers were soon fast asleep. One or two of these busied themselves by blackening the faces of the sleepers, with some black substance, and later there was a miniature riot on the train when the joke was found out.

The regiment arrived home about 5.30, and marched to the Armoury where they were informed there would be no more drill until further orders.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

I would not give a fig
For that man's religion
Whose very dog and cat
Were not the better for it.
—Sydney Smith.

I wonder if in Sydney Smith's day people went away to the country in the summer to enjoy themselves and left their cats to starve, and that was what he was thinking about when he wrote those words?

No, I don't suppose so, for I doubt if the summer vacation was an institution in his day—did it ever occur to you, by the way, of what comparatively recent development this now firmly established annual exodus is? Why, it can't be more than fifty years at the most that a summer vacation has been regarded as a necessity.

But I'm sure Sydney Smith would say that again make it even stronger if he could live to-day and be a witness to some of the torture to dumb animals which is caused by men and women who forget suffering, if they do not have to actually see it.

If a moving picture man could go to all the summer hotels and boarding houses and summer cottages and show a film representing the "cat that's left behind" prowling about dump heaps in the hope of getting a mouthful of nourishment out of some old soup can, being driven away from crumb buckets, growing thinner and more miserable and finally either dying from starvation or being caught in a weakened state by dogs and mauled to death, do you suppose having the suffering they are responsible for actually brought before their eyes would soften some people's hearts any?

I wonder.

A word to the lady who is about to pack her bag for that vacation trip. Had you intended to put in a hand-mirror? If you hadn't, may I suggest that you do? The Lady of Many Travels with whom I vacationed last summer says that she has caused herself more discomfort by omitting that article than any other. The average boarding house or hotel does not supply a hand mirror and not to be able to see one's back hair or the back of one's gown for two weeks, is apt to have a bad effect on the perfection of one's toilet making.

A brush broom is another article which the less travelled woman does not always remember to put in her grip and which the Lady of Many Travels most heartily recommends as a good travelling companion.

Bay rum and cold cream are two more travelling necessities, quite as unwise to omit as your toothbrush, according to her point of view. The washing accommodations on trains and boats and even in many summer places are not always all that they might be and the water is often unpleasantly hard. In this contingency the woman who is armed with a flannel rag and either a bottle of bay rum or a jar of good facial cream (preferably the latter as bay rum is apt to dry the skin), will find herself greatly assisted in doing battle on travel stains.

COOK'S PARADE AT BROCKVILLE WAS SOURCE OF GREAT AMUSEMENT

With respect to the humourous side of the 57th Regiment's trip to Brockville, the "cook's parade" might be mentioned as the outstanding feature. A number of boys from the Bugle Band took part in this event, which was a grand success. Crowds were attracted from far and near, and were kept in a perfect scream of laughter. The costumes were varied and startling in their nature. A. Spenceley was attired in a long swallow-tailed coat, which flew in the air, like a whip-lash, every time "Al" jumped. He was acting the part of the "chebo" and his make-up was a treat. Sergt. Sharpe played the part of the Zulu in such a perfect way that he struck terror into the hearts of the audience. He grew real horns all in one night, and also got tanned black in the moonlight. Pte. Wert, the Indian, strutted about brandishing his tomahawk in such a threatening manner that his brother redcoats felt for their weapons at times and the little girls and old men took a back seat when he came forward with a war-whoop. Bill Spenceley was very attractively attired as Bridget—if bright colors have anything to do with attractiveness. He made a few graceful strides around the street and no doubt succeeded in making a hit. Bruce Mills was the Cop, and certainly went some as a keeper of the peace. He was right there with the baton and big impudent-looking helmet every time he was not needed. Bill Alleri was also on the job in the latest of fashions. Pte. Rue was acting the giraffe and acted his part admirably. Mat Drysdale was Hiram and Walter Fitzgerald was his wife. Pte Adams was the acrobat, and Pte Gibbs was the Camel tamer while Pte. Wrightmeyer was right there with the African teeth and the soft black eyes. Bob Morrow acted as Camel Leader and Percy Neil acted the clown in a manner which caused great amusement. Geo Butcher was the Dutchman, and Pte McRoberts was the Band Master while Geo. East looked the typical Chinaman.

The Prudential's Annual Outing A Great Success

The annual outing of the Prudential Insurance Company's Underwriters of this district, for the third time, has proved a grand success. On Dominion Day, the Superintendent, Mr. J. L. Allen, Assistant Superintendents Mr. F. H. Cornelius of Port Hope, Mr. A. H. Seymour, of Oshawa, and Mr. Leadbetter, and Mr. Sedgwick of Peterborough, together with the agents of the District, accompanied by their wives, and lady friends, and a number of visitors, left for Chemong Park in automobiles furnished by the McLaughlin Company and Grimes, and Rutherford of Simcoe street. The party which numbered about fifty, arrived at Chemong about 10 a.m., where a list of sports was run off and the prizes awarded to the winners, as follows:

Slow race—J. L. Lonergan, watch fob.

Refreshment race—C. Isaacks, gold cuff links.

Putting the Shot—C. H. Patterson, silver match case.

Wheelbarrow race — H. Solmes, necktie and socks.

Ladies' needle race—Miss Hayes, silver mesh bag.

Ladies' wheelbarrow race—Mrs. Isaacks, silk parasol.

Mr. Isaacks has the proud distinction of eating a biscuit and a banana and drinking a glass of water while some of the other aspirants for the prize were choking on their biscuit. Mention should also be made of Miss Hayes, who won the needle race. She not only proved to be a good hand at threading a needle, but also in making a sprint of 100 yards.

The sports being ended, the party sat down to a dinner prepared by Mr. Rickey, proprietor of the Chemong Hotel. After dinner a business meeting was held, which was addressed by the Superintendent, J. L. Allen, and Mr. W. H. Wilkie, Home Office Inspector. A number of the leading agents also made a few remarks, and promised to give their best efforts towards making the week of July 10th one of the best weeks' writings that has been put up in the district, in honour of Mr. W. H. Wilkie.

Dr. MacPherson the Company's Medical Examiner, was a shining light at the outing, and addressed the meeting also. Dr. Browett, one of the visitors present, made a few remarks, in reference to life insurance. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. MacPherson, Dr. Browett, and Mr. Wilkie, for their presence, and words of advice, which had been so freely given.

A game of ball was then played, but some of the lovers of the water took to the lake shore, where swimming and wading made the heat of the day less disagreeable.

The return trip was made after tea and everybody was highly pleased with the success of the outing, and another will be eagerly looked forward to.

MARRIED.

LEMAY—YENNEY—At Lakefield on Wednesday, June 28th, 1911, by the Rev. C. H. Coon, Gertrude A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Yenney, Peterborough, to Mr. P. M. Lemay.

KIT'S COLUMN

Long enough have we women been either blamed or ridiculed in regard to our mode of dress. It is now our turn to rail at the dear men. Listen to the very latest advices from London which reached me by mail this very morning:

"The mere man and the masher are knitting anxious brows over the important question of pretty white lace over mauve poplin waistcoats, or over an azalea silk one. He is torn between a desire to wear a shirt of the shade known as gris fume or one of gris fonce."

The dear creature is likewise hovering in nervous indecision over a tie of Quaker gray to match his black lace vest, or a pink one veiled with ninon to match his bleu de roi little weskit. It is a fact that vests veiled in lace are being worn, and—the Lord preserve us—by Englishmen! If an Irishman were to be seen in an emotional green satin waistcoat veiled with orange lace it would not be the matter of surprise it is to see a reserved, correct, reticent Englishman sporting a purple poplin vest topped by a tie of gris fume. I shall not forget my astonishment when last September I met a man in Leadenhall street, in the heart of the city of London, wearing a green corduroy waistcoat and a prune coloured tie. And he was but the first of a procession of men madly vested in the colours of a parasueet. That must have been the preliminary gallop of the present styles in men's wear. They were gallivanting through coronation time in the fancy flowered vestings veiled with Nottingham lace, in "Gashmak" ties, which means gay stripes glimmering under black lace mesh; in rose Pompadour shirts with royal carmine cuffs, and in the most frivolous of socks of all colours, embroidered with crowns and wreaths and monograms.

The men have also gone foolish over "lucky" ties and shirts. These come in the swastika pattern, or in silk woven with charms and mascots such as women dangle on their bracelets and chatelaines. The newest ties pattern, the Tomoye, which is the Japanese luck bringer, and the Chinese mascot, "The Knet." All the black bowlers have disappeared from the London shops and been replaced by grey hats, simply because King George has taken to wearing a grey bowler when taking his morning ride in the park.

I sincerely hope the above important information will solace the soul of the young man whose letter in this week's budget is one long and dismal wail about "the reams and reams of silly stuff written about the women's fashions."

The men are always so much wiser—the dear, sane, strong creatures!

The two little children were playing "minding the baby" with Doly in the buggies. There were two buggies and two dollies, one very grand, the toy of a well-to-do child, the other rather shabby and dilapidated. But the charming thing about it was that the well-to-do child effaced herself and her belongings in an effort to bring her companion to one's notice. At first the little maids played posting letters in the pillar box, and growing tired they ran over to inspect me and my surroundings. Apparently satisfied that the writer, the old horse and the older dog were peaceful persons warranted not to bite, we fell into conversation. I praised the dollies which the proud little mothers unrolled for inspection, and was told that Winnie's dolly though poor and shabby and minus one eye and foot, "wus the grandest dolly ever at Christmas time, and her bugg ywas the loveliest thing and Winnie herself the best chum an' had just heaps of new dresses if she only liked to wear them, but her Ma wouldn't let her 'cept Sunday." The well-to-do litte girl's face flushed with pride in her poor companion as she recited Winny's virtues and exploited her charms. One had not happened on anything like it before, for childish unselfishness and childish humility are rarer than black pearls — and it was very beautiful to see.

"But what about your own things?" we asked the well-to-do little girl. "They're prettier than Winny's and your dress is newer. "Oh, no, they aren't," she cried, "Winny's dolly was just lovely till she got sick and fell out of the buggy and my dress isn't new an' Winny has just as nice only her Ma—and so on. The dear small, gentle soul in her burst of sincere pride in Winny hugged her for very joy of it, and the last I saw of them were two little arms linked and two little heads close together, and two neglected dollies sagging like tipsy old women from side to side in the ricketty buggies, as the little mothers went along exchanging God knows what childish confidences.

And what a pity it is, I thought, that one day very soon some foolish grown-up will take it into her head to explain away all that I had listened to about Santa Claus, and will smash forever in a child's heart the Fairyland of childhood with its dear visions and heaven-made dreams.

The day was sweetened by this little pastoral.

A correspondent who has evidently swum out of his depth in Coronation reading, after asserting that conversation with royalty must remain one-sided asks if he is not right as there is a bet on the matter. I have not been in the habit of conversing with kings and queens but should imagine a one-sided "conversation" would say our more of an Irish bull than anything else. Conversation implies two or more speaking together, and it would be rather sad to think that the royal family who confined within itself in the matter of small talk. Of course tact is of all things necessary in conversations with royal personages for monarchs are kittle cattle to indulge in repartee with as, especially with the earlier sovereigns, replies which were too clever proved an introduction to the Tower and a free pass to Tower Hill.

Yes, kings and queens expect an answer when they talk to their subjects, so my friend loses the wager. Indeed there are on record smart replies to royalty as was that of Lord Beaconsfield when Queen Victoria asked him which of the court beauties he most admired.

"Madam," said the minister, "it is hard to judge the radiance of the stars in the presence of the sun."

Very frequently these days we see the words "omit flowers" after a funeral notice, and some people consider the sending of flowers to the dead an absurd habit. Why? It is the very last act of kindness, or respect or friendship we shall ever have the chance to offer them. Flowers bring to most of us, besides their matchless beauty and delicious perfume, a deep and tender meaning. They are emblems of hope; a promise of life immortal. They carry our last message to the beloved dead, a message of love and hope that just as flowers bloom again, they too, will bloom and live in another country. I should like to think some one would lay a little flower near my dead face. I would like to carry that much of this beautiful world away with me. Poor and weak and shambling creatures as we all are, we need the solace and consolation that even a few flowers sent to our beloved dead may bring the mourner in the after hours when the first poignant grief is dulled. And the memory of the last graceful gift remains. I knew an old Irish woman in New York whose only son had been killed under an elevator years and years before. She had forgotten much that had happened in her life. Even her sorrows—and she had had her share—had been softened by the patient hand of Time. But when relating the grim story of her boy's death, the one radiant thing that shone like a great hope out of the past was the big harp of flowers her neighbour the German woman sent to poor Bernard. "Shure it was like what the angels in Heaven do be playin' on," she would say, "as big an' green an' fresh. An' her a Protestant an' all, God help her."

And talking of the dead—what is really the greatest depth to which our sorrow reaches when the long narrow box goes out at the door and we turn back to a home which seems emptied of all that made life worth while? Is is not the thought of the many little things we did not do for his comfort or pleasure while he was with us, and the many other annoying things we did which we might have so easily avoided. "I could have sat with him oftener when he was lying sick." "I need not have been so churlish or disagreeable or selfish as I was on this or that little occasion." "I could have been kinder." And you can never now be kind to him or considerate or caring or—anything. Oh, that despairing "never any more, now"—that "If I could only have my beloved back even for a little while." You would dig him out of the grave with your fingers if you could. You would warm him at your very breast if you could get him back for even a moment. Why not, when you think of all this give a little more tenderness, joy and happiness while those whom you love are with you? Why not offer the flowers to the living? Why not say the word of praise of kindliness of cheer now when the ears may hear it, and not save all the tenderness and honour and fragrance till the ears are deaf and the eyes that looked on you in love and kindness are closed forever?

Talk of telling character from your handwriting. Look at your nose, my good friend, and gauge yourself. We've heard of the motor-face, but do you know the stenographer nose, the nose of the modern woman, the proboscis of the generous woman? It has been decided by the strange wizards who arrange our bonnets and our manners, the things our toes tell and our moles indicate, and who live God knows where—inthe garrets of heaven perhaps, for surely not upon this sinful earth—it has been decided by one of those doubtful angels that there are two types of noses which every woman would do well to study—the business woman's nose, and the proboscis of the dame whose realm is purely social.

Take the typist. (The press seems to have taken that term to its deep bosom since Ethel Le Neve launched it.) She is usually a pretty maid and is frequently a bone of contention in the dear domestic circle. It will be noticed that her nose grows gradually to a point, an interrogation point, no doubt, or perhaps a quotation point—you know the kind that twiddles up slightly at the tip? I call it a fascinating nose. No later than a week ago—when frivolling with newspaper people on a holiday, I saw a dignified and perfectly sane man grow hourly allier because of a retrousse nose that was on board accompanied by a pair of the biggest, brightest, black eyes you ever beheld. And she was a business girl and it was her heavenward tilted nose that robbed the wise man of his sanity.

The nose of the society woman is a long, sharpish nose which shows enterprise, earnestness, curiosity (a prynose, this) and withal an ability to decide a question promptly and finally. But over and against this you must lay the snub nose which is said by the physiologists to belong to the up-to-date smart woman. The inquisitive nose will always be worn by that deadly grandmother of society, that law-maker and scandal-maker and guardian of convent ion of whom we all stand in fear who is called Mrs. Grundy.

A PRESENTATION AT YOUNG'S POINT

On Thursday afternoon the closing exercises of the Young's Point Public School were held. After an hour's programme of songs, recitations and dialogues had been rendered in a creditable manner, a presentation was made to Miss Ada M. Payne, teacher of the Junior Department, by the pupils of the school. Miss Payne has held the position for a year, and the pupils under her charge have made rapid advancement, and very general regret is expressed at her departure. The presentation was made by Lena Bullock and the address read by Hilda Wilson as follows:

Dear Miss Payne.—We are very sorry to learn that you are about to leave us. You have made many warm friends while you have been with us, by your kindness to us, both in our work and in our play. We ask you to accept this locket and chain, and while you look on it, when you are in foreign lands, may it help to remind you of your friends in the Young's Point School.

Signed on behalf of the school—
Olive Reed,
Lena Bullock,
Hilda Wilson,

Miss Payne, although taken completely by surprise, made a very feeling reply, in which she assured her pupils that she would take the deepest interest in their future welfare, and would always look upon the year spent at Young's Point as one of the happiest of her life.

The exercises were concluded by the singing of the National Anthem.

A GIFT OF MANY DONORS

Handsome New Notice Board Has Been Erected at All Saints Church

A very handsome notice board has been placed outside All Saints' church, Rubidge street. It is unique in the number who have shared in its erection. The board was made by Mr. Frank Dawson, following the suggestion of the rector, was covered with galvanized iron by Mr. L. H. Dobbin, of Adamson & Dobbin, painted by Mr. A. Kingdon and erected into its place by Mr. James Runnet. All these did their work gratuitously. The lettering, by Mr. Kingdon who, by the way, is a member of St. Luke's, is very carefully and artistically done, being gold on background of black. The old proverb of "Too mank cooks spoil the broth" does not hold true in this case, because the board, a shield in shape, is one of the very finest, and a credit to an already beautiful church. BUILDING PERMITS FOR MAY

If building returns for May can be taken as an indication, activity in the building line throughout the country is veritably rampant. At no previous time, considering the large list of cities reporting, have the gains been greater in number, or the individual increases of more striking magnitude. Comparative figures submitted to CONSTRUCTION show an average gain for thirty-two centres of 65 per cent., the permits totalling $18,747,894, as against $11,324,898 in the same period of last year. But seven decreases in all are noted, and only five of these can really be considered as being on the reverse side. Montreal, for instance, where the permits amounted to $1,703,120, the loss was less than 1 per cent., while in the case of Stratford, the comparative totals represent so little as to indicate practically nothing one way or the other. Saskatoon, with a decrease of 43 per cent., suffered the greatest loss from an investment standpoint. Fort William is next in this respect with a decline of 55 per cent. Ottawa, with a falling off of 17 per cent., is third, and Port Arthur and Peterboro follow with decreases of 67 and 46 per cent. in order named. Saskatoon, as it was, registered a total of $489,000, while Ottawa's amount was in excess of the half million mark.

Calgary's heavy investment, of $3,616,812 shows a remarkable state of development, as does also Toronto's total of $2,643,755 and Vancouver's amount of $2,488,050. In fact, all sections with the seven exceptions previously noted, experienced a most marked advance. Winnipeg, where new work amounting to $2,229,480 was undertaken, reversed the less favorable condition of the previous month. Brandon, in the same province, with an investment of over half a million, is 166 per cent. ahead. In Saskatchewan, Regina, with a total of $1,036,190, jumped forward 160 per cent.; Prince Albert advanced 740 per cent.; and Moose Jaw annexed a gain of 44 per cent. Other Western gains are Edmonton, 118 per cent.; Medicine Hat, 89 per cent.; and Victoria, 11 per cent. North Vancouver while not submitting comparative figures, indicates by her amount of $52,068 a very wholesome condition.

A notable feature of the month was the marked reversal of condit ions in the Eastern Maritime district. Halifax, Sydney, and St. John, which were behind the two previous months, are all on the "upside," the former noting an advance of 207 per cent. and the latter two places gains of 378 and 30 per cent. in order named.

In Quebec, aside from Montreal's total and the figures of Westmount, which gives a gain of 23 per cent., statistics are unavailable, although it is definitely known that Quebec City and a number of the smaller municipalities undertook a substantial amount of work. This also is true of other unheard-from centres in the various other provinces, many of which are establishing new records with each succeeding month.

As to the immediate outlook, it might be said that at no time in the past has there been so much important work in prospect. June, July, and August should record tremendously large totals, although labor troubles which threaten at the present time might interfere to some extent with operations in one or two important centres.

WEDDING BELLS

HURTUBISE—HOXEY.

GALT, JUNE 29.—A very pretty church wedding took place at nine o'clock this morning in the church of the Sacred Heart, when Miss Cathleen Hoxey, of Paris, formerly of Peterborough, was united in marriage by Rev. Father Cassidy, to Mr Eugene Hurtubise, of Peterborough. The bride was most prettily gowned in white satin, while Miss Kate Moore, as bridesmaid, wore pale green silk. Mr Leo. Dineen, of Peterborough, did the honours for the groom. The wedding march was ably rendered by Miss Cahill. At the conclusion of the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Butler, Dundas street. Mr and Mrs Hurtubise left on the 1.08 for Ottawa, Montreal, and other points, the bride's travelling costume was of grey silk.

MARKS—FOSTER.

NORWOOD, JUNE 30.—(Special).—A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr and Mrs. David Foster, Norwood, Thursday, at 1 o'clock, when their third daughter, Grace Mary, was married to Mr. John Marks, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Marks, of this place. The ceremony took place 'neath an arch of evergreens, decorated with asparagus and marguerites, and was performed by Rev. W. B. Tucker, pastor of the Methodist church. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a silk mull dress over satin. A long tulle veil was held by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Foster, who was gowned in white all over embroidery, and carried pink roses. Mr. Walter Girven of Smith's Falls, assisted the groom.

The wedding march was played by the bride's youngest sister, Miss Margaret, and little Kathleen Cuffe, of Peterborough, sang.

After the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served in the prettily decorated dining-room. About forty guests were present. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl ring, to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet, and to the groomsman a pair of cuff links.

The bride's going-away gown was of navy blue, with hat to match. The happy couple will spend their honeymoon in Montreal and Quebec, after which they will return, and reside near Norwood.

The guests from a distance were Mr. Hodgson, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Kirkness, Mrs. Dunham of Toronto, Mr. J. C. Brown of Cobourg, Mr. and Mrs. T. Drope, Miss Vera Drope, Master Willie Drope, Mr. and Mrs. J. Coyle, Mr. and Mrs. Darling, of Alnwick, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver of Warkworth, Miss Anna Cuffe and Kathleen of Peterborough, Mrs. Dancey, of Picton, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and Miss Donna Cooke of Toronto.

MILBY—WATSON.

A pretty Scottish wedding, and of a quiet nature, was solemnized on the evening of Friday last at 527 Chamberlain street. The chief actors in the event were Mr. James Milby, late of Glasgow, and his bride, Miss Lilian Watson also from that airt, youngest daughter of the late Col.-Sergt., James Watson, 78th Seaforth Highlanders.

The officiating clergyman was Rev. H. J. Keith, the ceremony being performed before a number of friends and relations, including Messrs. Andrew and Arch. Watson, the Misses Margaret and Bristo, and Mrs. Munro, brothers and sisters of the bride.

The presents were numerous and handsome. A substantial repast was laid for the company.

The happy couple, with the best wishes of all following in their wake, are spending their honeymoon up the Kawartha chain of lakes, and on their return will reside in the city.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

J. A. EMERSON MOORE.

LAKEFIELD, JULY 3.—The death of a young man at the very zenith of his strength is always a cause of sorrow and it is with feelings of genuine sorrow that we have to record the death of our late fellow townsman, Mr. J. A. Emerson Moore, at the early age of 29 years.

Five years ago, he secured a half interest in the lumber and planing mill business with his father, Mr. F. J. Moore. Since that time he has entirely managed the business, and by his strict integrity and probity he readily secured the confidence and good will of all with whom he was brought in contact, and had built up a profitable business.

He was of a retiring disposition, and was ardently devoted to his family and to his business, and was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church. He had not been in good health for some time, but was attending to his work at the mill on Saturday, the 25th ult., as usual.

He had contracted scarlet fever, and later, pleurisy developed, which resulted in his death at 1 o'clock a. m. on Wednesday, the 28th ult.

When told that his end was near he calmly and deliberately gave directions regarding the settlement of his business and peacefully awaited his end with submissive Christian fortitude.

He is survived by his wife and one child, who, together with his parents and brothers and sisters have the profound sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.—Com.

700 PEOPLE IN WILD WEST SHOW

Young Buffalo Wild West Has a Galaxy of Star Performers

The Young Buffalo Wild West Show will exhibit in Peterborough on July 8, afternoon and night. The aggregation is a large one, numbering as it does over 700 men and women—many of whom have earned international repute for their skill and daring.

Fred Burns, who heads this band of experts, is called "King of the Rope," and is perhaps the best informed man to-day on practical roping. He is also an expert rider and has invented a special saddle for bucking horses, which is a success. Burns is an old-time cow puncher of the open range school and is also one of the best bronco busters that ever sat in a saddle. With Mr. Burns is his younger brother Bob, who is also a clever man with rope and saddle, running his brother a tight pinch for first place.

Montana Jack, a young chap of 22 years, also a rope expert, will be with the show, and together this trio will show the different styles of roping used on the range.

Among the features is Ambrose Means, the hero of the Buffalo Jones Expedition to Africa and the first man to rope a lion. Besides Mr. Means, there will be Miss Annie Oakley, the greatest woman rifle shot in the world. Then there is Prairie Rose, a young girl who rides real bucking horses at every performance and who is considered the nerviest girl rider in the business. Besides these already mentioned, there are man sun-tanned cowpunchers who will fill the arena with stunts never before attempted in a wild west show. This show is the kind that only a man of Colonel Vernon C. Seaver's calibre would attempt. Colonel Seaver is known from coast to coast as having the best Wild West show in the world. It always leaves thousands of pleased patrons in its wake. A big street parade will be given at 10 o'clock on the day of the exhibition.

Was Very Hot In Springville

The hot wave rolled high in Sylvan Springville to-day. Dr. Marsh has a new self-registering thermometer, corrected by Government standard. Yesterday, this thermometer's highest record was 106 degrees in the shade, and to-day, at 11 o'clock the mercury reached 110 in the shade. The thermometer was quite in the shade, and alongside another good glass, which showed the same registration. The warm wave however, is receding. At 1 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. Marsh's thermometer had fallen to 102, and the "probs." promise us thunder storms to-night and decidely cooler weather to-morrow—so may it be.

Chipmunk In The Berries

A few weeks ago a tarantula was discovered in a bunch of bananas at S. A. Oke's fruit store, and another unusual visitor happened along a day or two ago, when on opening a crate of strawberries, a chipmunk jumped out from among the fruit. The berries came from a North Monaghan grower. Mr. Chipmunk, who was kept for a couple of days, seemed to be quite at home, and showed an abnormal fondness for berries, his liking for the luscious fruit being, no doubt, the cause of his being carried off in the crate.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Editor of the Examiner:

On Thursday, June 29th, the advance guard of the Annual Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp left the Wolfe street wharf at 7.55. We had a slow sail up to Lakefield on account of the logs and the heavy load we had on board. Just before we arrived at Lakefield Leslie Jewel saw a buoy in the river and of course he wanted to know why it wasn't a girl. Nobody seemed to know so he volunteered the answer, that if it were it would take more than a cable to hold her from running off with the first swell that came along. When we left that large, beautiful, noble and stately metropolis of Lakefield we encountered no more logs and had a clear passage to the Point.

When we entered Clear Lake every eye was turned to the left shore to discover some indication of our destination. We arrived about 1.30 after a pleasant trip.

Well, it didn't take long to fill up the hungry with good things, and then we proceeded to erect the tents. By evening we had put up the dinner tent, the big tent and the small tent. Of course we saw to it that the cook house was in working order. Then we made ready for the quoit tournament, after which we had our tea. Then we started to make our wharf and spring board, which we finished the next day, while some of us caught enough fish for breakfast. Then we turned in—but not to sleep; no sir. There was too much to say, and too many skeeters to look after.

We were up about 4.30 Friday morning, and put up the remaining tent after breakfast. Then we carted the supplies to the cook house. About 12.30 four of our party started for Father Jots, but returned in time to give our followers a hearty welcome.

Tuesday afternoon will be Parents' Day at the camp and the boys are all expecting their mothers and fathers to come out with the St. Paul's Sunday School picnic.

$300000 STOCK WILL BE PLACED ON MARKET

The Campbell Flour Mills Company, Limited, has acquired the business of the Campbell Milling Company, with plants at West Toronto and Peterborough, and will place on the market $300,000 seven per cent. cumulative preference stock at par, which will carry with it a bonus of twenty-five per cent. common stock. The capital of the company is $650,000 preferred, and $650,000 common stock, but the $350,000 of the preserred has already been subscribed, and the remaining $300,000 will be offered as stated, by Campbell Thompson Co., Toronto.

The mill at West Toronto has a capacity of 1,000 barrels of flour, and 100 tons of feed per day, and the one at Peterborough 400 barrels of flour and 30 tons of feed. These plants, however, are compelled to work double shift, and to relieve the congestion of business, it had decided to erect a mill at Midland, with an immediate capacity of 1500 barrels of flour per day, the buildings being arranged to increase the capacity to 3,000 barrels. A site has been secured beside the Aberdeen elevator, comprising nine acres of land and including a water frontage of five hundred feet. Hydro-Electric power has been contracted for at a low rate, and arrangement made for favourable freight rates, and a low fixed assessment for ten years.

The management, which is the same as formerly, retain a controlling interest in the new company. The directors are, Senator Campbell, Toronto; James Richardson, Grain Merchant, Kingston, Ontario; D. A. Campbell; A. W. Campbell; N. H. Campbell, Toronto; James Playfair, Midland and E. B. Thompson.

FIRST CONCERT

Salvation Army Band to Play in Victoria Park

The splendid band of the Peterborough Salvation Army will begin their series of concerts in Victoria Park to-morrow night, and have arranged a grand programme for the event. The band, which numbers thirty-five instruments, is an organization of which the citizens, as a whole, are justly proud, and it is said that they were never in better shape than they are at present. Their concerts last season were most enjoyable, and no doubt there will be a big crowd on hand in Victoria Park to-morrow night to greet them. The programme will be announced in to-morrow's Examiner.

FIRE DOES $1,250 DAMAGE

The Fire Department received a call on Saturday at 3.40 o'clock, of a small, but serious, conflagration, which was raging on the premises occupied by Snowden & Murphy. It is supposed to have been caused by mice nibbling at matches. When the Department arrived on the scene smoke was belching forth from the building, and the fire had assumed a threatening aspect. It was found necessary to lay two lines of hose, consequtnly the stock was badly damaged by water. After about three-quarter's of an hour's strenuous work on the part of the firemen, the flames were subdued, but not before $250 damage had been incurred to the stock, also about $1,000 damage to the building.

GREAT PICTURES AT PRINCESS

An interesting series of moving pictures is being shown at the Princess Theatre to-da yand to-morrow in the shape of a panoramic journey through London, showing the different preparations for the Coronation procession, the buildings by which the parade passed and the seats built up ready for the accommodation of the hundreds of thousands of spectators. The picture also shows the Canadian troops arriving at Liverpool, showing views of them on the boat and in the parade at Liverpool. The Indian troops on their arrival at London and their camp are also part of the picture. The Boy Scouts play a prominent part as well. Pictures of the great Coronation procession will be shown at the Royal theatre on Thursday, two weeks after the event itself. The film was shipped immediately after the event and it speaks well for the enterprise of the management that the pictures will be here on view in such a short time.

HASTINGS NEWS

Hastings, June 24.

On Monday evening the members of the congregation of the Methodist Church met in the basement to tender a farewell to their pastor and his family on the eve of their departure for Hampton. After a short programme had been rendered the Rev. C. W. Barrett, Mrs. Barrett and Master Gordon were called to the platform, when Mr. Mikel, on behalf of the congregation, read a very nicely worded address, and Mr. Wm. Warner presented to Mr. Barrett a handsome gold chain and locket, and Master Stanley Stevenson to Gorden a beautiful bedroom clock. Mr. Barrett, in a few well chosen words, thanked the congregation for their gift and their good wishes and hoped that success might attend the new pastor. Mrs. Nelson Beavis then came forward and, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, read to Mrs. Barrett an expression of their genuine appreciation of her and of her services during her short stay with them. At the close of the address Mrs. J. Fleming presented her with a beautiful cut-glass water pitcher. Mrs. Barrett's reply was one worthy of her, and went to prove that her stay in Hastings had been both pleasant and profitable. The ladies then served cake and coffee, and all went home feeling that a social hour had been spent. Mr. and Mrs. Barrett left on Tuesday for their new field of labour at Hampton.

An excursion, under the auspices of the English Church of Baillieboro, passed through here on Thursday en route for Healy Falls, and was fairly well attended.

Rev. R. B. Beavis of Outlook, Sask., occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning last and gave a very interesting account of some of his labours in that far-off mission field.

Miss Lou Fowlds returned last week from Toronto feeling much improved in health.

Mrs. W. Fowlds has been spending a few days in Norwood.

Rev. R. Richards of Westwood was in town on Sunday.

Miss Blanche Humphries of Seymour spent the week end under the parental roof.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Laing of Norwood were in town on Sunday.

Miss Free of Campbellford has been visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Frank Hill has been in Peterboro with friends.

We are sorry to learn that Master Willie Tate is confined to his home, suffering from pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson of Toronto have been the guests of the former's brother here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Oliver of Percy were in Hastings on Sunday.

The Order of Foresters held their annual excursion to Idyl Wyld on Thursday last, and although the weather was somewhat stormy a goodly number took advantage of the outing. The Presbyterian S. S. is making preparations for their picnic, which is billed to come off July 6th.

Miss Meikeljohn of Rawdon has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Humphries.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Faux on the occasion of their marriage, which took place on Wednesday, 21st.

A pleasant evening was spent on Friday when the Elgin S. S. held a lawn social on the school grounds, although the rain somewhat spoiled the proceedings.

PETERBOROUGH BUSINESS COLLEGE
GEO. SPOTTON - President

MR. STRATTON ADDRESSES HIS CONSTITUENTS ON PUBLIC ISSUES AND RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT

At a Meeting in the Orange Hall, Buckhorn---Reference Made to Government Improvements in West Peterborough and to General Features of Liberal Administration---Advantages of Reciprocity Presented and Reasons for its Adoption Submitted.

IT WILL GREATLY BENEFIT THE COUNTRY AT LARGE

Hon. Mr. Stratton addressed a meeting of his constituents in the Orange Hall, Hall's Bridge, Buckhorn, on Monday evening.

In spite of the intense heat there was a good attendance.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Andrew Shearer. Mr. Stratton received a hearty reception, and his address, which necessarily occupied some time, was attentively and appreciatively listened to.

The chairman, in his preliminary remarks, stated that Mr. Stratton was to address the meeting on public questions, at any time a matter of great interest, but at the present time of special interest. He pointed out that Mr. Stratton, when he had been a representative in the local House, had followed the custom of meeting the people frequently, to place before them the doings of the people's representative. He was glad he was present again for a similar purpose; and he kept himself so closely in touch with all parts of his Riding that he required no further introduction.

Mr. Stratton said:

Gentemen,—I am very glad to again meet so many of my old friends in the good old township of Smith. When I was a member of the Provincial Legislature, you will remember that at the close of every session I appeared before the electors to give an account of my stewardship and to review the legislation, and give a synopsis of the work of the Session. Since you have honoured me with the responsibility of a seat in Parliament, I have not been able, for certain reasons, to carry out this practice as fully as I desired to do. You will remember that after the first Session, I was prevented by the trial of the protest that was entered against my return, on the grounds that my election was secured by corrupt practices. You all know the result of the trial of that protest. You will recall that the only corrupt practice revealed was shown to have been employed by my opponents in the form of bribery to secure evidence of corrupt practices on my part and by means that brought the perpetrators perilously close to the penalties of the cirminal code. After the second Session I had the pleasure of addressing a few meetings of my constituents.

I appear before you now, not that the third Session is ended, but there has been an adjournment under peculiar circumstances. His Majesty's loyal Conservative Opposition have seen fit to pursue a policy of obstruction and the adjournment till July 15th, is the indirect, if not direct, outcome, of this obstruction of the country's business.

Promoting Constituency Interests.

But before entering upon a consideration of this, and before entering upon a reference to the important questions that have engaged the attention of the House this Session, I may deal with the more intimate relations as between myself and my constituents, whose servant I am. I may say that since representing you in Parliament I have endeavoured to protect your interests and promote your welfare. The public money of Canada is for public purposes It is the money of the people and the people have a right to share in the benefits of its expenditure for legitimate purposes — its expenditure, in providing the conveniences and improvements that it is the duty of the Government to provide. In this regard, I may say without vanity or boasting, that I have tried not to permit the Government to forget their duty to the people of West Peterborough. Whatever improvements the Government have made in this Riding, they deserve credit for. But all Governments are not inclined to be too liberal in regard to improvements of a local character, whose importance and advantage they do not know as well as those directly concerned. In as national canals and railways, the Government is in a position to take the initiative, yet these have, nevertheless, to be urged by deputations. But in regard to local needs of a similar character, they have to be shown: the claims of constituents have to be urged upon them. And I can assure you that with the multiplicity of demands pouring in upon a Government from over two hundred constituencies, it takes, on the part of a member, a little persistence and fidelity to the interests of his constituents to convince them. To show that I have not been entirely idle as your representative—that I have not forgotten your claims, it is only fair to myself, as due to yourselves, that I should briefly present a list of the Government improvements that have been made in this Riding since I had the honour of representing it. These conveniences and improvements are so evidently in the public interest, that this need not be insisted upon. They give the people opportunity to reap the fullest advantage of the splendid facilities presented by the Trent Canal and our lakes and rivers. The money of the people has been expended to good advantage in their interests, and it is gratifying to me that I have been able to be of some use to my constituents.

The following list of these improvements may be of some interest, to the people, and serve to remind them that the West Riding of Peterborough has not been altogether neglected. I shall not undertake to mention the improvements made and the facilities provided in the order of their construction, nor the further work in progress, and to be undertaken, but give them as they occur to me.

Wolfe Street Wharf.

The Wolfe street wharf, in the City of Peterborough, since its construction, has been extended, completed and covered, at a cost representing about $10,000, and the east side of the river has been dredged and improved with a view of conserving the water flow, and facilitating the passage of logs by a chute provided for that purposes, without undue waste of water.

Post Office Improvements.

Peterborough has, as we all are pleased to know, outgrown the present Post Office accommodation, rendering extensive additions necessary to meet the requirements of the public. An initial appropriation of $10,000 has been made for this purpose, and it will probably require an additional $5,000 to complete the work now in progress. When this $15,000 is expended, it is expected that Peterborough will have adequate post office accommodation for some time to come—it is to be hoped, for only a short time. We all should like the city to improve in population so rapidly as to soon require additional post office accommodation.

Complete New Wharfage Works.

The growing commercial importance of the city has also made the present wharfage inadequate — not only for present and immediately prospective requirements of navigation and passenger and goods traffic, not to speak of the requirements that will follow the completion of the Trent Canal to Lake Ontario, and later when it is open for navigation its entire length. To meet present, and anticipate, future needs an appropriation of $20,000 was procured during the Session of 1910-11, for a new and commodious wharf which, when completed, will be worthy of the City of Peterborough and the navigation interests, it is intended to serve. It is proposed to procure by purchase, or expropriation, the lake front property of Mr. G. W. Hatton, lying between the premises of the Matthews Company and those of the Point St. Charles saw mills. Upon this site an extensive system of wharfage will be constructed of an area and character, that the situation and its future use will, respectively, permit and demand. And when the work is completed, at a cost, which will necessarily be in considerable excess of the original appropriation of $20,000, Peterborough will, as its commercial importance deserves, possess, undoubtedly, the best wharfage upon the line of the whole canal.

Mark Street Wharf, East City.

One of the best wharves now on the canal is the fine new wharf that has been constructed in East City side of the lake, at the foot of Mark street. This wharf has an area of 50 x 130 feet, is filled with stone and gravel, will afford of excellent and adequate accommodation for the eastern section of the city, and is in all ways excellent value for the $5,000 expended upon its construction.

Electric Lighting of Lift-Lock.

A very interesting feature of the improvements made upon the canal is the lighting by electricity of the Lift-Lock and other important points on the canal. This work is now under way, and when completed, will confer additional interest upon one of the unique features of canal equipment, and the largest and completest of its kind in the world. Its lighting will be an additional attraction to the visitors to the Lift-Lock from all parts of the world, and its practical value will consist in permitting the lock to be used at night, to the great convenience of steamer navigation. In addition, new houses, of a character becoming to the situation, are in course of erection at present at the Lift-Lock, the night operation of the Lift-Lock making it necessary that the lock masters and their assistants should reside conveniently to it.

Improving River Navigation.

In further improvement of the river in this vicinity, an appropriation has been obtained for the additional dredging of the river below Peterborough, and an additional sum of $3,000 for dredging the river between Peterborough and Lakefield. This is in addition to recent dredging which has resulted in the great improvement of the navigation channel.

Pengelly's Wharf.

The wharf, built at Pengelly's Landing, Rice Lake, is, and will continue to be, a great convenience to a large nmuber or farmers in the vicinity in the way of boarding or leaving steamers and shipping produce and receiving goods that may be brought by steamer down the river. The wharf, with an area of nearly 800 square feet and a 70 foot approach, involved the expenditure of $5,000.

Wharf at Hall's Landing.

At Hall's Landing a few miles east of Pengelly's, a new wharf has been built. With a width of thirty feet, it extends about 60 feet from the shore, furnishing excellent and convenient accommodation for the loading of live stock, grain, etc., etc.

Campbelltown.

A new wharf at Campbelltown, 8 feet by 60 feet, with an approach of 20 feet by 60 feet, has been constructed, at a cost of over $2,000.

Smithson's Landing.

At Smithson's Landing on the Otonabee side, the wharf built some time ago, has been enlarged and improved. It is now 30 feet in length, filled with stone and gravel; this wharf affords excellent accommodation to the farmers of South Monaghan in this vicinity.

Wharf at Whitfield's.

At Whitfield's Landing, on the Otonabee, an excellent new wharf has been built the past winter, to serve the convenience of the neighbouring farmers of South Monaghan. It is filled with stone and gravel and has an area of 25 feet by 60 feet. To the considerable number of farmers using Whitfield's Landing to reach the Peterborough market for produce, the new wharf will be a convenience, filling a long felt want.

Improvements at Lakefield.

Lakefield has had its importance as the point of departure and arrival of Stony Lake travel and traffic recognized by the provision of a system of wharfage, of which the village and those responsible for its construction, may reasonably feel proud. During the recent past, great improvements have been made. The wharfage now consists of between five and six hundred feet of splendid concrete wharf involving with the neat pavilion, for the accommodation of the travelling public, an expenditure of $10,000. The extension of the wharf, so as to permit the debarkation of passengers directly from the Grand Trunk trains to steamers and vice versa, represents a convenience that will be greatly appreciated by the large and increasing number of citizens and tourists, that frequent the Stoney Lake waters.

Lumber and Cement.

A new wharf has been constructed on the river at Lakefield, available for use for the shipment of cement and lumber, with provision for railway connection, when the completion of the canal, or devolpment of traffic, will render this necessary.

Young's Point Improvement.

Young's Point, within the past two or three years, has been greatly improved. The grounds, as becomes the half-way house to the lakes, have been considerably beautified, not the least among the items contributory to this result, being the excellent system of electric lighting that has been installed, and has already proved a great benefit to navigation interests. The work of improvement is still going on, and this year, two entrance piers to the locks will be placed on the east side.

Betterments at Juniper.

Juniper Island can now boast of wharfage accommodation and other facilities not easily surpassed by any other summer resort. The new wharf erected a year ago has been further extended. There is now adequate accommodation for steamers, gasoline launches and canoes, and the excellent new pavilion erected, serves to add completeness to the requirements of the island and the lake.

Mount Julian Wharfage.

A parliamentary appropriation was procured the first part of the present session, for the construction of additional and improved wharfage at Mount Julian. The wharf will be built at the lake end of the concession line, to the facilitation of the landing and embarkation of passengers at this point.

Chemong Wharf.

A substantial wharf has been constructed at Chemong at a cost of $1,000.

Braden's Landing.

An appropriation is available for the construction of a wharf at Braden's Landing to meet the wishes and serve the convenience of the residents in the vineinity of this landing in the Township of Smith, on the shores of Chemong Lake, and the work will be proceeded with at an early date.

Nogie's Creek.

A wharf has been completed at Nogie's Creek at a cost of about $500,00. The fine new dam on Nogie's Creek will serve a double purpose, conserve the water and promote the use of the stream for navigation purposes.

Other Improvements.

An excellent dam has been erected at Swamp Lake, and Union Creek has been cleared of obstructions at considerable cost. This will not only facilitate the passage of water in the spring and tend to prevent the danger of overflow of adjacent lands, but improve the stream for the passage of the products of lumbering operations.

Gannon's Narrows.

An expenditure of $1100 has provided a new wharf at Gannon's Narrows.

Buckhorn Bridge and Dam.

One of the most important improvements on the canal system has been effected at Buckhorn. The expenditure of $75,000 is represented by a splendid new dam and bridge combined. The bridge was erected on top of the dam —concurrently with the later, for the accommodation of vehicular traffic. In consideration of the bridge being thus placed and made available for public use, the County agreed to contribute $3,000, thus saving many times that amount, which a separate and independent bridge of equal stability and serviceability would have cost. I felt that, in the interests of the County, this sum of $3,000 might be remitted; and I was fortunate enough to so represent the matter to the Government in such a light that an arrangement mutually satisfactory to the Government and the County Council was effected, by which the County was relieved of the payment of the $3,000. The County, I think, may consider itself fortunate in securing a bridge by the simple way of utilizing the top of the dam for that purpose. In addition, at this point a new apparatus for operating the locks has been installed, at a cost of $2,500, and a substantial and handsome residence for the lock master has been erected. This year, an appropriation of $4,000 will be expended in the construction of three new entrance piers to the lock. Two of these will be above the lock and one below.

New Dam, Burleigh Falls.

An important work is in progress and in contemplation, in the construction of a new dam at Burleigh Falls, and an expenditure of about $80,000 is in progress. This is a beginning of a large enterprise that will tend to improve navigation, and increase the power development capacity of the dam. The raising of the water will enable Lovesick lock to be ultimately dispensed with ,thus removing the lock, which at present is a necessary impediment to navigation. The total expenditure upon this work will involve a cost of about $300,000.

Works at Bobcaygeon.

In the interests of the water supply of the lake and canal beow Bobcaygeon, in which that place is an important factor, the sum of $15,000, voted for the purpose, will be expended in improvements at this point. The locks will be repaired and made watertight, the old mill flume will be fitted and the general condition and appearance of the place greatly improved.

CONSERVATION OF WATER.

It goes without saying, that the improvements and conveniences mentioned, in whose provision I had a humble share, important and valuable as they are to the interests they are intended to serve, would not be available without an adequate supply of water for navigation and, incidentally, power purposes.

Benefits of Conservation.

I can look with some satisfaction upon something I was fortunate enough in procuring when I had the honour to be Provincial Secretary in the Ontario Government. The transfer of the waters tributary to the Trent Valley System, from the Provincial to the Dominion Government, rendered possible the construction of a system of conservation dams in the north country, thus creating reservoirs, by means of which the flow of the water can be regulated and its volume controlled and conserved. We see the value of this, by contrasting the position of other places with that of Peterborough. Two winters ago, Ottawa, through its water being allowed to run away wastefully in spring freshets, and at other times, without proper control, had a water famine which paralyzed its mills and other industries dependent upon water power; and last winter the low water contributed to the creation of an epidemi cof typhoid, numbering more than a thousand cases. In contrast, Peterborough, thanks to conservation of her waters, had at the same time an adequate supply of water for power and other purposes, not a wheel was idle, not a moment lost from failure in the water supply. During the past few years the flow of the Otonabee has been practically doubled and rendered uniform and constant, to the great advantage of the industrial establishments operated by, or supplying, electrical energy.

Expenditure Justifiable.

The money, a considerable sum, necessarily expended to secure these results, has been money well spent, as will be that to be spent in continuation of the work of creating new reservoirs to store additional supplies of water, and to bring into the water conservation system more of the water of the almost countless lakes that lie in the watershed of the Trent. We hear a good deal sometimes, from the opponents of the Government in the way of complaint of the "wasteful" expenditure of public money in the building of wharves and similar improvements in small places, and to serve small needs. These facilities have been provided throughout the country in much the same way as the facilities I have just mentioned. I do not think that any benefitted by these minor works in Peterborough County and vicinity will say that any money has been wasted in providing the smallest of these conveniences. It is from that point of view that the charge of waste of money on smaller public works in all parts is to be judged.

In the Interests of the People.

As I have mentioned, the money spent is the people's money, and it is but common justice that the people should have the advantages this money spent by the Government, in the way I have just referred to, will, and does, provide.

A small wharf that will accommodate the farmers of a neighbourhood is, as far as their interests are concerned, as important to them as large and costly wharves in Montreal or Toronto are to the commercial and trading interests of those two places.

If the representatives of the people use their influence and efforts to procure the conveniences the people desire, that is what they are sent to Parliament for—to represent the people, to do their business and to see that all sections of the part of the country they represent, even the humblest, receive as far as practicable, the benefits of the expenditure of a due share of the public funds, contributed by the people of Canada, who en masse pay every cent of the immense national revenue—last year 117 1-2 millions.

Rural Mail Delivery.

Another of the conveniences that I consider the due of the people of West Peterborough is free rural mail delivery, and I am glad to say that I was able to impress my views upon the Post Office Department, with some effect. Rural free delivery, the policy of the Government, is arranged to be given as fully and as rapidly as possible, without bearing too heavily upon the revenue of the postal department. In a thinly settled country like Canada, there are only certain more densely populated districts, where rural mail delivery is practicable, and these are the districts where rural mail delivery can be conjoined with daily mail carrying routes.

In West Peterborough there have been established several rural mail delivery routes, that will give daily delivery of mail matter, at the doors of those farmers living convenient to the route, who set up the necessary boxes. The several routes need only to be mentioned to show those acquainted with the geography of the county to what extent the districts are served. There have been established routes as follows:

From Peterborough to Fowler Corners and return.

About half of North Monaghan has been covered.

There is a route, one of the first opened, from Peterborough to Ennismore and return.

Another route extends northward from Lakefield to Lakehurst, and return.

And in the Township of Smith, in the Eastern part of the Township south of the Ninth Concession, there have been established routes covering twenty-seven miles.

These routes will give those along them, even at many points distant from railways, the advantages in regard to the receipt of mail matter not enjoyed by cities and towns which have not free postal delivery.

The Session.

As to the work of the Session, it is rather an uncertain matter to deal with —it is not the past Session, for the Session is not over; it is not the present Session for there is an adjournment to July 15th. It may be remembered that the general feature of the Session, was the development on the part of the Conservative Opposition of a policy of obstruction, with the evident view of forcing a dissolution and a general election, on the reciprocity issue. The Opposition may justify to themselves this policy, but it would, in large part, defeat the object for which they claim an expression of opinion on reciprocity by the people.

This expression of popular opinion, taken before the distribution of seats, that follows every decennial census, would not be fair, because it would not a full expression of the popular will. The great increase of population in the West will give that part of the Dominion from ten to fifteen new seats in the next Parliament elected after the census. To this extent an election held on the old lists will disfranchise a large portion of the West, and deprive it of a voice in the next Parliament.

Unfair and Unmanly.

This policy has two grave faults: it is unfair and unmanly; it is, in sporting language, a blow below the belt. And it is very like cowardice on the part of a great party, that dares not trust its cause to a full vote of the electors. The Opposition demands an appeal to the people on the reciprocity issue. The Northwest is known to be overwhelmingly in favour of an enlarged market; and, according to the Conservative policy, a large section of the very people who have the greatest interest in the question are to be throttled, and their voice unheard.

Forcing an Election.

It may be asked how a party in a minority, with about fifty fewer members in the House, can force an election. In Parliamentary language, "supply" is the money voted by Parliament for carrying on the business of the country. When the House is in committee of supply or committee of the Whole, there is no limit to the amount of talking and time wasting, that may be practised.

So that half a dozen determined members may indefinitely stave off a vote of the necessary money to carry on public business in defiance, if need be, of the will of the other two hundred and ten members of the House. Thus business would be impossible; there would be no money to carry on the public service, and dissolution would follow, and the country would be prematurely, thrown into the turmoil of a general election. The present Parliament was elected in November, 1908, and in the regular order of things there would be no general election till 1913.

No Mandate Argument.

One of the objections of the obstructionists is that Parliament has "no mandate" from the people to adopt reciprocity.

The Conservative party in 1890, passed the Canadian Pacific bargain without consulting the people. This bargain, after only six weeks' discussion, was passed, by which Canada gave a grant of 25 million dollars—three millions more than the total revenue of that year, 23 million —and 25 million acres of land, and completed railway to the value of 28 millions. This legislation, imposing burdens on the people of a very grave character, in view of its wealth, at the time, was passed without an appeal to the people. Remember, I do not condemn the building of the C. P. R. It has been a great factor in national development. Parliament was within its powers in making the bargain; it had the right to do it; it was elected to do the business of the country.

Parliament Responsible.

Kryptok Lenses
The Only Perfect 2-Vision Lenses

Kryptok Lenses embody two pieces of glass, of different refraction, coalenced with intense heat into one, and ground into a lens having two distinct focal points.

There is no cement—no clouding of vision—no edges to catch dust or to become cracked and jagged in cleaning. Kryptok lenses last indefinitely, barring accidental breakage. A pasted lens may separate at any time and become useless.

Read through the lower part of Kryptoks (near vision)
Look through the upper part of Kryptoks (far vision)
Kryptok lenses are absolutely smooth on BOTH sides.

Try the Candle Test—If the reading wafer of your glasses separates from the lens when subjected to gentle heat, your glasses are not Kryptoks, The Optical fits genuine Kryptoks.

I made a resolve then that I would make it possible to replace a broken lens, however complicated its formula, the same day the order was left with me.

I have succeeded even better than I hoped, for now we are able to replace any broken lens, even where you do not give us the prescription, in from one to three hours, with an exact duplicate (made in our own shop.

Is this worth anything to you? If so, remember this advertisement the next time you break a lens.

This is only one example of the thoroughness and modernness of our Optical Business.

P. R. bargain was Parliament, elected by and representing the people. The proper body to deal with the reciprocity agreement is Parliament, elected by and representing the people, to do their business for five years, which, has two years to run. If there was no need—and there was none, and there was no reference,—to refer to the people the C. P. R. bargain, that imposed a heavy burden of taxation on the people, then there is no need to refer to the people a trade agreement, which does not give away the lands or money of the people, nor impose any taxation: but gives them new markets, removes restriction of trade, and allows them to buy and sell food where they choose. The reciprocity agreement was before Parliament as many months as the C. P. R. agreement was weeks, almost, before Parliament, and will be before them again. Yet we must have Parliament ignore its duty and shift upon the people the work of deciding upon it.

Reciprocity the Liberal Policy.

If Mr. Borden and his parliamentary followers, or a few of them, have decided upon a policy of obstruction, carried to the point of forcing dissolution and an election they may, to that extent, succeed. But no threats of obstructive tactics will influence the Government to recede from the position it has taken upon the reciprocity agreement. The Government negotiated it in the public interests, in the interests of the whole country generally, and the most important element of the people—the farming community. The Government firmly believes that enlarged and unfettered opportunities of trade, of access to our nearest market, will be for the benefit of the agricultural industry and through its increased prosperity, to the country at large. If the Opposition, by obstruction, prevent the bringing of the agreement to a vote; if they block supply and force dissolution, they may prevent the adoption of the agreement by this Parliament. But it will be adopted by the Parliament that will be forced upon the country through a premature general election. Of this election the Liberal Government will not be afraid. Reciprocity is a popular slogan to appeal to a country whose prime interest is overwhelmingly agricultural.

Progress Under Liberal Rule.

The Liberal Government is a Government of progress, and the progress of Canada has been in keeping with this character. When we wish to correctly appraise the standing and condition of a country, we look to the record of its trade and its revenue, the reflection, respectively, of enterprise and prosperity, and comparison with Conservative administrative results will, in these regards emphasize the successful character of Liberal administration.

Nothing to Gain.

And by this standard of judgment and record of results, the country will see that it has nothing to gain, but much to lose by substituting a live Government, animated by the spirit of progress, and with a splendid record to its credit, for a Government by a party with, to speak moderately, opposite, as well as opposition characteristics—especially the present Opposition, with no higher ideal than attainment of office by means of a negative policy. The Liberal Government has been in power fourteen years, and a fair comparison will be made by using 14-year periods.

In 1883, under Conservative rule, the total trade of Canada, imports and exports, was $230,339,826.

After fourteen years of administration, in 1896, when the Conservatives retired from office, Canada's total trade was $239,025,360, or a gain of nine millions, in fourteen years—or at the rate of $643,000 a year.

When the Liberal Government took power fourteen years ago the total trade of Canada was (in 1897) $249,244,274. Fourteen years later, in 1911, Canada's total trade was $759,094,349, of an increase of $509,849,916, in fourteen years—or at the rate of $35,641,785 per year.

Liberal Growth of Trade.

The increase of trade in the fourteen-year Liberal period was over five and a half times greater than in the Conservative period. During the period of Liberal rule, Canada's trade with Great Britain increased, in round numbers, from 98 millions to 274 millions. In the corresponding period, under Conservative rule, the trade of Canada increased from 91 millions ot 95 millions, a difference of increase in favour of Liberal rule of 230 millions. Under Conservative rule Canada's trade with the United States fell from 94 millions to 91 millions, in fourteen years. Under Liberal rule, Canada's trade with the United States in fourteen years increased from 100 millions to 321 millions.

If, in the face of a hostile tariff the trade of Canada with the United States increased three-fold under Liberal administration, what will that trade become under a reciprocal arrangement that makes the bulk of our exports—agricultural products—free? These few figures show that during the period of Liberal rule, Canada's trade with the world has been more than double that during the same years of Conservative rule, and similar results have followed in our trade with Great Britain and the United States.

Thus has the tariff pledge and policy of the Liberal Government been fulfilled and carried out, a policy that Sir Charles Tupper, the greatest living Canadian statesman, declared, fourteen years ago, would be the ruin of Canada. So much for one of the two chief items that indicate good government, and the encouraged spirit of enterprise, namely activity and growth of trade.

Prosperity of the People.

The other indication of popular prosperity, is revenue results. In 1882, fourteen years previous to the last year of Conservative rule, the revenue, the measure of the purchasing power of the people and of their prosperity, was 35 millions of dollars which grew in fourteen years to 36 millions, an increase of a trifle over $70,000 a year.

In the first year of Liberal rule, 1897, the year of the Fielding tariff, the revenue was 37 millions. Under fourteen years of this tariff—with a considerably lessened rate of duty—the revenue of the Dominion has advanced to the magnificent figure of 117 and a half millions of dollars, an average increase of $5,700,000 a year, or 80 times greater than the revenue increase in 14 years of Conservative rule.

Are not these eloquent figures in telling the story of progress under Liberal rule?

They show in abstract form the wonderful growth of the country under wise, bold, aggressive, large-spirited and hopeful administration.

They show—and they are only a part of what recorded figures will show—that the Liberal Government, since assuming office in 1896, has successfully applied five chief points of policy:

To do everything possible to promote the prosperity and welfare of the whole people;

To administer the affairs of Canada economically, and to collect revenue fairly and equitably, but not unduly;

To develop the great resources of the country on sound principles, and towards that end to promote immigration and to provide transportation facilities;

To secure peaceful and harmonious relations between the various elements of the Canadian population;

To heighten Canada's justification for self respect, to better her standing in the eyes of the world, and, most important of all:

To strengthen and confirm the ties of affection, loyalty and interest that bind us to Britain and the Empire.

In a word the Liberal Government has made a far different Canada from what they found it in 1896, the time when the administration of its affairs passed into their hands.

Difficult to Convince.

And the Conservative party, especially as at present constituted, in personnel, leadership and spirit, will have some difficulty, in face of their past record of achievement, especially as contrasted with that of the Liberal Government, in convincing the people that it is to their interest to replace Sir Wilfrid Laurier by Mr R. L. Borden. Mr. Borden is touring the great Canadian West to ask the people—except those he is aiming to do out of a vote—to overturn a Government, which has left its impress on the West in a manner that Mr. Borden will find disconcerting, and which he cannot charm away by any spell of eloquence, charm he never so wisely. As has been pointed out, Mr. Borden, in his present tour in the West, will visit large and prosperous towns and districts where there was no population at all in 1896.

He will be driven through miles and miles of farms in places where before 1896 only the gophers worked the land.

He will travel far over the Canadian Pacific main line, now running through a populous country, where just prior to 1896 the Company was ineffectively begging settlers to stay on their farms

He will travel from Regina to Prince Albert, through a country that before 1896 was condemned as a desert, and where now are the finest farm houses and barns in the whole Northwest.

He will ride over four or five lines of railway paralleling the main line of the Canadian Pacific, each after the other, carrying farther and farther northward the vanguard of population and agricultural production.

He will find places that were struggling hamlets before 1896 turned into handsome cities, with paved streets, and with signs everywhere of prosperity, of wealth, of comfort.

In a land which before 1896 cried out for farmers, he will find farmers organized in legions, filled with enthusiasm for the country they work in and eagerly supporting plans of their own for its development, including reciprocity.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then leader of the Liberal Opposition, went through the West in 1894, the difficulty was to find the farmer. When Mr. Borden went there in the same role, in 1911, his difficulty was and is to keep out of the way of the farmer. The change that has come over the face of the West, as Mr. Borden will see it, is a change that has come in varying degrees over every province of the Dominion under Liberal rule.

"Let Well Enough Alone".

The cry of the opponents of reciprocity is "Let well enough alone". They say that we are doing well enough now—fenced out by a high tariff from our geographically natural market, a marget of 92 millions. They say that we don't need to do a larger and more profitable trade, therefore, we don't need reciprocity. If they believe in that policy of let well enough alone, let them apply it to the Liberal Government. We are doing so well under a Liberal Government, have done so well under a Liberal Government, that the people will be inclined to retain servants that have served them well, and decline to exchange them for a Government by a party and policy of stagnation, that wants to let well enough alone, to sit idly resting as the world procession of progress sweeps by us. The people of Canada do not want such a policy or anything akin to such a policy. They are not built that way.

The Conservative party, as now led, is enough of a stumbling block in the way of legislation, through their parliamentary obstruction. The people don't want them as a stumbling block, in the way of national progress.

As remarked, the work of the Session does not bulk very largely. The business that might have been done was largely prevented by the obstruction of the Opposition and by the time devoted to the discussion or talk on the tariff agreement.

The Greatest Budget.

One outstanding feature of the Session was the budget brought down on April 4th by Hon. W. S. Fielding, Finance Minister. This budget had several unique features. The budget speech was, perhaps, the shortest in words, ever uttered in a Canadian Parliament, occupying only forty minutes in delivery. It was the biggest in declaration of revenue, announcing a total national income of 117½ millions of dollars. This permitted the unprecedented achievement of paying out of revenue the total capital expenditure of the year, except three million dollars. It provided the greatest surplus ever recorded in Canada—30½ million dollars, a surplus only a few millions dollars less than the highest total revenue for a full year under Conservative rule and a million dollars more than the total yearly revenue of Canada thirty years ago, which was twenty-nine millions. The debate following the budget was the shortest on record Hon. George E. Foster, the financial expert of the Conservative party, made a few pathetically perfunctory criticisms, the motion to go into Supply was carried and the budget debate, which often consumed weeks on former occasions, was ended.

Keep Good Government.

Now we are asked to dismiss a Government that can, at the end of fourteen years, bring down a budget like that—that shows a three-fold gain of revenue in fourteen years—that can show an unbroken procession of surpluses for thirteen years, totalling 136 million dollars, and offset by only one deficit of $500,000, the first year of Liberal rule—an aftermath of the long array of deficits under Conservative administration—a Government that can show a record at the end of fourteen years of an increase of total trade of 82 millions of dollars over the previous year. I could amplify these contrasts to a great extent, if time permitted. But I have submitted enough to show that the Liberal Government of the Dominion has by virtue of what it has done, by virtue of its progressive policy and programme of national development, by virtue of its policy of promoting the welfare of the people, by catering to the energetic and enterprising spirit of the people, by providing the means of extensive development of their trade and consequently of their prosperity—that this Government deserves practical consideration at the hands of the electors, when the question of selecting trustees, for the management of the growing business of this great and growing Dominion, comes before them.

The Reciprocity Agreement.

One of the most, if not the most important, of the matters introduced into Parliament this Session was the Reciprocity Agreement between Canada and the United States—a proposal for enlarged and facilitated trade intercourse between the two countries. Last year the Government settled on terms, favourable to Canada, a tariff question with the United States, which threatened a tariff war This friendly settlement resulted in a more amicable attitude of the United States. At that time the Government of Canada announced their intention of negotiating a reciprocity treaty with the United States and the Conservatives concurred, offering not the slightest objection. Later it was referred to in the speech from the Throne and nobody took alarm, as some pretend to be alarmed now. The Conservative party in Parliament at that time showed no opposition ,they only feared that the Liberals would not succeed in obtaining reciprocity

The Reciprocity Agreement, submitted to the House on June 26th, provided for the free exchange of a large list of articles, chiefly what are called natural products.

First Favour to Farmers.

The removal of duties by this agreement from a large list of soil products, makes at the first important tariff measure proposed by a Canadian Government, purely for the benefit of the great mass of the Canadian people, the farmers and consumers.

It involves a specific consideration for the interests of the farming community that they have never before received since Confederation. The manufacturing interests and the city people have had the lion's share of legislation for the benefit of their peculiar interests; the farmer's benefit was only incidental. But under this Reciprocity agreement, while the interests of the agricultural and producing classes will be promoted the manufacturers and the mechanics will not be injured, but incidentally helped.

You are all doubtless awart that the agreement provides for the entire removal of duties from a rather large list of natural products of both countries. These include live stock, grains, fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, dried fruits, dairy products, eggs, fish salt, lumber, certain minerals, cream separators, and a small list of manufactured articles. The agreement covers another list of articles to be exchanged at a reduced rate of duty These include fresh meats, bacon, and hams, tinned meats and vegetables, a large number of agriculutral implements, etc., etc. Another list contains articles to be admitted to and from both countries at a special rate of duty, the same for both. There have been both entire removal of duty and reduction of duty upon a large list of articles. And the United States have yielded most, for their tariff being much higher, rendered greater reductions necessary to equalize them with the reductions made by Canada.

Agreement Will Benefit.

This is generally the agreement that is causing such an interest in Parliament and the country.

The Government believes, and I believe, that the adoption of the agreement will be for the benefit of the whole of Canada. There are others who think otherwise, and these "others" are largely confined to the Conservative party in Parliament, and the special "interests" centred chiefly in the cities. It is difficult to understand why, of a sudden, the Conservative leaders—for very many Conservatives favour it—are now antagonizing the concrete application of a policy for which both great parties have been striving, for half a century, even as far back as 1818, before Canada was Canada. To do the Conservative party justice they have tried harder to get reciprocity with the United States than the Liberals have done. The Conservatives in 1880, embodied in our statues a standing offer of reciprocity with the United States. In 1886 it was confirmed by new legislation. In 1887 both the Canadian and British Governments were doing all they could to secure reciprocity with the United States. In 1888 Sir Charles Tupper went to Washington to try to secure reciprocity. In 1891 another Conservative delegate went to Washington. And also in 1891 Sir John Macdonald fought out the general elections with reciprocity as an issue. In 1891 Sir John Thompson, a member of Sir John's Government, in his address to the electors, said that the Government was appealing to the country on a policy of reciprocity by which the hoped that the United States would be opened to the products which our people most desire to send there. Products which our people most desire to send there;" that is the very essence of the present reciprocity agreement which opens up a free market of 90 millions to the Canadian products, "which we most desire to send there." To show how anxious and industrious the Conservatives were an their search for reciprocity, the Mail and Empire at the close of the Conservative regime, in 1896, proudly boasted that "of the ten offers of reciprocity Canada had made to the United States, nine had been made by Conservatives."

When the Liberals came into power, in 1896, they made overtures to the United States in regard to reciprocity, but received so little encouragment that Sir Wilfrid declared that he was done with offers of reciprocity; if the United States wanted to discuss reciprocity they must make the first advance. And the United States did re-open the question. President Taft, who, by some peculiar United States law, cannot, while he is President, leave the country, invited Hon. Wm. Fielding to an informal conference at Albany, and the result was that two United States delegates came to Ottawa, and discussed Reciprocity with the Canadian Government. They laid the foundation for the larger discussion at Washington, where this pending reciprocity agreement was formulated. It was a surprise to many to see the United States thus come out of its shell; but not a greater surprise than to see the many concessions Uncle Sam made to secure a reciprocity arrangement with Canada.

The Foundation of Growth.

I wish to submit briefly a few reasons why I am in favour of the agreement now before Parliament. The expansion of trade is what the country needs to help its advancement, it is its foundation of growth In the interests of trade expansion Canada has spent more money than any country of its population and resources. We have spent on transportation—the machinery of trade—a hundred millions in Canals—a hundred millions on railways, and other millions in steamship subsidies, to enlarge our trade. In the proposed reciprocity agreement, we have a means offered for an immense expansion of trade, to the immense benefit of the people, without spending a dollar. We have a market of 90 millions of people thrown open to the most valuable products of the country, the products of the soil, grains, forests, and minerals. Next to the production of crops or other articles, the important thing is to find a market, the better and more accessible, the better. We have the home market, the British market and now we have offered to us the United States market, equal in consuming capacity to both. And the question is: shall we avail ourselves of this market, or refuse it?

Is There Any Disadvantage?

Is there any attendant, or consequent disadvantage in adopting the pending reciprocity agreement? My attitude, and I think the attitude of all who sincerely desire the benefit of Canada—the greatest good to the greatest number — is easily defined. I would not be in favour of anything that would interfere with the industrial interests of the country. I would not be in favour of any trade arrangement that would involve the sacrifice, or interfere with the conservation, of our pulp-wood timber, and other natural resources. Any agreement, or pact, that would contravene these considerations, would have my determined opposition. I have studied the agreement with an open mind, ready to see its defects, as well as its merits. I am not a free trader; neither am I an out-and-out protectionist; I am what may be called a modified protectionist. I consider the fairest fiscal policy the one that deals fairly with all of the great classes that compose our productive population—the farmer, the manufacturer, the employee, and the capitalist. Capital must be respected; the employee must have his rights and interests taken into account and the consumer must be considered.

Will Conduce to Prosperity?

I believe that in the adoption of the proposed agreement, these several interests will not only be improved but benefitted. First, the farmer who, as I have intimated, has never yet had any specific tariff legislation enacted in his interests, has prime consideration in this agreement, and if the farmer is benefitted, incidentally and necessarily all other classes of the community share the advantages. Who takes greater interest in the crop outlook than the capitalists and bankers—a class generally regarded as quite distinct, if not far removed, from the farmer? From this time on we shall see the commercial columns of the daily papers and the financial journals, teeming with crop reports, speculation, and guesses as to the outcome of the Northwest wheat crop and the other crops of the Dominion. Why? Because upon the prosperity of the farm as represented by a good crop is based the forecast of satisfactory financial conditions. Therefore, anything that can conduce to the increase of the farmer's prosperity necessarily involves or affects the prosperity of all classes of the community. The agreement, as I have pointed out, provides for reciprocity—free mutual exchange—of natural products—the products of the soil—with the United States.

Value of the New Market.

This means a new and enlarged market, a convenient market for the products of the farm, the mine, the forest and the fisheries, the orchard, the fruit garden, and the dairy. We now have the home market. But Canada, with its population of less than eight millions cannot consume half of what we are capable of producing; it would be as reasonable to expect a farmer's family to consume all that a well-tilled farm would produce. We have the British market, that is our natural market, politically, but it is 3,000 miles away. Trade is a good deal like corporations, soulless, or like water, that takes the easiest way to find its natural level. For years, the British market has been wide open—free to all the products of Canada. The United States market has been barricaded to Canada, by a high tariff wall. Yet, in the past twenty years, in spite of the barrier, the total trade with the hampered market has been larger than with the free—the family market, Great Britain. The following are the figures of the trade for twenty years.

	Exports to United States	Great Britain
1891	40,194,568	49,280,558
1901	59,962,905	105,320,556
1910	110,614,327	149,630,488
	Imports from United States	Great Britain
1891	57,904,030	42,048,343
1901	109,208,353	42,966,128
1910	233,071,155	95,666,004
	Total trade, including Bullion— United States	Great Britain
1891	100,784,905	91,357,784
1901	185,595,577	148,498,253
1910	351,221,327	245,313,984

It is thus seen that in spite of tariff obstacles, our trade with the United States has been larger than with Great Britain, and has grown much more rapidly. Trade has followed the natural channel, geographically, though this channel has been dammed with tariff obstructions.

Still that twenty years has seen the absolute and complete disappearance of any slight feeling in Canada favourable to United States political institutions.

And in that twenty years the tie of affection and political unity between Canada and Great Britain has grown stronger as our trade has grown comparatively less than with the United States. This shows that filthy lucre is not the only measure of loyalty, something to be recalled when considering the absurd claim that reciprocity will lead to annexation.

A Little History.

Before dealing further with the probable beneficial effects of reciprocity, a little historical evidence may be presented. The beneficial effects of the reciprocity treaty of 1854-66, and the deplorable trade results from its abolition, may be referred to. Lord Elgin, then Governor-General of Canada, secured the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854. This treaty was practically in all forms with the present agreement, in that it provided for free interchange of natural products, fish, included, and its general scope corresponded closely with the pending agreement of 1911. It was abrogated in 1866 by the United States really because of the difference of the two countries over the Civil War.

We have excellent Conservative authority that this treaty was a great boon to Canadian trade and commerce. When abrogation of the treaty was threatened the Canadian Government of the day (Conservative, with Sir John, then plain John A. Macdonald at its head), entreated the British Government to leave no measures untried "to avert what would be regarded by the Canadian people as a great calamity.

The report, regarding reciprocity abrogation—the appeal to the British government to retain reciprocity—drawn by Sir John A Macdonald, or with his approval, went on to say:

"It would be impossible to express "in figures, with any approach to "accuracy, the extent to which the "facilities of commercial intercourse "created by the reciprocity treaty "have contributed to the wealth and "prosperity of this province (Canada was only a "province" then), "and it would be difficult to exaggerate the importance which the "people of Canada attach to the "continued enjoyment of these facilities."

If freer trade in natural products, when the "province of Canada" was small, its trade comparatively trifling and its resources little developed, was so great a boon and its loss so great a calamity; then, when Canada's resources are greater, its trade a hundred fold more important, when her political situation is more assured and self-contained, with freer trade be less beneficial or hampered trade less injurious?

Many Demands.

While the pending trade agreement is generally in the interests of the country, it does not meet all demands. Some farming interests have not had their full demands met by it. But in a general measure, it is impossible to cover every requirement. What affects one section favourably, may be to the disadvantage or the lesser advantage of another. The deputation of Northwest farmers that visited Ottawa in strong force, demanded the removal of the duty from agricultural implements and the advance of the British Preference — demands, practically equivalent to free trade. There seems to be some selfishness in these demands. The farmers of the Northwest seemed to forget that the working men and the manufacturers also have rights. Ontario, a manufacturing Province, has contributed in men and money to the development of the West, and now an almost complete removal or reasonable protection, in some regards, for the manufacturer and the working man, is demanded in the form of 50 per cent. advance in the British Preference. I do not favour this. The British Preference is hard enough on our manufacturers now. To double it is to practically throw Canadian manufacturing industry open to the formidable competition of the British manufacturer. This would not be in the interests of of either manufacturer or working man in Canada.

The agreement has been drawn to reasonably meet the wishes and promote and conserve the interests of both, East and West. Unreasonable demands on the part of either the industrial interests of the East or the farming interests of the West, are hostile to the harmony of the Dominion.

Manufacturers Not Affected.

We had also at Ottawa a deputation of manufacturers—a visit which had little reason for its coming. What have the manufacturers to be alarmed at? There is no occasion for alarm. The reciprocity agreement affects manufactured products very slightly. There is a reduction of 2 1-2 per cent. on agricultural implements, and of 5 1-2 on cement. There is little ground for complaint on the part of the manufacturers of these articles. A protective duty is designed to protect from destructive outside competition. Early in the Session a Conservative member from the West, introduced a resolution calling for the abolition of the duty on agricultural implements. This was evidentally a political dodge, for the resolution has hung fire since last November and has not been brought forward.

Sir Wilfrid's Assurance.

It is a human impossibility to frame a tariff that will meet the needs of every interest, that will not quite beneficially affect some industry. But this reciprocity agreement only slightly affects manufactured products and that is one reason why I am in favour of it. The Canadian negotiators of the agreement had this in mind when they went to Washington. President Taft wanted to include in the discussion, reciprocity, in manufactured products. But Mr. Fielding flatly refused. He told the United States that Canada would meet them half way in natural products, but not in manufactured goods. He realized that United States' manufacturers had more highly specialized systems and could produce at a smaller cost than some Canadian manufacturers. And he refused to consider for a moment general reciprocity in manufactured products. Manufacturers have nothing to fear from reciprocity and the general tariff policy of the Liberal Government. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has explicitly stated: "We have got hurt the manufacturer and will not hurt him." And speaking at Montreal, Mr. Fielding reassured the manufacturers. He said:

"We are ready to stand by the "manufacturers whenever he has a "fair case. We have always tried "to be frank and fair with the manufacturer and they should still trust us. We have cared for your "interests in the past and we shall "continue to care for them in the "future. There is no politics in tariff and industrial questions."

This assurance as well as the facts themselves, discredit the cry that the reciprocity agreement will ruin our manufacturing industries.

The manufactured articles admitted into Canada under the agreement are so few and unimportant that they can have no appreciable effect on any of our industries.

Free Exchange No Injury.

Then how will the free exchange of the products of our farms, fisheries and forests, so far as the latter are free, affect other industries that are not touched by the tariff changes involved in the reciprocity agreement? The agitators and opponents of the agreement, have read into it a great deal that it does not contain. To be more specific, one might inquire how reciprocity, as proposed, will injure the working man or the manufacturer? How will the free interchange of potatoes, turnips and cabbages, injure the Canadian General Electric Company? The reduced or modified tariff does not affect any of its output, but a stiff tariff will, and might easily, affect them adversely. How can the free exchange of farm products interfere with the William Hamilton Company, in the production of turbines and saw mill machinery? Will not free lumber and timber stimulate the lumber business and create increased demand for our mill machinery, especially in view of the fact that sixty five per cent. of our lumber is exported?

Will Not Affect Local Industries.

How will a wider market, adding to the farmer's prosperity injure the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, unless by increased capacity for the purchase of its products? How will the four Canoe Companies of Peterborough suffer from the free exchange of plums or potatoes or by the reduction of the United States' duties on canoes from 35 to 22 1-2 per cent. or the reduction of the Canadian duty from 25 to 22 1-2 per cent.? With skilled employees, trained in the home of the canoe, with cheaper and more accessible raw material, cannot our canoe builders successfully compete with their opponents in the United States on better terms, especially when their export trade will be helped by a reduction of 12 1-2 per cent., to a larger market and greatly increased business. How will the Colonial Weaving Company do anything but gain by the increased prosperity that will improve the demand for their products—labels for clothing, boots and shoes and other goods. How will the Brinton Carpet Company be injured by increased prosperity, through larger trade, furnishing a better home market? How will the Rapid Tool Company suffer from cheaper raw material, cheaper coal and a more active home market? How will knocking off 40 cents a bushel on onions or two cents on a head of cabbage, affect the prosperity of the Lundy Shovel & Tool Company, or decrease the wages of its employees? Will the Brewery suffer? It may do so to some extent. Free barley may lead to increased prices, but compensation will come from the Brewery's standpoint by a better market and prices, giving the farmer more money to exchange for its finished products. The Lubricator Company is in no way affected prejudically. The Quaker Oats Company and the Matthews Company claim to be adversely affected, and at first sight this seems reasonable.

Forebodings Not Justified.

But there may be compensating advantages and forebodings of disaster are not always justified. Prophesiers of evil often make mistakes. When the Fileding, Liberal tariff was introduced in 1897, Sir Charles Tupper, from his place in the House, foretold the ruin of the manufacturing industries; they were "paralyzed" in advance and there "rose the wail, the sorrowful wail" of ruined manufacturers, and he "deplored the ruin" that would fall upon the industries of Canfound to deny, that under this tariff Yet we all know, and no one will be found to deny, that under the tariff the industries of Canada have prospered as they never prospered before. Sir Charles' doleful forecasts have been splendidly discredited, and even Mr. Sifton, who opposes the reciprocity agreement, admits, and even asserts, that is the "best fiscal policy the Dominion ever had." Is this not a probability that the prophets of evil in respect of reciprocity will be similarly mistaken? Is there not a probability that even the rare few of industries that fear they will be injuriously affected, may, be happily mistaken?

Give It a Trial.

Is it not wise, then, having in view the splendid working of the old Reciprocity treaty and the promise of the present agreement, to enlarge our markets and increase our prosperity, to accept it as a good thing? Would it not be wise to take the advice of Mr. Harry Corby, Conservative ex-M.P., "Give the agreement a trial?"

This is good advice. This agreement embodies a policy for which both parties have been working since Confederation. Then why are Conservatives—some Conservatives (the politicians) and others opposing it? Is it from conviction or desire to make party capital? Now, I am a pretty strong party man, and would not complain at party tactics, so long as they did not interfere with the interests of the country. But when party tactics antagonize national interests, it seems to be carrying the thing too far. As I have shown, both parties have been striving for reciprocity the past nearly fifty years. Even a year ago the Conservative party did not oppose reciprocity—when Mr. Fielding told them that the Government proposed, in answer to overtures of the United States, to obtain reciprocity But the moment a trade agreement was announced, as soon as they could find excuses for it, the Conservative politicians—not the Conservative party as a whole, but the leaders—ranged themselves against it. Now, what is the bulk of the opposition to the reciprocity agreement? It does not come from the farming community, because the agreement is designed to promote their interests.

And there is no doubt that freer trade, enlarged markets — more convenience markets—for the products of the farm, will immensely benefit the farmer.

The farmers have good reason to distrust the friend that pretends to oppose reciprocity, because it will injure the farmers.

Opposition Not Justifiable.

The opposition is not based on a discussion of the subject on its merits. The agitation is designed to confuse, misguide and mislead the masses. As a Western newspaper says, the agitation has been "nursed, stage-managed, advertised and financed." The special interests are interests that will not be affected directly—and then not injuriously, by reciprocity—the manufacturing and the financial interests. For exactly the span of a generation—since 1878—the manufacuring interests have had the benefits of a very reasonable and liberal degree of protection, by tariff, and it passes understanding that they should be up in arms against a tariff arrangement in the form of a reciprocity agreement that for the first time in nearly sixty years, practically recognizes the farmers' claims to consideration. If reciprocity was the terrible thing this organized Opposition asserts, would not the farmers be against it to a man?

Every device is employed to mislead and frighten the farmer.

Farmers Benefitted.

They tell the Canadian farmer that he can't compete with the farmers of the United States. Will any Canadian farmer say that he is not as wide-awake, as shrewd, as intelligent, as a United States' farmer? We all know that Canada, owing to the longer daylight in the West, grows the best wheat in the world. We know that Canadian apples are better than United States' apples—the farther north apples will ripen the better the quality, and the same applies to small fruits. A Niagara district fruit farmer says, that when the United States' strawberries are selling at 6c. and 7c. per quart, "he can take his Canadian berries into the market and sell them right alongside of their" at 15c., and the same holds good of peaches and raspberries, etc. We know that when Canadian small fruits come in, the earlier fruits from the United States become a drug on our market, and ours are so superior in quality that they are in demand in the United States' cities. An United States' trade journal a couple of months ago contained a statement of "one of the largest handlers of fruit farm produce in the United States." Speaking in the interests of the United States' farmers and of the competition of Canadian farm products, the article thus compares the respective farm products. It says:

"Potatoes—New Brunswick (Canada) can grow double the crop of New York State.

"Cabbage—Can be grown in Ontario double the weight per acre in New York State.

"Apples, (fresh) — She (Canada) grows better apples than America.

"Oats—Prince Edward Island and other parts of Canada grow double the crop per acre to what is grown in many parts of America.

"Sheep and Lambs — Everbody knows Canada's sheep are larger."

Here is an authority that handles, in a commercial way, the products of bot hcountries and knows what he is talking about. And we know that what he says is correct, and that the superiority of Canadian produce applies to other things. We all know that Canada, especially along the lake front, and in Central Ontario, grows the best malting barley on the continent, and that when it was admitted to the United States under the old reciprocity treaty it commanded the highest price. Who will say that Canadian farmers cannot compete with their Yankee brother farmers? What is the game of the new friends of the farmer? Why are interests that are not injured by reciprocity so anxious to defeat it? Why are they spending thousands of dollars in fighting reciprocity? They only pretend to sympathize with the farmer and pretend to be sorry for him. These "interests" have never shown any anxiety for the farmer before, and they are now trying to hoodwink him into helping play their game. The real farmers, the bone and sinew, are in favour of reciprocity on account of the larger market and better prices it opens to them.

No Crop Producing Interest Hurt.

There is no ground for the fear that it will injure any crop-producing interest in Canada. There was a deputation of fruit growers went to Ottawa, one of the most unreasonable of all the deputations, that went to protest against the agreement. We all know about the early fruits sent in here from the United States—sent in at a time when Canadian fruit growers have nothing to sell or consumers nothing to buy. The Canadian duty of 2c. per pound being removed, the price will be lessened and a man of moderate means can afford a luxury now only enjoyed by the rich. But the moment home fruits come into the market, there is no sale for imported fruit. Fruit is an article that needs quick handling — it speedily spoils. For most of our fruit we have now only the Toronto and Montreal markets. And these are soon glutted. Who that has visited Toronto in the fruit season, has not seen fruit rotting on the wharves for lack of purchasers and dealers willing to take any price to get rid of it? With the United States' duty of 25c. a bushel on peaches and pears removed—with the tax of 25c. per cubic foot on boxes or crates of grapes, removed, it would pay to ship these to the United States' market. With our modern rapid transportation and cold storage, berries and pears and peaches and grapes can be gathered in the evening in Canada and put in good condition on the markets of Buffalo, Boston, New York or Rochester, the next morning, where the demand is unlimited and the native United States supply inadequate to meet the demand, and with brisk demand comes good prices. Niagara fruit farmers who have been marketing in the United States for twenty years, say they never saw peaches as cheap as they are in Canada. With the duty of 25c per bushel, prices are 25 per cent better in the United States. In the United States' cities near the border, raspberries sell for 8c. or 10c per quart but Canadian accessible, the better. We have the home market, the British market and now we have offered to us the United States market, equal in consuming capacity to both. And the question is: shall we avail ourselves of this market, or refuse it?

Is There Any Disadvantage?

Is there any attendant, or consequent disadvantage in adopting the pending reciprocity agreement? My attitude, and I think the attitude of all who sincerely desire the benefit of Canada—the greatest good to the greatest number — is easily defined. I would not be in favour of anything that would interfere with the industrial interests of the country. I would not be in favour of any trade arrangement that would involve the sacrifice, or interfere with the conservation, of our pulp-wood timber, and other natural resources. Any agreement, or pact, that would contravene these considerations, would have my determined opposition. I have studied the agreement with an open mind, ready to see its defects, as well as its merits. I am not a free trader; neither am I an out-and-out protectionist; I am what may be called a modified protectionist. I consider the fairest fiscal policy the one that deals fairly with all of the great classes that compose our productive population—the farmer, the manufacturer, the employee, and the capitalist. Capital must be respected; the employee must have his rights and interests taken into account and the consumer must be considered.

Will Conduce to Prosperity?

I believe that in the adoption of the proposed agreement, these several interests will not only be improved but benefitted. First, the farmer, who, as I have intimated, has never yet had any specific tariff legislation enacted in his interests, has prime consideration in this agreement, and if the farmer is benefitted, incidentally and necessarily all other classes of the community share the advantages. Who takes greater interest in the crop outlook than the capitalists and bankers—a class generally regarded as quite distinct, if not far removed, from the farmer? From this time on we shall see the commercial columns of the daily papers and the financial journals, teeming with crop reports, speculation, and guesses as to the outcome of the Northwest wheat crop and the other crops of the Dominion. Why? Because upon the prosperity of the farm as represented by a good crop is based the forecast of satisfactory financial conditions. Therefore, anything that can conduce to the increase of the farmer's prosperity necessarily involves or affects the prosperity of all classes of the community. The agreement, as I have pointed out, provides for reciprocity—free mutual exchange—of natural products—the products of the soil—with the United States.

Value of the New Market.

This means a new and enlarged market, a convenient market for the products of the farm, the mine, the forest and the fisheries, the orchard, the fruit garden, and the dairy. We now have the home market. But Canada, with its population of less than eight millions cannot consume half of what we are capable of producing; it would be as reasonable to expect a farmer's family to consume all that a well-tilled farm would produce. We have the British market, that is our natural market, politically, but it is 3,000 miles away. Trade is a good deal like corporations, soulless, or like water, that takes the easiest way to find its natural level. For years, the British market has been wide open—free to all the products of Canada. The United States market has been barricaded to Canada, by a high tariff wall. Yet, in the past twenty years, in spite of the barrier, the total trade with the hampered market has been larger than with the free—the family market, Great Britain. The following are the figures of the trade for twenty years.

Exports to	United States	Great Britain
1891	40,194,566	49,280,558
1901	59,962,905	105,320,556
1910	110,814,327	149,630,488
Imports from	United States	Great Britain
1891	57,994,030	42,048,343
1901	109,208,353	42,966,128
1910	233,071,155	95,666,004

Total trade, including Bullion—

	United States	Great Britain
1891	100,784,905	91,357,784
1901	185,595,577	148,498,253
1910	351,221,327	245,313,984

It is thus seen that in spite of tariff obstacles, our trade with the United States has been larger than with Great Britain, and has grown much more rapidly. Trade has followed the natural channel, geographically, though this channel has been dammed with tariff obstructions.

Still that twenty years has seen the absolute and complete disappearance of any slight feeling in Canada favourable to United States political institutions.

And in that twenty years the tie of affection and political unity between Canada and Great Britain, has grown stronger as our trade has grown comparatively less than with the United States. This shows that filthy lucre is not the only measure of loyalty, something to be recalled when considering the absurd claim that reciprocity will lead to annexation.

A Little History.

Before dealing further with the probable beneficial effects of reciprocity, a little historical evidence may be presented. The beneficial effects of the reciprocity treaty of 1854-66, and the deplorable trade results from its abolition, may be referred to. Lord Elgin, then Governor-General of Canada, secured the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854. This treaty was practically [illegible] with the present agreement in that it provided for free interchange of natural products, fish, included, and its general scope corresponded closely with the pending agreement of 1911. It was abrogated in 1866 by the United States really because of the difference of the two countries over the Civil War.

We have excellent Conservative authority that this treaty was a great boon to Canadian trade and commerce. When abrogation of the treaty was threatened the Canadian Government of the day (Conservative, with Sir John, then plain John A. Macdonald at its head), entreated the British Government to leave no measures untried "to avert what would be regarded by the Canadian people as a greatcalamity."

The report, regarding regarding reciprocity abrogation—the appeal to the British government to retain reciprocity—drawn by Sir John A. Macdonald, or with his approval, went on to say:

"It would be impossible to express "in figures, with any approach to "accuracy, the extent to which the "facilities of commercial intercourse "created by the reciprocity treaty "have contributed to the wealth and "prosperity of this province (Canada was only a "province" then), "and it would be difficult to exaggerate the importance which the "people of Canada attach to the "continued enjoyment of these facilities."

If freer trade in natural products, when the "province of Canada" was small, its trade comparatively trifling and its resources little developed, was so great a boon and its loss so great a calamity; then, when Canada's resources are greater, its trade a hundred fold more important, when her political situation is more assured and self-contained, with freer trade be less beneficial or hampered trade less injurious?

Many Demands.

While the pending trade agreement is generally in the interests of the country, it does not meet all demands. Some farming interests have not had their full demands met by it. But in a general measure, it is impossible to cover every requirement. What affects one section favourably, may be to the disadvantage or the lesser advantage of another. The deputation of Northwest farmers that visited Ottawa in strong force, demanded the removal of the duty from agricultural implements and the advance of the British Preference — demands, practically equivalent to free trade. There seems to be some selfishness in these demands. The farmers of the Northwest seemed to forget that the working men and the manufacturers also have rights. Ontario, a manufacturing Province, has contributed in men and money to the development of the West, and now an almost complete removal or reasonable protection, in some regards, for the manufacturer and the working man, is demanded in the form of 50 per cent. advance in the British Preference. I do not favour this. The British Preference is hard enough on our manufacturers now. To double it is to practically throw Canadian manufacturing industry open to the formidable competition of the British manufacturer. This would not be in the interests of of either manufacturer or working man in Canada.

The agreement has been drawn to reasonably meet the wishes and promote and conserve the interests of both, East and West. Unreasonable demands on the part of either the industrial interests of the East or the farming interests of the West, are hostile to the harmony of the Dominion.

Manufacturers Not Affected.

We had also at Ottawa a deputation of manufacturers—a visit which had little reason for its coming. What have the manufacturers to be alarmed at? There is no occasion for alarm. The reciprocity agreement affects manufactured products very slightly. There is a reduction of 2 1-2 per cent. on agricultural implements, and of 5 1-2 on cement. There is little ground for complaint on the part of the manufacturers of these articles. A protective duty is designed to protect from destructive outside competition. Early in the Session a Conservative member from the West, introduced a resolution calling for the abolition of the duty on agricultural implements. This was evidentally a political dodge, for the resolution has hung fire since last November and has not been brought forward.

Sir Wilfrid's Assurance.

It is a human impossibility to frame a tariff that will meet the needs of every interest, that will not quite beneficially affect some industry. But this reciprocity agreement only slightly affects manufactured products and that is one reason why I am in favour of it. The Canadian negotiators of the agreement had this in mind when they went to Washington. President Taft wanted to include in the discussion, reciprocity, in manufactured products. But Mr. Fielding flatly refused. He told the United States that Canada would meet them half way in natural products, but not on manufactured goods. He realized that United States manufacturers, had more highly specialized systems and could produce at a smaller cost than some Canadian manufacturers. And he refused to consider for a moment general reciprocity in manufactured products. Manufacturers have nothing to fear from reciprocity and the general tariff policy of the Liberal Government. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has explicitly stated: "We have got hurt the manufacturer and will not hurt him." And speaking at Montreal, Mr. Fielding reassured the manufacturers. He said:

"We are ready to stand by the "manufacturers whenever he has a "fair case. We have always tried "to be frank and fair with the manufacturer and they should still "trust us. We have cared for your "interests in the past and we shall "continue to care for them in the "future. There is no politics in tariff and industrial questions."

This assurance as well as the facts themselves, discredit the cry that the reciprocity agreement will ruin our manufacturing industries.

The manufactured articles admitted into Canada under the agreement are so few and unimportant that they can have no appreciable effect on any of our industries.

Free Exchange No Injury.

Then how will the free exchange of the products of our farms, fisheries and forests, so far as the latter are free, affect other industries that are not touched by the tariff changes involved in the reciprocity agreement? The agitators and opponents of the agreement, have read into it a great deal that it does not contain. To be more specific, one might inquire how reciprocity, as proposed, will injure the working man or the manufacturer? How will the free interchange of potatoes, turnips and cabbages, injure the Canadian General Electric Company? The reduced or modified tariff does not affect any of its output, but a stiff tariff will, and might easily, affect them adversely. How can the free exchange of farm products interfere with the William Hamilton Company, in the production of turbines and saw mill machinery? Will not free lumber and timber stimulate the lumber business and create increased demand for our mill machinery, especially in view of the fact that sixty five per cent. of our lumber is exported?

Will Not Affect Local Industries.

How will a wider market, adding to the farmer's prosperity injure the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, unless by increased capacity for the purchase of its products? How will the four Canoe Companies of Peterborough suffer from the free exchange of plums or potatoes or by the reduction of the United States' duties on canoes from 35 to 22 1-2 per cent. or the reduction of the Canadian duty from 25 to 22 1-2 per cent.? With skilled employees, trained in the home of the canoe, with cheaper and more accessible raw material, cannot our canoe builders successfully compete with their opponents in the United States on better terms, especially when their export trade will be helped by a reduction of 12 1-2 per cent., to a larger market and greatly increased business. How will the Colonial Weaving Company do anything but gain by the increased prosperity that will improve the demand for their products—labels for clothing, boots and shoes and other goods. How will the Brinton Carpet Company be injured by increased prosperity, through larger trade, furnishing a better home market? How will the Rapid Tool Company suffer from cheaper raw material, cheaper coal and a more active home market? How will knocking off 40 cents a bushel on onions or two cents on a head of cabbage, affect the prosperity of the Lundy Shovel & Tool Company, or decrease the wages of its employees? Will the Brewery suffer? It may do so to some extent. Free barley may lead to increased prices, but compensation will come from the Brewery's standpoint by a better market and prices, giving the farmer more money to exchange for its finished products. The Lubricator Company is in no way affected prejudically. The Quaker Oats Company and the Matthews Company claim to be adversely affected, and at first sight this seems reasonable.

Forebodings Not Justified.

But there may be compensating advantages and forebodings of disaster are not always justified. Prophesiers of evil often make mistakes. When the Fileding, Liberal tariff was introduced in 1897, Sir Charles Tupper, from his place in the House, foretold the ruin of the manufacturing industries; they were "paralyzed" in advance and there "rose the wail, the sorrowful wail" of ruined manufacturers, and he "deplored the ruin" that would fall upon the industries of Canfound to deny, that under this tariff Yet we all know, and no one will befound to deny, that under the tariff the industries of Canada have prospered as they never prospered before. Sir Charles' doleful forecasts have been splendidly discredited, and even Mr. Sifton, who opposes the reciprocity agreement, admits, and even asserts, that is the "best fiscal policy the Dominion ever had." Is this not a probability that the prophets of evil in respect of reciprocity will be similarly mistaken? Is there not a probability that even the rare few of industries that fear they will be injuriously affected, may, be happily mistaken?

Give It a Trial.

Is it not wise, then, having in view the splendid working of the old Reciprocity treaty and the promise of the present agreement, to enlarge our markets and increase our prosperity, to accept it as a good thing? Would it not be wise to take the advice of Mr. Harry Corby, Conservative ex-M.P., "Give the agreement a trial?"

This is good advice. This agreement embodies a policy for which both parties have been working since Confederation. Then why are Conservatives—some Conservatives (the politicians) and others opposing it? Is it from conviction or desire to make party capital? Now, I am a pretty strong party man, and would not complain at party tactics, so long as they did not interfere with the interests of the country. But when party tactics antagonize national interests, it seems to be carrying the thing too far. As I have shown, both parties have been striving for reciprocity the past nearly fifty years. Even a year ago the Conservative party did not oppose reciprocity—when Mr. Fielding told them that the Government proposed, in answer to overtures of the United States, to obtain reciprocity. But the moment a trade agreement was announced, as soon as they could find excuses for it, the Conservative politicians—not the Conservative party as a whole, but the leaders—ranged themselves against it. Now, what is the bulk of the opposition to the reciprocity agreement? It does not come from the farming community, because the agreement is designed to promote their interests.

And there is no doubt that freer trade, enlarged markets — more con- (Continued on Page 4)

venience markets—for the products of the farm, will immensely benefit the farmer.

The farmers have good reason to distrust the friend that pretends to oppose reciprocity, because it will injure the farmers.

Opposition Not Justifiable.

The opposition is not based on a discussion of the subject on its merits. The agitation is designed to confuse, misguide and mislead the masses. As a Western newspaper says, the agitation has been "nursed, stage-managed, advertised and financed." The special interests are interests that will not be affected directly—and then not injuriously, by reciprocity—the manufacturing and the financial interests. For exactly the span of a generation—since 1878—the manufacuring interests have had the benefits of a very reasonable and liberal degree of protection, by tariff, and it passes understanding that they should be up in arms against a tariff arrangement in the form of a reciprocity agreement that for the first time in nearly sixty years, practically recognizes the farmers' claims to consideration. If reciprocity was the terrible thing this organized Opposition asserts, would not the farmers be against it to a man?

Every device is employed to mislead and frighten the farmer.

Farmers Benefitted.

They tell the Canadian farmer that he can't compete with the farmers of the United States. Will any Canadian farmer say that he is not as wide-awake, as shrewd, as intelligent, as a United States' farmer? We all know that Canada, owing to the longer daylight in the West, grows the best wheat in the world. We know that Canadian apples are better than United States' apples—the farther north apples will ripen the better the quality, and the same applies to small fruits. A Niagara district fruit farmer says, that when the United States' strawberries are selling at 6c. and 7c. per quart, "he can take his Canadian berries into the market and sell them right alongside of their" at 15c., and the same holds good of peaches and raspberries, etc. We know that when Canadian small fruits come in, the earlier fruits from the United States become a drug on our market, and ours are so superior in quality that they are in demand in the United States' cities. An United States' trade journal a couple of months ago contained a statement of "one of the largest handlers of fruit farm produce in the United States." Speaking in the interests of the United States' farmers and of the competition of Canadian farm products, the article thus compares the respective farm products. It says:

"Potatoes—New Brunswick (Canada) can grow double the crop of New York State.

"Cabbage—Can be grown in Ontario double the weight per acre in New York State.

"Apples, (fresh) — She (Canada) grows better apples than America.

"Oats—Prince Edward Island and other parts of Canada grow double the crop per acre to what is grown in many parts of America.

"Sheep and Lambs — Everbody knows Canada's sheep are larger."

Here is an authority that handles in a commercial way, the products of bot hcountries and knows what he is talking about. And we know that what he says is correct, and that the superiority of Canadian produce applies to other things. We all know that Canada, especially along the lake front, and in Central Ontario, grows the best malting barley on the continent, and that when it was admitted to the United States under the old reciprocity treaty it commanded the highest price. Who will say that Canadian farmers cannot compete with their Yankee brother farmers? What is the game of the new friends of the farmer? Why are interests that are not injured by reciprocity so anxious to defeat it? Why are they spending thousands of dollars in fighting reciprocity? They only pretend to sympathize with the farmer and pretend to be sorry for him. These "interests" have never shown any anxiety for the farmer before, and they are now trying to hoodwink him into helping play their game. The real farmers, the bone and sinew, are in favour of reciprocity on account of the larger market and better prices it opens to them.

No Crop Producing Interest Hurt.

There is no ground for the fear that it will injure any crop-producing interest in Canada. There was a deputation of fruit growers went to Ottawa, one of the most unreasonable of all the deputations, that went to protest against the agreement. We all know about the early fruits sent in here from the United States—sent in at a time when Canadian fruit growers have nothing to sell or consumers nothing to buy. The Canadian duty of 2c. per pound being removed, the price will be lessened and a man of moderate means can afford a luxury now only enjoyed by the rich. But the moment home fruits come into the market, there is no sale for imported fruit. Fruit is an article that needs quick handling — it speedily spoils. For most of our fruit we have now only the Toronto and Montreal markets. And these are soon glutted. Who that has visited Toronto in the fruit season, has not seen fruit rotting on the wharves for lack of purchasers, and dealers willing to take any price to get rid of it? With the United States' duty of 25c. a bushel on peaches and pears removed—with the tax of 25c. per cubic foot on boxes or crates of grapes, removed, it would pay to ship these to the United States market. With our modern rapid transportation and cold storage, berries and pears and peaches and grapes can be gathered in the evening in Canada and put in good condition on the markets of Buffalo, Boston, New York or Rochester, the next morning, where the demand is unlimited and the native United States supply inadequate to meet the demand, and with brisk demand comes good prices. Niagara fruit farmers who have been marketing in the United States for twenty years, say they never saw peaches as cheap as they are in Canada. With the duty of 25c per bushel, prices are 25 per cent. better in the United States. In the United States' cities near the border raspberries sell for [illegible] per quart but Canadian berries as soon as they are ripe, sell for 13c. to 15c. a quart. In the Niagara district, the prices of fruit lands have advanced at the very prospect of reciprocity. Not only will reciprocity bring better markets, better prices and bigger profits for the present crop of fruits, but it will encourage the immense expansion of the business. The only persons connected with the fruit industry that dislike reciprocity are the canners. The larger and better market in the United States will, they fear, bring up prices and they will have to pay higher figures to the Canadian growers for fruit to use in their canneries. So much for the fruit growers, who sent a politically inspired deputation to Ottawa to protest against reciprocity. So will it be with most of the objections urged against reciprocity; they disappear on investigation and analysis.

The Plaint of the Millers.

It is also claimed that the milling industry of Canada will be injured by reciprocity. How will this happen? Under the agreement, wheat passes between the two countries free of duty. How will the reduction of 25c. duty per bushel on wheat in the United States' tariff or of 12c. in the Canadian tariff work any ruin? Canadian wheat goes into the United States practically free under the present tariff. A drawback of 99 percent is given on the duty on Canadian wheat ground in the United States for export. Will a difference of 1 per cent. in duty ruin the Canadian miller? Is the Canadian miller doing so badly now that a difference of one per cent duty on wheat going into the United States will ruin him? Somebody in Canada how makes a profit out of the reduction of wheat to flour. At a recent date, when the wholesale prices of flour in Winnipeg was $2.95, co-operative societies in Britain were able to buy it at such a price as made the wholesale price in England, $2.50 per hundred; that is, 45 cents cheaper a hundred after a journey of 3,000 miles, than it was within a mile of where the wheat grew, from which it was ground. The disparity is greater in the retail way. At the time a 7 pound sack of flour was 39c. in Toronto, or at the rate of $4.28 a hundred, a 7 pound sack of the same grade of Canadian flour was 22c., or at the rate of $3.14 per hundred, in Manchester, England. If the milling industry can produce flour to be sold at a profit in England, they must make a tidy profit out of the increased price the Canadian consumer has to pay, without any charges for transportation across the ocean.. Why cannot Canadian millers compete with the United States as successfully as before? The millers of both countries can get Canadian wheat at the same price, as far as tariff affects the price. All the advantage the Canadian miller had before the agreement was proposed, was one per cent., counting the 99 per cent. drawback to the United States' miller. So that all the Canadian miller will, at the worst, suffer from reciprocity, if he suffers at all, will be the removal of the one per cent. duty on Canadian wheat entering the United States. With its superior possession and distribution of water powers Canada, should be able to hold the home market for flour, and invade the United States' market on equal terms—the duty on flour being the same in both countries, and also compete successfully for the export trade. I believe in reasonable protection to Canadian industries, but I fail to see how the milling industry is to be greatly injured, by the reciprocity agreement. He has the advantage over the United States' miller, that the latter has a market of only eight millions, while the Canadian miller has a market of 92 million ,and both on the same terms. While the Canadian miller has no tariff protection, he has the advantage of direct and first access to home grown wheat, superior manufacturing facilities in the form of superior water powers, and a ten-fold larger foreign market at his very door.

The Canadian millers do not seem to suffer very seriously from the reciprocity agreement.

If the Canadian miller can sell flour in England at a profit ,at a much lower price than in Canada, then he has the matter of profits in his own hands. It seems to me, therefore, that under reciprocity the milling industry can reasonably well take care of itself.

The Annexation Bogey.

One of the most absurd of the contentions advanced against reciprocity is that the unobstructed exchange of farm products between Canada and the United States will lead to annexation.

Last year, the total trade of Canada with the United States, exports and imports, amounted to $321,000,000. That has made no difference in our political relations. If the trade is doubled, as a result of reciprocity will it develop annexation? As a matter of fact there never was a time in our history when there was as great an absence of sentiment looking to political union with the United States as at present. There might have been, at odd times, during the past sixty years, a little annexation sentiment. About the only annexation sentiment ever existent in Canada was of Conservative manufacture—made in Montreal City sixty-three years ago, and the business has been revived by some of the Conservative opponents of reciprocity in 1911. In 1848 an "annexation league" was formed in Montreal, and a "manifesto" in favour of annexation was signed by prominent "Tories," among them Sir John Abbott, afterwards head of a Conservative Government. This action was brought about by the desire for enlarged trade relations with the United States. The agitation was confined to a few political fillibusters, and it never entered at large into the minds of the Canadian people, to swap their British allegiance for United States trade. So little did the reciprocity treaty of 1854 excite the political sympathy of Canadians with the United States, that the latter made the blunder of thinking that the repeal of the reaty would force Canada into annexation. The United States abrogated the reciprocity treaty to force annexation. Now, we have it argued that reciprocity is proposed to promote annexation.

Of all the absurd objections to reciprocity—that of its being a step to annexation, is the most absurd.

Bishop Mills, of Kingston, in his charge, at the opening of the English Church Synod, deals effectively with the ridiculous contention, as follows:

I would think little of my loyalty to the British Crown and the British Empire, if it depended on tariff schedules. Those who think the national spirit of Canada is such a poor and uncertain thing, that her existence as a nation, would be imperilled by an increase of trade with the United States, certainly do not know her. There is no part of the British Empire, in which there is truer loyalty than in Canada, and she can be neither bought nor sold.

Exactly in the middle of the old reciprocity treaty, which lasted from 1854 to 1866, the Prince of Wales, afterwards King Edward, visited Canada—1860. Never before, or since, did Canada give a heartier demonstration of loyalty, than in the midst of reciprocity, which we are now told will lead to annexation. And if the present agreement goes into force, and the present Princefo Wales were to visit Canada, he would find the same loyal devotion to the throne, and the same unalterable determination to maintain British connection, and Imperial relations.

No Danger.

There is, however, not the slightest danger of Canada losing its independence to the United States. We have heard that sort of argument ever since Canada was Canada. Every one of the successive reforms in this country, that have given us the best form of Government and the best political, civil and social conditions in the world, has been fought against to the tune of annexation and disruption of the Empire. When the Liberals of that time were fighting for representative Government, the parent of all the liberties you enjoy, they were met with the cry of annexation. There is an exception. When the "Tories" were in power, in 1854, the Government of Sir Francis Hinck, through Lord Elgin, accepted the reciprocity treaty. This treaty led to immediate prosperity. Did closer trade relations sap the loyalty of Canadians, and warp them into annexatioo? An answer to this lies in the fact that a dozen years later the Canadian Confederation was established. There may be a few filibustering politicians in the United States who are desirous of annexing Canada. But if freer trade will lead to annexation Uncle Sam has the means ready to hand. If Canadians are such cravens as to surrender their British connection because a few duties are removed, the United States, without consulting Canada, or anybody, can lower its duties, and, according to the hypocritical alarmists, gather Canada into their fold.

But every day they see that dream of Yankee filibusters further from realization. Canada, herself, has to be reckoned with. We are too well satisfied with our position—"daughter in our mother's house, mitaress in our own"—self-governing in all important essentials, and still, proud and jealous of our British connection. We love our institutions, our privileges too dearly to barter them for trade advantages. We have too high hopes of our future as an autonomic nation on this continent to think for one moment of change.

We value our relations with the great Empire of Britain too highly to change, or surrender, them for any material advantage. As Sir Wilfrid Laurier has said: We Canadians have set our hearts upon building up a nation without separation from the Empire." There is no danger of annexation from closer trade relations, or any other cause. As I have mentioned, the only germ of annexation in the years 1848-54, that ever existed in Canada, was crushed when the reciprocity treaty of 1854-66 was negotiated. Reciprocity killed annexation—then, is it unreasonable to say that reciprocity now will work its resurrection?

The Financial Interests.

The financial interests are, in some cases, and in some respects, arrayed against the reciprocity agreement. Sir William Van Horne, on his return from Cuba, on learning of the reciprocity agreement, said he was "too sick and ashamed" of it to express his sorrow. Sir William was in Cuba, investing the money made in Canada in a foreign country. Sir Edmund Walker is also against the agreement—it is treason for farmers to sell their products in the United States.

He is the controlling spirit of a great Bank (the Bank of Commerce), and gathers the savings of tens of thousands of Canadian farmers and sends them across the line to make profits—to even help move the Southern cotton crop.

Yet he denies the farmers of Canada the right by way of reciprocity to ship his farm stuff across the line. What is right for him to do is wrong for the farmer. While the right of banks to employ their funds wherever they can make a legitimate profit is conceded, a similar right should not be denied the farmers who create the whole wealth of the country, that makes the banks rich and powerful. For, generally speaking, all wealth comes from the soil—in the form of grain or minerals or timber. If it is wrong, if it will injure our prosperity and swamp our loyalty to trade freely in natural products with the United States, why will it not have the same effect to deal with them in money? The banks of Canada as they have a right to do, have large interests in the United States. The banks of Canada have, altogether, 177 branches in the cities of the United States. Sir Edmund Walker's bank has sixteen branches, the Royal bank seventeen and Molson's bank fifteen. If the loyalty of the banks is proof against the peril of doing business in the United States, cannot the Canadian farmers' loyalty be expected to stand the strain of buying and selling—dealing with our neighbours?

The financial interests that oppose reciprocity which primarily only, affects the farmers, promoting their interests, by adding a new and larger market to the home and British market, are selfish in demanding privileges for themselves which they would deny to farmers.

Capital Unafraid.

Capital has no fears that reciprocity will injure any interests of the country.

Capital is extremely sensitive to the influence of threatening or probable adverse conditions in commerce or industry. Since the reciprocity agreement was announced, capital has been actively initiating great new enterprises, showing that reciprocity means no danger to our manufacturing industries. A few out of many projected enterprises may be mentioned. A fifty million dollar plough company, the Deere Company with headquarters at Moline, Iowa, as acquired lands at Welland to establish a factory larger than any of its kind in Canada, to employ several thousand men, in the manufacture of plows and agricultural implements, generally. The Western Steel Corporation of Canada has purchased 2,000 acres on the Fraser River, B.C., and acquired coal and iron mines, looking to the establishment of an immense business. In April, three months after the blue ruinists had destroyed Canadian industries by reciprocity, a charter was granted a ten-million-dollar company, to establish a ship-building plant at Sydney harbour, Nova Scotia. We have been told that the United States factories that established themselves in Canada, to supply the Canadian market, would disappear. Yet, as if in answer to this the Oliver Plough Company of Hamilton, arranged to add a $600,000 plant, to supply the Canadian demand. A British firm is building a three-million dollar graving dock at Montreal. And this, in face of the fact, as asserted by opponents of the agreement, that reciprocity will dry up our canals and rivers, and turn Canadian traffic down the Mississippi. Similar examples of new enterprises might be mentioned, but these will serve to show that reciprocity has no fears from capital and enterprise.

Wont Divert Traffic.

Then we are told that reciprocity will destroy our great transportation systems by diverting Canadian East and West trade to trade on north and south lines. No thinking man takes any stock in this objection: even the Conservative politicians themselves, do not believe it—they only use it as one weapon in their armoury to mislead the people. If there were the slightest fear of reciprocity diverting the channels of Canadian trade to north and south lines, all railway enterprise would be paralised. If our existing railway lines were ruined it would be madness to build others. Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann are building the third cross-continent railway. They applied to Parliament for a guarantee of the bonds of the Canadian Northern to complete the thousand-mile gap between Port Arthur and Montreal, to span the continent. The proposal to give the Government guarantee to the bonds, $35,000,000 or $35,000 per mile for 1,000 miles, passed the House with the approval of the Conservatives—not one voting against it.

If the Conservatives had really believed themselves—had believed their contention that reciprocity would destroy our transportation systems—they would have raised heaven and earth to defeat the guarantee proposal, instead of unanimously assenting to it.

Financiers and stock dealers keep a keen eye on matters that affect the price of stocks. A public measure that would injure—not to say ruin—a railway, would send down its stock with a run. The opponents of reciprocity say that reciprocity will ruin our transcontinental railways by sending trade north and south—that is, through the United States. The buyers of C.P.R. stock didn't see much ruin of the C. P. R., or any of the industries or national enterprises that makes its traffic and its prosperity—its dividends. When, on Jan. 28th, Mr. Fielding announced the reciprocity agreement, C.P.R. stock stood at 209. From that time it began to rise. The more the opponents of reciprocity ruined the country and the railways—the more the stock of the C.P.R. rose. It steadily advanced, in face of the prophecies of ruin, till, on June 30th, it reached 241 ,having previously touched 242. Isn't it singular that the stock of a railway on the down grade of ruin through reciprocity should rise against the tide of destruction sweeping over Canada? Instead of reciprocity ruining the C. P. R., it promises to help it according to the shrewdest of financial men—the dealers in stocks.

Shorter Canadian Routes.

There is a reason why the C. P.R. can pay big dividends in competition with the United States' railways and Canadian transportation routes can hold their own. The distance by way of the present Canadian water route from Fort William or Duluth is shorter by 500 miles than the existing United States' water route, and the present rail and water routes between these points are 700 to 800 miles shorter than the existing United States' rails and water routes. There is, therefore, very little weight in the claim that reciprocity will ruin Canadian transportation lines by deverting trade north and south. The Canadian routes will have the preference, as shown by the great growth of shipment by these routes as against the increase by United States' routes. In 1910 the total amount of Canadian wheat exported from Montreal was 4,000,000 bushels. And in 1910, the amount shipped by the Canadian route was 14,000,000. In the same time the exports of United States' wheat by the Canadian route had doubled—advanced from 4,000,000 in 1900 to 10,000,000 in 1910.

The Favoured Nation's Scare.

Another objection to reciprocity is that it will subject Canada to the competition of the twelve favoured nations which are, by British treaties, entitled to the same reduction of tariff Canada gives any other country, in this case to the United States, under the reciprocity agreement.

These countries are: Great Britain, Austria-Hungary, Russia, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland, Japan, Bolivia, Columbia, Venezuela, and the Argentine Republic. These countries now ship a little to Canada, but the proportion of articles covered by the reciprocity agreement is very small. Out of a total of $14,000,000 imported from the favoured nations, only $500,000 was composed of articles made free by the reciprocity agreement, and that out of a total importation of $478,000,000. Let us compare the trade we do with these favoured nations to show how trifling will be the importation of articles affected by the pending trade agreement. We can exclude Great Britain for there is no prospect of that country shipping any farm products to Canada, or any other products affected by the reciprocity agreement. Last year's Canadian trade with Venezuela consisted of exports to that country of $14,000 and imports of $53,000, and in this $53,000 we do not find any of the natural products affected by reciprocity From Switzerland last year Canada imported a value of $2,633,000 and exported to Switzerland, $10,000 our imports were chiefly fine manufacture of silk and cotton. Last year Sweden took $111,000 worth of our goods and not a dollar's worth of any article affected by the reciprocity agreement with the United States was included in the $207,000 worth of imports from that country. We sent Spain last year $51,000 worth and our imports from Spain of $1,040,000, chiefly of tropical fruit, not included in the agreement. Our trade with Russia last year consisted of exports, $59,000 and imports, $138,000, and there will not be found among the latter a single article covered by the agreement. Included in our trade with Norway were exports of $487,000 and imports of $108,000, including some fish, and Norway getting the benefit of free fish represents the first item in which a favoured nation gets the benefit under the agreement, and we are not much afraid of Norway fish. Our trade with Denmark consisted last year of exports, $425,000 and imports $36,000. Denmark is a very large butter exporting country, but our imports from that country did not include a single pound of butter. With the State of Columbia, our trade amounting to exports $32,000, and imports $28,000, included nothing affected by the agreement, and with Bolivia we have no trade of any kind. From Austria-Hungary we imported $1,410,000 and exported $60,000. The imoprts were chiefly laces and that sort of thing that are not mentioned in the agreement. When we come to the Argentine Republic, the great rival of Canada, according to the blue ruinists, we find that we sold them $2,899,000 worth, and imported from that country $4,131,000, and in this large amount there was not included an article subject to the reciprocity agreefent. Then we have some trade with Japan, but who is afraid of Japan sending us strawberries or hay or barley or any other cereals such as reciprocity makes free? We are told that the Argentine, being a great wheat growing country will ship wheat to Canada. It has not done so, so far, and if it ships wheat to Canada, then Canada can ship wheat to the Argentine. But when this happens, Sydney will be sending coals to Newcastle and ,Newcastle sending coals to Sydney.

Sir Wilfrid's Way.

It will thus be seen that there is nothing in the contention that the reciprocity agreement will turn upon Canada a flood of imports that will compete injuriously with Canadian farm products and other products mentioned in the reciprocity agreement.

But if there were any danger of injurious competition, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's splendid stand at the Imperial Conference in London has found a way to cancel the favoured nation's clauses in British treaties, as they apply—and especially if they apply prejudically—to the self-governing Dominions. This would give the Dominions perfect commercial freedom.

Sir Wilfrid is accused by his enemies with being a separationist, but Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary, has no fear that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's plan to give the Dominions larger powers will lead to separation, but rather to closer connection with the Empire, resulting from removal of causes of commercial friction and discontent.

A Comparison.

Now, it will be interesting to compare the value and importance of our trade with these countries—called the favoured nation competitors—and the United States. In the year 1910 the trade of the United States with Canada was $341,000,000.

The trade of the United States with Canada was only exceeded by that with the United Kingdom and Germany—$775,000,000 and $420,000,000 respectively. In the year 1910 the United States did nearly eight times as much trade with Canadians as with the whole of the Central American States In that year the trade of the United States with Canada was about half of the total trade with the entire North American continent, including Central America, Mexico, Newfoundland, the British and other West Indies, and Cuba, the total being $661,000,000 as against $310,000,000 with Canada. With South America, including the dreaded Argentine Republic and Brazil, the trade of the United States was $20,000,000 less than with Canada. With China, Japan and the British Indies, with their hundreds of millions of inhabitants, the trade of the United States was $55,000,000 less than with Canada. With Australia and the French and German Colonies, south of the equator, the gross trade of the United States was $90,000,000. So it is seen that the gross trade of the United States with Canada was almost equal to their trade with the whole of Asia and the Islands of the Sea. In the face of these facts and figures, who will deny that our nearest neighbour, numbering more than 90,000,000, is our natural market, and most convenient market, and one worth getting free access to with our natural products in which we can compete with the world? When we consider that we lie alongside United States for 3,000 miles. And when we consider that at many points along these borders we are able to meet the wants of our neighbours and that at other points they can meet ours, and, moreover, if with a hostile tariff against each other, the two countries do a large trade mutually profitable and desirable, is not that a strong argument for the adoption of the reciprocity agreement, which removes the obstructions to trade and permits free exchange of products, for which a ready, convenient and profitable market is desired? Is not that a strong argument on the adoption of the reciprocity agreement, which removes the obstruction to trade and permits free exchange of products from which Canadian farmers desire a ready,, convenient and profitable market?

These products, as I have generally indicated, are composed, in the main, of products of the soil, forest, fisheries, and mines.

The Articles Affected.

Let me submit, in a little more detail the articles covered by the agreement, the appended figures, showing the reduction of duty in each case:

Cattle less than one year old,	$2.00
Cattle valued at more than $14.00	27½ %
Horses valued at $150	$30.00
Horses valued at over $150	25 %
Swine	$1.50 each
Sheep and lambs, less than one year	$1.50 each
Poultry, alive	3c per lb.
Poultry, dead	5c per lb.
Cream	5c per gal.
Oats	15c per bush.
Barley	30c per bush.
Potatoes	25c per bush.
Turnips	25 %
Cabbage	2c each
Apples	25c per bush.
Berries of all kinds	1c per qt.
Dried apples	2c per lb.
Butter	6c per lb.
Cheese	6c per lb.
Eggs	5c per doz.
Hay	$4.00 per ton
Straw	$1.50 per ton

This list comprises the chief articles of natural products, that is farm and dairy prdoucts that interest Ontario. Free fish and salt are, of special interest to the sea-side provinces and free coke nad free lumber concern all parts of Canada, which are also interested in the free list that particularly affects Ontario. It will be seen that many of the duties to be removed, under the agreement, were practically prohibitory of profitable trade intercourse, which is now opened to the farmers of Canada.

Value of U. S. Market.

But we are told that the United States market will be of no advantage to us. That they produce the same things we produce, and that their market is of no value to us. This, however, is not the case. It is a fact that the population of the United States is growing more rapidly than the soil production, and that the time is not far distant, when domestic products will not meet the home demand. As things are now the home demand is lessening the volume of exports. The report of the United States Secretary of Agriculture shows that the beef exports of 1909 were 57 per cent. short of those of 1906. The report says: "In lesser degree than beef, pork exports indicate a similar decline in the national supply."

The United States export of wheat and wheat flour, expressed in terms of wheat, fell from $163,000,000 bushels in 1908, to $114,000,000 in 1909. Thus we see that the United States, which is now, to a large extent importing agricultural products from Canada, will continue to increase its demand of wheat and other farm products we have to sell. As the United States decreases in production and in capacity to supply its own wants. Canada is yearly increasing its production by leaps and bounds. In 1909 one million people in the Canadian West produced 147 million bushels of wheat from 7 million acres, a yield per acre in excess of that of any great wheat-growing country in the world. We have, at a conservative estimate, 213 millions of acres in the Canadian wheat belt.

Suppose only a comparatively small quantity of that land is brought under cultivation, and our population of the Northwest increases to 5 million or 6 million, as it promises to do in a few years, it is easy to calculate what our wheat production will be. With population increased six times and wheat acreage 6 times, the crop will correspondingly increase. That will mean 750 million bushels of wheat in a year, within a few years; and it is not extravagant to anticipate in the not too distant future, a Canadian wheat crop of 1,000 million bushels. Our products of other grains in the North West, and other parts of Canada will increase with our wheat, and as we have now, we shall have an immense surplus for export. The population of the United States will be rapidly increasing, and its farm production decreasing, comparatively. So that the time is not far away when the United States will need from 200 to 300 million bushels of wheat from us, or some other country; not to speak of other produce. Will it not be an advantage to have that market open to us free of the onerous duties which have just been indicated? In regard to the settlement and development and enrichment of the North West reciprocity will have a big influence. Reciprocity will add largely to the value of every acre in the Canadian West. The United States farmers, tempted by the more fertile soil of the Canadian West, if he were assured of the United States market, being opened to him, if he settled in Canada, would create such a demand for Canadian wheat land as would rapidly raise the price.

General Benefits.

Thus the settlement of the country would be facilitated and the production of our soil many times increased. In the past three years we have increased in population by immigration 275,000, and at that rate we shall increase it 2 1-2 million in ten years, with a corresponding increase in crop production. Then we can and will, if we are assured of a large and convenient market, increase our production of articles that are now produced far short of our capacity. Mr. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, says the farmers of this province, if they put themselves to it, can double the present output of their farms.

If the farmers of Ontario do that they will need a new market, such as reciprocity will open. And if they have the new and larger market the increase of production is made possible and probable. The benefits of reciprocity will not be confined along to better markets and better prices, if it will stimulate increased farm and dairy production. Take the City of Peterborough of 16,000 or 18,000. If the surrounding country, composed of the best farming land in Ontario, were by more energetic farming methods, made to produce double what it does now and made to yield a couple of million dollars' worth more of produce.

Could such an increased production be made without touching and benefitting, every bank, every merchant, every doctor, every lawyer, and every man in business in the city? And the farmers of Ontario can do it if they try—if they are encouraged by a prospect of a larger and more accessible and more profitable market. Last year Denmark, a little country that Ontario could put into its pocket, with about 2 1-2 millions of people, is an example of farming reduced to a fine art. In 1909. Denmark sent to the British market 34 million dozens of eggs; Canada sent to the same market 34 thousand. The same year Denmark sent to the same market a million and three-quarters hundred-weights of butter, and Canada, 22 thousand hundredweights. Denmark, in 1909, supplied Great Britain with 1,809,745 hundred weights of bacon, while Canada only sent 443,386 hundred weights. In 1909, Denmark exported to all countries 2 million dollars worth of cream—and reciprocity gives us a 90-million market for cream, with the duty of 5c. per gallon removed. What is to prevent Ontario from doing likewise? Only one thing—not doing it. If we have a larger market for the articles in which Denmark excels, we will be encouraged to double our output, and, in this way, put farming upon a higher plane, add to its profits and, through the prosperity of the farmer, stimulate and strengthen every interest of the community. I have not time, on this occasion, to enter into the details of the advantages of reciprocity, but can only treat of them in a general way. But let anyone take the list of free articles of farm produce I have submitted to you, and he can readily see how the removal of duty benefits the farmer.

Special Benefits.

But I might, however, specify one or two things where the experience of our farmers has demonstrated the benefits of an unhampered market. Now as to barley. It is well known that when barley, (before the McKinley tariff of 1890 killed the trade) had cheap entry into the United States, farmers had great success in growing and selling barley in that market. Canada, especially Ontario, grows the best barley for malting purposes, on the continent, and it is in great demand by United States' brewers. In 17 years, from 1876 to 1892—seventeen years of low duty—the farmers of Canada sent to the United States 135 million bushels of barley and got in cash for it 90 million dollars. The next seventeen years the high duty on barley prevailed, and the 135 million dwindled to a total of only seven millions of a value of only 3 million dollars. In the first period under a 15 cents a bushel duty, the average price was 67 cents. In the second period, when the duty was 30c. a bushel, the average price was 42c. If a duty of 15 cents a bushel resulted in a profitable trade in barley for the Canadian farmer—giving him a big market and good profits—

If a duty of 30c. per bushels practically killed the barley industry—

Will not free barley, as proposed by reciprocity, restore a profitable market to the farmer and be a money-making proposition? There may be some present who remember the conditions about fifty years ago, when the old reciprocity treaty was in force. If they don't remember, their fathers have told them that these were the big days for barley raisers, when farmers got big prices—from 80c. to $1.00—and even more, a bushel. And they also told them what a blow the abolition of the treaty was to the farmers. They told them how the price of wool dropped from 40c. to 15c. per pound; of lambs, from $4.50 to $2.50, how barley, which sold from $1.00 to $1.20 and $1.25 dropped to 40c. or 50c. And the prices of cattle and hogs were cut in half—and so on with all that the farmer sent to the United States' market under the reciprocity treaty of 1854-1866. If getting Ontario barley into the United States fifty years ago free of duty—was a good thing for the farmers—if a moderate rate of duty made barley growing and shipping profitable from '76 to '99—if 30c. a bushel duty between 1892 and 1911 killed the business—is it not reasonable to say that an entire removal of the duty on barley will be a distinct and big boon to the farmers of Ontario, who under reciprocity will command, the whole of the Eastern United States' market, and the Western States will give a new market to western barley. In the Canadian west barley grows to perfection, and in a sure crop, as it ripens early and escapes frost risk.

The 30 cents a bushel United States' duty that killed the Canadian barley trade, is still in force.

The reciprocity agreement will, if adopted, remove that duty and restore one of the most profitable crops to a large and profitable market.

The Potatoes and Apples.

Then take another crop that can be grown to advantage in Ontario—potatoes. How could reciprocity affect their sale? During twelve years of high duties—the present duty is 25c. per bushel—Canada sent to the United States eleven million dollars' worth more potatoes than the United States sent to us. Crops on this continent are not all uniform. Sometimes when we have a big crop, parts of the United States have short crops—then our neighbours come to us and that is our harvest—prices advance. With the duty removed, is it not reasonable to assert that reciprocity in the case of potatoes, as in the case of barley, would be of immense advantage to the farmers, without injuring the manufacturer, the working man and the financier? In 1910 Canada exported a total of 1,920,000 bushels of potatoes valued at $1,133,000. Britain, which admits potatoes free, took $260,000 worth, Cuba $605,000, and the United States, $345,000. The potatoes sent to the United States had to overcome a duty of 25c. per bushel. With this duty re moved, would not the profit of shipping potatoes, the profit of growing them, and the inducement to grow them be greatly increased, to the benefit of the Canadian farmer? I have referred to the effect of reciprocity upon the fruit industry, especially small fruits. As to how it will affect the apple trade, which is every year growing in importance, let me give the testimony of a good Conservative of Simcoe County, Mr. D. Quinlan, of Barrie. He says reciprocity will be a good thing for hogs and sheep, lambs and barley. As to apples, he says, Canadian apples are of better quality, and will command a ready market in the United States always and against United States' competition, if the duty of 25c. per bushel is removed. Reciprocity, will help the market gardeners and fruit growers. These industries in the past 25 years have increased their sales in the face of high duties to the amount of seventy million dollars. With the duty removed it is certain that there will be a great and profitable increase of trade in these lines. To show how high duty kills trade and destroys profit for the farmer, it might again be mentioned, that Canadian, and principal Ontario farmers, in 17 years of high duty, lost 90 millions of dollars on barley alone. It is impracticable to enter into all the details, but every true farmer knows the value of the United States' market.

United States' Prices Higher.

We are told that the prices for farm produce is higher in Ontario than the United States. Every farmer who has his eyes open knows this is not the case. Mr. Kohler, M.P., for Haldimand, made a careful comparative study of United States and Canadian prices for several years for certain live stock. In the case of lambs, the Toronto market for the months of October, November and December in 1904, averaged $4.62 and the Buffalo market, $6.25. In the same month for 1909, the average price of lambs in the Toronto market was $6.05 and in Buffalo market, $7.50. In the matter of butchers' cattle, taking the average prices for the same months in the respective markets, the average price for 1904 in Toronto was $4.50 and the Buffalo market average was $5.70. In 1909 the average price of butcher's cattle in the Toronto market for the last three months of the year was $4.62 and the average price in the Buffalo market, $6.12. A similar difference in prices in favour of the Buffalo market applies to calves also. The same general difference prevails in the other years and other months of all the years. Mr. Kohler is a large dealer in cattle and knows whereof he speaks and most of you know from common knowledge, or what others have told you, that what he says is correct. To show how a high duty has affected the cattle trade, as it has affected the barley trade, Mr. Kohler tells of the slump in the cattle trade that followed the high duties of the Dingley tariff. In 1879, 32 years ago, Canada shipped to Buffalo for local consumption and distribution in the United States, 79,164 head of cattle, in 1898, 71,131 head, and in 1910, exports had fallen to 26,441 head. This trade, the removal of duty by reciprocity will restore, to the advantage of the farmer. In the matter of hay, Mr. Kohler made enquiries as to the contract prices at the stock yards in Toronto and Buffalo.

The average price in Toronto stock yards last year was $13.61, and last year the average price of hay in Buffalo stock yards was $18.00—a difference of over $4.00.

Will not the removal of $4.00 a ton duty on hay, which gives the Ontario farmer access to a $4.00-a-ton better market, be an advantage worth getting? To illustrate the advantage under the agreement take what would be gained by the reomval of duty on what an average farmer might have for sale each year. This would be—

- 8 two-year steers and heifers at $6.00 to $10.00 each.
- 10 lambs, saving the duty, at 75c. each.
- 5 sheep, saving the duty, at $1.50 each.
- 30 hogs, saving the duty, at $1.50 each.
- 300 lbs. turkeys, saving the duty, at 5c. a lb.
- 15 tons hay, saving the duty at $4.00 per ton
- 300 bushels barley at a greatly advanced price, besides higher prices for all dairy products.

Buffalo is selected for comparison with Toronto, because it is easily accessible to Ontario, and a great distributing centre for the Eastern United States. Figures carefully collected (Hansard), Feb. 28th, 1911, col. 4531, show the same advantage of Buffalo prices over Montreal in the matter of live stock. These differences may not prevail over all the two countries at time, but as a general rule prices for these and farm and orchard products generally are higher in the United States than in Canada.

This applies to farm products generally, except the matter of eggs, of which the Canadian price has of late been higher. This, however, is a small matter, for it is not perhaps to the farmer's credit that Canada hardly produces enough eggs to supply the home demand.

We have been importing eggs to Canada that, with proper enterprise, is capable of producing millions of dozens for export.

There is no need of amplifying figures to show that a free United States' market would be a big boon to the farmer.

Every Farmer Knows.

Every farmer not blinded by political prejudice, knows in his own heart that as the reciprocity treaty of 1854 was a great advantage to the farmer, so will the reciporcity agreement of 1911 be a similar benefit. Under the old reciprocity treaty of 1854-56, there was a tremendous boom in agriculture in Canada. In spite of the financial depression of 1855 and, subsequently, the expansion of Canadian trade with the United States, was over 20 millions. In 1855, after one year of the treaty, it had advanced to 42 millions. After five years of reciprocity the trade grew to 48 millions. After nine years of reciprocity the total trade had grown to 55 millions. In 1866, when the treaty had come to an end, the total was 84 millions. This wonderful growth of trade, from 20 millions to 84 millions, during twelve years of reciprocity, is all the more wonderful, when it is remembered that during that period the population of Canada was only 3 millions. Now, when Canada's population has increased nearly threefold, when her capacity of production and her need of market has increased in greater proportions—

When the United States market, owing to its great growth of population and lessening production affords a larger inlet for Canadian natural products — when all these things are considered, the present reciprocity agreement, almost identical in scope and conditions with that of 1854, can confidently be counted upon to repeat and better the story of wonderful growth of trade, in the twelve years of the old treaty.

General Benefits.

Reciprocity promises to be of advantage to every part of Canada. Free fish will give this industry a great stimulus. The advantages Canadian fishermen will gain by the agreement are regarded as so greatly to their interests that the Gloucester, (Mass.) fishermen, when they heard that the agreement made Canadian-fish free to the United States market, hung the flags of their fishing smacks at half-mast, as a token of the mourning over the competition of free fish from Canada. British Columbia fishermen will gain similar advantages to the Maritime provinces. And all over Canada every industry dealing with our natural resources, will be benefitted. I have remarked that the opposition to reciprocity does not come from the thinking and unprejudiced farmer. This applies to the Canadian farmer. for the farmers of the United States think that Canada has secured the big end of the bargain in the agreement and that Canadian competition will be ruinous. And United States farmers are doing all in their power to defeat the ratification of a reciprocity agreement that will give what they consider such great and undue advantages to the Canadian farmer.

General Results.

The pending reciprocity agreement, seems to me, when viewed dispassionately, to be in the interests of Canada, especially the farmers of Canada. It may, as every fiscal change is bound to do, pinch some interest a little here and there. But taken in the large, considered in its broad aspects, it is bound to be a distinct national advantage.

It will benfit the farming community by opening a new, larger, and most convenient market for every product of the soil. While benefitting the pivotal industry of Canada—the farming industry—it will not injure any other, for, except in a very few cases, it does not affect manufactured products. It promises a vastly augmented flow of the life blood of a nation, trade, through new and wider markets. We are doing everything in our power to extend our trade. We have spent hundreds of millions in providing transportation, in the interests of trade, and are spending millions more. We are spending large sums in subsidizing steamship lines to extend our trade. We are maintaining trade agents in foreign countries. We need, and are seeking, new markets, in all directions. In ivew of these things, in view of all we are doing, and shall continue to do, to broaden our trade, is it not wise to accept the opportunity of dropping into a new market of 92 millions at our very doors? Not by large expenditures in transportation —not by heavy subsidy of steamship lines, but simply by sponging out a few duties in a tariff test—by simply removing the barriers to trade intercourse.

The Long-Sought Way.

The present reciprocity agreement should be accepted as the culmination of the steady and persistent efforts of both great political parties, which have made reciprocity their goal for fifty years. Now, when we have an opportunity of gaining what we long have sought, shall we not accept it? Mr. Borden, present leader of the Conservative party, is now speaking in the North West. He repudiates the policy of his party since Confederation, in repudiating reciprocity. He repudiates the policy of the great Conservative leaders of the past, almost as clever and farseeing statesman as himself — Sir John Macdonald, Sir James Thompson, Sir Charles Tupper. In taking this stand Mr. Borden takes ground against these great men, and against the best elements of the Conservative party of the present day—against the farmers of Canada, Conservatives and Liberals alike. He sets himself against the only measure of tariff relief, that has been proposed in the farmers' interests since Confederation. The farmers of Canada, in the matter of tariff legislation, have long been neglected. They have patiently borne the burden, which the necessary tariff to establish our manufacturing industries upon a sound footing, has imposed. Now, the farmers' time for consideration has come, and they mean to have it; and should have it, especially when giving them an unobstructed market, can be done with no disadvantage to the manufacturing industry, which will, instead, benefit from the increased prosperity of the farmer, which will flow from the enlarged market opportunities opened to them by the reciprocity agreement of 1911.

At the close of Mr. Stratton's address, Mr. Geo. N. Gordon, referred to the interest the audience had taken in the interesting address, which must have involved a good deal of time in arranging the valuable data it presented. He had no conception, till he had heard the matter referred to, as Mr. Stratton had done, of the great extent of public improvements made in West Peterborough in the last two years. He did not think that the constituency, so far as representation was concerned, could be in any better hands than it was at present. So far as the reciprocity agreement was concerned, he was fully convinced that the working man and the farmer could, for once, go hand in hand for their mutual advantage. The farmer produced the wealth of the country. This wealth, when marketed, brought back to the country money to be invested in manufacturing enterprises, that give the mechanic and working men their weekly wages; and the working man knew—felt it in his pocket—when the crops were bad, when the price was kept down; because the manufacturer had to curtail operations and this, in turn, affected the working men. The working men were apreciating this, and he had no doubt that those in Peterborough would support the agreement, for the benefit of all.

After a vote of thanks to the chairman and cheers for the King, the meeting concluded.

TOO SMART FOR AGENT.

George Lynch-Staunton Was Acquainted With All the Tricks.

By coincidence, or design, George Lynch-Staunton, K. C., who is prosecuting attorney in the present Assize Court in which the Farmers Bank cases were to be tried, occupied a similar position when Charles McGill of the Ontario Bank was up. Mr. Staunton has been in the public eye a good deal, and is fair game for the book canvasser, who is, however, liable to disappointment. Mr. Staunton sells with some enjoyment of a man who once called upon him for a short sketch of his life, saying he wanted to use it in a book which was to give a short account of the prominent men in the country. Mr. Staunton listened to his visitor for some time, when he asked the scribe if he would give him a written agreement that he would not want to collect an account for having his life's history written up, and being answered in the affirmative, Mr. Staunton went further, and asked him if he would also put in writting that after this book was published he would not send an agent around to sell him one of them. This was too much for the man of the pencil, and he replied in an insulted naughty manner: "Very well, Mr. Staunton, if you treat the subject with so much levity, I will take my departure." Mr. Staunton has never seen that promised book of notables. Mr. Staunton is a native of Southampton, County Bruce, where he was born in 1858. He went to school in Southampton, in St. Mary's College, Montreal, and at Upper Canada College, where he graduated head of the class and won the gold medal. He was called to the Bar in 1883. His pet case, or the one in which he claims he took the greatest interest, is referred to by him as the "scrap iron case," which arose out of the assessment of the Bell Telephone Co.'s equipment on the streets, and which he carried to the Court of Appeal and won. Mr. Staunton has been three times elected as Bencher in the Law Society, and if he receives that honor at the next session he will hold the position for life, an honor that falls to the lot of few men.

As prosecuting attorney Mr. Staunton plays no favorites, and when he gets a witness in the box he forgets the individuality of the man.

A Settlement Worker.

Lady Davies, wife of Sir Louis Davies, is one of Canada's most active philanthropic workers and takes a keep interest in various societies, and especially has she done a great deal towards placing the Settlement House work in Ottawa on a firm financial basis. The proceeds of a concert given recently in a drawing-room has enabled them to open a day nursery, and a great deal of her time is still devoted to assisting this very necessary and useful organization. Though Lady Davies has been obliged to drop out of the Women's Historical Society and the Council of Women, with both of which she was formerly connected, she is still an active member of the Humane Society, of the Morning Musical Club, and of the women's associations of Christ Church Cathedral, to which she belongs.

When Sir Louis Davies was one of the Cabinet Ministers, Lady Davies was one of the most popular hostesses of the political set, and her dinners and receptions are still looked back upon with pleasure. She does not entertain quite as much now-a-days, but when she does people are always delighted to be invited to her hospitable home. Her daughter, Miss Gertrude Davies, is of great assistance to her mother in her settlement work, as she takes classes there during the week in elocution and drawing. Miss Mary, the youngest daughter, is very fond of fancy skating, and is a member of the Minto Skating Club. Both the young ladies assist their mother constantly in her many social duties.

The Demons.

"Critics are fine chaps," said an English actor, "but I must confess that when they condemn your play you feel annoyed.

"I wonder why we call the people in the top of the house gods?" an actress asked an unsuccessful playwright once.

"'We do that,' the unsuccessful playwright answered, 'so as to distinguish them from the people in the bottom of the house who write the criticisms.'"

EXCITING STRUGGLE WITH A WILD BOAR

A Soldier in India Tells of His Experience While Jungling in that Country

Private Cuffin, India, gives the following description of a struggle he had with a wild boar:

"While out 'jungling' some few months ago, in company with a chum, I had rather an exciting experience with a wild boar. We had been out several hours without meeting anything worth the shooting, and were traversing a deep ravine, or nullah, as they are called in India—I on one side, and my chum on the left—when the shikari who accompanied us suddenly called my attention to a large boar that was scrambling up the side of the nullah, about 200 yards on my left front. I instantly fired, and caught the boar in his hind quarters, tumbling him back into the nullah. As soon as he dropped, my chum put down his rifle and ran towards him with a clasp knife, intending to put the finishing touch to him. He had scarcely gone fifty yards when the boar suddenly jumped to its feet, turned, and charged, and caught my chum by his legs, throwing him to the ground, and commenced to worry him with his tusks. My chum, who was an old hand at jungling, had the presence of mind to lay flat upon his stomach, and thus escaped the serious injuries he would have sustained had he attempted to rise to his feet and run away, as the formation of a pig's snout debars it from using its tusks upon an object that is very close to the ground. However, all this happened in the space of a very few seconds, and this old tusker succeeded in inflicting several bruises about my chum's arms and shoulders before I was able to get near enough to be sure of an aim consistent with safety to my chum. As soon as I got the boar in an advantageous position, I fired, this time hitting him clean through the brain, and he dropped like a log. But for my chum's presence of mind in lying prone as soon as he fell this incident might have terminated with serious results; but, as the saying goes, 'All's well that ends well,' and, after all, it is such incidents as these that do so much towards enlivening the monotony of a soldier's life in India—a life which requires enlivenment at times."

SUBDUING A TIGER

It Was Kindness That Made the Animal Tame

Illustrating that it is nothing but kindness that makes wild animals really tame, Herr Hagenbeck, the world-famous animal trainer, tells the following story:—"I remember a savage Bengal tiger which was sent to me from Calcutta some years ago. When it arrived it was in a state of fury and rage, and for several days would fly at me whenever I approached the cage. I paid him a daily visit, purring as I approached, which was like speaking in his own language, and he gave up gradually his furious greeting. After a week I took a piece of meat at each visit, for the way to the heart is through the stomach, and that does not apply to tigers alone. At the end of four weeks I could touch him, and three months later he had quite realised that no one wanted to hurt him, and used to come quietly to the bars to be stroked each day."

AS A LAST RESOURCE

The Japanese Final Method of Restoring Life

The Japanese have discovered an extraordinarily simple and effective method of "restoring life" in people who appear to all intents and purposes dead and beyond the aid of medicine. If an accident occurs so that a person is three-fourths drowned, beaten senseless, or severely attacked by sunstroke or heart-disease, the operator takes the body of the seemingly dead victim, and extends the arms to either side, having previously rolled the sufferer over on his face. That done, he delivers a succession of hard, regular blows on the seventh vertebra of the "dead" man's spine, using his wrist as a kind of hammer. Unless life is utterly extinct, this causes the patient to regain consciousness, when he is at once seized, turned over, made to sit up, has his arms swung and waved about, as in our own system of what is called artificial respiration, and is then forced to walk with the aid of supporters.

The exertion is an essential part of this curious treatment, having undergone which the patient is ready to be handed over to the doctors for ordinary medical attention.

NERVE TONIC NOT WANTED

Why the Cost of a Prescription Was Reduced

The big-hearted, eminent physician had consented to see the patient without making any charge. There was a lingering doubt as to whether this was altogether a deserving case; but, as usual, the patient was given the benefit of the doubt. "There," he said, when the examination was finished, "take this prescription to a chemist; he'll make it up for you for fifty cents."

"Thanks, doctor," was the reply. "Oh, by the way, would you mind lending me the half dollar?"

The medico bent a stern gaze upon his unprofitable customer. "Give me that prescription back," he said. It was handed back, and a swift deletion made. "There," he said, returning it, "you can get that made up for ten cents. The drug I crossed out was for nerves, but it seems to me that your nerves are pretty healthy."

LETTING OFF STEAM

Peculiar Methods of Disposing of One's Angry Feelings

Many brain-workers find at times a distinct need for some violent frolic or escapade to relieve their pent-up feelings and overstrained nerves.

One such man has a preference for banging doors; another for playing the "Dead March" in "Saul" with one finger; a third, after a heavy day's work, will go round the neighborhood ringing door-bells; whilst a fourth, to steady his nerves, will dash a teacup against a wall.

It seems an idiotic thing to slap a cabman's face to relieve one's feelings, yet this is what a well-known actor does; and he does it in such a gentlemanly fashion, and pays so liberally, that the driver seldom takes offence.

Other brain-workers have a penchant for picking up ornaments, such as fern-pots, and dropping them on the floor, and then settling for the damage done in the coolest manner imaginable; whilst only recently a well-known City merchant was fined $100 for spitting on each side of a constable—a practice he was in the habit of carrying out regularly.

One man finds relief in dashing his spectacles against the wall, and another is never happier than when he has just pushed his stick through a window.

WORLD'S TALLEST TREE

Australia claims to have the tallest tree in the world. It has long been thought that to California belongs this distinction, but while Californian trees are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to Australia's eucalyptus trees. The Californias are noted, not so much for their height, as for their girth and diameter. The tallest tree in California yet discovered was found by actual measurement to be 340 feet high. Australia's record gum tree can beat this by 140 feet.

MINIATURE NAVY YARD

How the Little Son of the Czar Amuses Himself

Peter the Great's taste for practical shipbuilding seems to have come down to his descendant, the present Czarvitsch, who is six years old. The little heir to all the Russias has had a complete miniature navy yard constructed on the banks of a small lake in the park at Tsarskoe Selo, his father's country palace. There, under the tuition of a naval engineer, he amuses himself with building model warships and other craft. In this pastime he is following the example of the Czar, Peter the Great, who, 200 years ago, disguised as a shipwright, worked for wages in a Dutch shipyard, and afterwards at Deptford on the Thames.

TELL THEM SO!

Don't be afraid to give praise.

It is a great mistake to withhold those easily-said words of approval and satisfaction. Even the humble crossing-sweeper likes to hear his work commended.

Flattery is deadly insult, but true praise spells encouragement and makes the world seem brighter.

Wake up! Look out for the chance of praising someone, honestly and sincerely. And don't forget the home folks! Your praise means more to them than to anyone.

LORD HALDANE

Doesn't Believe in Eight Hours of Sleep, and Thinks Nothing of a Forty-Mile Walk

Lord Haldane is a tremendous worker. He is said to consider more than three hours' sleep at night to be mere waste of time!

To look at him you would never imagine Lord Haldane to be possessed of the energy, both mental and physical, that he has.

He is decidedly substantial in build, but this is not due to lack of exercise.

Behind him are a long line of sturdy Scotch ancestors, and from them he has inherited a love of walking.

His grandfather at eighty-three could do his eight miles and be as "fresh as paint" afterwards; while a great-uncle could reduce many a younger man to a state of exhaustion by taking them for long tramps, which he himself did with the greatest ease.

Many a time Lord Haldane has covered between thirty and forty miles a day; but his brother can beat this record, and has to his credit no less than 103½ miles, which he covered in thirty-one hours.

Lord Haldane is a great smoker, and large black cheroots are his favorite "smokes." Not long ago the doctor told him he was smoking too much, and advised him to go easy in that direction.

A short time later an old friend met him, soon after lunch, and inquired sympathetically how he was getting on without his smokes.

"Oh, fairly well—fairly well," was the reply. "I've only had six so far to-day!"

The Haldanes belong to an ancient family, and many of their ancestors have served their country in Parliament or on the field.

Two of the most famous of the Haldanes were, perhaps, the brothers

MR. HALDANE

James and Robert, who a century ago gave up all to become itinerant preachers.

They threw themselves heart and soul into the cause that appealed to them, and were probably the greatest lay evangelists Scotland has ever produced.

Lord Haldane was born in Edinburgh in 1856.

He was first at the University of Edinburgh University, going afterwards to Gottingen.

He decided to become a lawyer, was called to the Bar in 1879, and became K.C. in 1890.

He has a Scotch seat—Cloan, near Auchterarder, Perthshire, until quite lately called Cloanden.

But this he has shortened by a syllable, and is now known as Viscount Haldane of Cloan.

In addition to his many other activities, Lord Haldane has found time to write a number of books, and, with the help of Mr. Kemp, he made a translation of Schopenhauer's "World as Will and Ideas," a work which ran into three volumes, and took some time to complete.

DIVERTING THE TRAFFIC

Amusing Rivalry Among Three Adjoining Merchants

It is the smart man who is able to seize opportunity who generally succeeds. If you have any advantage to offer to the public, the only way to bring trade in is to advertise, and exercise ingenuity.

In a busy thoroughfare there were three clothing stores in a row. The proprietors of these stores were bitter enemies as well as business rivals, and each taxed his ingenuity to the utmost to outwit the others in attracting customers.

The proprietor of the store in the middle one day, found himself momentarily beaten when he discovered that the shop on his right was placarded with sensational announcements of a "great fire sale," while the rival on his left hand covered his building with huge posters proclaiming a "receiver's sale."

After a little thought, however, his features relaxed in a gradually expanding smile.

An hour later the crowds that had been attracted to the scene by the "fire sale" and the "receiver's sale" announcements flocked into the middle store.

The proprietor had caused to be stretched across the top of his doorway a sheet on which were painted in letters two feet high the words, "Main Entrance."

HIS MEDITATIONS

Soon after Singleton's first baby was born, Mrs. Singleton went upstairs one evening and found her husband standing by the side of the crib and gazing earnestly at the child.

As she stood still for the moment, touched by the sight, the tears filled her eyes as she thought—

"Oh, how dearly Charlie loves that boy!"

Her arms stole softly round his neck, as she rubbed her cheek caressingly against his shoulder. Singleton started slightly at the touch.

"Darling," he murmured dreamily, "it is incomprehensible to me how they can get up such a crib as that for four dollars and a half."

BEARDS AND KINGS

George V. is the First of His Name Not Clean Shaven

It was often remarked at the accession of Edward VII. that he was the first bearded King for nearly three hundred years. The ill-fated King Charles I. was his immediate predecessor in this respect, and he came to the throne in 1625, whereas the late King succeeded his mother in 1901. Charles was the last of the Kings for a very long time to represent the Elizabethan or Shakespearean fashion of the pointed beard and to wear his own hair on his head.

Cromwell, the uncrowned King of England, certainly wore no wig like the long line of his successors; but, though he wore his own hair, he wore it pretty long. Charles II. wore a tremendous wig, carled in a hundred ringlets, but the only hair on his face was a slight moustache. None of his successors until Edward VII. boasted even that. Both beards and moustaches went clean out of fashion, and James II., William III., all the Georges and William IV. were just as clean-shaven as all the rest of their masculine subjects. There was a time when a beard had not been seen in England within living memory!

In wearing a beard Charles I. followed the example of his father James, and, as he was a Scottish before he was an English King, he probably followed the fashion of his predecessors in the northern kingdom, for he was preceded by two Queens and a boy King, and had no precedent in this respect to follow, even if he had desired one. Henry VIII., nearly a hundred years before James I.'s time, had been as much an innovator in respect to whiskers as Edward VII. was; for, like our late King, this much-married monarch could look back upon several bare-faced predecessors without a break, for none of the Kings from Henry V. to Henry VII. wore the least hair upon their faces.

Prior to Henry V.'s time, however, beards might be said to be almost the rule; and, indeed, from William I., in 1066, to the death of Henry IV., in 1413, no King sat on the English throne who was clean-shaven. The Conqueror and his two sons and successors were content with a moustache only, as were Henry II. and Richard II.; but Richard the Lion-Hearted would seem to have made the beard fashionable, for his brother John, Henry III., and the first three Edwards entirely gave the razor the go-by.

Thus, though George V. is the first of his name to wear a beard, Edward VII. was only following the example of his most famous predecessors.

Thus out of the thirty-three kings who have ruled in England, the beard-wearers and the clean-shaven almost provide a tie, for there are thirteen of the former and fourteen of the latter. Six Kings wore moustaches.

PRECIOUS PARROTS

Remarkable Bird that Speaks 200 Words in German

The Dutch New Guinea parrot, only three inches in length, whose skin has just been presented to the Natural History Museum at South Kensington, has, of course, been outdone for shortness of stature by the smallest species of humming bird, which is only an inch and a quarter in length, and weighs about twenty grains.

It has been outdone in value by the parrot for which Baron Alfred de Rothschild paid a record sum in 1906.

Laura is the bird's name, which familiarity it usually corrects with "Laura from Africa, please." Her plumage is brilliant green, her manners perfect, her expression one of soulful wisdom, and her voice like the banjo's twang. She sings with effect quite a number of songs, she speaks 200 words of German, and can answer all kinds of queries—but not in English.

SUCCEEDS IN THE WEST

Wm. Barnett, a Saskatchewan farmer, grew the Marquis wheat that carried highest in prize-winning samples submitted to a milling and baking test. Mr. Barnett came to Canada from Wales nine years ago. Three years have been spent as hired man, and six as homesteader. During recent years he has won prizes for wheat and oats at local shows and also at Brandon and Regina. He started with oxen, and has them yet; but he also has some fine Clydesdales, and hopes soon to show what he can do with them at exhibitions. A recent purchase of three quarter-sections places him in position to farm on a large scale.

ENERGY FROM LIGHT

An Aid in Maturing Wines, Beer and Spirits

A lecture on the changes effected by light was given at the Royal Institution recently by Mr. T. Thorne Baker, who said that beer could be brewed in less than half the ordinary time if the brewing were carried out in flat glass vats through which red light of selected wave-lengths was projected. It was only reasonable, he said, to assume that the more rapid production of alcohol in this way would prove of value. All the experiments went to indicate that the maturing of wines and spirits could be materially hastened by choosing a suitable light treatment. By using the energy obtained from absorbed light the maturing of a wine, which now takes years, might well be reduced to months, or even weeks.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST ROOM

The largest room in existence under a single arched roof, and entirely unsupported by pillars or buttresses away from the walls, is said to be a huge building in St. Petersburg, measuring 620 feet long and 150 feet wide, used mainly for military purposes. This giant apartment is of such a size that a whole battalion—1,000 men—can drill in it with the greatest ease. It requires no fewer than 30,000 wax tapers to light it satisfactorily by night.

KING EDWARD MEMORIAL

A Proposal to Purchase Crystal Palace and Readapt it Permanently

Various schemes have been put forward during the past few months for the erection of a National Memorial to King Edward VII.

None, however, is so practical and at the same time so soundly sensible as that proposed by Lord Tenterden. The Crystal Palace is to be purchased and re-adapted as a permanent memorial. Here spaces will be reserved for the Colonies and the Dominions beyond the seas for the exhibition of their specialties, and from time to time National and International exhibitions will be given. One portion will be set apart as an up-to-date pleasure ground; while it is suggested that the Palace shall also become the headquarters for the National Aero Corps.

In the event of any National crisis or emergency the whole Palace would be placed unreservedly at the command of the Government.

It is estimated that the total cost of the purchase of the Palace and the carrying out of the necessary alterations will be $300,000, and an additional $500,000 will be required for working capital. But if the scheme is carried into effect a clear income of $750,000 would probably be produced yearly.

All the money is to be raised by public subscription, and hundreds of promises have already been given.

THE FEAR OF LIGHTNING

Trees in the Country are More Dangerous than Wires in Cities

It is unlikely that any written words will abolish the terror which so many feel at lightning storms. It may comfort the timid to know that the average number killed annually by lightning is less than one person in 350,000 people. More people are drowned in the Thames alone every year than there are deaths from lightning all over the country. People living in cities are inclined to believe that the increasing number of telephone, telegraph and trolley wires increase the danger from electric storms. On the contrary, the maze of wires is a protection, and lessens the danger. The trees in the country are a far greater danger; sheltering under them in a thunderstorm accounts for the proportion of four cases in the country to one in the cities.

THE FOWL'S PRAYER

A Few Pointers as to How to Feed Hens

A prayer of the domestic fowl to its owner is printed in the Smallholder. The following are some of its clauses:

For breakfast, on cold days, I like warm mash with a little mustard; some good corn will do when it is warmer.

Flint and shell grit hung in boxes within my reach.

At noon sprinkle a little corn between the straws in my covered scratching shed; I am fond of exercise.

I have also a weakness for anything green; give it to me in plenty.

Place a sunken box filled with ashes in my run; this is my bath.

Ere the sun sets give me as much corn as I can eat, so that I may sleep peacefully.

IMITATION IS THE MOST SINCERE FORM OF FLATTERY.

PRIZE BILL IS PASSED

Gets Second Reading in the British House of Commons—Sir Edward Grey's Speech

STATES A FACTOR

London, July 4—The naval prize bill, which is tantamount to approval of the Declaration of London, the international agreement covering prizes in naval warfare, passed its second reading in the House of Commons yesterday. An amendment introduced by John G. Butcher, Unionist member for York, to defer consideration of the bill until reported on by a committee of experts, was defeated after a prolonged debate by a vote of 301 to 231. The bill passed without division.

The feature of the debate was Sir Edward Grey's speech in support of the bill, in which he referred to the attitude of the United States. He argued as that country holds the view "that under restricted conditions sinking would be allowed," it would be useless to attempt to bring in a law abolishing it. He contended that in case England was at war with a great continental power, the one great neutral power, whose interference would be useful was the United States, which was greatly interested in supplying food to this country and was possessed of a fleet of sufficient strength to make interference effective.

The United States, he insisted, would never have signed the Declaration of London, if they believed in time of war their commerce would be interfered with. "The United States," said Sir Edward, "have been no reluctant party to signing the Declaration of London, and the establishment of a prize court, and in their view acceptance of the Declaration of London is essential to the establishment of a successful prize court.

"The belief that the U. S. Government regards the policy of a prize court convention and the Declaration of London with indifference, is a very dangerous misapprehension, which it would remove if we were at war with a continental power. That continental power, knowing perfectly well the risk and desiring to avoid the danger of any friction with the U. S., the great maritime neutral power interested in our food supply, would in all likelihood prefer to accept the rules of the Declaration of London and be prepared to refer to arbitration any question which arises with regard to it."

City 'Phones For London.

London, July 4.—A municipal telephone system for London is being advocated by Water Commissioner Stevenson. Telephones at $7 a year, and paying a 30 per cent. dividend to the city on the outlay, is one result he claims.

By the use of the new "cross-over system," he would string the telephone wires on the city hydro-electric poles, and use the underground conduit down-town for the same purposes. The top floor of the new City Hall he suggests for the exchange.

Nearly $800,000.

Toronto, July 4.—Hon. A. J. Matheson estimated income from succession duties will be very much exceeded this year. For the month of June the receipts were $92,313 against $57,875 for the same month of 1910. Up to the 30th of June last year the receipts aggregated $379,055 and for the first six months of this year the total amount received is $692,870. There is yet about $100,000 to come in from the McLean end of the late Senator Fulford's estate. The estimate for the present year was $750,000.

Counterfeit U. S. $1.. Note.

Washington, July 4.—A new counterfeit $100 gold certificate, so well made in many details, that the secret service regards it as highly dangerous, was found yesterday in a shipment of money from a National Bank in Louisville to its correspondent in New York. The new bill is a lithograph, and although it has many defects, is printed on the Government's paper, which the counterfeiter must have obtained by bleaching a genuine note.

Old-Time Clown Dead.

Winfield, Kas., July 4.—J. A. Alger, known better as "Tony Parker," reputed to be one of the oldest circus clowns in the United States, died at his home here yesterday, aged 87. He became a clown at the age of ten years and for fifty years pursued that calling without interruption. His home had been here since 1878.

No Fighting In Portugal.

Lisbon, July 4.—Official and complete denial of the rumor published abroad that fighting between Republicans and Monarchists had occurred at Oporto was made yesterday.

It was also denied that any revolutionary violence had taken place in Portugal.

No Chance For His Recovery.

Mitchell, July 4.—J. H. Waterhouse of the Mitchell Woollen Mill firm, was taken with hemorrhage of the brain on Saturday afternoon. He has been in convulsions since then, and there are no chances for his recovery.

Collier Abandoned.

Halifax, N.S., July 4.—The steamer Ben Earn, the collier under charter by the Dominion Coal Co., has been abandoned to her fate on the Hall Moon ledge. She was worth about $250,000.

Fell 14 Feet on His Head.

Port Arthur, July 4.—Richard Parent, a bridgeman in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Jackfish was instantly killed on Saturday by falling fourteen feet from a bridge and striking his head against a boulder. He was a native of Quebec and was 54 years of age. He leaves two brothers at Chapleau, Ont.

A HOT TIME AT COUNCIL MEETING BUT WEATHER MAN WAS TO BLAME

Aldermen Sweltered in Their Shirt Sleeves and Routine Business Was Galloped Through in Record Time—Session Lasting Only 45 Minutes.

THE MONTHLY MEETING

There was a hot time at the Council meeting last night, but the warmth of the session was entirely due to the record-breaking efforts of the weather man, and not to any internal discussion of the Council body. Naturally under the circumstances, with the temperature of the Council chamber resembling that of a Turkish bath the business was pared down to as fine a point as possible, and it was understood before the session opened that debating would be strictly 'tabooed' Thealdermen peeled off their coats and sweltered in their shirt sleeves while they waded through the routine business with an utter disregard of the speed laws. Mayor Morrow presided and all the Council were present.

Communications.

From Hortieutural Society, asking for funds to carry on work of caretaking of the parks.—Received.

From T. Q. Quartermaine, asking for two weeks' holidays.

From W. D .Meldrum, asking for permission to build a balcony adjoining his premises at 368 Water street. Received.

From Thomas Kinnear & Co., presenting a claim of $25 for damage done to goods in cellar which was flooded during the heavy rainstorm, the drain being too small to carry surplus water away—Legal committee.

From Canadian Engineer, soliciting "advertising" such as tenders called for, etc.—Received.

HOTTEST DAY IN CITY'S HISTORY

As far as the official records go, yesterday was the hottest day in the history of Peterborough. The mercury, which started to climb on Saturday morning, hit the 91 mark without stopping. Sunday, at the climax, it advanced two notches higher, stopping at 93. Yesterday, the record temperature of 97 degrees was reached early in the afternoon. At 5 o'clock it had only moderated to the extent of dropping to 92. The figures for twenty years back show no mark as high as yesterday's, according to Mr. Walter Peters, the Government meteorologist. It is said that sixty years ago, a mark of 97 was reached in August, but the official records for the district contain no hotter day than Peterborough had yesterday. Worst of all the expected cool wave did not set in last night.

THE PROBABILITIES CONTAIN VERY LITTLE COMFORT

May be Thunderstorms To-morrow but it Will be Generally Fair With but Slightly Lower Temperature--It is not Much Cooler To-day Although Conditions are a Little Better--Peterboro's Effort to Dodge the Heat

PROBS — Moderate winds, mostly east and south. Fine and slightly lower temperature. Wednesday—Local thunder storms, but generally fair.

The thunder storms and change to much cooler weather, promised last night, failed to materialize, and Peterborough to-day is baking in the fourth day of the heat siege. It is a trifle cooler to-day, but the temperature has not moderated sufficiently to make matters any more enjoyable, although occasionally to-day there has been a whisper of a cool breeze, lasting just long enough to be tantalizing. To-day's weather forecasts do not promise much relief either, calling for a slightly lower temperature with an indefinite promise of local thunder storms but generally fair to-morrow.

Citizens fail to remember such terrible heat here before. For the past three days and nights the conditions have been almost insufferable. For many people sleep has been out of the question, even though the expedient of abandoning the bed for a shakedown on the floor was adopted. Many moved out on the balconies or tried to sleep in hammocks outside, with only a moderate degree of success. In the factories there was an unusually large number of absentees, and the effects of the heat were felt everywhere.

However, Peterborough people seem to be made of stern stuff, as no cases of prostrations have been reported in spite of the furnace-like nature of the streets.

The chief problem has been to devise some way of dodging the heat. Naturally the restaurants and ice cream parlours have been doing a record business, vast quantities of ice cream and cool drinks passing down the parched throats of the citizens. Hundreds escaped for a few hours last night, rushing to the river, and every kind of craft was placed in commission. Even down the Otonabee it was warm, but not quite as humid as uptown.

The heat wave has been productive of the most generous display of men's lingerie in the history of the city. Coats were simply unbearable under the circumstances and the majority of the men seen down town yesterday and to-day were in shirt waists—a sensible mode of summer dressing that might be permanently adopted.

The round-trip cars of the Peterborough Radial Railway Commpany were jammed to their limit until they stopped running last night. Extra cars had been sent out, but even then there was not accommodation enough for those who wanted a chance to get an hour's cool ride—the breeze created by the motion of the cars being the best cooler to be found anywhere.

Inquiry at the Water Works Department elicits the information that there was a more than usual demand on the pumps yesterday on account of the hot spell, much more water than the average being used by the citizens. There was an especially heavy load between 4 and 11 p.m., showing that many of the citizens were using their lawn service freely in sprinkling windows, walls and trees in an effort to reduce the temperature a degree or two.

THE WATER COMMISSIONERS HAVE A BUSY SESSION

The Water Commissioners met last evening and transacted some routine business. The following members were present: T. F. Matthews, chairman; W. H. Hill and W. H. Moore.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

A letter was read from W. Kennedy, Jr., asking of there was anything further in regard to the McDougall pump.

The Secretary was instructed to reply that that matter was in the same condition as when last reported, and to say that the commission hope he is insisting upon his order being carried out.

A letter was read from A. B. Martin, saying he would remove the old pump, etc., at Auburn, by the day.

It was moved by Mr. Hill and seconded by Mr. Moore, that the contract for the removal of the pumps, wheels, draft tubes and appliances, and the placing of the same on cars, at Hilliard's Siding, be given to J. H. Greer for the sum of $280.00, as per his tender of 27th of June, 1911. —Carried.

It was moved by Mr. Moore and seconded by W. H. Hill, that the City Council be informed that an 8 inch pipe will be required across the river at Auburn.

It was moved and seconded that the Acting Superintendent be instructed to have a metre set at the factory of the Canadian Chicle Co., and that an agreement be drawn.

The Acting Superintendent reported on a petition for a main on Frederick avenue, and gave the estimated cost as $444.30, and the estimated revenue from services at $28.33, and for frontages at $24.66, a total of $52 99. The Acting Superintendent was instructed to lay the main, where he was given the grade by the City Engineer.

A letter was read in regard to floor dressing The Secretary was instructed to ask for tenders for scraping and painting Nos. 1 and 2 pumps and pillars, and to insert the advertisement twice in the local papers.

Accounts were read and moved to be paid.

With reference to the construction of a pier on the east side, below the dam, the Secretary was instructed to write to W. J. Martin, and ask him if he could undertake a small piece of work for the Commissioner, and if so to consult the Acting Superintendent.

RESULTS OF PROMOTION EXAMINATIONS IN LOCAL COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Pupils Who go up a Step Higher as a Result Large Numbers Have Been Advanced Provisionally and Must Make Good Showing Next Year in the Subject or Subjects They Have Been Weak in During the Past Term

The results of the Collegiate Institute promotion examinations are given below. The promot ions are based not only on the results of the Christmas, Easter and June examinations, but also on each pupil's class work, diligence, good conduct, and regular attendance.

Pupils promoted provisionally will be liable to a "recall" unless they show a marked improvement in the subject or subjects opposite their names. Reports of their marks will be sent only to those who have failed.

Both the Normal, Entrance and Junior Matriculation examinations will henceforth require four years. Only pupils who combine close application with more than average ability will be able to pass these examinations in three years.

The necessity for this change arises from the fact that the standard is being materially raised. For example, in 1910 a 40 p.c. aggregate was sufficient for the Junior Matriculation examination. This year it has been raised to 50 p.c. and next year a 60 p.c. aggregate will be necessary.

Owing to this change in organisation there will be only one examination form in the Middle school next year, and it will be known as Form IV.

PRESENTATION MADE TO A POPULAR SCHOOL TEACHER

A pleasing event took place last Friday evening, the 30th, at the home of Mr. Josiah Blewett, when the children of the section presented their teacher with a beautifully bound book of Tennyson's poems, accompanied by the following address:

To Miss M. L. McConnell.

Dear teacher,—Having learned of your departure from among us, we take this opportunity of showing, in some small measure, our appreciation of your labour in our behalf during the past two years. Not only have you taken a deep interest in our educational advancement, but also in our physical and moral development. We now ask you to accept this book of poems as a token of our esteem for you, not for its value, but because it comes from warm and loving hearts. We hope when you turn its pages, in future years, you will think kindly of the pupils of School Section No. 9, Smith.

We wish you every success in your future life, and, although we are sorry you are leaving us, we hope that wherever your lot may be cast you will find as many warm friends as you leave behind.

Signed on behalf the school.

Verne Harris,
Reg. McConkey.

Although taken by surprise Miss McConnell made a suitable reply.

The address was read by Master Roger Blewett, while Master Reg. McConkey made the presentation, after which lunch was served in the dining room. After some time was spent in pleasant play by the children on the lawn, which was beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns, their parents indulged in social intercourse, and the company dispersed after singing "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

Dancing will take place in the club house during the flotilla to the music of Mr. Charles Weaver, a clever pianist of Toronto.

THE WEATHER.

The official temperature record for yesterday (Monday) was 97 degrees in the shade. No higher temperature for this city or district is on record. Last evening at 5.30 it was still 92 degrees above. Sixty-eight was the lowest during the night. To-day it is a trifle cooler. At noon the official reading was 89 degrees in the shade.—W.P.

TWO POINTS OF POLICY—BOTH WRONG.

Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition, is starring the west, announcing his "unalterable hostility" to reciprocity and advancing two main planks of policy neither of which has any logical foundation. He insists on the provinces being given the public lands. The provinces in the west, have, as to title, no more right to these lands than Nova Scotia or New Brunswick or Quebec or Ontario has. The public lands in Western Canada were purchased by the oDminion government from the Hudson Bay Company, and paid for by Dominion money. When the new provinces were set apart, theo Dominion government, in lieu of transferring lands, granted an annual money equivalent. This amount in the case of Saskatchewan was, last year, $1,239,975, and in that of Alberta, $1,173,068. This is as it should be. The Dominion has the responsibility of administration in respect of these lands and is in a position to discharge this responsibility in a way the provinces could not do. Does anyone, for a moment, think that if the provinces had the public lands under their own control, that there would have been or would be applied, the vigorous immigration policy that is peopling the vast west and developing it at a rapid rate? The provinces would not do it — could not, do it; they have neither the financial ability or machinery of administration that would enable them to carry on an effective settlement and development policy, even if they had the will. All the Eastern provinces own their lands and we know that their settlement and development policy amounts to next nothing, and that the eastern provinces are not gaining in population or undergoing that development their resources admit of. Under provincial administration of the public lands of the west the country would not have been advertised as has been done and there would not have been the great inpour of settlement and marvellous development now going forward. Mr. Borden's policy of government operation of the Hudson Bay railway and terminal elevators, may be all right in theory; but history shows that government railway operation is not a success. The International shows that. Placing it under a non-political board of management is the better way—the middle way, generally the best. Then the railway commission has such wide powers over railway rates and elevator rates, that the public interests are fully protected and the results would be better than government operation which, in the case of the Intercolonial, has proved so expensive a failure.

WHAT WE EXPECTED.

The London Daily Mail, in its notes of the Royal progress through London, the day succeeding the coronation says:

If it is not invidious to single out those who received the most enthusiastic welcome after their Majesties, the two that must be mentioned are Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Lord Roberts.

This is no surprise; it is what we expected. It is natural that the greatest living Canadian and the greatest living Irishman, respectively statesman and warrior, should be a centre of attraction among the notables of the greatest empire of history, gathered by an occasion of its kind the most historically important significant and expressive in history.

A STRAIGHT FIGHT ON A CLEAR ISSUE.

(Manitoba Free Press)

The next election in Canada will be fought on the clearest possible issue. Excepting in Quebec, where the Nationalists will doubtless try to force the fighting upon what they are pleased to regard as Sir Wilfrid's betrayal of Canada to the Imperialists, the one overshadowing question will be that of reciprocity. All minor and side issues will get lost in the struggle; and the election will be an near an approach to a referendum on a single subject as is possible under our system of government.

This should be satisfactory to both sides. Ordinarily political campaigns are determined by a multiplicity of issues, many of them local and petty This gives unlimited opportunities for smart electioneering. The coming fight will be a hot one, because it will deeply engage the feelings of those taking part in it; but it should be the cleanest which Canada has seen in recent years. There is nothing like a big issue which means something to every intelligent elector to free politics of miasmas Canadian politics certainly needs such a disinfectant.

No one need have any doubt where the Conservatives stand. In setting forth their policy Mr. Borden has been commendably frank and straightforward. They favour stiff protection; and will, if given the power, limit, as far as they can, the interchange of commerce with the United States. The elector who votes for Mr. Borden and his candidates will vote for high tariff and trade restriction. This is so clear that it is reasonable to assume that only those who desire stiff duties and non-intercourse with the United States, so far as this is feasible, will vote Conservative.

Mr. Borden will get the support of all who are of this mind, whatever they have called themselves heretofore; and he will lose those who believe it would be profitable to cultivate better trade relations with the United States. Neither Liberal nor Conservative party will stand the ordeal intact; there will be an exchange of members between them, which will leave the two parties farther apart in their economic creeds than has been the case since 1896. We are in the midst of a great political readjustment which will change the face of Canadian politics. he hide-bound party man, who knows nothing and cares nothing about politics, excepting that he wants his side to win by hook or by crook, will be less of a factor than ever before.

With the lines thus clearly drawn, upholders of reciprocity must be prepared to submit the issue to the people as soon as an honest vote can be obtained—that is, subsequent to a redistribution which will give the west its proper representation. Of the result there need be no fear, provided the people who want reciprocity get out and work for it. There will be a formidable and efficient organization behind the anti-reciprocity forces; and it will have to be met by voluntary activity on the part of those who want reciprocity. Otherwise the cause may be placed in jeopardy.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER AT IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

(Otta Journal, Independent Conservative)

Whatever may be said against the attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the Imperial Conference, one is bound to give him credit for the excellent proposal that a Royal Commission should be appointed to visit the overseas dominions and report on trade and resources, and the best methods for their development. Fortunately the Conference agreed to this suggestion with the addition of an amendment proposed by Honourable Mr. Harcourt, adding the words, "and by what methods consistent with the existing fiscal policy of each the trade of each part with others may be improved and extended."

Sir Wilfrid also suggested that the Dominions should be given the right to withdraw from British treaties adopted. His resolution, which was carried, was as follows: "That the Home Government be requested to open negotiations with the several foreign Governments having treaties which apply to the oversea Dominions with a view to securing the liberty for any of those Dominions which may so desire to withdraw from the operation of the treaty without impairing the treaty in respect of the rest of the Empire."

According to the Canadian Associated Press cable, which sent an excellent summary of the discussion on this matter, Sir Wilfrid said the proposals had been before the public for some time, and had given rise to various comments, some on one side and some on the other. The necessity for what he proposed might be shown by the experience of Australia, who, when they wished to give preferential treatment to British products carried in British ships, were prevented from so doing by the most favoured nation clause in certain treaties. A similar difficulty arose when Canada wished to give preference to the Motherland. There were twelve treaties in existence containing that clause. It had been suggested that the proposal would destroy the principle of commercial unity, but that principle did not at present exist. The United Kingdom had a free trade system and all the Dominions had fiscal policies based on the principles of raising a revenue by customs duties, but no two of their tariffs agreed.

Instead of commercial unity there was commercial diversity, consequently it was not difficult to understand that when the United Kingdom made a treaty, which suited its own requirements, that treaty might not suit the requirements of the Dominion. For very many years, at least fifteen, since he had been in office, the Home Government when negotiating commercial treaties had followed the policy of not including any of the Dominions without their consent. What he suggested was that the old treaties should now be brought into line. It was not an argument for separation, but would make for closer union. The proposal should be coupled with three principles:

(1) It should be the first effort of the self-governing Dominions to develop their trade as far as possible with the Mother Country.

(2) They should not confine their efforts to the British markets, but should be allowed, as their second object, to increase their trade with other nations.

(3) Any benefits given by the Dominions to other nations should be given also not only to the Mother Country, but to other Dominions of the Empire.

The right of withdrawal on the part of the Dominions is naturally a serious factor in British Empire building but it is probably an inevitable development. What new questions it may raise in the future, is difficult to foretell. Any ill effects that might prove the result of this change would probably be counterbalanced by the achievements which should follow the appointment and report of a Royal Commission to visit the overseas Dominions, knitting together the commercial ties of the Empire.

Having secured assent to the appointment of a Royal Commission to study the many problems of trade within the Empire, the next important phase in the personnel of the Commission. The Monetary Times is inclined to believe that a representative commission of somewhat goodly numbers should be appointed. The labour will be heavy and the scope of the investigation extensive. Among the members there must be men who know the commercial triumphs, failings, advantages, of the Motherland and of the Dominions. There are few men who can speak with intimate knowledge of all parts of the Empire. This would suggest the appointment of representatives from each Dominion. Taking Canada as an example, it might prove advisable to appoint a member of the Commission from each province, as well as representatives of the Dominion Government.

There are prominent statesmen in England who naturally qualify for appointment on the Royal Commission. In addition, we should like to see also as members the three British Trade Commissioners now working in the interests of British trade in Canada, Australia and South Africa respectively. Another gentleman whose services would be of great value is Mr. H. W. Just, of the Colonial Office, who has intimate knowledge of conditions in Great Britain, South Africa and Canada. Other names could be mentioned, but these suggestions are made in the hope that the number of gentlemen constituting the Commission will not be unduly limited.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's suggestion is one of the most important ever made in connection with British Empire trade and commence. We want a good Commission, an extensive and detailed report, and, more than that, early action by the Empire constituents upon the report.

Trade within the Empire is worth cultivating. Great Britain may well give serious consideration to the problem of commerce on the North American continent. If there is not created a substantial check, the trade between two countries on the North American continent will grow enormously to the detriment of Empire trade.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

Then, too, a man in hard luck is a man in hard luck whether he has a bank account or whether he hasn't. I pity them both. If a rich man's money prevents the necessity of his baring his grief in public, it doesn't help him much when he's alone in his castle. It seems to me that each class has its own peculiar ills. Sometimes and that money breeds as much trouble as it kills. In my mind once a man earns enough to buy himself a little food, put any sort of a roof over his head, and keep himself warm, he has everything for which money is absolutely essential. This much he can always get at the bottom. And this much is all the ammunition a man needs for as good a fight as it's in him to put up. It gives him a chance for an extra million over his nine dollars a week if he wants it. But the point I learned down here is that the million is extra—it isn't essential. Its possession doesn't make a Paradise free from sickness and worry and hard luck, and the lack of it doesn't make a Hell's Kitchen where there is nothing but sickness and trouble and where happiness cannot enter.

As I say I consider this first year the big year because it taught me these things. In a sense the value of my diary ends here. Once I was able to understand that I had everything and more that the early pioneers had and that all I needed to do to-day was to live as they did and fight as they did, I had all the inspiration a man needs in order to live and in order to feel that he's living. In looking back on the suburban life at the end of this first twelve months, it seemed to me that the thing which made it so ghastly was just this lack of inspiration that comes with the blessed privilege of fighting. That other was a waiting game and no help for it. I was a shadow living in the land of shadows, with nothing to hit out at, nothing to feel the sting of my fist against. The fight was going on above me and below me and we, in the middle, only heard the din of it. It was as though we had climbed half way up a rope leading from a pit to the surface. We had climbed as far as we could and unless they hauled from above we had to stay there. If we let go—poor devils, we thought there was nothing but brimstone below us. So we couldn't do much but hold on and kick at nothing.

But down here if a man had any kick in him, he had something to kick against. When he struck out with his feet they met something; when he shot a blow from the shoulder he felt an impact. If he didn't like one trade he could learn another. It took no capital. If he didn't like his house, he could move; he wasn't tearing up anything by the roots. If he didn't like his foreman, he could work under another. It didn't mean the sacrifice of any past. If he found a chance to black boots or sell papers, he could use it. His neighbours wouldn't exile him. He was as free as the winds and what he didn't like he could change. I don't suppose there is any human being on earth so independent as an able-bodied working man.

The record of the next three years only traces a slow, steady strengthening of my position. Not one of us had any set-back through sickness because I considered our health as so much capital and guarded it as carefully as a banker does his money. I was afraid at first of the city water but I found it was as pure as spring water. It was protected from its very source and was stored in a carefully guarded reservoir. It was frequently analyzed and there wasn't a case of typhoid in the ward which could be traced to the water. The milk was the great danger down here. At the small shops it was often carelessly stored and carelessly handled. From the beginning, I bought our milk up town though I had to pay a cent a quart more for it. Ruth picked out all the fish and meat and of course nothing tainted in this line could be sold to her. We ate few canned goods and then nothing but canned vegetables. Many of our neighbours used canned meats. I don't know whether any sickness resulted from this or not, but I know that they often left the stuff for hours in an opened tin. Many of the tenements swarmed with flies in the summer, although it was a small matter to keep them out of four rooms. So, if the canned stuff didn't get infected it was a wonder.

The sanitary arrangements in the flat were good, though here again many families proceeded to make them bad about as fast as they could. These people didn't seem to mind dirt in any form. It was a perfectly simple and inexpensive matter to keep themselves and their surroundings clean if they cared to take the trouble.

Then the food contributed largely towards our good health. Ruth spent a great deal of time up there during the day and the boy slept there during the summer.

Our simple food and exercise also helped, while for me nothing could have been better than my daily plunge in the salt water. I kept this up as long as the bath house was open, and in the winter took a cold sponge and rub-down every night. So, too, did the boy.

For the rest we all took sensible precautions against exposure. We dressed warmly and kept our feet dry. Here again our neighbours were insanely foolish. They never changed their clothes until bed time, didn't keep them clean or fresh at any time, and they lived in a temperature of eighty-five with the air foul from many breaths and tobacco smoke. Even the children had to breathe this. Then both men and women went out from this into the cold air either over-dressed or under-dressed. The result of such foolishness very naturally was tuberculosis, pneumonia, typhoid and about everything else that contributes to a high death rate. Not only this but one person suffering from any of these things infected a whole family.

Such conditions were not due to a lack of money but to a lack of education. The new generation was making some changes, however. Often a girl or boy in the public schools would come home and transform the three or four rooms though always under protest from the elders. Clean surroundings and fresh air troubled the old folks.

Ruth, too, was responsible for many changes for the better in the lives of these people. Her very presence in a room was an inspiration to cleanliness. Her clothes were no better than theirs, but she stood out among them like a vestal virgin. She came into their quarters and made the women ashamed that the rooms were not better fitted to receive so pure a being. You would scarcely have recognized Michele's rooms at the end of the first year. The windows were cleaned, the floors scrubbed, and even the bed linen was flashed occasionally. The baby gained in weight and Michele, when he wanted to smoke, either sat outside on the door step or by an open window. But Michele was an exception.

Ruth's efforts were not confined to our own building either. Her influence spread down the street and through the whole district. The district nurse was a frequent visitor, and kept her informed of all her cases. Wherever Ruth could do anything she did it. Her first object was always to awaken the women to the value of cleanliness and after that she tried her best to teach them little ways of preparing their food more economically. Few of them knew the value of oatmeal for instance though of course their macaroni and spaghetti was a pretty good substitute. In fact Ruth picked up many new dishes of this sort for herself from among them.

Some families spent as much for beer as for milk. Ruth couldn't change that practice but she did make them more careful where they bought their milk—especially when there was a baby in the house. Then, too, she shared all her secrets of where and how to buy cheaply. Sometimes advantage was taken of these hints, but more often not. They did not pay much more for many articles than she did, but they didn't get as good quality. However, as long as the food tasted good and satisfied their hunger you couldn't make them take an extra and get stuff because it was more nutritious or more healthful. They couldn't think ahead except in the matter of saving dollars and cents.

The people, of course, were of the lower class. There was another element of decidedly finer quality. Giuseppe, for example, was one of these, and there were hundreds of others. It was among these that Ruth's influence counted for the most. They not only took advantage of her superior intelligence in conducting their households, but they breathed in something of the soul of her. When I saw them send for her in their grief and in their joy, when I heard them ask her advice with almost the confidence with which they prayed, when I heard them give her such names as "the angel mother," "the blessed American saint," I felt very proud and very humble. Such things made me glad in another way for the change which had taken her out of the old life, where such qualities were lost and brought her down here where they counted for so much. These people stripped of convention live with their hearts very near the surface. They don't try to conceal their emotions and, so you are brought very quickly into close touch with them. Ruth herself was a good deal like that, and so her influence for a day among them counted for as much as a year with the old crowd.

In the meanwhile I resumed my night school at the end of the summer vacation and was glad to get back to it. I had missed the work and went at it this next winter with increased eagerness to perfect myself in my trade. During this second year too, I never relaxed my efforts to keep my gang up to standard and whenever possible to better it by the addition of new men. Every month I thought I increased the respect of the men for me and my fair dealing with them. I don't mean to say I fully realized the expectations of which I had dreamed. I suppose that at first I dreamed a bit wildly. There was very little sentiment in the relation of the men to me, although there was some. Still I don't want to give the impression that I made of them a gang of blind personal followers such as some religious cranks get together. It was necessary to make them see that it was for their interest to work for me, and with me and I did do. I made them are also that in order to work for me they had to work a little more faithfully than they worked for others. So it was a straight business proposition. What sentiment there was came through the personal interest I took in them outside of their work. It was this which made them loyal, instead of merely hard workers. It was this which made them my gang instead of Corkery's gang—a thing that counted for a good deal later on.

The personal reputation I had won gave me new opportunities of which I took every advantage this second year. It put me in touch with the responsible heads of departments. Through them I was able to acquire a much broader and more accurate knowledge of the business as a whole. I asked as many questions here as I had below. I received more intelligent answers and was able to understand them more intelligently. I not only learned prices, but where to get authoritative prices. As far as possible I made myself acquainted with the men working for the building constructors and for those working for firms whose specialty was the tearing down of buildings. I used my note-book as usual and entered the names of every man who, in his line, seemed to me especially valuable.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

What is the particular grammatical error that most offends your ear?"

That question came up the other day and each of us contributed to the discussion a mention of that particular error, that he noticed most quickly.

One never heard "she don't" or "he don't" without shuddering.

Another never noticed that mistake particularly, but "did hate to hear anyone say 'those kind'"

A third thought it more than likely that he offended in either of these directions but flattered himself that he never said "with Ruth and I" the way some people he knew did.

"Not as much as" for the correct "not so much as" was the error that another ear always registered.

"It always troubles me when I hear anyone use the comparison of the adjective for the comparison of the adverb as 'she does it easier' for 'she does it more easily,' I mean" was another contribution.

"I never can bear to hear anyone say 'won't'" was a feminine nicety.

And the most interesting part of the conversation was, that as each error was mentioned at least one member of the group said, "I'm afraid I say that sometimes"—or words to that effect.

Almost everyone, no matter how well educated, has some pet blunder which he continually makes.

Sometimes these blunders are as atrocious as they are unconscious. Everyone knows the story of the schoolmaster who told his pupils they should "never use a preposition to end a sentence with." I really heard a pretty good parallel to that the other day when a man who was talking to me about the necessity for more care in the use of language said, "I don't think there is any need for so many of those kind of errors."

It seems to be as difficult to hear ourselves as others hear us as to "see ourselves as others see us."

Wherefore it seems to me that an occasional conversation like this one of ours is an invaluable eye opener—or perhaps I should say, ear-opener.

So why not bring up that question at the dinner table or on the piazza some day?—"What is the particular grammatical error that most offends your ear?"

If you do I promise you that you will hear some of your own idioms pilloried in a way that will be apt to make you more careful in the future.

ANNUAL SCHOOL PIC-NIC HELD

The annual school picnic of S. S. No. 2, Smith, was duly observed on Friday afternoon, June 30, in the school grounds. The affair was well attended and was a decided success as far as social enjoyment was concerned. Besides, the pupils and parents a number of visitors from the neighbouring sections took part in the amusements of the day. During the afternoon a goodly number of races and games were indulged in in which all took part heartily.

About six o'clock tea was served by the ladies and about eighty-five sat down to a sumptuous repast, after which the pupils of the school presented Miss Dewart, the teacher, with a writing portfolio, accompanied by an address. The address was read by Miss Jennie Paul and the presentation made by Master Gordon McGregor. Miss Dewart made a suitable reply, expressing her appreciation for the gift and thanking the pupils and parents for their kindness during the two years spent among them, to which she would always look back with much pleasure.

VAGRANTS DISCHARGED

Local Young Men Appeared on Vagrancy Charge—Allowed to go.

The two young men who appeared in the police court a few days ago, charged with vagrancy, being found in a barn sleeping, were discharged this morning. The Chief stated that he had a lot of evidence that he could bring against them, but he had decided not to offer any, as they were young and he wanted to give them a chance. The Magistrate, in giving them some good advice, told them that they were breaking their mothers' hearts and grieving their fathers, and he said that just now, the best day's work they ever did would be to cut out all this wrong doing. He said that he would discharge them without any further words, and they could either make blackguards of themselves or be decent men.

A HOT TIME AT COUNCIL MEETING

street north and to authorize its conveyance to the Auburn Power Company went through without opposition.

The Council adjourned at 3.45 o'clock, the session lasting but forty-five minutes.

The Council by a vote of 6 to 4, declined to amend the by-law recently passed in regard to the control of the Fire Department. Ald. Edgar introduced a motion that the by-law should be amended, his intention being to have the clause making it compulsory for the Chief to consult the Fire, Water and Light committee before engaging or discharging men, repealed.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Buller and was defeated by the following vote:

Yeas—Ald. Edgar, Anderson, Bradburn, Buller.

Nays — Ald. Duncan, Metheral, Brown, Graham, Kernaghan, Morgan, Ald. Morgan, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, said the Chief was entirely satisfied with the clause in question.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the matter of putting a cedar hedge along the south side of the Public Library grounds, be left in the hands of the Property committee with power to act.

Ald. Metheral reported that Mrs. Grant, Bolivar street, was, in his opinion, entitled to a refund of $20.00, on account of expenses caused to her by a faulty sewer construction in front of her residence. He introduced a motion to this effect, which was seconded by Ald. Bradburn and carried.

Ald. Buller thought this amount should be deducted from the city officials who were responsible for the mistake and moved to this effect, seconded by Ald. Morgan. The motion was lost. It was difficult to decide under the circumstances just whom should be responsible.

The Milk By-Law.

Ald. Buller gave notice of motion that at the next regular meeting of the council he would move the repealing of that clause of the milk by-law which provided for milk being delivered in bottles. He said that the price of milk would be jumped as a consequence of this clause and the outlay of securing bottles would be jumped from 6c. to 8c. and that the poor people would suffer in consequence.

On motion of Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Duncan, the council adjourned until the regular meeting in September unless a special session is called by the Mayor.

SPECIAL REPORT OF CHAIRMAN OF ROADS AND BRIDGES

County Council,
June Session, 1911.

To the Warden and Members of the County Council:

Gentlemen,—Acting upon authority of the report of the Standing Committee on Roads and Bridges last session, and other requests of the different representatives of the municipalities, I respectfully beg leave to report as follows:

Early in February a visit was made to Brown's Falls Bridge, and a special minute of the meeting will disclose what took place.

Later in February it having been decided to visit the Lithographic mine for the benefit of added members to that committee, and in order to kill two birds with one stone, Brown's Falls Bridge was again visited, at the same time giving Messrs Graham and Tucker an oportunity of inspecting Burleigh Falls Bridge, the result of which Mr. Graham will report to you. With reference to the Lithographic claim, Mr. Knox will report.

On April 5th, Spencer's Bridge, Dummer, and Brown's Falls Bridge sites were visited in company with Geo. Baptie, Esq., Lakefield, who, as will be seen by special minute, was engaged to construct the abutments of both bridges by day-work.

Subsequent to that Mr. Thompson, M.P.P., on short notice arranged with the Minister of Public Works for Ontario to meet the committee, and the results of such conference will also be seen by special meeting following.

Later, about the beginning of May, as a result of notice to the Warden that the County of Victoria had decided to extend the pipe railing at the south end of Little Bob Bridge, 225 feet, meaning of course 450 feet, thereby, if no objection would be raised, involving this county for its share of the extra expenditure, Messrs. Coben, Shaw and myself met some of the Victoria Council at the bridge, and a special minute will show what action was taken.

While up there we drove over to the Mississauga Bridges, having had it reported to us that one of them was in a dangerous condition, and following, two spans have been filled in, thereby saving to the county considerable money, which will be presented to you by the Reeve of Harvey.

On February 3rd, at the instance of Mr. Comstock, who was authorized by order in Council to have Asphodel Bridges inspected, we visited the following: Birdsall's Bridge, where we found a wooden structure 75 feet long from abutment faces, two centre piers with five cedar stringers, being built 30 years ago, and could not be expected to last more than two years longer.

We also visited Comstock's Bridge, and we recommend to Mr. Comstock to have it painted right away.

We also visited Welbeck's Bridge. It has been refloored since assumption by the county, and appears to be in good repair for some years to come.

We also visited Davidson's Bridge and found it in good state of repair.

McNulty's Bridge, built by the county in 1907, is a credit to the county.

We found Greenbank's Bridge, a wooden structure 65 feet long from the abutment faces and one pier, and would recommend that it be assumed by the county.

In company with the Deputy-Reeve of Cavan, I visited the bridges on the boundary between Peterborough and Northumberland and Durham Counties. Douglas Bridge we found in good condition, as was also Clarke's Bridge. With reference to Dunlop's Bridge, we decided to build a new cedar abutment, filled with suitable material, at the north end.

Following your order of January 1 have made provision for some slight repairs and repainting of the Lock's Bridge.

Your Bridges Construction Committee met on Monday and awarded the contract re building of Spencer's and Brown's Falls Bridges for steel superstructure in each case, with concrete floor, for the sum of $4,210 for both.

I would recommend that Ward's Bridge be assumed by the county.

Respectfully submitted.

(Sgd.) W. G. HOWDEN,
Chairman, Roads and Bridges.

REGULAR REPORT OF THE CHAIRMAN OF THE FINANCE COMMITEE

June, 1911.

To the Members of the Standing Committee on Finance for the year 1911.

Gentlemen,—In presenting my report, consisting principally of recommendations, that I submit to your considerations, I will be as brief as possible.

As set out in the address from the Warden's Chair, you will again permit me to refer to the increase of expenditure over which we have no control, and the same being authorised by the Legislature, will appeal to you as being just and consistent with the cost of living, travelling expenses, etc.

In increasing the juror's fees, the legislative members of our Province deemed it advisable to increase other professional fees for the discharge of their duties when called upon. No doubt the different amendments will be discussed during the session.

The Warden also referred to the deficit at the end of 1910, due to a multiplicity of cases requiring investigation, and although the total amount levied for all purposes by the Council in 1910 was $30,530.73, which fell short by $5,637.17, at the same time I trust that by recommending to you that you will sanction the levying of $32,889.58, thereby raising the sum of $2,358.85 more than last year, after taking into estimated expenditures the sum of $5,637.17 before referred to, being the amount in excess of levy last year, or in other words deficit, December 31, 1910.

The Board of Management of the House of Refuge through me respectfully submit for your approval an amount they deem necessary to carry on that Institution this year, which will be seen further on.

The Provincial Government has notified the Treasurer that the sum of $1,158.00 will be forthcoming to this county as a grant to be duplicated by the county and all rural sections levied for an equivalent.

The rates necessary, if approved of by you, are as follows:

General rate, 3 mills, or in all, $36,891.58.

House of Refuge, 54-100 mills, or in all, $4,840.

Schools Rate, 14 7-20-100 mills, or in all, $1,158.

Debentures issued 1891, borrowing $30,000.00 spreading over a period of 20 years, mature now, and a sinking fund having been provided partly in the ordinary way and partly otherwise, requires your attention now, before the 30th of this month, and to order either the selling of sufficient of the debentures, held by the county to meet the amount, together with the provisions to 1911 inclusive, or hypothecate the same in lieu of an advance from the bank.

In submitting the above, I look forward to the same united effort as you have put forth in all the other departments in the interest of the county at large.

Respectfully submitted.

(Sgd.) F. MOHER,
Chairman Finance Committee.

County Council Chamber,
Peterborough.

3. That the Warden and Clerk sign and forward to the Provincial Government memorial re expenses Coroner's investigations.

4. That no action be taken re Ontario Provincial Fair.

5. That no action be taken re the petition respecting the Ontario Municipal Association for the Betterment of Consumptives.

9. That the sum of $250.00 be made to the Children's Aid Society.

10. That the payments made in Schedule B be sanctioned.

11. That the county secure a box in P.O. for mail.

12. That the accounts set forth in Schedule A be paid.

13. That the accounts re Hutt of Dr. Cameron and McCull be referred to the County Solicitor.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. MOHER, Chairman.
Peterborough County Council
Chamber, June 23, 1911.

A JUNE IDYLL

One Sabbath day when June was here,
Five persons strolled beside a mere;
When discord, in the shape of pride,
Stepped in when one a saw-log spied.
They fancied, on this Sabbath day,
Their pictures would look well that way.
Four ladies on a saw-log sat,
Some were lean and some were fat,
The sun was hot—yes, blazing hot;
The water 'neath the log was not.
They sat in attitudes of grace,
With smiles adorning every face,
The pilot kept on pictures taking,
As if he were his living making
From front and rear, and either side.
He, through his glass, these ladies spied.
And ever and anon he looked
At a cool spot, where fish were hooked.
Then slowly gliding up the stream
He lost himself in a fisher's dream.
Lost in amazement at such calm,
These ladies four feel their first qualm,
All unconcerned he seeks the shore,
And there enjoys himself some more.
The ladies now begin to worry,
And wish that dreadful man "would hurry"!
The pilot on an island near,
Smoked, with a smile from ear to ear,
The man reclines 'neath willows sweeping,
The ladies meanwhile, almost weeping.
Strangely enough, the Baptist one,
Saw in this joke not a scrap of fun.
Though mud is smugg is always found,
The lady from there preferred dry ground.
The log, meanwhile, was so wet and slippy,
These ladies, four, were well-nigh dippy;
With squeals of fear and wails of sorrow
They, vengeance vowed, on that man to-morrow.
No more he'd fish with a smile serene,
Domestic woe would be his, I ween:
He pondered it o'er, and decided at last,
That the joke in his action was wearing out fast;
And, at last, the poor pilot, in fear for his life,
Fairly rushed out to rescue his angry wife.

PRESENTATION TO TEACHER

On the day of closing, June 29, the pupils of S. S. No. 1, Smith (Zion school) presented their teacher, Miss Mina E. Throop with an address and an ebony manicuring set, ebony brush and comb. The presentation was made by Miss Ila Heard and the address read by Master Archie Rosborough:

Dear Miss Throop.—It is now three and a half years since you came to our school and became our teacher. During that time we have tried your patience many times, sometimes by being so slow to comprehend the instructions you were striving to impart; at other times by our thoughtlessness and neglect of studies. We did not mean to be disobedient, but you were always kind and forgiving.

We regret your departure from our midst very much. We have always taken you as our model, and have found you the same on every occasion.

In losing you, we lose one, loved by all and a true friend. We hope success will follow you wherever you go, and that you will often think of us, as we will of you.

As a token of our love and esteem for you, we ask you to accept this gift. It carries with it our love and best wishes.

Wishing you a very pleasant holiday, we remain,

Your loving pupils,
Albert Ball,
Lorne Northey,
Roger Trennum,
Reginald Cockburn.

Signed on behalf of the school,
Zion, June 29, 1911.

Miss Throop, in a few words, expressed her appreciation of their kindness and bade them farewell with regret.

YOU CAN HAVE HEALTHY HAIR

Use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, A Harmless Remedy That Makes the Hair Grow.

What a pity it is to observe so many people with thin and faded hair and then realize that the most of these people might have a fine, healthy head of hair if they would but use the simple "sage tea" of our grandmothers, combined with other ingredients for restoring and preserving the hair. No one, young or old, need have gray hair, weak, thin, or falling hair, dandruff or any trouble of the sort if they would but use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. On the contrary it is possible to have healthy, vigorous hair, of perfect colour, by a few applications of this remarkable preparation.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly removes dandruff, leaves the scalp clean and healthy, promotes the growth of the hair and restores the natural colour of the hair which has become faded or gray. It is a clean, wholesome dressing, which may be used at any time and with perfect safety. Don't neglect your hair. Start to-day with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

SOLDIERS CALLED OUT

Special to The Examiner.

MANCHESTER, ENG., JULY 4.—Soldiers have been called out to deal with the 12,000 carters rioting in the streets. A strike is threatened. The traffic in the streets has been hindered.

A SANE FOURTH

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, JULY 4.—Indications here are that the United States is to-day celebrating a really "safe and sane" 4th. In this city, as well as in many others, fireworks have been prohibited, although compensation is made by fireworks set off in the municipality under the supervision of the police.

The price of one suit of clothes, wisely invested, will increase your yearly income by at least 30 per cent. Yes, it's a Moon College ad., but, like all other Moon College Ads., it is fact, not fiction.

COOL WAVE EXPECTED

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, JULY 4.—In nearly every part throughout Ontario and the United States the temperature is still high to-day, although it dropped off since yesterday. It is expected there will be a cool wave to-night or to-morrow. In some districts the crops have been injured by the excessive heat. In this city ten thousand people spent last night in the parks.

FELL FROM A LADDER

A painful accident occurred to Mr P. E. Doupe, painter, yesterday, in the course of his work. While inspecting the job of painting at the new Bonner-Worth factory, he was going up a ladder, and, while at the top the ladder slipped, precipitating him about fifteen feet, to the ground, injuring his heels and ankles. He will be lucky if he is able to be around as usual in two or three weeks' time.

IN CASE OF A SUN STROKE

The person should be placed at in a warm bath, and the water gradually cooled until it was down to 93 degrees, or normal blood heat. Particular care should be taken not to give shock, such as would result from the application of cold water, as this might have serious effects. Children especially suffering from the effects of the heat should be stripped, placed in a warm bath, and the water cooled gradually.

AMAZING FEATS OF DARING AND RIDING

Leaping from the back of a rapidly-galloping horse on to the neck of a flying long-horned steer and throwing it with his bare hands is but pastime for Buffalo Vernon, who comes to this city, Saturday, July 8, afternoon and night, with the Young Buffalo Wild West Show. While he performs this feat with what appears to the audience to be the greatest ease, he is the only man in the world who has ever performed it. As his charging pony reaches the hot sides of the steer, Vernon leaps from his saddle on to the animal's neck. He siezes the beast by its horns and, with a quick jerk, turns its head towards him. Then he sinks his teeth into the animal's lips, and, with one quick twist of his arms and his neck, hurls the animal to the ground. The feat performed by Buffalo Vernon is, however, but one of the feats of daring performed by the cowboys with the Young Buffalo Show. The big Wild West Show has with it this year, Montana Jack, the only cowboy in the world who has crawled beneath his mount's stomach while in full gallop; Fred Burns, who is known from coast to coast as "The King of the Rope," Annie Oakley, the peerless woman wing and rifle shot; Captain Bogardus, the undefeated champion marksman of the world; Curtis Liston and Captain Stuart, remarkable shorpshooters; and Rough Riders for all quarters of the globe. In addition, it has with it, Ambrose Means, the "lion lassoer" of Africa; a whole tribe of Cheyenne Indians, under command of Chief Thunder Bird, the richest Indian in the United States, whose street costume cost $1,800; a cowgirl's band; dozens of daring women of the plains, who ride bucking broncos and depict the life of the plains as braved by the hardy wives of the first western pioneers.

The big Wild West Show will inaugurate its engagement in this city with a big street parade, which will take place at 10.30 o'clock on the day of the exhibition. The 700 men and women and 300 horses and other features will participate in this street demonstration, which is said to be the finest ever given by any tented amusement enterprise.

Presented With Travelling Bag

The teachers of the Collegiate Institute staff presented Mr. E. C. Srigley with a beautiful travelling bag on Thursday last, at the last meeting of the teachers, when the reports were being presented. The presentation was made by Mr. Feasenden.

Mr. H. E. H. Kenner expressed the regret of the teachers at losing such a valued member of the staff.

Mr. Srigley made a suitable reply, in which he expressed his thanks for the kindness that had been shown to him by the teachers, and stated that he would cherish the present as a token of remembrance of the many happy days he spent as a member of the Collegiate staff here.

All the teachers were present, and expressed their deep feeling of regret at losing a brother teacher so respected as the departing member. Mr. Srigley has been a member of the staff for nine years, during which time he has been a faithful and kind teacher, and he will not only be missed by the other teachers, but his departure will be regretted by the many pupils whom he has taught, who are still in the city. Mr. Srigley's many friends wish him success in his new field of labour.

HOTTEST IN HISTORY

Thermometer at Toronto and Hamilton Registered 103—All Official Records for Torrid Weather are Broken in Ontario

DEATHS IN TORONTO

Toronto, July 4.—The record temperature of 101.1 degrees on Sunday received a knockout blow at 2.30 yesterday afternoon, when the mercury at the meteorological office registered 103.3 degrees in the shade. This is a new high-water mark for local temperatures and surpasses anything the observatory officials have either seen or read about in the history of Toronto.

From all over Ontario the official reports show that temperature records have all been broken everywhere. At London, Ont., the thermometer yesterday pointed at 102 degrees, while an immense area south and southwest of the great lakes showed a temperature of 100 degrees and over, at every place heard from. The most remarkable feature of the present heat wave is the enormous range of territory affected by it and the abnormal length of time the excessive heat is persisting.

Thousands of Torontonians again spent the greater part of the night out-of-doors. All along University avenue, whole families lay asleep on the grass, and round the City Hall terraces scores of people were stretched out trying to snatch a few hours sleep.

The streets through "the ward" were crowded with men, women and children, many "undress" uniform, sitting or lying anywhere, and everywhere. It was an out-of-door community, the houses being practically deserted.

A number of foundries closed down yesterday, as it was too hot to permit of employes working.

Two deaths occurred yesterday, more or less directly attributed to the excessive heat. Three are in hospital suffering from severe sunstroke, two cases being critical, while at both St. Michael's and Grace Hospitals several more or less serious prostrations were reported as having been brought in during the day.

Mrs. Charlotte Creswell, 30 St. Mary street, was found dead in her bed at her home by her sister.

Mrs. J. Ward, 1,947 College street, was found dead in the bathroom there. Death is said to be due to heart failure induced by the oppressive heat.

Ten prostrations from the weather were recorded at the city hospitals.

Hamilton Factories Close.

Hamilton, July 4.—Not satisfied with his record-breaking stunt of running the temperature up to 102 in the shade here Sunday, Old Sol surpassed himself yesterday, and when he retired his day's work here he left a mark of 103 in the shade. And nobody doubts yesterday's record. The temperature was appreciably warmer than it was on Sunday, and everybody suffered from the heat. The police ambulance was called out yesterday afternoon by a man being overcome with the heat on King street, but before it arrived the man had been taken away in an automobile. Some of the factories closed down on account of the torrid weather and everyone busied himself with keeping as cool as possible.

Ninety-Three at Montreal Sounds Cool

Montreal, July 4.—The heat wave which has been passing over Ontario reached here yesterday undiminished and sent the mercury soaring away above the figures set up Sunday.

At 4.30 o'clock, the thermometer at the McGill Observatory, situated in a cool and shady nook on the mountain side, registered 93 degrees. In the sun over 100 degrees was common, while in the city proper, thermometers in the shade climbed close to the century mark. Several prostrations are reported.

At the Hotel Dieu, an unknown man lies in a critical condition as a result of the intense heat.

And They Call That Hot!

Kingston, June 4.—The highest temperature received officially in Kingston during the past two days was 92 degrees, according to Queen's observatory report.

One Death In Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 4.—As a result of the intense heat Matthew Mathon, hydrant inspector, died yesterday. A Dominion policeman found him dying unconscious on Lover's Walk below Parliament Hill.

Oppressive Weather In New York.

New York, July 4.—The siege of oppressive hot weather continues throughout New York State.

To the maximum of 94.5 degrees, which the heat wave officially reached here Sunday, 3 1-2 degrees were added by yesterday's maximum of 93, recorded at noon. To the list of ten lives which succumbed here in Sunday's torrid tide, as many more were added yesterday, while the list of prostrations officially reported ran upwards of a score. In Herald square the bulb registered 105, while the glass on The World Building marked 110.

Up-state points reported similar woe. At the Cornell weather station in Ithaca, a temperature of 101 degrees, the highest since the station was established thirty years ago, was officially reported.

Broke the Record.

Newark, N.J., July 4.—Yesterday was four degrees hotter than any other recorded here since the weather bureau was established. The official thermometer stood at 103 at 3 p.m., while bulbs on the street registered 111 degrees. Eight deaths and scores of prostrations were reported last night.

Mills Shut Down.

Pittsburg, July 4—The thermometer was "going up" all day, starting at 4 a.m., when it was 73, and touching the high point of 97 at 3 p.m. Between 4 and 5 p.m. there was a slight recession, but at 5 p.m. the mercury touched 97 again.

Meantime, in the Government weather kiosk on the street the temperature hovered about 105. Many prostrations and deaths are reported, the list of drownings in particular being a very long one. Many of the mills are beginning to shut down because of the danger of the ironworkers collapsing in the unbearable heat.

The Heat at Cleveland.

Cleveland, July 4.—The heat record for the summer was broken here yesterday, when between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday the maximum weather bureau temperature of 104 was registered. At 2 p.m. the kiosk temperature was 102. A number of prostrations were reported.

Broke the Thermometer.

Troy, N.Y., July 4.—Yesterday was the hottest July 3 in the history of the city, the thermometer registering 103 degrees in the shade and in the sun the mercury ran as high as 120. Several thermometers exposed to the sun were broken, the mercury reaching the highest point marked on the dial and then bursting the tube. There were several prostrations.

Both Parties Refuse.

Banff, Alta., July 4.—At a meeting of the conciliation board, held yesterday, both parties positively refused to accept the proposals of Chairman Gordon, made Saturday afternoon and made public yesterday morning. The operators submitted a brief written rejection of the proposals, stating that they contained terms and conditions to which they could not assent.

Mr. Stubbs, on behalf the miners, said they had no written statement to make, but were ready to state verbally that the mine workers could not consider the offer made in any way as a basis of agreement.

$50,000 For Queen's

Kingston, July 4.—Dr. James Douglas of New York, a trustee and graduate of Queen's University, who promised to give the university $50,000 provided it was freed from church control, has sent the registrar of Queen's a check for that amount. His donation is for the endowment of the chair in colonial history. William L. Grant, son of the late principal, is professor of this department, which is the first of its kind in Canada.

PROGRESS IS SLOW

Mr. Borden is Finding the West a Hard Proposition—High Tariff Proposals are Met with Respectful Silence

SASKATOON'S RECEPTION

Saskatoon, July 4.—The last week of the Opposition leader's campaign in the prairie provinces opened with a quiet meeting at Rosthern and an enthusiastic reception here last evening.

Mr. Borden was met at the station by several hundred people, and was then driven out to the fair grounds, where he was tendered a luncheon and addressed by the fair directors. Subsequently he met the grain growers and addressed a public meeting. Rosthern and Saskatoon are both in the constituency which is represented at Ottawa by George McCraney, Liberal. Rosthern especially is a strong Liberal town and the chairman of the meeting made no attempt to disguise that fact. "If there is a little band of Conservatives from the Atlantic to the Pacific," he said, "that needs encouragement, it is the band at Rosthern. We have been fighting an uphill game and we are still up against it. But I can say this to Mr. Borden, that I do not think there will ever be an acclamation from Rosthern. We will always put up a fight. As each victim puts up his deposit and generally fails to redeem it, all we do is to put a piece of beefsteak to our black eye and hunt for the next victim."

There were about 300 people at the meeting and, as usual, they gave Mr. Borden an excellent hearing.

There were no interruptions, but there was little cheering. There was, however, a ready response to any appeals to loyalty. They cheered Mr. Borden when he spoke of the value of the British markets. They cheered references to British preference. They cheered his emphasis on the need of administering the public funds so that the people should get a dollar's worth for every dollar spent. They cheered his platform on the Hudson Bay Railway, the grain elevators and the restoration to the provinces of their natural resources, but they did not cheer arguments against reciprocity, and they did not cheer when he asserted his belief that the people would not ratify the reciprocity agreement.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The seamen's strike is nearing an end.

Mr. Samuel J. Fox, M.P.P., died at Lindsay.

Bernard Shapiro and Elias B. Shapiro, tried for conspiracy to defraud their creditors, were yesterday honorably acquitted by Judge Langelier at Montreal.

Pietro Cisco, an Italian, aged 66, was drowned last evening at the Soo, while proceeding from construction work there to the dock, in company with 11 other laborers.

The fires in Porcupine district broke out again yesterday. At the Dome Extension mine a force of men had to descend into the shaft to save themselves from the flames.

The Canadian Bisley team is now happily established at the Canadian Pavilion. It arrived so late, in charge of Major Burland, that it had to spend the night in London.

Five thousand and eighty-one signatures have been appended at the Soo to the petition to save Mrs. Neapolitana from the gallows. The petition was forwarded to Earl Grey yesterday.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Coronation troops have sailed from Liverpool.

When nine miles out of Olcott Beach, N.Y., Sunday the steamer Olcott of Toronto picked up a body floating in the lake. It was much decomposed and was taken aboard and into Olcott.

Warned by Disaster.

Montreal, July 4.—Aroused into activity by the collapse of the King Edward Park wharf a week ago, the authorities are now taking great precautions to prevent any disaster through overcrowding among the pleasure-seekers who visit that amusement resort.

Under orders from the Department of Marine and Fisheries, inspectors have been placed on the wharves and at the gangways of the ferryboats, and these refuse to allow the officers of the ferries to carry at a trip any more passengers than they are registered to carry.

In the past vessels had been carrying hundreds more passengers each trip than the figures in the records regarding their capacity indicated.

May Be Trouble In Hull.

Ottawa, July 4.—Before the Hull City Council last night petitions asking that the Orange celebrations planned for July 12 be stopped, were presented. These were from the Cercle Reboul, Catholic Orders of Foresters, St. Joseph's Union, L'Alliance Nationale, Catholic Mutual Benefit Association and the Catholic School Commissioners. The mayor wrote Dr. Sproule, saying that trouble would likely arise, and the doctor denied the imputation, and said he had no power to direct the Orange lodges in their selection of a place to celebrate. He assured the mayor, if there was no interference, the Orangemen would cause no trouble. The council will meet to-night to consider if they shall refuse permission for the celebration.

Suing Municipalities.

Montreal, July 4.—Following the instructions of the Provincial Board of Health, Messrs. Geoffrion, Geoffrion & Cusson, have entered action against six municipalities which refused or neglected to carry out the instructions of the Board of Health regarding compulsory vaccination.

The municipalities being sued are: Mashinonge, St. Fidele, County of Charlebois, St. Charles Borromee, County of St. Joseph de Blanford; and St. Lazare, County of Vaudreuil.

Each municipality is being sued for $100, which is the amount of the fine for four days' delay in adopting measures for compulsory vaccination.

Shaw Will Recover.

Cornwall, July 4.—R. A. Pringle, K.C., of the firm of Pringle & Smith, Cornwall, has been retained by the defence in the case of Farquhar McRae, accused of the shooting of William Shaw, the Carp druggist, at Bridgend on the afternoon of Dominion Day. McRae has been remanded until Friday morning for the preliminary hearing, and both the crown and defence refuse to divulge the line of action they are likely to take when the prisoner appears. Shaw's condition is reported by his physician as being fairly good, and it is confidently hoped that he will recover.

Brakeman Killed.

Trenton, July 4.—While the way freight train was shunting at Trenton station yesterday morning, one of the cars was derailed and badly smashed. The auxiliary train from Belleville was quickly on the scene and busy clearing the tracks. Daniel Loller, a brakeman of the auxiliary train, was sent back to signal No. 5, the passenger train from the east, and not returning after the tracks were cleared, some of the train crew went to look for him, and found his body badly mangled between the rails. He was a married man, and leaves a widow and one child.

No Fireworks In New York.

New York, July 4.—Determined to lead in the movement for a safe and sane celebration of the fourth, fire and police department heads declare that at least a record for safety and sanity will be established in this city to-day.

It is asserted that no fireworks or firecrackers have been on sale within the city for a month, and those who may have planned to outwit the authorities by buying a supply elsewhere will find that they have purchased in vain, for the police are insistent that public sport with gunpowder will be absolutely prohibited.

Fooled With the Trigger.

Parkhill, July 4.—Ivan Jones, son of George Jones, of this town, when out in the woods shooting with a 32 self-cocking revolver on Saturday was fooling with the trigger and discharged the weapon, severing a small part of his right foot.

Twice "Broke" Pen.

Winnipeg, July 4.—Arthur Williams, a United States desperado, who escaped from Stoney Mountain penitentiary for the second time on Saturday, was captured after an exciting man-hunt. The officers say bars will not hold this man.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, July 3.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was fairly good, and the prices bid for No. 2 northern were 4½d per quarter higher than on Friday, consequently some business was done for July-August shipment. The local trade in coarse grains was quiet, the demand being only for small lots to fill actual wants. A fair volume of business continues to be done in spring wheat flour for local consumption at steady prices. Demand for bran and shorts is good, and sales of latter were made for export account.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 41¾c to 41¾c, car lots, ex-store; extra No. 1 feed, 40¾c to 41c; No. 2 C.W., 40¾c to 40½c; No. 3 local white, 39¾c to 40c; No. 3 local white, 39½c to 39¾c; No. 4 local white, 38¾c to 38½c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, July 3.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 130 carloads, consisting of 2600 cattle, 7 hogs, 308 sheep and lambs, 62 calves and 13 horses.

Butchers.

Choice lots and loads of butchers' heifers and steers sold at $5.90 to $6.05; loads of good, $5.70 to $5.90; medium, $5.50 to $5.65; common, $5.25 to $5.50; cows, $3 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply of milkers and springers sold at $50 to $60 each, and one of topper quality at $75.

Veal Calves.

The bulk of the veal calves sold from 6 to 7c per cwt., or an average of $6.75 per cwt., and in one or two instances 8c per cwt. was paid.

Sheep and Lambs.

Light ewes sold at $3.50 to $4.50 per cwt.; heavy ewes and rams, $3 to $3.50; spring lambs, $6.50 to $7.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Johnston of Gunn Co. reports selects fed and watered, at $7.05, and $6.75 f.o.b., cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 3.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 1 were 1920 cattle, 1250 sheep and lambs, 3070 hogs and 1385 calves. The offerings at the market this morning amounted to 900 cattle, 675 sheep and lambs, 1625 hogs and 600 calves.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for cattle, notwithstanding the fact that the supply was rather larger than a week ago, and the weather exceedingly hot, which tended to curtail the demand from local buyers to some extent; consequently trade was rather slow.

Cable advices from Liverpool were much stronger, and noted an advance in prices of 1c per pound over a week ago, on account of the small home supplies and the stoppage of Irish cattle coming forward thru the vessels being held up by the shipping strike, which, if it is continued very long, will no doubt tend to put prices still higher in the near future and increase the demand for cattle for export account here.

A few sales of extra choice steers were made here at 6¼c; choice at 6¼c; good at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c, and common at 4½c to 4¾c per pound. There were a number of cows among the offerings, which sold at from 3¾c to 5½c per pound, as to quality, while bulls brought from 4½c to 5½c per pound.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for hogs, except that the feeling was more settled, and prices in consequence were more regular. The supply was ample to fill all requirements, and a fairly active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $7.00; mixed lots at $7 to $7.25; sows at $5 to $5.50, and stags at $4 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

A more active trade was done in sheep, lambs and calves on account of the increased offerings; but, as the demand was good, the tone of the market ruled steady and prices show no change. Sheep sold at 4c to 4½c per pound; spring lambs at $4.50 to $6 each, and calves at from $2 to $9 each, as to size and quality.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 2275; market active; 10c to 15c higher; prime steers, $6.80 to $6.90; butcher grades, $6.75 to $6.25; cows, $3.75 to $5.

Calves—Receipts, 1800; market active and steady; cull to choice, $6.25 to $8.50.

LIVERPOOL, July 3.—John Rogers & Co. report to-day that prices in the Birkenhead market were maintained with difficulty, the demand being very slow. Saturday's quotations remained unaltered, and may be quoted for both States and Canadian steers, from 13c to 13½c per lb.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE.

Niagara Falls Restaurant Manager Is Missing.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 4.—Deep mystery surrounds the disappearance of Frank Henderson, manager of the restaurant operated at the Grand Trunk station by the Canada News Co., who was last seen here several weeks ago. Nothing was said about the mysterious disappearance of Henderson when he first dropped out of sight, but some who have seen the body of the unidentified man now floating in the whirlpool, claim they believe it to be that of Henderson. The head and face of the floater in the pool are badly crushed in, but it cannot be determined whether this was done before the body entered the water or after entering the pool.

It is believed by some that Henderson met with foul play, and his body was thrown into the river. Others claim that the body is not that of Henderson, but that he is in Detroit on a visit. The body was still in the whirlpool at nightfall.

Lady Constance Runs Off.

London, July 4.—Lady Constance Foljambe, a half-sister to the Earl of Liverpool, controller of the King's household, astonished society by failing to appear at a fashionable church in London yesterday afternoon at the time appointed for her marriage to Rev. A. W. K. Hawkins.

The edifice was filled with society people who waited an hour wondering what had occurred to delay the ceremony. When the bridegroom sent a messenger in great haste to the Earl of Liverpool's residence to enquire for her, the reply returned was that Lady Constance "went out shopping this morning, and has not yet returned home."

The Earl of Liverpool stated last evening that he had received from Lady Constance a message to the effect that she was quite safe and sound.

According to the message, Lady Constance, who left London on a train yesterday morning, had simply changed her mind and decided that she did not wish to be married.

Silver Coin Famine.

Washington, July 4.—A famine of silver coins is threatened in the North Pacific States, and banks in Oregon, Washington and Montana are appealing to the Treasury Department to ship dimes, quarters and half dollars to relieve the situation. Congress has made no appropriation for transporting the coin, and Treasury officials say they cannot come to the relief unless Congress takes some action. The Treasury formerly paid for such transportation, but saves about $300,000 a year by not doing it now.

Blind Pigs Raided.

Wingham, July 4.—On the night of June 17, Provincial Constable Phippen, and assistants, surprised the local option town of Teeswater by swooping down on a couple of the hotels where he supposed liquor was being sold. The Vendome Hotel, managed by Jacob Lambartus, and his son was searched, liquor being found by the barrel; also one blind pig, owned by David Kapteu, was raided and a quantity of whisky was found.

Hand Shattered by Dynamite.

Ottawa, July 4.—P. Dallaire was fishing by the dynamite method in Brewery Creek, Hull, yesterday afternoon, when a stick of explosive went off in his hand. The member was horribly shattered and had to be cut off in the Ottawa Hospital, to which he was brought.

New Argentine Consul.

Ottawa, July 4.—Charles A. Gaiarce, the new Argentine consul at Ottawa, will arrive on the sixth or seventh of July, H. Mayer, the present consul, receiving word to that effect yesterday. Mr. Mayer will sail for England on the 12th to join his family.

Kingston Held Holiday.

Kingston, July 4.—Monday was a holiday in Kingston, which preferred to keep that day in honor of Dominion Day. Horse races and a baseball match were held in the fair grounds by the United Roman Catholic societies. Although the mayor had proclaimed Monday as a holiday, the civic treasury department was unable to observe it, as the banks had their holiday on Saturday, and the Monday holiday was not legal.

Phenomenal Race in the National League----Connie Mack's Philadelphia Team Took Lead Away From Detroit in the American by Winning While the Tigers Were Losing This Morning----Rochester Trimmed Torontos To-day 4 to 1.

Double-headers are being played in the big leagues to-day on account of it being Independence Day in the United States. The race in the National League is as hot as the weather. In the American League the Athletics, Connie Mack's world's champions, by winning to-day, while Detroit was losing, wrested first place away from the Tigers, who give up the leadership this morning after holding it since the season opened. Play In Bowmanville On Saturday

The Peterborough Midland League team will journey to Bowmanville on Saturday, for a game with the Goodyear team, and, judging by the game the Bowmanville team played here, and the form they have shown since the Petes will have their work cut out for them if they hope to pull out on top. Saturday, Bowmanville defeated Port Hope in the latter's stamping ground by 26 runs to 8, slamming Pipher and Surphlis all over the lot and only stopping their slugging when they got tired of running the bases. The Peterborough team will practise to-night, Wednesday and Thursday night, at Riverside Park, and every player is expected to be out in uniform at all three practices. The standing of the League is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Peterborough	5	0	1000
Bowmanville	3	3	.500
Cobourg	2	3	.400
Port Hope	1	5	.166

BROCKVILLE'S IMPRESSION OF PETERBORO RANGERS

Canada's forty-fourth national birthday was marked by a visit to Brockille on their annual outing of the 57th Peterborough Rangers, one of the crack infantry regiments of the Dominion. Brockville citizens extended a most cordial welcome to the red coats, who practically were in possession of the town from the moment they entered Saturday morning until their departure for home shortly before midnight last night, tired out after two very enjoyable but somewhat streanuous days. The "time" was noted by officers and men to have been one of the best in the history of the Rangers, which were organized in 1867. A contrib weather which prevailed throughout, the only complaint being that it was a little too much of the equatorial variety, yet the boys bore up bravely under the sizling heat and took full advantage of the occasion for sight-seeing both on the river and in town, covering every nook and corner of the latter, which created a favourable impression for beauty and natural location. Between walking, driving and boating and fraternizing with their hosts, the 41st Regiment, the stay was agreeably occupied and into almost every hour was crowded a recollection that will linger pleasantly for days to come, not only on the part of the visitors but also those who were favoured with the opportunity for entertaining as the companionship of the Rangers in rank and file aws most congenial. In their exuberance only an old one overstepped the mark of propriety.

Mr. W. H. McIlroy, the C. P. R. agent who accompanied the 57th to Brockville, was a popular visitor He is a skilled musician and his singing and playing was much enjoyed by his Brockville friends The C. P. R. train service for the visitors was first-class.

THE BAND CONCERT.

A huge crowded surrounded Court House Square at 8 p. m. when the Rangers Band took their positions opposite the post-office building for the alvertised concert, which had been awaited with pleasurable anticipation on account of the reputation preceding the organization, ranked as one of the best concert bands in Canada. These expectations were more than realised, for the excellence of the music brought forth rounds of enthusiastic and well deserved applause. Under the guiding baton of Prof. Gliddon, the instructor, a rare programme of classical and light music was rendered such as could not fail to appeal to even the most critical. Of the following numbers played it would be hard to particularise, as each one proved to be a gem:

And the Mystery is Unfolds

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

It was just the sort of night something out of the ordinary might happen. The cottage was situated on the edge of a high bluff above the sea; sentinel pines guarded it on either side, and other pines, like a ragged company of soldiers, straggled down the slope to the yellow beach where the big waves crashed among the rocks.

Gerard Anson sat by the window long after the twilight had fallen, watching the coming of a long heralded storm, while his friend and companion occupied a huge chair before the fire.

Gerard Anson's face was marked by a happy carelessness that bespoke the man of leisure with means to gratify all the whims of a variable personality. He had been the owner of Captain Jack's last ship, the big schooner Antelope, which had mysteriously foundered in the West Indies five years before, with all hands lost save the captain and first mate. Of course the loss of the schooner had been more of a sorrow to Captain Jack than it had to Gerard Anson, for the latter had money wherewith to build other boats, and he had desired that his friend should take the command of a larger and newer one, but the sailor had declined with emphasis.

"When the mystery of the Antelope has been cleared up, Gerard," he always insisted, "then I may go to sea again. In the meantime my berth in the harbormaster's department is all that I deserve."

They had been spending several days in this cottage of Gerard's, perched on the North Carolina coast.

"If you stick to your determination never to take another command until the mystery of the Antelope has been cleared I'm afraid you're doomed to remain a landsman to the end of your days," prophesied Gerard after they had listened to the beating of the rain for a while in silence.

"You wouldn't blame me if you were in the same fix as I am," retorted Captain Jack, refilling his pipe.

"How can you prove it, old man? You don't know yourself what happened to the Antelope."

"I know she sank under me without five minutes' warning—went down in a glassy sea under a full moon's rays. Fleck and I had barely time to jump and swim beyond the suction she made in going down. If it hadn't been that one of the small boats got adrift and bumped into us I wouldn't be here tonight telling you this old yarn for the hundredth time."

"I like to hear it, Jack."

"You know Fleck sprang to the pumps the first thing, but she was dry as a bone. It was more as if she was being pulled down by some gigantic force. You know the man at the wheel and the watch had disappeared entirely when we reached the deck, and before we had time to get the rest of the men out of the fo'cas'le she was drawn under and we had to jump for our lives."

"And you won't take command of the Petrel? You know you can have a third interest in her at your own price, and she will be a gold mine to us in the fruit trade. It isn't because she's a steamer instead of a sailing vessel, is it?"

"No, no. It's merely because I can't trust myself to take command of any vessel until I am assured that the fate of the Antelope and the unfortunate men of my crew are not the result of my own negligence."

"Your own word, without that of Fleck's, is sufficient for me, Jack, and you know that your testimony as well as his has fully satisfied the board of inquiry that you are blameless."

"I want to be satisfied myself; until then I will not have the nerve to take command of the squarest scow that ever cleared from any port," said Captain Jack decisively.

"Of course I know you're right, Jack, but it's a blamed shame, because the mystery of the Antelope will never be cleared up."

Captain Jack made no reply. He looked at the crumbling embers on the hearth and drew them together in a glowing pyramid. "Got any more wood, Gerard?" he asked.

His host leaned to the ancient sea chest which served as a wood box and threw back the lid. A salty odor issued from the recesses of the chest. "Here's some driftwood that Peters has picked up. I've been saving it for just such a night as this. It isn't so old as some of the stuff he brings in, but I guess it's water soaked enough to give us fireworks for awhile."

He tossed on several large timbers which in the dim glow of the embers were quite indistinguishable as to shape.

First the smoke drew up in thin spirals that grew heavier and suddenly burst into a broad yellow flame that turned to orange and blue and green and then became a mystic rainbow of fantastically writhing color. The salt sizzled as the fire gripped into the wood and shot up little electric sparks of light that died before they reached the chimney's throat. The wood creaked as it warped from the scorching touch, and a loosened iron bolt fell rattling to the hearthstone. The burning wood settled anew, and as the flames mounted higher Captain Jack leaned forward and pointed a shaking finger at the fire.

"Look, Gerard," he said hoarsely. "What is that?"

Gerard Anson stared with fascinated eyes at the thing that appeared in the fire. The heel of a broken bowsprit with one splintered plank thrust forth as it had been torn from the bow of a vessel. The paint had burned from the plank, but there remained imbedded in the wood several copper letters covered with verdigris and undoubtedly forming the terminal of the ill fated ship's name.

"E-l-o-p-e," spelled Gerard slowly, and then, as if the meaning of the word suddenly burst upon his bewildered senses, he asked, "Good heavens, Jack, do you—do you suppose this is part of the Antelope?" He laughed sheepishly even as he asked the question.

"Of course it's the Antelope," returned Captain Jack with quick composure. "See that little pointed thing that's flaming now?" That's one horn of the little head that formed the figurehead of my boat."

As the wonder of the strange happening grew upon them they sat very silent. Who could call it a common occurrence that a broken portion of Captain Jack's schooner, lost in the West Indies five years before, should have washed upon the strip of beach that belonged to her owner and should burn there on the hearth now, a flaming proof of her destruction?

"I don't wonder sailors are superstitious," said Gerard after a long time. "The sea is a fickle mistress, for she"—

But he was doomed never to complete the sentence, for at that moment the burning wood stirred strangely in the fire and the copper letters burned at a white heat. A broad sheet of flame seemed to stand motionless as a background for a curious picture.

Blue flames shot its upper edge and became a tropical midnight sky powdered with golden stars; green fire ran across the flame and became a placid sea tinged with moonlight. On the green sea there rested the graceful outlines of a six masted schooner, one of the largest and fleetest of her kind. Her canvas hung motionless, for there appeared to be no wind. There were pygmy forms of men on deck—one at the wheel and others grouped near by.

Suddenly the pygmy men ran to and fro as if frantic with fear; something long and sinuous swept the deck, and when it vanished the men were gone. Then other long, sinuous, shadowy objects appeared at intervals about the vessel's rails. Her sails quivered as if by some sudden shock. Out from the companionway there tumbled two other pigmy men, who glanced aloft and then ran to the forecastle hatch and pounded lustily. As if impelled by some intense fear that did not take shape in that beautiful moonlit night the men ran to the pumps and sawed away.

The vessel seemed to settle in the water as if she was dragged down by invisible hands. The two men on the boat suddenly deserted the pumps and leaped into the sea just as the beautiful schooner slowly careened, then straightened, dipped her bow and went down in a seething white foam of bubbles. The bubbles spread away, and there remained the green, placid sea, on which bobbed a little boat and in it two pygmy men. Then all at once the scene disappeared, and there was the fireplace with its charred embers of the lost Antelope. The driftwood had told its story; the fate of the schooner was a secret no more.

The spell of silence which had rested upon the two men was broken by Captain Jack's excited cry. "Did you see it, Gerard?" he gasped. "Did you see it?"

Gerard nodded. "I saw something, Jack. You will laugh if I tell you what I saw—you won't believe me."

"I'll believe you, never fear. You don't mean the picture in the flame—of course you saw that?"

"No, I don't mean that, Jack; I mean the thing that pulled the Antelope and the crew down to their deaths; I mean the proof of your ability to take command of the Petrel next month," said his friend calmly.

Captain Jack Bernard uttered a relieved sigh. "I was afraid it was an optical illusion on my own part," he muttered. "I saw it, but scarcely believed, and nobody else in the world will believe us if we tell them that an enormous devilfish pulled a six masted schooner to the bottom of the sea."

"Let us keep our own secret, then, as the sea has the reputation of keeping hers," said Gerard.

"She didn't keep this one," said the Antelope's captain as the last crumbling ash of his schooner faded into nothingness.

Refugees From Porcupine Fire Fled To Powder House—Blaze Is Still Spreading in the Mining Town

SOME THRILLING TALES

North Bay, July 5.—Porcupine gold camp still lies hot and quaking with smouldering flames everywhere, only awaiting for another gale like Sunday to continue the work of destruction so well begun on that eventful day. Large columns of smoke can be seen coming down distant townships, indicating that the fire area is ever widening. News reached Porcupine yesterday morning that the fire had swept through Bristol Township, where some very rich finds have recently been made. A host of prospectors are in Bristol, and grave anxiety is felt for their safety. All day Monday and Tuesday weary and scorched prospectors have been straggling into northern settlements with sorry tales of camps which had to be abandoned to the hungry flames with all their equipment and supplies, while the occupants were forced to fly for safety, many having to take to the water for refuge from the intense heat and flying embers. Fortunately the north country is well supplied with lakes and rivers, which will prove the salvation of many prospectors.

Capt. Anchor of Dome Extension Mine was nearly blinded by smoke and cinders, and tells a graphic story of the fierce fight to save the plant and lives of employes. When it was seen that the fight was almost hopeless, Capt. Anchor told the men they could go or stay as suited them, but most of the employes stuck to him and fought stubbornly as long as a drop of water remained for the buckets.

At last, almost dead with exhaustion, suffocated with smoke and blistered with heat, the command was given for each man to take a pail of water and keep his clothing from taking fire. Only one building was left standing and that the powder house, and here Capt. Archer and his men made their last stand for shelter from the flying cinders and blistering heat, and, seated on boxes of dynamite and powder, with the door closed to keep out sparks from the blazing inferno outside, the men sat and reated amid the roar of flames and crashing of falling timber, as the monarch of the forest burned through and fell to the ground.

A twist of the wind took the flames in another direction and red death passed by.

Cleveland Scouts on Tramp.

Chatham, Ont., July 5.—Under the leadership of Scoutmasters W. L. Chandler, W. S. Crackle and Kist Senty, five boy scouts, representing Cleveland Y.M.C.A., passed through Chatham yesterday morning. The scouts left Cleveland Saturday, July 1. They were landed at Erie Beach, and from there traveled to The Eau Saturday night. They stopped at the Eau over Sunday, and marched on to Chatham yesterday morning. They left here for London, St. Thomas and Port Stanley, and from the latter place they will embark for their home city. The scouts travel ten or fifteen miles a day, doing all their marching in the morning. Last year, so Scoutmaster Chandler says, they marched to the Ohio River, covering 225 miles in two weeks. This year they will not travel so far on account of the intense heat.

Million-Dollar Gift.

Montreal, July 5.—At a meeting of the governors of McGill University yesterday, it was announced that Sir William Macdonald had completed the purchase of the Molson and Law estates on the slope of the Mountain, adjoining Mount Royal Park, and that it was the intention of Sir William to present the property to McGill University to be used by it for extension purposes, the leading feature of which will be a new campus and residential buildings. The purchase price of the properties is given as over a million dollars. Including the cost of Macdonald College and its endowment, this brings the total of Sir William Macdonald's gifts to McGill to within a few thousand dollars of $10,000,000.

Sweetheart as Child.

Toronto, July 5.—As the culmination of a childhood romance, Rechab Tandy, a well-known soloist, married Miss Annie Wiley of Kingston a few days ago. Mr. Tandy is well known in musical circles, and it will come as a surprise to many of his musical friends to hear of his second marriage. Mr. Tandy and his bride attended the same school near Kingston. Miss Wiley, who is 79 years of age, became heir to a fortune of about $60,000 a few months ago.

Crap Shooters Caught.

Chatham, July 5.—D. Johnston, Frank Hurst, Oliver Henson, Lewis Arnold, John Lewis, Harry Barnes, Jacob Harris and Daniel Harris, all colored, are scheduled to come up in the Police Court on Friday, charged with gambling with dice on Sunday morning. The young men were caught shooting crap in a discarded railway coach on the Pere Marquette siding in the east end by Officer Tom Graves

COOLER WEATHER

Canadian Points Show Lower Temperature and Prostrations are Fewer—Two More Deaths in Toronto

Toronto, July 5.—The climax has been reached. That is the best piece of encouragement to be had out of the heat wave story yesterday. But that does not mean either that the mer[illegible] or that it will go down appreciably for some days. The latest reports from the Meteorological Office indicate that the long-suffering people of this province must put up with close attentions from the sun until the end of the week.

The highest point registered by official thermometers in Toronto yesterday was 97, between noon and one o'clock.

London, Ont., was highest in Ontario with 101. Montreal showed 94, Quebec 88, and Ottawa 86.

The weather man is inclined to be pessimistic, and he will not commit himself to promise any material change for several days. The intelligence that the hot blast is passing over the border is some consolation, anyway for Canadians, along with the fact that the wind—or what was said to be the wind—shifted from southwest to east, bringing a promise of thunderstorms for to-day. These, however, may not reach Toronto until to-morrow. Storms were general in Quebec and the eastern provinces.

Two more deaths have occurred in Toronto from the heat and many prostrations.

Two Deaths In Hamilton.

Hamilton, July 5.—J. F. Hogan, 28 years old, the second victim of the present hot weather, died at the city hospital at 5.30 yesterday afternoon. He was overcome early yesterday forenoon at the C.P.R. construction camp west of the high level bridge, where he was employe as craneman on the steam shovel.

Napanee Woman Dead.

Kingston, July 5.—It was very warm yesterday, but it was not as bad as on Monday. At 8 a.m. the thermometer was 71 in the shade. It is claimed Kingston is the coolest place in the province during the summer. At 3 p.m. the highest point recorded was 82.6. At Napanee Mrs. John Williams dropped dead from the effects of the heat. It was one hundred degrees there Monday.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Kingston, July 5.—Mrs. Smith, an old resident, stricken with paralysis in her garden, died at the Hotel Dieu. She was the widow of the late Thomas Wade Smith.

THEY WANT FIXED PRICE

Wholesale Grocers Hold Convention in Toronto and Condemn the Price Cutting as Dishonourable

HUGH BLAIN'S SPEECH

Toronto, July 5.—"We strongly urge that there be a permanent commissioner appointed by the Government of the Dominion, and vested with authority to examine and approve, or disapprove, of such fixed prices as might be imposed on proprietary articles by the manufacturer, so that proper protection would be rendered all parties concerned — manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer.

"Notwithstanding a special act in the criminal code to prevent rebating by giving secret commissions, which was recently passed by the Dominion Government the evil practice still goes on and is the very worst form of commercial corruption in the commercial world to-day.

The foregoing statement was made by Hugh Blain at the opening meeting of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild convention at the King Edward Hotel yesterday. It was during the discussion which followed the address of President F. T. Smyle, in which the principle that it was a good thing for the trade and the general public to maintain a uniform standard of prices was strongly upheld. The meeting appeared to endorse the view that price-cutting and rebating were twin evils to be reprehended in no small measure.

In opening his address the president urged that a permanent secretary be appointed for the organization, so that the entire time of one man at least could be given over to the work of the guild. He showed how much progress was being made along every line of the guild's work, making such an appointment practically a necessity.

"We have called this Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild together to confer on trade matters and to transact business and create reforms," said Mr Smyle, "and this not only for our personal advantage, but for the common good of the grocery trade of the country.

"With reference to houses which are still conducting their business along dishonorable lines — there are not many, but there are some well-known," he said. "It is to be hoped that this convention will formulate some plan before dispersing that will completely eliminate dishonorable methods from the wholesale grocery business, and I feel that we can do this if we keep together. The laws on the statute book protect us, and a plan will be submitted subject to that approbation of the trade which will put a stop to this rebating and to other dishonorable methods.

"We have frequent complaints from the retailer that some jobbers are trespassing on their rights, selling to consumers such as boarding houses, small restaurants, etc., and it is in the interests of legitimate trade, as on the other side we think it grossly unfair for the manufacturer to sell to the retailer. Let us consider this vital point—the retailer must be protected or the whole structure will be destroyed and we will drift into the troubles experienced in England and the United States of chain stores, buying exchanges, etc.

In the program of the convention, it is shown that out of 57 wholesale grocers in Ontario, 52 belong to the guild. The number of traveling salesmen is about 400, and the number of clerks, salesmen and warehousemen in the employ of the guild is 2,000.

Restored His Hearing.

Kingston, July 5.—As the result of being struck by a train, Louis Renaud of Alymer, Que., who was deaf for many years, has recovered his hearing. Renaud was walking along the Grand Trunk tracks near Bath, when he was hit by the train and thrown through a barbed wire fence. He had several ribs broken and also suffered a severe scalp wound but is doing nicely at the general hospital. His hearing is now good, and Renaud says that the bumps he got from the train were better than anything an ear specialist could do.

Hand-Car Hit Him.

Chatham, July 5.—William Hosey, an employe of the M.C.R. fell off the hand-car Monday evening near Charing Cross. He fell diagonally across the rail in front of the car, which did not run over him, but bruised his side and left thigh, breaking the skin considerably. It was a very painful accident, the victim receiving the whole impact of the car, as well as the lacerations sustained. He was taken to his home in North Buxton.

Fell Through Barn Trap Door.

Chatham, July 5.—Robert Coltart, a farmer, residing in Harwich, up the creek, met with a serious accident Monday. He fell through the trap door in a barn, fracturing two ribs and dislocating his wrist. He was taken to the city, where he received surgical treatment. He is in a serious condition. He is a well-known man in this county.

Montreal Will Give Prime Minister a Big Ovation.

Montreal, July 5.—The reception to be given to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on his return to Canada next Monday will eclipse any demonstration ever before tendered to a Canadian Prime Minister on his return to the country over the destinies of which he rules.

Already plans have been made for the illumination of the river, of St. Helen's Island, of the port, Jacques Cartier square, the Champ de Mars, and the principal streets of the city through which the Premier, accompanied by Hon. L. P. Brodeur and possibly Sir Frederick Borden, will drive to the station.

Leaving the Empress of Britain at Quebec on Saturday or Sunday evening, Sir Wilfrid will come up the river in a private yacht, arriving here about 7 o'clock Monday evening.

Deputations from the Reform, Lemieux, Bickerdike, Westmount Liberal, St. Lawrence Liberal, Chenier, Prefontaine and Laurier political clubs, will meet the party at Victoria Pier, which will be tastefully decorated and illuminated for the occasion by the harbor commission.

Wholesale Grocers Hold Convention in Toronto and Condemn the Price Cutting as Dishonourable

HUGH BLAIN'S SPEECH

Toronto, July 5.—"We strongly urge that there be a permanent commissioner appointed by the Government of the Dominion, and vested with authority to examine and approve, or disapprove, of such fixed prices as might be imposed on proprietary articles by the manufacturer, so that proper protection would be rendered all parties concerned — manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer.

"Notwithstanding a special act in the criminal code to prevent rebating by giving secret commissions, which was recently passed by the Dominion Government the practice still goes on and is the very worst form of commercial corruption in the commercial world to-day."

The foregoing statement was made by Hugh Blain at the opening meeting of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild convention at the King Edward Hotel yesterday. It was during the discussion which followed the address of President F. T. Smyle, in which the principle that it was a good thing for the trade and the general public to maintain a uniform standard of prices was strongly upheld. The meeting appeared to endorse the view that price-cutting and rebating were twin evils to be reprehended in no small measure.

In opening his address the president urged that a permanent secretary be appointed for the organization, so that the entire time of one man at least could be given over to the work of the guild. He showed how much progress was being made along every line of the guild's work, making such an appointment practically a necessity.

"We have called this Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild together to confer on trade matters and to transact business and create reforms," said Mr Smyle, "and this not only for our personal advantage, but for the common good of the grocery trade of the country."

"With reference to houses which are still conducting their business along dishonorable lines — there are not many, but there are some well-known," he said. "It is to be hoped that this convention will formulate some plan before dispersing that will completely eliminate dishonorable methods from the wholesale grocery business, and I feel that we can do this if we keep together. The laws on the statute book protect us, and a plan will be submitted subject to that approbation of the trade which will put a stop to this rebating and to other dishonorable methods.

"We have frequent complaints from the retailer that some jobbers are trespassing on their rights, selling to consumers such as boarding houses, small restaurants, etc., and it is in the interests of legitimate trade, as on the other side we think it grossly unfair for the manufacturer to sell to the retailer. Let us consider this vital point—the retailer must be protected or the whole structure will be destroyed and we will drift into the troubles experienced in England and the United States of chain stores, buying exchanges, etc.

In the program of the convention, it is shown that out of 57 wholesale grocers in Ontario, 52 belong to the guild. The number of traveling salesmen is about 400, and the number of clerks, salesmen and warehousemen in the employ of the guild is 2,000.

Restored His Hearing.

Kingston, July 5.—As the result of being struck by a train, Louis Renaud of Alymer, Que., who was deaf for many years, has recovered his hearing. Renaud was walking along the Grand Trunk tracks near Bath, when he was hit by the train and thrown through a barbed wire fence. He had several ribs broken and also suffered a severe scalp wound but is doing nicely at the general hospital. His hearing is now good, and Renaud says that the bumps he got from the train were better than anything an ear specialist could do.

It was a very painful accident, the victim receiving the whole impact of the car, as well as the lacerations sustained. He was taken to his home in North Buxton.

BIG RECEPTION PLANNED.

Montreal Will Give Prime Minister a Big Ovation.

Montreal, July 5.—The reception to be given to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on his return to Canada next Monday will eclipse any demonstration ever before tendered to a Canadian Prime Minister on his return to the country over the destinies of which he rules.

Already plans have been made for the illumination of the river, of St. Helen's Island, of the port, Jacques Cartier square, the Champ de Mars, and the principal streets of the city through which the Premier, accompanied by Hon. L. P. Brodeur and possibly Sir Frederick Borden, will drive to the station.

Leaving the Empress of Britain at Quebec on Saturday or Sunday evening, Sir Wilfrid will come up the river in a private yacht, arriving here about 7 o'clock Monday evening.

Deputations from the Reform, Lemieux, Bunkerdike, Westmount Liberal, St. Laurence Liberal, Chenier, Prefontaine and Laurier political clubs, will meet the party at Victoria Pier, which will be tastefully decorated and illuminated for the occasion by the harbor commission.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

And everywhere I found that my experiment with the gang was well known. I found also that my tendency for asking questions was even better known. It passed as a joke in a good many cases. But better than this I found that I had established a reputation for sobriety, industry and level-headedness. I can't help smiling how little those things counted for me with the United Woollen or when I sought work after leaving that company. Here they counted for a lot. I realized that when it came time for me to seek credit.

In the meanwhile I didn't neglect the fight for clean politics in my ward.

I resigned from the presidency of the young men's club at the end of a year and we elected a young lawyer who was taking a great interest in the work down here to fill the vacancy. That was a fine selection. The man was fresh from the law school and was full of ideals which dated back to the Mayflower. He hadn't been long enough in the world to have them dimmed and was full of energy. He took hold of the original idea and developed it until the organization included every ward in this section of the city. He held rallies every month and brought down big speakers and kept the sentiment of the youngsters red hot. This had its effect upon the older men and before we knew it we had a machine that looked like a real power in the whole city. Sweeney saw it and so did the bigger bosses of both parties. But the president kept clear of alliances with any of them. He stood pat with what promised to be a balance of power, ready to swing it to the cleanest man of either party who came up for office.

I made several speeches myself though it was hard work for me. I don't run to that sort of thing. I did it, however, just because I didn't like it, and because I felt it was the duty of a citizen to do something now and then he doesn't like for his city and his country. The old excuse with me had been that politics was a dirty business at best, and that it ought to be left to the lawyers and such who had something to gain from it. The only men I ever knew who went into it at all were those who had a talent for it and who liked it. Of course that's dead wrong. A man who won't take the trouble to find out about the men up for office, and who won't bother himself to get out and hustle for the best of them isn't a good citizen or a good American. He deserves to be governed by the newcomers and deserves all they hand out to him. And the time to do the work isn't when a man is up for president of the United States, it's when the man is up for the common council. The higher up a politician gets, the less the influence of the single voter counts.

It was in the spring that some of my ideals received a set back. The alderman from our ward died suddenly and Rafferty was naturally hot after the vacancy. He came to see me about it, but before he broached this subject he laid another before me that took away my breath. It was nothing else than that I should go into partnership with him under the firm name of "Carleton and Rafferty" I couldn't believe it possible that he was in a position to take such a step within a couple of years of digging in the ditch. But when he explained the scheme to me it was as simple as rolling off a log. A firm of liquor dealers had agreed to back him—form a stock company and give him a third interest to manage it. He had spoken to them of me and said he'd do it if they would make it a half interest and give us each a quarter.

"But, good Lord, Dan," I said, "we'd have to swing a lot of business to make it go."

"Never you worry about thot, mon," he said. "I'll fix thot all right if I'm elicted to the board."

"You mean city contracts?" I said.

"Sure".

I began to see. The liquor house was looking for more licenses and would get their pay out of Dan even if the firm didn't make a cent. But Dan, with such capital back of him as well as his aldermanic power was sure to get the contracts. He would leave the actual work to me and my men.

I sat down and for two hours tried to make Dan realize how this crowd wanted to use him. I couldn't. In addition to being blinded by his overwhelming ambition, he actually could not see anything crooked in what they wanted. He couldn't understand why he should let such an opportunity drop for someone else to pick up. He had slipped out of my hands completely. This was where the difference between five or six years in America, as against two hundred showed itself. And yet what was the old stock doing to offset such personal ambition and energy as Rafferty stood for?

"No, Dan," I said, "I can't do it. And what's more I won't let you do it if I can help it."

"Phot do yez mane?" he asked.

"That I'm going to fight you tooth and nail," I said.

He turned red. Then he grinned. "Well," he said, "it'll be a foine fight any how."

I went to the president of the club and told him that here was where we had to stop Rafferty. He listened and then he said:

"Well, here's where we do stop him."

We went at the job in whirlwind fashion. I spoke a half dozen times but to save my life I couldn't say what I wanted to say. Every time I stood up I seemed to see Dan's big round face and I remembered the kindly things he used to do for the old ladies. And I knew that Dan's offer to take me into partnership was not prompted altogether by selfish motives. He could have found other men who would have served his purpose better.

In the meanwhile Dan had organized "Social Clubs" in half a dozen sections. For the first few weeks of the campaign I never heard of him except as leading grand marches. But the last week he waded in. There's no use going into details. He beat us. He rolled up a tremendous majority. The president of the club couldn't understand it. He was discouraged.

"I had every boy in the ward out working," he said.

"Yes," I said, "but Dan had every grandmother and every daughter and every grand-daughter out working."

Dan came around to the flat one night after the election. He was as happy as a boy over his victory.

"Carleton," he said, again, "it's too damn bad ye ain't an Irishmon."

After he had gone, Ruth said to me:

"I don't think Mr. Rafferty will make a bad alderman at all."

CHAPTER XVIII

Maturing Plans.

I received several offers from other firms and, as a result of these, my wages were advanced first to three dollars a day and then to three and a half. Still Ruth refused to take things easier by increasing the household expenses. During the third year we lived exactly as we had lived during the first year. In a way it was easier to do this now that we knew there was no actual necessity for it. Of course it was easier, too, now that we had fallen into a familiar routine. The things which had seemed to us like necessities when we came down here now seemed like luxuries. And we, none of us, had either the craving for luxuries or the time to enjoy them had we wished to spend the money on them. In the matter of clothes we cared for nothing except to be warmly and cleanly dressed. Strip the problem of clothes down to this, and it's not a very serious one. To realize that you have only to remember how the average farmer dresses, or how the homesteader dresses. It's only when you introduce style and the conventions that the matter becomes complicated. Perhaps it was easier for me to dress as I pleased than for the boy or Ruth, but even they got right down to bed rock. The boy wore grey flannel shirts and so at a stroke did away with collars and cuffs. For the rest a simple blue suit, a cap, stockings, and shoes, were all he needed outside his under clothes, which Ruth made for him. Ruth, herself, dressed in plain gowns that she could do up herself. For the street, she still had the costumes she came down here with. None of us kept any extra clothes for parade.

We carried out the same idea in our food, as I've tried to show; we insisted that it must be wholesome, and that there must be enough of it. Those were the only two things that counted. Variety, except of the humblest kind, we didn't strive for. I've seen cook books which contain five hundred pages; if Ruth compiled one it wouldn't have twenty. Here again the farmer and the pioneer were our models. If anyone in the country had lived the way we were living, it wouldn't have seemed worth telling about. I find the fact which amazes people in our experiment was that we should have tried the same standard in the city. Everyone seemed to think this was a most dangerous thing to attempt. The men, who on a camping trip, consider themselves well fed on such food as we had to eat expect to starve to death if placed on the same diet once within sound of the trolley cars. And on the campaign trip they do ten times the physical labour and do it month after month in air that whets the appetite. Then they come back and boast how strong they've grown, and begin to eat like hogs again, and wonder why they get sick.

We camped out in the city—that's all we did. And we did just what every man in camp does; we stripped down to essentials. We could have lived on pork scraps and potatoes if that had been necessary. We could have worried along on hard tack, and jerked beef, if we'd been pressed hard enough. Men chase moose, and climb mountains and prospect for gold on such food. Why in Heaven's name can't they shovel dirt on the same diet?

So, too, about amusements. When a man is trying to clear thirty acres of pine stumps, he doesn't fret at the end of the day because he can't go to the theatre. He doesn't want to go. Bed and his dreams are amusement enough for him. And he isn't called a low-browed savage because he's satisfied with this. He's called a hero. The world at large doesn't say that he has lowered the standard of living; it boasts about him for a true American. Why can't a man lay bricks without the theatre?

As a matter of fact, however, we could have had even the amusements if we'd wanted them. For those who needed such things in order to preserve a high standard of living they were here. And I don't say they didn't serve a useful purpose. What I do say is that they aren't absolutely necessary; that a high standard of living isn't altogether dependent on sirloin steaks, starched collars and music halls as I've heard a good many people claim.

This third year finished my course in masonry. I came out in June with a trade at which I could earn from three dollars to five dollars a day, according to my skill. It was a trade too, where there was pretty generally steady employment. A good mason is more in demand than a good lawyer. Not only that, but a good mason can find work in any city in this country. Wherever he lands, he's sure of a comfortable living. I was told that out West some men were making as high as ten dollars a day.

I had also qualified in a more modest way as a mechanical draftsman. I could draw my own plans for work and what was more useful still, do my work from the plans of others.

But now I had also become a fairly proficient Italian scholar. I could speak the language fluently and read it fairly well. It wasn't the fault of Giuseppe if my pronunciation was sometimes queer and if very often I used the jargon of the provinces. My object was served as long as I could make myself understood to the men. And I could do that perfectly.

Spring Humors

Result From the Poisoned Condition of the Blood

Discharge Is Checked---Sores Are Cleaned Out and Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Aside from the suffering caused by pimples, sores and skin eruptions, there is the annoyance and embarrassment to which they give rise, particularly when on the hands or face.

It is quite proper to try to get the blood right by use of internal treatment, but this is a tedious method of overcoming the skin troubles, which can so readily be gotten rid of by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The three pricipal ingredients of this great, soothing, healing ointment are the most potent known to the medical profession as a means of cleaning out sores and ulcers, destroying morbid growth, lessening the discharge, preventing blood-poisoning and stimulating the healing process.

Dr. Chase's Ointment stops itching almost as soon as applied and often heals almost like magic.

The time required for cure depends on the nature of the ailment, but, unlike internal treatment, the benefits are apparent to the eye, and you can note from day to day the improvement made.

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the cure of eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and old sores and wounds is sufficient proof that it is bound to be satisfactory in the treatment of less severe diseases of the skin. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. The Goose Tower.

In the early years of the fourteenth century the "free cities"—Hamburg, Lubeck and Bremen—sent a delegation of seventy-seven members to King Valdemar to demand increased rights and privileges in their trade with Denmark. The delegates were not very respectful in their language and demeanor, and the king, who was at Vordingsborg, told them they acted like a drove of geese and clapped them into prison in the tower, telling them they would stay there until they learned better manners. Over the heavy tower door the king put up a stone with the inscription:

Sieben und siebenteg Hause;
Sieben und siebenteg Ganse;
Ware nicht so viele Hause
Hat ich auch nicht so viele Ganse

Translated this reads: "Seventy seven houses and seventy-seven geese. If there were not so many houses I would not have so many geese."

On top of the tower, which still stands solid and strong, was placed a big gilt goose, with neck outstretched as if it were blessing.

The Jerboa and the Melons.

An odd fact relative to a little African melon is thus related by an official of Khartum:

The jerboa or kangaroo rat is found in considerable numbers in places miles and miles away from any water or even dew, and I was at a loss to understand how these little animals could exist through the ten months of drought. It appears, however, that after the scanty rains a small wild melon of bitter taste, but full of juice, flourishes in the desert. The jerboa, as soon as the melon is ripe, bites off the stem and proceeds to dig away the sand under the melon, so that it gradually sinks below the level of the ground. The constant wind soon covers it with six to eight inches of sand, which protects it from the scorching sun and from drying up. When all other moisture has evaporated the jerboa goes to his larder and drinks the juice of the melon till the rains come on again. One jerboa will bury as many as forty of these little melons to last him through the dry season.

The Automobile.

In some respects the automobile is the most marvelous machine the world has yet seen. It can go anywhere at any time, floundering through two feet of snow, ford any stream that isn't deep enough to drown out the magneto, triumph over mud axle deep, jump fences and culvert over plowed ground at fifteen miles an hour. It has been used with brilliant success in various kinds of hunting, including coyote coursing on the prairies of Colorado, where it can run all around the broncho, formerly in favor, since it never runs any risk of breaking a leg in a prairie dog hole. Educated automobiles have been trained to shell corn, saw wood, pump water, churn, plow, and, in short, do anything required of them, except figure out where the consumer gets off under the tariff law.—Outing.

The Word "Culture."

Episcopal culture cannot date from a very remote antiquity. The very word "culture" is almost a newcomer to the language.—Johnson's Dictionary does not recognise its existence. It does not occur before 1760, and even in 1802 a military dictionary had to define it as "a sort of spatterdashes." "Guetre," however, the French original, goes back at least to the fifteenth century and the origin of that is lost, though etymologists compare all sorts of words in all sorts of languages, including an old German word for a baby's christening cloth. The one certainty is that gaiters has nothing to do with gait in spite of the punning line in the "Rejected Addresses"—"Lax in their gaiters, laxer in their gait."—London Standard.

Reasonable Request.

"Ladies and gentlemen," appealingly began the village handy man, advancing to the front of the stage and addressing the few patient persons who remained of the audience which had assembled to witness the beautiful pastoral drama, "The Mad Miller's Daughter," written by the hamlet's accomplished authoress and presented by home talent performers, "I am requested by the members of the company to ask you to remain until the end of the play. In the next act, which I solemnly assure you is the last, the villain gets his due and is slain without mercy, and we want witnesses."—Puck.

They Might Do Worse.

The German proprietor of a Brooklyn delicatessen store has got far enough along to pun in English. A writer in the New York Sun reports the fact.

Hanging in the window of the little shop is this advertisement:

"The best you can do is to buy our wurst."

A Borrower.

"Has Dingues any occupation?" inquired Ruggles.

"Yes," said Shadbolt. "He's a solicitor."

"Solicitor? For what?"

"Small and unsecured loans."—Chicago Tribune.

Ether.

Ether as an anaesthetic was used by Dr. Jackson for the first time in 1846.

Cooking Beets.

One must be careful not to break the skin of beets and not to cut their tops off too close lest the juice flow out and leave the beet colorless and tasteless.

Asia Minor.

Most of the people living in the villages and towns of Asia Minor know nothing about remedies of any kind except the few made of roots and herbs growing near by, and a physician's services are rarely called for; consequently the mortality among the people is very great. In the larger cities and communities on the main roads there are many physicians.

"I COULD NOT LIVE"

WITHOUT "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Writes The Treasurer Of Caledonia Township

PENAGHVALE, ONT., Jan. 20th, 1910.

For thirty-five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation.

No matter what remedy or physician I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure.

About two years ago, I read the testimonial of Hon. John Costigan regarding "Fruit-a-tives" and I decided to give this fruit medicine a trial. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" ever since. They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for "Fruit-a-tives", I am satisfied that I could not live." JAMES PROUDFOOT.

The liver controls the bowels by giving up enough bile to make the bowels move. The only possible way to cure constipation is to make the liver active and healthy and thus store up sufficient bile to move the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the liver—ensures an abundance of bile—and causes the bowels to move regularly and naturally. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A BUSINESS BARGAIN

Reciprocity Would Mean Dollars to the Producers, Said Mr. Paterson

"Reciprocity is a straight business bargain, sought for years and years," said Hon. William Paterson, speaking at Caledonia. Personally he could see no two sides to the question. He spoke of the Opposition referring to two old gentlemen, later two old men, and, lastly, two old fogies, such as Fielding and Paterson, having the audacity to go to Washington to negotiate with cute Yankees without a mandate from the people. Perhaps these same people who refer to the agreement may learn more about it when they, too, become older and wiser.

"The whole trouble is the wrong party is to receive the credit," said Mr. Paterson. If the Conservatives had gone to Washington it would have been different. For twelve years this country had this same thing and advanced wonderfully. For forty-five years we were without it, and during that time Conservatives and Liberals alike fought to get it back. Sir John Macdonald, Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. George Brown, and even Hon. G. E. Foster, in 1891, had this plank in their platform. Both parties were committed to it. Now, why are they crying against it? Mr. Foster even wrote articles for magazines in its favor, but now denounces it, because he didn't get it. Mr. Paterson spoke of the future development that would result by railways coming in. This would mean competition. Competition means lower rates, lower rates means dollars in the producers' pockets.

TRADE ROUTES

No Legislation Can Turn Trade Out of Its Natural Channels

Replying to the charge that reciprocity would divert Canadian trade into American channels, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said: "If you attempt to prevent the people from trading in natural channels, no amount of legislation will accomplish that object; but let nature alone, and then the trade will be carried on on Canadian lines. Why? Because we have the interior and the shorter and better lines. Take the condition of things to-day. Winnipeg can trade with Europe by way of the United States; it can trade with Europe by way of Canada. The line of railway from Winnipeg to Montreal is 1,424 miles, and from Montreal to Liverpool 2,750 miles, a total of 4,174 miles. From Winnipeg to New York by way of Minneapolis, Chicago and the American lines, the distance is 1,790 miles, and from New York to Montreal 3,026 miles, a total distance of 4,826 miles. The American line is 4,326 miles, the Canadian line 4,174 miles, a difference in favor of the Canadian line of 652 miles. Do you require any legislation to compel trade to choose the Canadian channel? Is it not obvious that for very self-respect trade will always take the Canadian line, because it is the shorter one? That is not all. We have had experience as to what has happened, and our experience has been that our trade over the Canadian channels has increased by leaps and bounds as against the trade by the American channels. In 1900 the total amount of Canadian wheat exported from Montreal was 4,006,000 bushels; in 1910 it had increased from four million bushels to 14,140,000 bushels. Of American wheat the total number of bushels exported from Montreal in 1900 was 5,000,000 bushels, and in 1911 that had increased to 10,000,000 bushels. So, therefore, there is no doubt on this point, the Canadian line must have the preference because the Canadian line is the best and the shortest."

SIR WILFRID LAURIER

FAVOR THE AGREEMENT

Centre Grey Liberals Do not Think it Will Lead to Political Union

The following resolution was adopted by Centre Grey Liberals:

"That we place ourselves on record in favor of the reciprocity agreement, believing that an enlarged market means more prosperity to everybody. We resent the untrue and unpatriotic argument of the Opposition press and speakers, that improved trade relations will lead to political union, and point them to the history of the treaty of 1854, where Republican Senators opposed the treaty on the ground that Canada would seek annexation if the United States market could not be otherwise obtained, while the representatives of the southern States (who were opposed to enlarging the northern boundary) favored reciprocity as a means of keeping Canada out of the Union.

HELPS THE CONSUMERS

Ralph Smith Says Reciprocity Is Bound to Assist Them

"The argument has been put up by a few people: How are you going to increase the price to the farmer and reduce the cost to the consumer?" said Ralph Smith, M.P., speaking at Montreal. "I have no objection to that question. You must remember that in Canada we have a great agricultural country, that we have millions of acres of the richest land in the world. The opponents of this measure say that if the United States takes our natural products it is going to create a strong demand for these commodities and the result will be that these natural products will be dear. That is the argument. But, you must remember that simultaneously with the finding of the market for our agricultural products in the United States, you will have the greatest development of agricultural production in this Dominion that has ever taken place. The very fact that you have millions of acres of land, the very fact that you create a market in the United States, and consequently create an extraordinary demand, will bring about an enormously increased investment of capital in agricultural land and an enormously increased production of agricultural commodities which will operate in favor of the consumers of this country. You can make no mistake in believing that when the exchange of natural products between this country and the United States is made free, the man who eats these things is going to benefit by it, that the consumers of this country are going to get plenty of these products at reduced prices as compared with what they are at the present time, and that the producers who are on the soil are not going to have any reduction in the prices at which they sell their commodities. Free trade between the two countries will develop this business enormously, will increase largely the area of agricultural land under cultivation, more pople will go on the land, and seek to meet the great demand that will be created by this exchange of commodities. Free trade in natural products is bound to assist the consumer."

AMERICAN REDUCTIONS

Greater in Many Cases Than Those Made by Canada

"At present wheat is dutiable in the United States at 25 cents a bushel and in Canada at 12 cents a bushel," said Hon. W. S. Fielding. "We make wheat free in both countries. The reduction in Canada is 12 cents a bushel, whereas the United States reduction is 25 cents a bushel. I give that as an illustration of the fact that the tariff of the United States being much higher than ours, in order to meet a common rate they have had to make very much larger reductions than we have. Barley is now made free. Canada's reduction is 15 cents per bushel and the United States reduction is 30 cents per bushel. Potatoes are now made free. Canada's reduction is 20 cents per bushel and the United States 25 cents. Oats are made free. Canada's reduction is 10 cents per bushel, the United States 15 cents per bushel. Flour is now to be dutiable at the common rate of 50 cents per barrel; Canada's reduction is 10 cents per barrel; the United States reduction is about equal to 70 cents per barrel."

THE FURNITURE TRADE

Reciprocity Would Give the Manufacturers a Greater Market

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, speaking at Hanover, referred to the furniture trade and its relation to reciprocity, Hanover having half a dozen furniture factories. He pointed out that the greater market the Western farmer had the greater would be the migration there, and the more money there would be. The furniture trade would get its share, and he believed that under reciprocity the output of local factories would be doubled in a few years. The Government had not touched the protection on furniture, nor did it intend to. The only manufactured articles affected were agricultural implements, the makers of which could stand the reduction. He also reminded them that the manufacturers had been assisted by the reduction in the duty on soft coal.

"What are the prices of cattle here and on the other side?" asked an interrupter. Mr. King had not the figures, but he asked the farmers in the audience if it was not true that Canada was to-day exporting cattle to the United States. There were cries of "Yes," and Mr. King said: "Well, I leave it to your common sense if Canadian farmers find it profitable to export cattle now with a high duty on will it not be easier under reciprocity and mean a greater net price to the farmer?"

SCANDAL AND SHAME

Mr. Fielding Thus Refers to the Talk About Annexation

"Annexation?" said Hon. W. S. Fielding. "Is it not a scandal and a shame that our opponents should talk annexation? I would not know—I do not know whether you do or not—I would not know where to look in the whole Dominion of Canada for a man who would call himself an annexationist. What can you say if our American friends receive an erroneous impression when they read that the men who are supporting this Reciprocity agreement in Canada are advocating annexation in disguise, and when they know that thousands and hundreds of thousands of people in Canada are supporting this Reciprocity agreement? Can you be surprised if our American friends are taught to believe that there is disloyalty in Canada? Who teaches them?"

NO BLUE RUIN

The Annexation Cry, "the Greatest Nonsense," Said Bishop Mills

Bishop Mills, in his charge to the Ontario Synod at Kingston, said some people were going about singing a song concerning blue ruin which was coming to our country through reciprocity with the United States. "Whether reciprocity would be in the general interests of the country," he said, "is a question for debate, and about which different opinions may be held. But politicians have not devoted their attention so much to the discussion of this question as in ringing changes on the cry that if reciprocity were adopted it would be the first step towards annexation, that the United States would be buying us, and we would be selling ourselves. I think that is the greatest nonsense that ever came from the mouths of supposedly sane men; as a Canadian I resent it. I would think very little of my loyalty to the British Crown if it depended on tariff schedules. Those who think the national spirit of Canada is such a poor and uncertain thing that her existence as a nation would be imperilled by an increase of trade with the United States certainly do not know her. There is no part of the British Empire in which there is truer loyalty than in Canada, and she can be neither bought nor sold. . . . The opposition to reciprocity is simply a political one. That there are men of both parties opposed to it simply means that men can be taught by a cry and can be led by sentiment. Mr. R. L. Borden, the leader of the Opposition, like a sensible man has, I believe, while opposing reciprocity on economic grounds, refused to take up the annexation cry, or to use it in any way as an argument."

WHY NOT TAKE THE CHANCE?

Mr. MacKay Thought Conservatives Lost Their Hand at a Game

Speaking at Wingham, Hon. A. G. MacKay said that if the Conservatives were so sure reciprocity would be a bad thing, why did they not go on record against it, let it pass, and, after a year's trial, have the dissatisfied people turn the Liberals out? During the first five months of this year 625 cars of hay had been exported to the United States from Ontario north of Stratford. At twenty tons to the car and $4 a ton duty, that was $50,000 lost in duty. He closed with the reply to the annexation bogey, and urged the electors to vote against the Conservative candidate, who had forgotten them when he had voted against reciprocity.

HON. A. G. MacKAY

SIR JOHN A. WANTED IT

The Late Conservative Chieftain Had Gone on Record on Reciprocity

So strongly had Sir John A. Macdonald felt upon the question of reciprocity, said S. H. McKay, speaking at Brandon, that he had left it on statutory record that as soon as the United States was willing to enter into a reciprocal agreement Canada would be prepared to do the same. For several years Canadian had enjoyed bonding privileges in the United States and reciprocity was after all only an extension of that principle.

Their opponents claimed that the Laurier Government had received no mandate to ratify the agreement. Surely the Canadian farmers' delegation to Ottawa formed a mandate. But apart from that mandate, reciprocity had been so thoroughly endorsed by both parties that no further mandate was necessary.

ORGANIZED TO DEFEAT

Western Farmers View with Alarm the Source of the Opposition

The farmers of Portage la Prairie recently presented an address to Hon. Frank Oliver, in which the proposed reciprocity agreement was described as covering a very wide range and being a long step in the direction in which the grain growers wished to go. The address stated that it viewed with alarm the source from which the opposition to the pact emanated and the determined efforts of organized capital and special interests to defeat the agreement.

PASS THE AGREEMENT

Brandon Liberals adopt unanimously the following resolution:

"That this meeting heartily endorses the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States now before the Parliament of Canada for ratification, expresses its regret at the opposition to the agreement passing the House, and urges the Government to do everything possible to have it agreed to."

Patriotism

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. To keep the correct humidity for sanitary purposes, we place the water pan in right over the main door, a place where the heat and the householder can reach it. So in Sunshine Furnace the water never gets stagnant, and the householder never complains about the awkwardness of pouring the water in.

Automatic Gas Damper allows furnace to be checked shortly after coaling. This saves fuel and protects plants in rooms above.

To make "Sunshine" the easiest-to-be-cleaned furnace, we construct two flue doors, and place same not only at an equal distance from each other, but at an equal distance from the large feed door. So the operator with an ordinary soot-cleaning brush can go completely around the radiator without inconvenience; and, what is more important still, can do this without having to put out the fire or take down the smoke-pipe.

FARMERS TO BENEFIT

The Agreement of Great Advantage to Canadian Agriculture, Says Dr. Neely

Dr. Neely, M.P., addressing a Saskatchewan mass meeting, declared that the proposed trade agreement offered great advantages to the Canadian farmer. It was in the cities of the United States that the mass of consumers of farm products were to be found, and Canada is primarily an agricultural country. With adverse tariffs Canada did $400,000,000 of business with the United States, and everybody wanted to do more business, not less. The Government got credit for the result of the British preference in extending trade. "Why should we not seek better markets in the United States, immediately at our door?"

"Our ultimate future market for the wheat of Canada must be to the south," he said. "However much the British people may love Canada, they cannot enlarge their stomachs to consume our growing production of wheat. If we do not secure all available markets, Canada must again enter upon such a period of decline as prevailed from 1890 to 1896.

"Because the United States as well as Canada exports wheat, the question is put, 'How is the Western grain producer of this country going to be benefitted?' The American farmers have been getting 10 cents per bushel more than their Canadian neighbors for wheat that was destined for Liverpool. The answer is, that when the duty is abolished the Canadian combine of wheat exporters will be broken and the American buyers will come in to help to raise the price of wheat to the Canadian farmer."

AFTER AMERICAN CASH

Mr. Fisher Wants Canada to Annex a Lot of It

"We have been able to attract American capital over to Canada," said Hon. Mr. Fisher, speaking at Montreal, "and I hope to annex a very large portion of it, which, I suppose, is just as disloyal as it is to sell them an ox or a horse. Of gasoline engines we purchased one million dollars worth, tobacco three million dollars worth, and wood ten million dollars worth. Our exports to the United States are as follows:

HON W. L. MACKENZIE KING

Animals	3½	million
Grain	8	"
Grain Products	1½	"
Coal	4½	"
Drugs, etc.	2	"
Fish	4½	"
Spirits	1	"
Lumber	32	"
Manufactured Wood	4½	"
Furs	2	"
Metal—Copper	5½	"
Ore—Gold and Silver	13	"
Asbestos, Nickel, etc.	6	"

"But our miners, metal workers, wood manufacturers, lumbermen, druggists, coal miners, and fishermen are to-day selling over eighty million dollars worth of Canadian products in the United States."

A PERMANENT OFFER

What the Conservatives Were Prepared to Do When in Power

In 1879, said Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Conservatives made the following permanent offer of reciprocity:

"Any or all of the following articles, that is to say: animals of all kinds, grain fruit, hay, straw, bran, seeds of all kinds, vegetables (including potatoes and other roots), plants, trees, and shrubs, coal and coke, salt, hops, wheat, peas and beans, barley, rye, oats, Indian corn, buckwheat and all other grain, flour of wheat and flour of rye, Indian meal and oatmeal, and flour of meal of any other grain, butter, cheese, fish (salted or smoked), lard, tallow, meats (fresh, salted or smoked), and lumber, may be imported into Canada, free of duty, or at a less rate of duty than is provided by this Act, upon proclamation of the Governor-in-Council, which may be issued whenever it appears to his satisfaction that similar articles from Canada may be imported into the United States free of duty."

OPEN THE DOOR

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Wants Canada to Share in the Trade of 90,000,000 Neighbors

"At the northern extremity of the temperate zone," says Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "our cereals have more strength, our fruit has better flavor our vegetables have more delicacy than similar productions from other parts of the world, and under free competition, not barred in any way by tariff legislation, they will displace all other products on the tables of the wealthy. Our object to-day is to open the door of the American market, to open the door of a nation of 90,000,000, which has been closed to us for the last 50 years, and when we are now on the eve of reaching that goal we are debased by a politics of foolish

ECZEMA AND WHAT IS DONE TO CURE IT

Desperate Efforts, Disheartening Failures and Final Success.

Eczema is a skin affection to which men and women alike are subject, from the first to the last day of their existence. It may occur as a single tiny spot, appearing and disappearing with each change in general health or personal care of certain persons; in the other extreme, the whole body may be involved in a torturing eruption. The latter condition may gradually arise through the neglect or improper treatment of lesser troubles or an apparently healthy skin may, in a single day, become a mass of eczema.

But whatever the form of the affection, the distressing itching, burning, scaling and crusting, the serious disfigurement and the constant dread that the eczema will become chronic, make a speedy cure the aim of every sufferer. Unfortunately, such a cure is not always readily obtained. The most skilled physician is often at a loss and even hospitals are forced to discharge the patient as incurable. Then a wide variety of remedies are resorted to, many perfectly harmless and equally ineffective, others as offensive to every sense that, were it not for the relief they are supposed to afford, no person of refinement would tolerate them for an instant.

To such sufferers, discouraged by repeated failures of even these heroic methods, the instant relief afforded by the first bath with Cuticura Soap and gentle application of Cuticura Ointment is almost incredible. They stop the itching and burning at once, make sleep possible and, in most cases, point to a speedy cure. So pure and sweet are Cuticura Soap and Ointment and so free from every suspicion of a disagreeable or harmful nature that they can be used without hesitation on the youngest infant or tenderest skin. Besides, they are most economical, a single set being often sufficient for the treatment of even the severest cases.

In proof of the efficacy of the Cuticura Remedies it will be enough to quote here a single letter, from Mr. Edward Manning, 11 Lansing Block, Watertown, N.Y.: "Four years ago I suffered with a terrible eczema, being a mass of sores from head to feet and for six months confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual tortures from itching and burning. After being given up by my doctor, I was advised to try Cuticura. After the first bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the first good sleep during my entire illness. I also used Cuticura Resolvent and the treatment was continued for three weeks. At the end of that time I was entirely cured and have had no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies, as I know what they did for me."

Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent and Pills are sold by druggists everywhere. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., Boston, Mass. Mailed free, on request, Inland 32-page Cuticura Book, a guide to the speedy and economical treatment of skin and scalp affections, from infancy to age.

ity. We are told that if such an arrangement is to go into effect and Canadian vegetables, cereals and fruits can cross the boundary line and be eaten free of duty by the American people it will be all over with the Canadian confederation, and even the British Empire will reel and rock upon its foundations. Let us discard these freaks of unreasoning panic and let us approach this question from the point of view of common sense. All that we ask under these resolutions is to obtain for the man who works in the fields the best possible remuneration for his labor."

EQUALIZATION OF TRADE

That Will Not Hurt Canada, Says Hon. Mr. Fisher

In the last three years Canada has imported from the United States $630,000,000 worth of goods, and she has exported to the United States in these same three years $297,000,000 worth of goods, the balance being in round figured more than two to one of imports against exports, said Hon. Sydney Fisher. Now, what is going to come from this Reciprocity arrangement? The result will be a largely increased export of Canadian products to the United States and an effort to reverse the alleged evil of the adverse balance of trade. And there will be an opportunity for Canadians to sell more to the United States and to try to bring about a greater equalization of trade between the two countries. Is this going to be an injury? Is this going to be an evil? Those who prate against the evils of the adverse balance of trade must reconcile their two positions and try to make out where they are at this point. A great trade with the United States will come about, largely by the export of Canada's agricultural products. At present we import from the United States largely raw material, and we export to the United States some manufactured articles, a good deal of ores, a good deal of minerals, a good deal of fish, a good deal of lumber, and by this arrangement we have an opportunity of exporting more of these articles to the United States. Is that going to hurt us? When you take your food, it costs so much to raise it, the farmer gets so much for it, then it costs so much to handle it and bring it to you, and the sum of these amounts is the cost to you, and if in addition to these amounts you have three and a half million dollars in duties, you have just so much to be added to the cost of this food to you. And if the duties are removed from these foods on both sides of the line, they will come from the original producer on the farm to the eventual consumer in the city just so much more cheaply by the removal of these duties, and it will be a relief from taxation to that extent.

ENDORSED IN 1893

Resolution Adopted in That Year by the Liberals

Hon. W. S. Fielding in one of his speeches quoted the following resolution of the Liberal party in 1893:

"That a fair and liberal reciprocity "treaty would develop the great na"tural resources of Canda, would "enormously increase trade and com"merce between the two countries "would tend to encourage friendly "relations between the two peoples "would remove many causes which "have in the past provoked irritation "and trouble to the Governments of "both countries, and would promote "those kindly relations between the "Empire and the Republic which af"ford the best guarantee for peace and "prosperity."

SIR JOSEPH WARD

Started Life as a Messenger, is Now a Prime Minister

"Cement of Empire" is a favorite theme with the Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Ward, Prime Minister of New Zealand.

"Stick to it," has been Sir Joseph Ward's motto in life.

Irish by parentage, Sir Joseph first saw the light in Australia, but he was only a child when his parents moved to Campbelltown, in the South Island of New Zealand.

Of his schooldays he said, in the course of a chat:

"They were brief, but happy. I was educated at a private school first, and next at a State school. I was out in the world by the time I was twelve. My education, however, continued long after I had left school, for I attended night schools and classes for some six years after I began work."

The lad got his start in life as a telegraph-boy in the Postal and Telegraph Department. Sir Joseph Ward is not fond of talking about himself, but as illustrating how wages go in New Zealand he delights to tell you that his commencing salary was $5 a week, while as a fourteen-year-old telegraph-boy he was getting $680 a year!

SIR JOSEPH WARD

Leaving the telegraph service at fourteen, he entered a big "store," or shop. He remained there three years, then became a railwayman, and soon after his twenty-first birthday young Ward started a successful export and general business.

About the same time that he became his own "boss," Sir Joseph Ward entered public life as a member of the Campbelltown Borough Council, and via the District Harbor Board he soon found his way to the New Zealand Parliament.

Sir Joseph Ward has filled many ministerial posts, but perhaps he is proudest of his work as Minister of Defence, a position he still holds.

"Within twelve months from now," he said, "we shall have a citizen army for home defence of 100,000 well-armed, fully-trained men."

The New Zealander is trained almost from the cradle to be able to defend his country. From five to twelve years of age he receives systematic physical education and training. This is continued from twelve to seventeen, plus semi-military training. Then he enters one or other branch of the New Zealand forces, serving until he is twenty-five, when he passes into the reserve.

Military service is compulsory for all, and woe betide the New Zealand employer who dares to dock a man's salary when he is away for his annual training.

If Britain's safety depends on her Navy, so, Sir Joseph says, does that of her Oversea Dominons.

SHELTER FOR FOWLS

It Will Soon Pay for Itself in Good Results

Damp is probably the worst enemy to fowls, but cold winds are a very good rival. Fowls will not lay and make progress when they have to face these biting winds, and it would pay the fancier who wishes for success to provide shelter under these circumstances. As to the nature of this shelter, it may consist of a dense hedge of a screen of canvas, or of a proper shelter-shed. The latter is infinitely the best, and it will pay for itself in excellent results in a very short time.

A very peculiar thing that you have probably noticed is that fowls seldom avail themselves of their roosting place in the daytime, and the shelter-shed I suggest is in no way like the sleeping quarters. It may, indeed, be as rough-and-ready as one likes, so long as it is wind-proof on three sides, and open to the south. If a perch or two are provided, the birds will appreciate the attention, whilst it is an excellent plan to sift the household ashes in the shelter-shed.

A MATTER FOR GRATITUDE

Balfour and Erskine Principals in an Amusing Story

Of two celebrated barristers, Balfour and Erskine, this story is told. The former's style, it should be mentioned, was very verbose, while the latter's, on the contrary, was crisp and vigorous. In court one day Erskine noticed that Balfour's ankle was bandaged. "Why, what's the matter?" asked Erskine. Instead of replying, "I fell from a gate," Balfour answered in these words: "I was taking a romantic ramble in my brother's garden, and on coming to a gate I discovered that I had to climb over it, by which I came into contact with the first bar and grazed the epidermis of my leg, which has caused a slight extravasation of the blood."

"You may thank your lucky stars," replied Erskine, "that your brother's gate was not as lofty as your style, or you would have broken your neck!"

H. H. Miller, M.P., speaking at Hanover, declared that reciprocity in natural products would be one of the greatest factors in the breaking of the pork-packing, fruit-canning and other monopolies.

ROUND TRIP EXCURSIONS FROM EVERYWHERE

Wouldn't Hear Local Man.

Melville, Sask., July 5.—An unusual turn was given to the meeting at Melville yesterday afternoon. Mr Borden was given an enthusiastic personal reception and his arguments were accorded attentive hearing. His policy of western issues elected frequent cheers, his utterances on reciprocity were heard in quietness, though they were not often applauded, but when a western Conservative Harvey Hearn of Wadena, Sask., and formerly of Nova Scotia, began to argue the same issues it speedily brought down a storm of interruptions, antagonistic and favorable, and the chairman was compelled to ask for order. The western people gave their visitors a polite and attentive hearing, but they felt Mr. Hearn, who is to be a Conservative candidate of Humboldt at the next election, was one of themselves, and they treated him accordingly.

Congregation In Difficulties.

Kingston, July 5.—Mr. Sager, recently appointed to the Methodist charge at Portsmouth, has resigned and left for Peterboro. The congregation is endeavoring to have union with the Presbyterians, as it is difficult to keep up expenses as the congregation is so small, but the matter has been shelved for three months and the charge will be filled by local preachers.

Premier Stolypin to Retire?

St. Petersburg, July 5.—Premier Stolypin, according to The Bourse Gazette, is ill, having become over-fatigued by state duties. Berlin doctors have advised the Prime Minister to take an extended and complete rest.

It is rumored that M. Stolypin will retire from office and, with his family, take the cure at Elsterbad, Germany.

Taken In Charge.

London, July 5.—The romantic marriage of Miss Janet Fisher, a sister of Andrew Fisher, Premier of Australia, who has been attending the Imperial Conference at the British Foreign Office, and Constable Galt of the London police, attracted a large crowd. Interested spectators thronged the church and its vicinity.

Rt. Hon. Andrew Fisher gave away his sister and the bridegroom was attended by picked good-looking patrolmen of the police force.

Refused to Return Money.

St. Catharines, July 5.—Kirkur Vartaramm and Abel Kharjayann were arrested Monday night, charged with fraudulently omitting to pay certain money entrusted to them as officers of the Arreck Educational Society. The men, who were employed at the McKinnon Dash Works, had been president and secretary respectively of the society. Saturday, new officers were elected and the old ones refused to hand over the funds. The amount involved was between $1,600 and $1,700. Yesterday in the Police Court $1,525 was produced by the defeated officers. A member of the society was sent to recover the amount of the balance, and the case was remanded a week, Magistrate Campbell meanwhile keeping the money as a trustee.

A Border Outrage.

St. Catharines, July 5.—Miss A. D. Parry, one of the best-known residents of Dunnville, Haldimand County, was on her way to Buffalo to see her cousin, of whose serious and possibly fatal illness she had been apprised.

In spite of the fact that she had a return ticket, she was taken off the train at Black Rock, put through a severe cross-examination, and although vouched for by M. L. Parry, J. W. Gray, former G.T.R. agent here, and others, was sent back to this side.

The outrage is all the more surprising from the fact that Miss Parry is, and has been for twenty years or more, owner of property in Buffalo.

Villagers Refuse Vaccination.

Montreal, July 5.—Three new cases of smallpox were reported at the Provincial Board of Health yesterday. They are in Jacques Cartier, Wright and Quebec Counties.

It was announced yesterday that the quarantine had been taken off Lac Aux Saumons, Rimouski County. The board had cut off the Intercolonial train service because the villagers refused to submit to vaccination, although two cases of smallpox had appeared in a large factory employing several hundred men. The inhabitants have now submitted to vaccination. Dr. Beaudry went down to Lac Aux Saumons Monday, and after an inspection, pronounced conditions not alarming.

Spent Bullet Near Taft.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 5.—Before President Taft took his se . in the reviewing stand in front of the Soldiers' Monument here yesterday, what is believed by the police to be a spent bullet struck Mrs. Harry D. Tutewiler, who was sitting near the President's box. The bullet came from a 38-calibre revolver. Mrs. Tutewiler was not seriously injured.

Want More Money.

Kingston, July 5.—Rural military men are making strong application for more money. They state they will not turn out for another camp unless there is more money given. Col. Benson is in favor of having the pay increased, to take in the better class of men.

Kitchener Off For Egypt.

London, July 5.—Sir Eldon Gorst, for several years British agent and consul-general in Egypt, is dangerously ill. His recovery is not expected.

The Telegraph says it is understood his successor in Egypt will be Gen. Lord Kitchener.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, July 4.—Business in wheat and oats for export account continues very quiet. There was some inquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, but the prices bid for No. 3 northern were 1½d lower than yesterday. The local demand for coarse grains was also very quiet, and prices were unchanged. A few cars of winter wheat flour were worked for export, but the demand for spring wheat grades is limited. A fair trade is passing in millfeed, of which supplies are none too plentiful.

Crops Good In Kent.

Chatham, Ont., July 5.—Many farmers throughout Kent are well on their way with wheat-cutting. Some beautiful crops of fall wheat and promising fields of oats were noticed through Dover yesterday, though in some other parts of the country it is said that the crops are not faring so well. The intense heat of the past few days has ripened the wheat very rapidly.

Boy Dies of Lockjaw.

St. Catharines, July 5.—Aaron, the 13-year-old son of Mrs. Joseph Thomas of Centre street, passed away yesterday after two days' illness with tetanus. A week ago Sunday, the little fellow ran a sliver in his foot, but no trouble was experienced until Saturday, when the dread disease struck him. All the efforts of the doctor to save his life were in vain.

Board of Education Consider That Cost of Building on the Old Site Would be in Excess of Cost of New One

ADJOURN TO SEPT.

Thirty minutes was sufficient to dispose of a considerable amount of business at the regular meeting of the Board of Education last night. No one had nerve enough to even attempt to raise a discussion. The humidity of the atmosphere was indirectly responsible for this state of affairs.

Those present were: John Crane, chairman, Harry Adams, Robt. Fair, Col. Miller, W. H. Hill and Dr. Morrison.

The chairman opened the meeting by censuring the members for not being punctual, it being 8.20 when the meeting opened. The following communications were received:

A letter from Miss Alberta Real, accepting position on teaching staff of the Public school.

Miss Helen Howson also wrote, accepting appointment on Kindergarten teaching staff. Miss Ethel Richardson wrote, accepting similar position.

A letter of application from R. J. Devey was read asking for position of musical instructor at Public and Normal schools.

J. H. Renwick also wrote, asking for the same office.

Resignations were read from the following and accepted:

Miss E. E. Carey resigning her position on the Public school teaching staff.

Miss Helen Davies, musical directress of the Public and Normal school.

Mr. E. C. Srigley wrote the Board formally tendering his resignation as teacher of the Collegiate staff, and thanking the Board for the many kindnesses shown him during his nine years' stay in Peterborough.

In connection with the latter the Board moved a resolution, authorising the secretary or chairman to write Mr. Srigley expressing the thanks and appreciation of the Board for his nine years' efficient service a steacher in the Collegiate.

T. H. ADAMS,
Acting Chairman.

Gentlemen,—Your committee beg to report that the plans for a new school for the East and West Wards are nearing completion and will be submitted for the approval of the Board in a very short time. Regarding sites, your committee selected a site in the East Ward on the north east corner of Concession and Hunter streets, owned by the Armour estate. We had the solicitor negotiate regarding the purchase of the same, but the trustees of the estate refused to set a price, so the committee made them an offer of $400 per acre, for 4 or 5 acres, which they declined to accept, as per the solicitor's letter appended hereto.

We would, therefore, recommend that the Board take some action regarding the expropriation of the property for school purposes.

Regarding a site for the West Ward; negotiations are still under way, and we hope to secure a site both centrally located and of sufficient area, within a very short time.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman.

Gentlemen, — As authorized, your committee advertised for tenders for text books and supplies and also for Collegiate Institute supplies for the ensuing year, and have awarded the contract to Mr. R. J. Soden, his being the lowest tender.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman.

Gentlemen,—Your committee on Appointments beg to report and recommend as follows:

1st. That Miss Helen Hewson and Miss Ethel Richardson, both of Peterborough be appointed on the Kindergarten staff of the Public schools to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Miss Wilson and Miss Claire, salaries to be according to schedule, and duties to start 5th September.

2nd. That Miss Alberta Rehil, of Greenbank be appointed on the Public school staff to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Carey, salary to be according to schedule and duties to start 5th September next.

3rd. That Mr. C. E. Jamieson, of the St. Catharines Collegiate Institute be appointed on the Collegiate Institute staff, to succeed Mr. E. C. Srigley, who has resigned, salary to be according to schedule and duties to start 15th September next.

4th. That Miss Marion R. Rannie be appointed musical instructor, to succeed Miss Davies who has resigned, salary to be according to schedule and duties to start 5th September next.

5th. That the annual increase in the salaries in the Specialist class of the Collegiate Institute be $75.00, instead of $50.00 as at present, thereby reaching the maximum in 4 years instead of 6. This amendment does not apply to the Junior Department.

6th. Your Committee recommend that in future the salaries of the teachers be paid on the 1st of each month, instead of the 15th, as heretofore.

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

They were all received and adopted in the order named. Also the following statement of monies received:

Civil Service Commission for use of rooms for exams.	$ 10.00
City Treasurer, municipal grant	12000.00

The following resolutions were then passed:

Moved by Harry Adams, seconded by Dr. Morrison, that the payment of the following accounts be confirmed:

Moved by Robt. Fair, seconded by Col. Miller, that the secretary be authorized to make payments to the contractor for the repairs and alterations at the various schools, on the certificate of the chairman of the Property committee and the architect.

Moved by W. H. Hill, seconded by Col. Miller, "that By-law No. 39 be amended by striking out the word "fifteenth" in the second line and inserting the word "first" in place thereof."

Moved by Col. Miller, seconded by Dr. Morrison, that the Board adjourn until the first Tuesday in September, unless called by the chairman.

Attendance at Public schools for month of June was: Enrolment, 2009; average attendance, 1870. Fire drill was practised at each of schools during the month; average time, 35 seconds.

In reference to the selection of a site for a new school in East City, Dr. Morrison suggested that the Board take means to expropriate sufficient land at the north-east corner of Concession and Hunter streets for that purpose.

The owners of the land in question had been approached with a view to the purchasing of the land, but they refused to sell. About five acres of land would be required for school site and playground.

It was moved and seconded that the entire Board visit the property and report as a special meeting.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned until further notice.

"Your friend, Mrs. ——— is looking much improved in health." "Yes, we persuaded her to try Miller's Compound Iron Pills, with the result you observe."—Wm. Madill.

MURDERED IN CELL

Bullet Fired From Window of Courthouse Killed Man Who Has Been Held on a Charge of Murder

MYSTERIOUS CASE

Globe, Aris., July 4.—Kingsley Olds, a prospector, who attempted suicide after the drowning of Lulu and Myrtle Goswick, young daughters of his mining partner, on June 24th, was murdered in his cell in jail today.

Threats of lynching had been made ever since Olds came intotown and announced that Indians had slain the girls and shot away part of his jaw. The bodies of the girls were fund later in a river, and it was found, officers say, that Olds had mistreated and drowned them, and then attempted suicide.

The single shot that killed Olds was fired from a window in the court house 30 feet distant, while Olds lay asleep. The murderer escaped, leaving the rifle by the window through which the shot was fired. The assassin gained entrance to the building in the night by means of keys belonging to the janitor.

Entering a judges' chamber overlooking Olds' cell window, he rested the rifle on the window ledge and sent his shot between the bars into Olds' shoulder. It ranged downward through the lungs and caused death almost instaneous. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death at the hands of a person unknown.

Olds was found n June 24th by cowboys making his way to Globe from Salt River. His jaw was partly shot away and he was unable to talk. He wrote that while in bathing in the river with the two girls, ten and twelve years old, who had accompanied him to Globe from their father's ranch, he had been shot by Indians. He became unconscious, he said, and did not know what became of the girls, but thought the Indians took or killed them. Their bodies were found in the river the next day.

Circumstances pointed to Olds' having assaulted the girls and drowned them to cover his crime, but their bodies bore no trace of violence. When a charge of murder was preferred against him Olds confessed that he shot himself in an attempt at suicide, but said he had not harmed the girls. He said that when they were drowned accidentally he feared he feared he would be llamed, and therefore tried to kill himself.

Annual Excursion George St. Sunday School on Thursday, July 6th, per steamer Otonabee to Idyl Wyld, leaves Wolfe St. Wharf at 8 o'clock, calling at Street Railway Wharf. Adults 50c, Children 25c. S. S. Orchestra will furnish music.

NARROW ESCAPE

Little Joseph Gagnon Got Beyond His Depth While Learning to Swim and was Saved in Nick of Time

SAVED BY WOMAN

Little Joseph Gagnon, of 47 Smith street, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday, while in learning to swim in the Otonabee near the Smith street bridge at the back of his home. He was in swimming with another boy, when the incident occurred, and the other boy yelled, 'Joe is drowning.' Miss H. Garner, was out hanging up clothes and heard the alarm. She ran to the river and rescued the little fellow just as he was going down for the third time. The boy's mother lives in Toronto and he was staying with his grandmother.

The Trip Of The Rangers

The Brockveille Recorder has the following note in regard to the visit of the Rangers:

The 57th have in their brass band one of the best musical organisations in the province, and the concerts of Saturday night and Sunday afternoon were heard by hundreds. Saturday night's concert took place on Court House Avenue, and so densely packed was that thoroughfare that traffic was blocked during the rendit ion of the programme. Prof. Rupert Gliddon, head of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, is the leader, and during the rendit ion of each programme he gave the impression of being a musician of rare ability. Yesterday's program commenced at the camp at four o'clock and until six the musicians played sacred numbers before another crowd of several hundreds.

Come again.

They came, they saw, they conquered.

Major Clegg says the sham battle was the best ever.

The men at all times presented a neat appearance.

The river and islands caught the fancy of the Rangers.

Bandmaster Gliddon and his musicians came in for rounds of applause and congratulations.

Lieutenants Comstock and Lech remained here until this afternoon looking after the transports.

Major Clegg yesterday extended an invitation to Lt.-Col. Buell to have the 41st visit Peterborough next year. The invitation will receive due consideration.

The mascot of the Rangers is Master Davidson, son of Canon Davidson, the chaplain. As he marched along in his natty khaki uniform he attracted much favourable attention.

Lt.-Col. Stephenson, who recently relinquished command of the regiment, was unable to accompany the Rangers on account of business taking him away from Peterborough last week.

Wm. McIlroy, C. P. R. city ticket agent at Peterborough, came along with the boys and during his visit made many Brockville friends. Mr. McIlroy possesses a rich tenor voice and on several occasions he delighted his hearers with different numbers. "The Village Blacksmith" and "Killarney" were two favourites. Mr. McIlroy is one of Peterborough's leading and most progressive citizens.

En route up King street to the station last night the Rangers walked in front of the armory and gave three cheers for Lt.-Col. Buell, who responded. At Victoria Hall they stopped and gave three cheers for Mayor Patterson. The latter made a short response bidding the visitors welcome to the Island City. Major Clegg, in reply thanked the mayor and through him the citizens of Brockville, for their whole-hearted welcome and courtesies extended.

Killed On Track

BELLEVILLE, JULY 3.—A G. T. R. brakeman named Daniel Lawdor, was, at an early hour this morning, instantly killed on the railway between this city and Trenton. Owing to an accident to a freight train, in which one car was smashed, Lawdor was sent to flag the westbound passenger train, but did not do so. Soon after his remains, horribly mutilated, were found upon the tracks. He evidently had been run over by the passenger train. The victim was a married man residing in this city.

NEW HEAT RECORD FOR PETERBORO OFFICIAL THERMOMETER AT 99 DEGREES

Eight Mulatto Girls Killed By Assassin

Horrible Series of Crimes in Atlanta Ga. Have Aroused Fear of Inhabitants--Girls are Afraid to go on the Streets After Dark--All Murders Committed in the Same Way

Atlanta, Ga., July 4.—A series of murders of attractive-looking mulatto and quadroon women—eightmurders in all, in eight consecutive weeks, each occurring on a Saturday night—has completely baffled the police department and sent terror to the hearts of the negro population of the city and surrounding territory. The latest victim was murdered last Saturday night.

iKllings of negroes by negroes are frequent enough on Saturday nights, when blind tiger whiskey has been flowing freely; and if the murders had been of the ordinary kind where there is a heated quarrel, a blow, the crack of a pistol, or the glitter of a knife in any of the many dives and dance halls of the city, little would have been thought of them.

But a new variety of negro murderer—for it is assumed beyond question that he is negro—has suddenly appeared. He is as heartless and unerring as Jack the Ripper, whose grewsome murders in Whitechapel district of London over twenty years ago startled the whole world.

He displays the same diabolical cunning, the same fiendish desire to rip and tear and mutilate after once death has been inflicted. And, strangely enough, the bloody work betrays the fact that he possesses no little knowledge of anatomy.

The first stroke is always in a vital spot, and death is dealt out with absolute certainty. It is afterward that the awif, alien carving up of the victim— always in the same region of the body—begins. The body is then left in some dark, obscure alley. Possibly the crime is not discovered until Sunday morning. At all events, it has been the same for the last eight weeks, the murderer escapes leaving no clue to his identity.

Physical evidence goes to show that the murder is not committed after the accomplishment of the usual crime for which negroes are frequently lynched in the South. Rather it is thought to follow the awful mania of a diseased mind which in other subjects is rational enough.

In each case the victims have been good-looking and neatly dressed. More than one of them has received an education in one of the many schools for negroes founded by the philanthropic people at the North.

The average negro is a gregarious and a child-like creature, easily swayed by the impulse of the moment. When he stoops to crime of the murderous kind it is usually the swift result of hot and unbridled passions getting the better of him or when his brain has been befuddled by whiskey. He seldom plans for days ahead, as apparently the slayer did in these murders. And yet, in support of the theory that it is a negro, is the fact that he habits of the victims, what time they leave work, where they live, and the most likely place for the commission of the crime are known in advance.

Saturday night is a time of merry-making and carousal for the average Atlanta negro, after his day's work is done. Arm in rm men and women loiter up and down certain streets, picking guitars, thumbing banjos, singing, laughing—a care free, happy, irresponsible lot. They have their jealous quarrels, fights and killings, but a Saturday night tragedy does not linger long in their memories, and they are taught little by experience as a general rule.

But this human monster that has stolen among them and dealt out death so unerringly has caused fright to grip them. They have conjured up a being something more than human, possessedof supernatural powers—an ogre, a fiend incarnate—and when Saturday night comes scores of bright, yelow skinned girls, who were wont to laugh and joke and cquette with the men of their race as they strolled from place to place, are huddled up at home behind closed and barred doors, afraid to venture forth.

Not in a single instance has an out and out black woman been murdered in the maner described, and the word has gone forth among them that they are safe.

It would seem that all of the negroes had been killed with the same instrument, a razor or a sharp knife such as surgeons use. Save in one instance, the throat was cut and the wound was clean. No stab marks were evident.

All wounds were made as if the victim had been seized suddenly, head held back and the blade drawn swiftly across in a horizontal direction. The jugular vein was in each case completely severed.

MR. MORTON SWEEPS THE BOARD AT THE CHEESE BOARD MEETING THIS MORNING

3,445 boxes were boarded at the meeting of the Cheese Board this morning. This is an advance of 59 boxes over that of the last sale. This indicates that the prevailing dry weather is not seriously affecting the milk supply.

The bidding, which was brisk, was opened by Mr. Gillespie at 11 3-16 and was immediately raised to 11 5-16 by Mr. Morton, who cleared the Board at this figure.

MAN STRUCK BY TRAIN HAS HEARING RESTORED

KINGSTON, JULY 4—Through being struck by a G. T. R. train at Ernestown on Monday, Louis Renaud of Aylmer, Que., a farm hand, who was walking on the tracks, can now hear. Previous to that he was almost stone deaf. He could not hear the locomotives whistle screeching at him to get off the tracks, and the cowcatcher knocked him 100 feet, through a barbed wire fence. The injured man was brought to the Kingston General Hospital, where Dr. Williams found that he was suffering from a scalp wound and several broken ribs. Renaud, who is thirty-six years of age, told the doctor how his hearing had been restored to him and was quite happy over the bump the locomotive had given him.

RASPBERRY CROP RUINED

ST CATHARINES, JULY 5.—It is definitely stated by the Cold Storage Company's official to-day that the raspberry crop is being terribly burned up on the bushes. The same report comes from different points of the Niagara district.

Mercury Reached New High Level at Noon To-day and Will Probably go Over 100 This Afternoon —Worst Ever Experienced

BETTER TO-MORROW

All records for extreme heat in Peterborough were broken at noon to-day, when the official thermometer climbed to the locally unprecedented altitude of 99 degrees. And that isn't all. There is every prospect this afternoon of it aviating still further, and the Government metereologist expects it to reach over the 100 mark. There is one feature about it—we are breaking records—but it is hard to find any satisfaction in that, under the present conditions.

Last night the weather moderated a little, the thermometer registering 79, which is the lowest it has been since Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. Citizens gulped in the slight breeze with satisfaction, and hoped for a cooler temperature to-day, but their expectations withered up soon after the first appearance of the fiery red sun, above the eastern horizon, and before the day was far advanced it was easy to see that Monday's conditions would be paralleled, if not beaten. And beaten they were, by at least two degrees. To sweltering Peterborough, however, it seemed as if this margin was not enough. The heat was more unbearable even than on Monday, with a wind as hot as the breath from a furnace and an intensely hot sun beaming down upon the earth. It is safe to say there was never less cooking done in Peterborough than to-day. Housewives refuse to face the ordeal of standing over a hot stove, and cold meals were in order in most households through the city to-day. Down town the majority of people flunked the walk home and dined at the restaurants and ice-cream parlours, in many cases the mid-day meal comprising nothing more substantial than an ice-cream soda.

The small boy has all the best of the argument with the heat. In the first place he has reduced the problem of clothes down to a minimum, and at that he only wears them going and coming from meals—the rest of the time he is spending splashing around in the river or Little Lake. The need of municipal baths for the benefit of adults has never been more strikingly or convincingly shown than during the present siege.

As far as the weather forecasts go, we shall have to endure the heat to-night and to-morrow again. There may be thunderstorms to-morrow, with a moderation in the conditions by Thursday night, but the weather man is inclined to be pessimistic about it. The hot wave not only has been the most severe, but the most long drawn out in the history of the city. Since 8 o'clock Saturday morning it has not been below 79 and only got down that far in the middle of the night on Tuesday and Monday nights. The highest official reading of the thermometer for the five days has been as follows:

Saturday	91
Sunday	93
Monday	97
Tuesday	90
Wednesday	99

Unofficial thermometers have registered over 100 to-day and on Monday.

Unofficial thermometers have registered over 100 to-day and on Monday.

Dr. Marsh's thermometer, at 2 o'clock to-day registered 99, but earlier in the day it had marked 110 in the shade. Springville, from its situation in a little circular valley, into which the sun concentrates its rays, is certainly a hot place.

FAILED TO MATERIALIZE

A meeting of the Board of Trade was called for last night, but there were only three members present. The intense heat must have been the cause of the others not attending. The meeting was postponed until some later date.

THE LOGIC OF FACT.

The London Advertiser furnishes the following quotations and comments, which show that the reciprocity agreement, judged by a standard that alone can be depended upon, is a good thing for the Canadian farmer. It shows how a Conservative farmer of Caradoc, Middlesex county, had the party scales melted from his eyes by a slight contact with the logic of fact:

James Peters has returned from Detroit, Mich., where he spent several days, getting data on the reciprocity question. He quotes the following prices for farm products there: Hay, $16 per ton; potatoes, $1.25 per bag; strawberries, 12 cents per quart, and not of as good a quality as Mount Carmel berries; eggs, 22 cents a dozen; cheese, 16 cents per pound, and butter, 28 cents per pound. He was astonished at the much higher prices paid there than at Windsor, and after thoroughly investigating the situation has come to the conclusion that reciprocity would be beneficial to the Canadian farmer.—Strathroy Age.

Mr. James Peters is one of the leading Conservatives of Caradoc Township—in fact, a member of the Conservative executive of West Middlesex. Like many other Conservatives, especially Conservative farmers, he recognizes the logic of facts and figures. The advantages of a free American market stare the farmer in the face every time he opens his newspaper and compares Canadian and American market quotations. There is not an intelligent Canadian Conservative granger who does not heartily wish the reciprocity issue could be dissociated from party politics.

ADVANTAGE IN TRADING OVER WIDE AREA.

(Weekly Sun)

A condition exists at present in regard to meat supplies in Canada, such as is liable to occur in any season regarding some variety of foodstuffs. Manitoba and the West generally, under normal conditions, furnish a very considerable portion of the world's beef supply. At present they are drawing upon Ontario for a part of their own table needs in meat. As a consequence of the drought of last year the Western Provinces found themselves short of feed while they were long in cattle. Steers which could not be finished at home, were shipped in thousands to Ontario, fattened here, and dressed beef from these same cattle is now going back to the West, almost by train load, for consumption on the plains.

We have not been without like experience in Ontario. On more than one occasion this Province has had to draw upon distant sources in order to overcome local shortage in some necessity of life. In some years we have been obliged to look to Quebec for hay, in others we have gone to Michigan for potatoes. When conditions as to production have been reversed, New York has been glad to come to us, berries grown here having been eagerly sought by New York buyers a fortnight ago.

This simple narration of facts illustrates the advantage of being able to trade in the freest possible manner, over the widest possible area. The advantage in so doing is not confined to cases in which communities vary greatly in their products; it is present even where production is along the same general lines, an abnormal shortage being liable to arise at any time in place of the normal surplus. The wider the area over which trade is free the surer the provision against alternate gluts and famines. Modern systems of transportation have tended to adjust matters in this particular, but what has been accomplished in this way has been largely undone by tariff legislation. Manitoba may draw freely on Ontario for beef in a scant year; Ontario may go with equal freedom to Quebec for the hay with which to overcome a temporary shortage. New York cannot draw upon Ontario for cream or berries save on payment of tolls levied by a tariff. Reciprocity, by placing Ontario in the same position in regard to trade with New York and Michigan, so far as foodstuffs are concerned, that this Province is now in with Quebec and Manitoba, will be a good thing. It would be a better thing if reciprocity went the whole way and provided for free trade the continent over in all lines.

RECIPROCITY AND MEAT PACKING.

(Toronto Star)

The fact that the William Davies Company is issuing to the investing public a million and a quarter dollars of bonds suggests to the Telegram that Mr. Flavelle is "getting ready to continentalise" his packing industry. It is possible Mr. Flavelle sees that under reciprocity it will be necessary for him to reorganize his business and put it on a somewhat different footing. But it is clear that his prophecy that reciprocity would mean the destruction of the meat-packing industry in Ontario and Quebec does not represent his present opinion. The Telegram's idea however, that Mr. Flavelle, with this new capital, expects that under reciprocity there will be either a market for American meat in Canada or for Canadian meat in the United States, is directly contrary to his expressed opinion in February last, when he said that the reduction in the duty on packed meat was not what he feared. It was the possibility of Canadian farmers selling their hogs in the United States which was going to bring destruction upon the industry, not the selling of American meat in Canada. But if there were anything in the Telegram's notion that Mr. Flavelle wants this money in order to pack meat by Canadian workmen in Toronto for sale in markets that are now closed to him, what is there in that that should cause a Toronto paper to find fault with reciprocity?

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—Apparently the City Council has definitely decided not to use any more oil on the streets, but I, for one, think they are making a big mistake in adopting this course. I have been greatly pleased with the improvement the oil has effected in the condition of Hunter street east, and I am sure that my opinion in this respect is endorsed by nearly every one in East City. Most of the people in this Ward would like to see the oiling of the streets adopted as a permanency, believing that it helps to preserve the road as well as mitigating the dust evil.

Yours etc.,
J. C. Sullivan.

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—I notice that the City Council are to submit a by-law to the ratepayers, asking for authority to borrow $24,000.00 for park purposes. It seems to me that the Council could hit upon no better proposition of giving the people in the South End a park than by purchasing the Exhibition Grounds and converting them into a public park, to be used by the people. They could be used for this purpose for all but the few days of the Exhibition and the grounds could be made an ideal park. By purchasing this property the authorities would be killing two birds with one stone. The matter is one that should be given every consideration by the body aldermanic.

Yours, etc.,
R. H. Leery.

Rosebery Talks of Washing Day Of The Imperial Parliament

When the members of Parliament from the Overseas Dominions arrived in London recently for the coronation they were given a luncheon at Westminster Hall, where Lord Rosebery proposed "Our Parliamentary Colleagues from the Overseas Dominions."

His Lordship is reported in the London Daily Chronicle as follows:

He was in good voice, and was the only speaker who succeeded in making himself heard easily. He began with a note of banter. It was not a dinner, he said, to leaders given by leaders, but a private entertainment by the private members and backwoodsmen of the other Parliaments, to the private members and backwoodsmen of the ther Parliaments. And as the humblest of the backwoodsmen who had been placed in the chair, he was glad to welcome brethren of the same kind from across the sea. (Laughter and cheers.)

"This is the first collection of its kind of the members of the Parliaments of the Empire meeting in the capital of the Empire. Is not that a great and pregnant fact? The hall in which we meet is not unworthy of the occasion. It was founded by William Rufus. It was here that Somers was acquitted and Bacon condemned. It is the hall where against Warren Hastings was arrayed the greatest collection of eloquence, talent and genius ever brought together. It is here that Strafford and his master faced their judges with a majesty that robbed death of its terrors.

"There is something remarkable and inspiring in the fact that representatives of all parts of the Empire should come here to-day. It is as if we were to roll back the Nile to its source in the Victoria Nyanza.

NATIONAL WASHING-DAY.

"And if you were asked to-day why you were here, I suppose you would say: 'To see the Mother of Parliaments seated on her tripod.' If that be so, on behalf of that very elderly lady, I offer you a hearty welcome. It is a welcome not wholly free from embarrassment I can best describe by the homely metaphor of washing-day. (Laughter.) That isthe day on which the mistress of the house, renovates all the linen of the establishment, drives all males away, and sits enthroned amid vast tubs of hot water in an atmosphere of soap and horrible steam surrounded by piles of linen. It is washing-day with us, and we are hardly in a position to receive visitors.

"Some of us hoped that the inconvenient period of the domestic washing might have been got over before our children from the Dominions had favoured us with their visit. But as things are, we can only tender you a warm welcome, though of a moist and soap-suddy nature.

"As to the result of our domestic operations there are two classes of opinion (Laughter.) One thinks that the ancient mother of Parliaments will emerge from the process which she is undergoing with renewed youth and vigour, though with a shortened life. But there is another less sanguine school which thinks that when it is all over she will be found to have only one leg to stand upon. (Laughter.)

"Whether that will be beneficial to us here or not, I dare say you from the Dominions will be able to discuss with more freedom from prejudice than we are. But I do not believe that any Parliament in the world has yet reached its final state. And I will further advance the proposition, so often overlooked, but so fundamentally true, that Parliaments are made for the people, and not the people for Parliaments. (Cheers.)

"May I express the hope and the prayer that wisdom may be given to our rulers and to our people that they may deal faithfully and wisely in repairing the ancient structure of the Constitution of which we are the trustees."

CONSECRATION OF THE KING.

"Next Thursday we shall see the most august ceremonial that occurs in the lifetime of a King—his consecration to the service of God and of his country. The pageant will represent the history of 1,000 years, and through all that time the history of an Empire always waxing and, I trust, never to wane.

"You have come here from the remotest parts of the world to see the Crown of Edward the Confessor planted on the head of George V. What a splendid chapter of history such a thought suggests! Is it not a history of which we ourselves in our generation must endeavor to prove ourselves worthy?

"Do we not," he proceeded, "see in the Imperial Cnference the germ of a mightier council, which will represent the unity of the Empire in a permanent form, and will thus be the most august Parliament that the world has ever dreamt of?"

Lord Rosebery referred to the Peace movement as good tidings to the toiling peoples of the world almost equally groaning under the oppressive burdens of peace and the possible terrors of war. No statesman, nor backwoodsman, nor any but an enthusiast could think that the dawn of universal peace had come, but, at any rate, they would note the enormous advance made by the joining of hands of a great Empire and a great Republic springing from a common stock to do all they could to discourage war. But union and strength were necessary to that end, and strength could not be obtained by disarmament—which would be the certain presage of war. He was certain that if they wished for peace they must prepare for war.

Labour Conditions Here During Month Of May

Mr. J. Arthur Sharp, correspondent for Peterborough, Ont., and district, reported as follows to the Labour Gazette:

General Condition of Labour.

The condition of labour during May has been active, showing a marked improvement over April, also over the same period last year. The advent of settled weather gave an impetus to all outdoor enterprises, furnishing work for a large number of the various classes. Building was very active, and there is every indication of it continuing. Employment of skilled and unskilled labour was more general than has been for some time. Some of the employers complain that many of their skilled mechanics are leaving for the West; their places are being filled by new arrivals from Great Britain. The Campbell Milling Company of West Toronto has purchased the Central Milling Company mills. These mills have been in liquidation for some time. There will be no change in the staff, and the mills will be run to their fullest capacity. The Model Foundry & Pump Works were opened on May 1. They will manufacture all kinds of pumps and gasoline engines. At the first meeting of the local cheese board for thi season, 1,225 boxes of cheese were boarded and all sold for 10 5-8 cents. The Grand Trunk Railway trackmen have received an increase in wages of 10 cents per day.

Agriculture.—The weather has been most favourable for the growing crops. There is still a large demand for good farm hands.

Lumbering.— The saw mills have commenced their season's cutting some two weeks earlier than usual. There is plenty of water and the drives are now on their way.

Manufacturing.— The manufacturers in all lines were very busy, some of them working overtime.

Condition of Particular Trades.

The building trades were very busy, plumbers especially being in demand. Iron moulders and core makers had a good month. Machinists and engineers were active. Electrical workers were very busy. Linemen were in demand. Metal polishers, buffers and brass workers were active. Woodworkers were busy. Printers, pressmen, electrotypers and bookbinders had a busy month. Journeymen tailors and garment workers were very busy. Bakers and confectioners, butchers and meat cutters, and ice cutters and drivers were active. Cigar makers were quiet. Leather workers were busy. Barbers were well employed. Railway and street railway employes were active. Carters and expressmen were very busy. Unskilled labour was in good demand.

CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC TEAM BEAT ST. JAMES' ALL SAINT'S WERE BEATEN

In a Midland League semi-final game on Monday night at the Exhibition grounds, the Canadian General Electric team defeated the St. James' eleven, champions of the Church League, by 5 goals to one. The losers put up a good argument, as was expected of them after their fine showing in the Church League, but the fast combination of the champions was too much for them.

All Saints journeyed to Brooklin on Saturday and played a semi-final Midland League game with the homesters losing after a hotly contested match by 1 to 0. Brooklin play a return game here on Saturday.

SAYS MORRIS WILL BEAT JOHNSON IN TWO YEARS

Tulsa, Okla., July 4.—Carl Morris and Trainer Con Riley have their own ideas about wresting the crown from Jack Johnson. Riley and Morris are coupled, for without Con, Corris is so green the cows "moo" at him.

Their plans aren't secret. An hour in camp and you feel at home, inclined to believe what you hear (despite all you see) providing yu forget that Jack Johnson is the baskest, cleverest, fastest of heavyweights.

Yon believe Morris. His brown eyes are honest. His voice is sincere. You hope he will beat Johnson in two years, when Riley says he will be at his best—and you hope he will be kept frm slaughter in the meantime.

As to Flynn, who tossed punches into Kaufmann with more relish than he heaved coal into engine boilers; he is a stepping stone of "hopes," and is guaranteed $5,000 by Manager P. B. Ufer. Victory would give Morris experience and is cheap at $5,000.

Morris' height and reach have won battles for him, and Flynn faces a bombardment of kidney punches if he steps in else or ducks under Morris' guard. No small man can escape this punishment and few could stand up beneath the sledge-hammer blows.

Riley says Morris is just learning to use his reach to advantage and will be ready for all Flynn has when they meet. He also says Morris will mix at close range with Flynn.

To hear Con tell it, Morris has a crouch which, with his reach, makes his head and body impossible t reach, and has a 10-inch kick in either hand that is deadly. And he insists Morris knows how to hit.

Jack Geyer, who was in Johnson's retinue a year ago, is drawing $50 a week as Morris' sparring partner, so he may be prejudiced. Geyer is Morris' strongest verbal supporter. Grabbed from his chant, Morris is a cinch in the Flynn fight. "Johnson is too clever for Morris now, but he won't be good enough in two years to escape an awful licking. Take it from me. I know," is the burden of his song.

BIG CHANGES IN BOTH OF THE MAJOR LEAGUES—DETROIT GOES DOWN

Outfielder "Hank" Butcher, a star on the New Orleans team since the spring of 1910, left alst night for Cleveland to join the Naps. He is the third player to go from New Orleans to Cleveland this season, Piage and Lindsay preceding him.

Brooklyn has not shown any serious intention of figuring as a first division team, but the Dodgers have found the Quakers for more victories than the Giants have.

The Cubs have not been able to make "Heine" Zimmerman's bat count as heavily in the box scores as "Johnny" Evers' brains used to.

The return of Lajoie, even as an occasional pinch hitter, gives the Naps a stronger front.

Five high school and college players have been added to Connie Mack's list within the last week, a sort of summer school for future greats of the diamond.

Released by Newark and signed by Brooklyn is the abridged story of George Browne, and the supposed speed of the major and minor league teams involved.

And now Pittsburg has been forced to take Bresnahan's team seriously.

Just to reassure aMnager Chance that he can retire from the game without busting up the Cub team, Goode came along wih four runs and four hits against Cincinnati.

Think of a pitcher being paid real money and then walking four men in a row and hitting a fifth at the outset of a game. That's what Clevelander Krapp did against the Tigers. Of course he was scared to death to begin with.

Missouri is again the "mysterious stranger," this time in the guise of the St. Louis team in the first division of the National League.

Always keep in mind hat the Cubs are making their game fight this year without Steinfeldt, Evers or Chance in the line-up. But Doyle, Zimmerman and Hofman are going nearly as well.

Andy Coakley pitched so well for the Paterson, N. J., team that the Highlanders signed him. He immediately "blowed" in the faster company and was turned back. Yesterday the Highlanders played Paterson and Coakley thrust the hooks into the big leaguers.

WOLGAST KNOCKS OUT OWEN MORAN IN 13TH

Light Weight Champion Successfully Defends His Title After a Slashing Rough Battle With Britisher---Moran Had the Science but Cadillac Boy's Ripping Strenuous Fighting Won the Victory For Him

San Francisco, July 4.—Ad. Wolgast of Cadillac, Mich., the lightweight champion of the world, successfully defended his title here this afternoon against Owen Moran of Birmingham, Eng. Wolgast scored a knockout over his rival in the thirteenth round of a battle that had been scheduled for twenty rounds.

The English fighter showed wonderful cleverness and recuperative powers. He appeared to be the better boxer, but the rushing and hard hitting of the champion were his undoing. Wolgast had greater strength, and more force behind his blows than did Moran. The latter fought pluckily and his gameness never questioned is now better known than ever.

The battle was very even. First one boxer would gain a decided advantage, only to have it taken away from him quite as decisively in the following round. Betting was brisk, with Wolgast the favourite, at 10 to 6. Moran's followers snapped up the short end with amazing avidity. One of the largest individual wagers recorded was $3,000 on the champion, and the better had no trouble in getting that amount against $1,500. The largest ringside wager was $5,000 against $3,000, made just before the curtain-raiser was put on.

After shaking hands they closed in slowly and almost immediately the crowd yelled for the referee to break them. Moran protested that Wolgast was "butting" and the crowd jeered. Wolgast broke a clinch with two powerful lefts to the jaw and they mixed it, each fighting viciously. They went to close quarters, with Wolgast hooking his left viciously to the jaw. Then he started the blood from the Briton's mouth with a volley of short-arm lefts. A hard body blow by the champion closed the round, which was in Wolgast's favour.

The secon dwas Moran's round and the third was even.

Round four was spectacular. Wolgast's right eye was badly discoloured and Moran's mouth was bleeding as they toed the mark. Moran shot a stiff left to the face and again they rouched it with their arms locked. Wolgast was doing the greater execution. Moran drove a straight right to the jaw and then clouted the champion with a left to the same place. Wolgast sent his right with great force to the body, and they seemed disinclined to break from the clinch. Wolgast hooked a left to the body, and drove the Briton against the ropes. They were quickly back in the centre of the ring fighting like tigers. Wolgast's seconds taunted Moran, to which the Britisher replied:

"He won't get me to-day," and then protested vigorously to the referee that the champion was intentionally "elbowing" him. Moran had a shade the better of the round.

The fifth and sixth rounds were even and Wolgast had a good margin in the seventh. In the eighth Moran almost sent the champino through the ropes with a rush and then went nearly through himself from the force of his onslaught. Wolgast drove a ferible left ot the stomach and followed it with right uppercuts to the jaw. Wolgast started the blood in a stream from the Briton's mouth, and Moran wilted like a leaf. Wolgast sent in a storm of blows, following his man about the ring and using both his hands with equal facility. Moran went to his corner with a bloody face and appeared to be in sore straits. Wolgast had all the better of the round with Moran tiring.

The ninth was Wolgast's by a shade but in the tenth Moran brought the crowd to its feet when he met Wolgast at his own game, beating him to the punch and starting the blood from the champion's mouth. Wolgast showed up perceptibly and they rested in a clinch. Moran swung a hard right to the jaw and they were in another dashing rally when the bell rang. It was Moran's round and he was cheered to the echoes. His cleverness enabled him to outpoint the Michigan lad in the eleventh and he appeared to be gaining strength. Wolgast loosened Moran's front teeth in the twelfth.

The end came in the thirteenth. Wolgast rushed desperately and finally forced the Briton into a corner. They had not been fighting 30 seconds when the champion shot his right with terrific force to the pit of the stomach. The impact of the blow was heard clear across the arena. Quick as a flash Wolgast sent two more right to the stomach, and as Moran began to fall a left hook found the jaw. Moran went to the floor, with his mouth open and his eyes glassy. He was counted out while in a recumbent position.

PHILLIES ARE IN THE LEAD

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 4.—Philidelphia knocked New York out of firts place by winning this afternoon's game by 7 to 5. When play started, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago were a triple tie for the lead in the National League race. The home team won the contest by pounding Crandall's delivrey hard. Luderus getting two home runs and a single off him. In the seventh inning Crandall was knocked unconscious by a line drive off Dooin's bat, the ball hitting the pitcher in the head. Marquard took Crandall's place. Rightfielder Walsh was overcome by the heat near the end of the game, and had to be carried from the field.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

Baking a Fish.

If you desire to serve a baked fish whole and have it stand upright on the platter put a carrot inside the fish before cooking and it will remain in position.

The Dead Sea.

There is absolutely no foundation for the statement sometimes heard in certain quarters that swimming the Dead Sea is impossible. On the contrary, owing to the buoyancy of the water it is almost impossible not to swim. Equally fabulous is the idea that no animal or vegetation can live near its shores.

The Charger at the Funeral.

The charger led at the funeral of a cavalry officer is a relic of the custom when a horse was sacrificed at the grave. An officer led the charger behind the bier to the brink of the grave, and it was there slain and thrown in upon the coffin. The last occurrence of this kind took place at Treves, Germany, in 1761.

The battle was very even. First one boxer would gain a decided advantage, only to have it taken away from him quite as decisively in the following round. Betting was brisk, with Wolgast the favourite, at 10 to 6. Moran's followers snapped up the short end with amazing avidity. One of the largest individual wagers recorded was $3,000 on the champion, and the better had no trouble in getting that amount against $1,500. The largest ringside wager was $5,000 against $3,000, made just before the curtain-raiser was put on.

After shaking hands they closed in slowly and almost immediately the crowd yelled for the referee to break them. Moran protested that Wolgast was "butting" and the crowd jeered. Wolgast broke a clinch with two powerful lefts to the jaw and they mixed it, each fighting viciously. They went to close quarters, with Wolgast hooking his left viciously to the jaw. Then he started the blood from the Briton's mouth with a volley of short-arm lefts. A hard body blow by the champion closed the round, which was in Wolgast's favour.

The secon dwas Moran's round and the third was even.

Round four was spectacular. Wolgast's right eye was badly discoloured and Moran's mouth was bleeding as they toed the mark. Moran shot a stiff left to the face and again they roughed it with their arms locked. Wolgast was doing the greater execution. Moran drove a straight right to the jaw and then clouted the champion with a left to the same place. Wolgast sent his right with great force to the body, and they seemed disinclined to break from the clinch. Wolgast hooked a left to the body, and drove the Briton against the ropes. They were quickly back in the centre of the ring fighting like tigers. Wolgast's seconds taunted Moran, to which the Britisher replied:

"He won't get me to-day," and then protested vigorously to the referee that the champion was intentionally "elbowing" him. Moran had a shade the better of the round.

The fifth and sixth rounds were even and Wolgast had a good margin in the seventh. In the eighth Moran almost sent the champion through the ropes with a rush and then went nearly through himself from the force of his onslaught. Wolgast drove a terible left ot the stomach and followed it with right uppercuts to the jaw. Wolgast started the blood in a stream from the Briton's mouth, and Moran wilted like a leaf. Wolgast sent in a storm of blows, following his man about the ring and using both his hands with equal facility. Moran went to his corner with a bloody face and appeared to be in sore straits. Wolgast had all the better of the round with Moran tiring.

The ninth was Wolgast's by a shade but in the tenth Moran brought the crowd to its feet when he met Wolgast at his own game, beating him to the punch and starting the blood from the champion's mouth. Wolgast showed up perceptibly and they rested in a clinch. Moran swung a hard right to the jaw and they were in another slashing rally when the bell rang. It was Moran's round and he was cheered to the echoes. His cleverness enabled him to outpoint the Michigan lad in the eleventh and he appeared to be gaining strength. Wolgast loosened Moran's front teeth in the twelfth.

The end came in the thirteenth. Wolgast rushed desperately and finally forced the Briton into a corner. They had not been fighting 30 seconds when the champion shot his right with terrific force to the pit of the stomach. The impact of the blow was heard clear across the arena. Quick as a flash Wolgast sent two more right to the stomach, and as Moran began to fall a left hook found the jaw. Moran went to the floor, with his mouth open and his eyes glassy. He was counted out while in a recumbent position.

PHILLIES ARE IN THE LEAD

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 4.—Philidelphia knocked New York out of first place by winning this afternoon's game by 7 to 5. When play started, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago were a triple tie for the lead in the National League race. The home team won the contest by pounding Crandall's delivrey hard. Luderus getting two home runs and a single off him. In the seventh inning Crandall was knocked unconscious by a line drive off Dooin's bat, the ball hitting the pitcher in the head. Marquard took Crandall's place. Rightfielder Walsh was overcome by the heat near the end of the game, and had to be carried from the field.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC TEAM BEAT ST. JAMES' ALL SAINT'S WERE BEATEN

In a Midland League semi-final game on Monday night at the Exhibition grounds, the Canadian General Electric team defeated the St. James' eleven, champions of the Church League, by 5 goals to one. The losers put up a good argument, as was expected of them after their fine showing in the Church League, but the fast combination of the champions was too much for them.

All Saints journeyed to Brooklin on Saturday and played a semi-final Midland League game with the homesters losing after a hotly contested match by 1 to 0. Brooklin play a return game here on Saturday.

SAYS MORRIS WILL BEAT JOHNSON IN TWO YEARS

Tulsa, Okla., July 4.—Carl Morris and Trainer Con Riley have their own ideas about wrestling the crown from Jack Johnson. Riley and Morris are coupled, for without Con, Corris is so green the cows "moo" at him.

Their plans aren't secret. An hour in camp and you feel at home, inclined to believe what you hear (despite all you see) providing yu forget that Jack Johnson is the hardest, cleverest, fastest of heavyweights.

You believe Morris. His brown eyes are honest. His voice is sincere. You hope he will beat Johnson in two years, when Riley says he will be at his best—and you hope he will be kept frm slaughter in the meantime.

As to Flynn, who tossed punches into Kaufmann with more relish than he heaved coal into engine boilers; he is a stepping stone of "hopes," and is guaranteed $5,000 by Manager F. B. Ufer. Victory would give Morris experience and is cheap at $5,000.

Morris' height and reach have won battles for him, and Flynn faces a bombardment of kidney punches if he steps in clse or ducks under Morris' guard. No small man can escape this punishment and few could stand up beneath the sledge-hammer blows.

Riley says Morris is just learning to use his reach to advantage and will be ready for all Flynn has when they meet. He also says Morris will mix at close range with Flynn.

To hear Con tell it. Morris has a crouch which, with his reach, makes his head and body impossible t reach, and has a 10-inch kick in either hand that is deadly. And he insists Morris knows how to hit.

Jack Geyer, who was in Johnson's retinue a year ago, is drawing $50 a week as Morris' sparring partner, so he may be prejudiced. Geyer is Morris' strongest verbal supporter. Grabbed from his chant, Morris is a cinch in the Flynn fight. "Johnson is too clever for Morris now, but he won't be good enough in two years to escape an awful licking. Take it from me, I know," is the burden of his song.

BIG CHANGES IN BOTH OF THE MAJOR LEAGUES—DETROIT GOES DOWN

Outfielder "Hank" Butcher, a star on the New Orleans team since the spring of 1910, left last night for Cleveland to join the Naps. He is the third player to go from New Orleans to Cleveland this season, Paige and Lindsay preceding him.

Brooklyn has not shown any serious intention of figuring as a first division team, but the Dodgers have found the Quakers for more victories than the Giants have.

The Cubs have not been able to make "Heine" Zimmerman's bat count as heavily in the box scores as "Johnny" Evers' brains used to.

The return of Lajoie, even as an occasional pinch hitter, gives the Naps a stronger front.

Five high school and college players have been added to Connie Mack's list within the last week, a sort of summer school for future greats of the diamond.

Released by Newark and signed by Brooklyn is the abridged story of George Browne, and the supposed speed of the major and minor league teams involved.

And now Pittsburg has been forced to take Bresnahan's team seriously.

Just to reassure aManger Chance that he can retire from the game without busting up the Cub team, Goode came along wih four runs and four hits against Cincinnati.

Think of a pitcher being paid real money and then walking four men in a row and hitting a fifth at the outset of a game. That's what Clevelander Krapp did against the Tigers. Of course he was scared to death to begin with.

Missouri is again the "mysterious stranger," this time in the guise of the St. Louis team in the first division of the National League.

Always keep in mind hat the Cubs are making their game fight this year without Steinfeldt, Evers or Chance in the line-up. But Doyle, Zimmerman and Hofman are going nearly as well.

Andy Coakley pitched so well for the Patersen, N. J., team that the Highlanders signed him. He immediately "blowed" in the faster company and was turned back. Yesterday the Highlanders played Paterson and Coakley thrust the hooks into the big leaguers.

An Evening With Dr. Marsh At His Springville Observatory

Last evening Dr Marsh, the astronomical enthusiast and savant, of Springville, entertained a couple of auto parties, from the city. It was no ordinary social entertainment, but a high-class entertainment in every sense of the term. Without irreverence it was a heavenly entertainment. Dr. Marsh had his splendid equatorial telescope in commission and treated his visitors to views of the heavenly bodies that were simply delight thrills to the earthly bodies and souls of his guests.

He showed them Venus sinking into star-set in the western heavens. At least he showed them half of Venus, for the evening star has been coquetting with Bacchus, and was half full; she has phases like the moon—wax and wane, crescent and gibbous. It was interesting to note that through the telescope Venus with her half face, looked the exact counterpart of the moon, as seen with the naked eye. A visual ramble was made among the mountains of the moon—piled high on its glittering floor, filled with extinct volcanic cups, that, uncounted eons ago held the fierce red wine of the voleanised fire. Alongside the moon, two hundred and forty thousand miles distant, from earth, was giant Jupiter, as large as fourteen thousand earths and five hundred million miles away, girt with his mysterious belts, and with his four moons about him. Last night Jupiter and the moon had the same decline—alion astronomically—the same distance from the celestial equator, and during the night the moon—mite as it is comparatively,—eclipsed the big planet by coming squarely between Jupiter and the light of the sun. The eclipse would be visible to the Canadian west, but not in Ontario.

The telescope brought out the twinness of the two lower stars of the Delta, Lyra and Epsilon, which, though showing as a single star to unassisted vision, become each two distinct stars, like two fiery eyes. These double stars are inclined to be rather giddy in the way of changing relative positions; the two stars of one pair revolving around each other, like a change in the "Lancers," one pair every two thousand years and the other pair every four thousand years.

Dr. Marsh's guests were delighted with these and other views of celestial bodies and the treat was made intensely interesting by the accompanying stream of illuminative comment and explanation supplied by Dr. Marsh from his readily accessible star house of information.

After cooling refreshments, supplied by Mrs. Marsh, the grateful guests, rolled home through the hush of the mellow moonlit, full of heavenly thoughts, for the beauty of the unfathomable depths of the celestial ocean, had a new meaning for all who had dipt ever so little into shining secrets.

DIED FROM THE HEAT

TORONTO, JULY 5.—Excessive heat is still claiming a large number of lives all over America, although thetemperature for the most, is lower to-day. Twenty-seven have died in Chicago in the last 24 hours and 32 in New York. The Ontario weather bureau still has hopes of immediate rain. The death list in the United States from fireworks is very small this year, according to the Chicago papers. Forty-one is the full number of deaths for the glorious fourth, although the injured number in thousands.

CHARLOTTE SUNDAY SCHOOL EXCURSION A BIG SUCCESS

The excursion held yesterday under the auspices of the Charlotte street Sunday school, was a complete success, and one of the most delightful outings of the season. It was especially appreciated on account of the intense heat, as the trip on the water was cool. On account of the extreme heat on shore, however, there were no football or baseball games, but other sports were indulged in, such as men's races and high jump, etc.

The excursion party left here yesterday morning and went to Lakefield by train. They got on board the Str. Stoney Lake and went to Juniper Island, where they had dinner. They proceeded to Burleigh Falls after dinner, and later to South Beach, where the sports were held to good advantage. The return trip was made all the way by boat. A large crowd attended and a most pleasant time was enjoyed by all. The sail on the water was cool and refreshing and was a treat, after the sizzling heat on terra firma.

BIG DROP IN NEW YORK STOCKS

No quotations of the New York stocks are on hand to-day on account of the absence of the local operator The market has taken a great drop, however. In nearly every case, a drop from three to five points, and the grain roads have taken an exceptionally big drop on account of the dry weather.

THE DOWAGER QUEEN DEAD

TURIN, ITALY, JULY 5.—Dowager Queen Marie, Pia of Portugal, died this afternoon. She witnessed many misfortunes, her royal brother, son and grandson having all been assassinated. King Manuel is another grandson. Grief over the death of her sister caused her death.

Young Man Charged With House Breaking---Carried Revolver

Earl F. Schweier Will Appear in Police Court To-morrow on Above Charge---Arrested This Morning---Put up a Race with Officer

A young man named Earle F. Schweier, of 491 Sherbrooke street, was arrested this morning on Water street, near the Hotel National, on a charge of house breaking. A complaint was laid with the authorities some time ago, of a case of house breaking, and other information was given which pointed to the fact that the prisoner was the one who committed the deed. Since the information was laid a watch was kept for the culprit. Detective Newhall espied him sitting on a delivery waggon with another young fellow and when he noticed the officer he bolted and ran throuhg the hallway under the market, and then began a hundred yard dash, in which Det. Newhall and Schweier figured principally, but a crowd of interested citizens followed the pair at a slower gait, to see what the result would be. The officer won out, however, and got his man near the National Hotel and took him to the cells, where he now remains. He will appear in the police court to-morrow. He will be charged additionally with stealing certain articles of clothing, a pocket knife and some other such stuff. He also carried a revolver according to information received.

The house he is alleged to have entered is near his home on Sherbrooke street.

Ingersoll Man Receives The Appointment Of Chief Of Police For Lindsay

The Lindsay Warder says:

At last! A chief of police has been appointed by the town council, namely, John T. B. Chilton, of Ingersoll, Ont.

The appointment was made at a meeting of the town council last night, there being very little discussion on the question. A bundle of recommendations were read and Mr. Chilton was appointed at a salary of $900. It is understood that Mr. Chilton some time ago agreed to move to Lindsay. He is said to be fully qualified for the position and is also a man of large stature. Mr. Chilton will be requested to come to Lindsay as soon as possible.

Second Deputy-Reeve Dobson—"Before voting for that man I want a capable, sober, steady business all round man."

Ald. Horn stated that he had several recommendations regarding the ability, honesty and carefulness of Mr. Chilton from business men of Ingersoll and Tilsonburg. The recommendations included one from the chief magistrate of Ingersoll who stated that Mr. Chilton was a very efficient man for the position A similar recommend was read from the chief magistrate of Tilsonburg. "I feel perfectly satisfied that a man could not get all those excellent recommends and not be a good man.

Ald. McCrea stated that he was personally acquainted with all those gentlemen who had forwarded recommendations, and was satisfied that he was a good man.

Reeve Vrooman, who was in the chair, stated that at the last meeting he had made up his mind to support Thos. Ringland, who had all the qualifications mentioned for a chief, but as chairman at the time he had nothing to say. He came prepared to vote for Mr. Thos. Ringland.

After a short discussion Mr. Chilton was appointed and a by-law passed ratifying the appointment.

Merry Half-Day Sale

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

SHE is actually as well dressed as any woman she is with.

And yet everybody knows she has far less means than most of her companions.

Her plan of action is to buy very nice, though simple things and then keep them looking well about twice as long as the average woman.

Everybody wonders how she accomplishes this. Here are some of the minutiae of the trick as explained to one wonderer.

"In the first place, I never buy anything that is cheap or shoddy or extreme in any way. I am willing to pay well for good lines and good materials. If necessary, I economize on trimmings. Consequently, my things will always be all right for three or four seasons if I keep them well.

"I always have on hand in summer a plain sailor hat which I can wear in stormy or even damp or threatening weather. Such a hat will last me three or four seasons and the saving to my nice hats is incalculable.

"In winter I have a felt sailor for the same purpose.

"I always have a good looking rain coat and wear it when there is any danger of a storm. Nothing makes a coat grow old faster than wetting it. A suit that is never worn or caught in a storm will look well just about twice as long as one that has had several such experiences.

"I always keep two or three pairs of shoes going and keep those not in use on shoe-trees. You know one pair of shoes worn constantly will go to pieces much more quickly because they never get a chance to get rid of the animal heat which rots the leather.

"I also change my stockings at least three or four times a week. They wear longer that way.

"I have a full set of shirt and coat hangers and keep all my gowns and suits on them when not in use.

"I never take off a hat without brushing it thoroughly with a stiff hat brush.

"I polish my shoes at least three times a week. You know that softens and preserves the leather as well as keeping them looking well.

"I keep a pair of storm shoes and try never to get my good shoes wet.

"Doesn't all this take a lot of time and planning?

"It certainly does, my friend.

"But was ever anything worth while accomplished without some outlay? I can't spend as much money as my friends, so I try to make it up in time and thought.

"Either eternal vigilance or eternal pocket money is the price of being well dressed. I pay the former."

Weather Man Explains Cause Of Hot Wave

Toronto Meteorologist Says no Reason to Expect That the Conditions Will Not Last for Some Time---Reason Why Ontario Has Suffered so Terribly During the Past Few Days

"What is the real reason for this excessive heat spell," the weatherman at Toornto was asked yesterday.

"It is to be found in the condition of the peninsula of Ontario rather than in any extraordinary feature in the heat wave itself," was the reply. "Southern Ontario for a long time has been excessively dry. If there had been moisture in the ground, the heat here would not have been so extreme. Everything has been favourable to bringing on record heat The days have been long, and the wind has been from the south-west."

The Humidity is Low.

"It is the low humidity which makes the heat endurable at all. In New York city, the reason of the large number of deaths is the extreme humidity. Here, although there have been deaths, it has not been nearly as serious as if there had been much humidity at the same time.

"The present heat wave had its origin in Kansas and Missouri last week. Conditions there were also favourable to high heat," said the observatory official. "The dry plains there took in the rays of the sun, and when an area of low pressure set in, the temperature went right up. They have been having from 100 to 102 for days.

Over Half a Continent.

"That area has moved north-east, until it has spread over the whole eastern half of the continent. Right here in this part of Ontario it has been about the worst, owing to the extraordinary dryness of the land.

"The storms which are coming will not dispel the heat completely. Of course, it will moderate a little, for there will be more moisture, but I see no prospects of cool weather for quite a long time. The idea that a hot day or a hot spell is necessarily followed by a cool one soon is a fallacy. The fact is that it is very hard to break any type of weather. That is why there has ben such a period of wet weather in the West. It is hard to break that condition, and for dry weather to come."

The weather man thinks it probable that Ontario, even before the days of official records, never had heat like the present.

A Unique Condition.

"This is probably a unique condition," he said. "In the primitive days, when the land was heavily wooded, the moisture was retained in the ground longer, and that kept down the temperature. Of course, there would be hot days, but likely there was never a period of 100 degrees in the shade.

"Last week," said the weatherman in conclusion, "on my way back from Dawson, where there has been very cold weather, I had steam heat in my room at Victoria, B. C. In Vancouver, on Coronation Day, the women were wearing furs on the street. I see that in Victoria last night it was only eight degrees above freezing."

Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action.

FEATURES OF YOUNG BUFFALO WILD WEST

The story of the rapidly-passing Great West, as it was found by the rough and ready pioneers of a quarter of a century ago, is vividly portrayed by the Young Buffalo Wild West Show, which will exhibit in Peterborough, Saturday afternoon and night, July 8.

Not only the daring riders of the plains, the wiry broncos that meant so much to the early settlers, the Indians whom they found there, and even the wild bison they hunted, but the very atmosphere of the days when every man was a law unto himself, has been depicted in this great $300,000 production.

It was the privilege of but few men to go through that period and come out of it unscathed. But the now greater Young Buffalo Wild West Show, as it is being produced this year, gives every man, woman, and child in America an opportunity to peep into the pages of history and view events, not as pictured by artists, or described by historians, but as they actually occurred. They may see the hunting of the savage bull buffalo, the lassoing of the animal by expert ropers, and, finally, the joy of every great hunter—the dragging of the trophies of the hunt into camp. Not the least important feature of the wonderful exhibition is Annie Oakley, the peerless wing and rifle shot, whose work has made her a world-wide reputation. No woman ever lived who has accomplished what Miss Oakley has. No woman ever braved the perils faced by this young woman on the plains, as daunt lessly as any of the daredevil cowboys, who were her only companions. Almost as famous, although in an entirely different field of adventure, is Ambrose Means, the "lion lassoer" of Africa, who followed former President Roosevelt into the dark continent. As a guide, Ambrose Means has earned the repetation of being the most daring hunter of the king of beasts who ever bagged a lion.

But all of the energies of the Young Buffalo show have not been expended in securing these stars. In fact, they have added to the galaxy already mentioned by securing Captain A. H. Bogardus, Buffalo Vernon, and a score of other equally famous wild west performers. There is the wonderful wild west girls' band, known as "Salome Jane's Musicians," the famous Indian Chief, Hawk Eye, who heads his own tribe, a great group of women bronco busters, and, last, but not least, historical and stirring pictures of life on the plains in the early days. The attack on the ranch by a murderous and powerful band of Apache Indians, an actual reproduction of "Shooting up the Town," showing exactly how the cowboys welcomed Colonel Roosevelt on his return trip through the West, beautiful tableaux of "Peace and War," and a hundred other feautres. There are upwards of 700 men and women with this aggregation. A big street parade will be given at 10:00 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

NUISANCE AT BOATHOUSES

Complaints are being made about boys swimming in front of the boat houses at the end of Sherbrooke St. Gentlemen approaching with ladies are unable to get near the boat houses on account of boys, and even men, swimming in front of them and running over the platforms, with their clothes lying about the platforms and around the doors. Those in authority intend taking steps to have this nuisance stopped.

AUTO COMES TO GRIEF

The steering apparatus of an auto belonging to MacPherson Bros. came to grief yesterday evening, caused by coming in contact with the sidewalk. The front axle was slightly bent, also some of the stay rods. The damage was sufficient to warrant the machine being taken to a repair shop.

THE WEATHER

All local heat records are being broken to-day. At noon to-day the maximum thermometer of the local observer registered 98 degrees in the shade—and was still rising! The likelihood was for several more degrees to be put on for good measure later in the afternoon. There is a prospect now of some thunderstorms which should have a tendency to cool sweltering humanity.—W. P.

Space will permit of but few of the prices, which goes to show what the reductions are, and will be found exactly as quoted. Each article will have the original ticket, also the sale ticket so that the customer can see for himself the exact reduction. This is an opportunity where you gain and the other fellow is the loser. Having had a very large experience in conducting sales of this kind, I might say that this stock is as fine if not the finest quality and in the best condition of any I have yet handled.
